NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ROBERTS & CO.,
CLOTHIERS!
NEW CLASS FRONT STORE,
797 Broad St.,
NEWARK, N. J.

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to-day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Bernard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments. o14m3

WEDNESDAY was the anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus.

THE leaves are beginning to turn and take their turn to leave town for the season.

IT made things unpleasant for pedestrians, but the rain on Sunday was welcome.

ADJOURNED meeting of the Common Council on next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

FOR the first time in many weeks, the streets on Monday presented a muddy appearance.

THE girls say of the handsome member of the Acorn Club, that he is "too utterly too tweet."

WE'LL soon be taking the ice-cake from the pond and the buckwheat cake from the griddle.

THE City Treasurer holds the money and the public does without light and street repairs.

As we go home dark nights, we can recognize the whereabouts of Moses when the light went out.

THE doors of all the Engine Companies' houses have recently been repainted in an attractive manner.

THE hose carriage of No. 2 Engine Co. presents a most handsome appearance since its repainting by Mr. W. S. Chase.

WILL the Council receive, at its next meeting, a report from the Committee on the Plainfield Water Supply Company's proposition?

BUSINESS all over Plainfield is "picking up" except in the establishment of the one who does not advertise. He still complains of dull times.

THE farmers were not very successful in raising vegetables this season, but will have no difficulty in raising the price of such during the coming Winter.

PRAYER-meetings for young men an hour in length and of great interest, are being held in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. during certain evenings of the week.

THE price of meat as well as milk and vegetables, is soon to be increased "on account of the drought." Ice next summer will be high for the same reason.

THANKSGIVING Day eve is to be favored with (as far as at present reported) balls given by the Sangerbund and No. 2 Eng. Co. Other organizations are yet to be heard from.

THE cry of a short crop of potatoes is said to be nonsense. It is reported that the New York market is overstocked, as they come in from all directions faster than they can be disposed of.

NOW these frosty mornings suggest the frisky buckwheat cake and the festive sausage. But where is the buckwheat to make the meal and the corn to fatten the shoat for the sausage chopper? Drought.

ANOTHER of those pleasant balls and gymnastic entertainments that are made so attractive under the management of the Plainfield Turn-Verein, will be given at Blatz's Hall on Monday evening, November 7th.

A FIRST-class oyster saloon has been opened in the basement of No. 11 E. Front street under the management of Mr. Philip Breen, where at the juicy shell-fish is served to order in the many forms of cookery.

MILK is coming into use as food for hens. It promotes health and helps to increase the production of eggs. But as the lacteal fluid is eight cents per quart here, the Plainfield hen is not likely to get much of it to drink.

THROUGH Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co. of Rochester, N. Y., we have received a colored lithograph of the late President and his Cabinet. The proprietors of the "Safe Kidney and Liver Cure" have our thanks for their kind consideration.

A LADIES' missionary meeting was held in the chapel of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church on Tuesday afternoon. Quite an attendance was gathered and an interesting address from a lady missionary of Africa was attentively listened to.

THE Morristown Banner says: "The attempt to get up a 'boom' in Fire Department-circles for a parade this Fall has most miserably failed." "Ditto in Dover, judging from the apathy thus far manifested," says the Index—and ditto in Plainfield.

TWO weddings are on the "tapes" in this city, that will rob the ranks of our bachelors of two of the most popular among them. Both are Front street merchants; one who marries next month a Peace street lady, being in close proximity to the First National Bank; and the second, who has selected a wife from the same thoroughfare, adjoins the other banking institution.

A SPIRITUALISTIC (?) seance was given in VanDeventer Hall on Monday evening, by Mr. J. Miller and assistant, that succeeded in mystifying a portion of the unusually large audience that had assembled. Mr. Miller's slight of hand, powers of necromancy and animal magnetism are above the average, although the majority of his tricks have become long since threadbare and too stale to impose upon any but the inexperienced.

THE authorities of North Plainfield, without the slightest hesitation, replied affirmatively to the request of the Plainfield Water Supply Co., that it be allowed to lay pipes and mains through the streets of that Township. The Company seems legally to have the privilege, and its courtesy in waving such and awaiting the action of the Common Council of this city, certainly deserves at least attention and common civility from that body.

THE "Committee of Ten" seems to have made more progress towards lighting the street lamps than has our Common Council. The committee has sent a circular to each citizen whose subscription is probable, stating what is proposed, the cost and how it is to be paid for. Each resident subscribing $6 furnishes the means of paying for one of the fifty lamps it is proposed to light until January 1st. A number have already subscribed.

AND so, after all the talk of one or two regarding the terribly unprotected condition of our city and the innumerable crimes that were being nightly committed by the "gang of villians" that infested it, it seems that one rascal is responsible for all. Plainfield can again hold up its head as the most orderly city in the State, and its Chief of Police, Mr. Chas. Dodd, should in some way be substantially rewarded by the municipality for his faithful and satisfactory protection of its interests.

THE Northwest, which is so prolific of hot and cold waves, sent out another cold wave Monday, which took this city entirely unawares. Later in the afternoon the wind began to freshen, and before long had attained the force of a gale, while the thermometer fell several degrees. Pedestrians generally wore overcoats, and the only light hats to be seen were worn by the poor printers and other impecunious laborers. During Tuesday night the thermometer fell to 36 degrees, and ice formed on the surface of all exposed water.

A NEW comer to this city is Mr. A. F. Carpenter, a veterinary surgeon of talent and ability, who has established an office on North Avenue, opposite the depot. The gentleman is highly recommended and feels confident of treating satisfactorily such cases as may be entrusted to his care. Mr. Carpenter and family have taken up their residence in Plainfield, at Tier's Lake House, Front street, and Mr. C. expects to open stables in the city, where valuable horses placed in his charge will be kept. His Post Office address is Lock Box 7.

AN exchange truthfully remarks that one of the great obstacles to the efficiency of our public schools is the presence of a class of children whose chief aim seems to be the making of as much trouble as possible. They will neither improve their advantages themselves, nor, if they can help it, allow others of better disposition to do so; but by a systematic course of petty annoyances and open disobedience the school is kept in constant confusion, and the work of the teacher is in a great measure rendered fruitless. The scholars who try to do well are persecuted and ridiculed by these incipient loafers, who, not satisfied with their own low standing, are anxious to drag all the rest down to it. Any punishment the teacher can lawfully inflict they hold in perfect contempt; and, in fact, they rather court such punishment as affording an opportunity to make a display of bravado and impudence.

CHRISTMAS is only ten weeks from next Sunday.

THE town clock continues to record the hours on its face, but its bell is silent and has ceased to audibly report the flight of time.

THE attention of Democrats is called to notices of Primary meetings and County and Assembly Conventions, in another column.

A DECREE of absolute divorce has been granted by Chancellor Runyon to Sarah Layton of Newark, from her husband, James L. Layton, of Plainfield.

THE Grand Jury of Union Count completed their labors on Monday last, and were discharged, with thanks by Judge Van Syckle. They found 31 true bills of indictment.

THE members of the Plainfield Vocal Society will meet on Monday evening next, at 8 o'clock, to arrange for the rehearsals, &c., of the organization during the coming season.

THE members of Gazelle Hose Co. are always up with the times. They are to go on a "target excursion" the 24th of next month, which will probably be followed by a funeral.

THE ladies of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian society, met in the parlors of the church on Wednesday afternoon last, for the purpose of preparing a box of clothing for the Michigan sufferers.

HE attended church, one day recently, for the first time in his life and naturally fell asleep. The minister suddenly growing emphatic, he awoke and shouted "do you want a single ticket or an excursion?"

AT the charter election in Newark on Monday, Lang, Republican, was elected Mayor by 234 over Fiedler, Dem. One year ago the Republican majority was about 2,400. The Democrats elected six and the Republicans nine aldermen.

THE Chairman of the Democratic County Executive Committee of Somerset County, has designated Demler's Hotel and the 22d inst., as the place of holding the approaching primaries of North Plainfield Township. See call in another column.

A CHILDREN'S Fair in aid of the Children's Home, will be held at the residence of Miss Flora Randolph, on Peace street, Saturday afternoon next. The object is a charitable one, and old as well as young friends of the cause are invited to be present.

ROBERTS & Co., Newark's popular Clothiers, announce in this issue their desire to clothe the citizens of Plainfield with proper raiment at most reasonable prices. This firm is a very reliable one, and has many friends and customers in this city.

"THE dealer, in an article called 'Rough on Rats,' offers us six dollars for a thirty dollar advertisement. This is rough on the printer."—Central Times. He offers us twelve dollars for a sixty-two dollar advertisement, which is considerably "rougher."

WE this week present to our readers the Fall advertisement of Newark's popular clothiers, Stoughtenburgh & Co., who have many friends and customers in Plainfield. The firm is an old and reliable one, while their prices are low and goods of excellent quality.

HIGH Mass for the repose of the dead was celebrated at St. Mary's Church on Friday morning of last week; the occasion being the funeral services of the late Mrs. John Harding. A most beautiful feature of the affair was the singing of a solo by Miss Kitty Flynn.

EVERY probability of a successful re-organization of the Plainfield Vocal Society is apparent, and the public is to be congratulated upon the prospect of enjoying another series of similar musical entertainments to those given during past seasons by that association.

THE Congregationalists are rapidly securing the $10,000 necessary to build the chapel they contemplate, and work will undoubtedly be commenced at an early date. On Sunday last, between five and six thousand dollars was raised by private subscription during the morning service.

A CAPABLE and experienced committee of the Y. M. C. A., is already engaged in making arrangements for the usual course of Winter entertainments given by that organization. It is intended to select for the coming season many new and desirable features in the direction of concerts, lectures, &c.

THE friends and members of the Young Men's Christian Association met upon invitation at the residence of Mr. H. R. Munger, Washington avenue, North Plainfield, on Tuesday evening last. The occasion was arranged for the purpose of forming a personal acquaintance between Mr. W. P. Webster the General Secretary of the Association and its adherents.

THE annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of this city, was held on Tuesday afternoon in the lecture-room of the Seventh Day Baptist Church. The attendance being small, an adjournment was made until the 20th inst at 3 o'clock p. m., at the First Presbyterian church, when the officers for the coming year will be elected.

ON Wednesday morning the 26th inst. there will be sold at late residence of Mr. Jno. P. Gross, deceased, on 1st Place near Ninth street, the entire contents of the house, consisting of carpets, furniture, bedding, &c. A reference to the advertisement in another column, shows that an unusual opportunity to purchase the best and handsomest of household goods will be offered.

THE case of the Overseer of the Poor against Mr. Lawrence Minor, upon refusal of the latter to support his wife, was tried before Justice Wadsworth and a jury on Monday. Mr. Craig A. Marsh appeared for Mrs. Minor and Mr. Geo. P. Suydam, for the defendant. The jury after a deliberation of about five minutes adjudged the charge substantiated and the Justice has issued an order requiring the defendant to pay a sum of $1.50 per week toward his wife's support.

SINCE the removal of the building formerly occupied by Mr. Warren Stewart, the wheelwright, on Somerset street, opposite French's Mills, that practical mechanic has removed his forges, &c., into a portion of the shop of Mr. Frank Hand, the blacksmith, next to L. M. French's carriage factory. This shop was enlarged for the accommodation of both businesses, and thereat Mr. Stewart may always be found ready to give his personal attention to work in his line.

A DOZEN taps of the alarm bell called out the Fire Department on Friday evening of last week about 10 o'clock. The apparatus was hauled a short ways up Park avenue, and then ordered back by Chief Vail upon a failure to discover any need of the Department's service. Thus again the question arises, why, if only the Police and Department officers possess keys to the tower, is the fire bell rung so often on false alarms? And who is to blame for its being done without reason?

THE Middlesex court has appointed commissioners to drain the Dismal Swamp in Raritan and Piscataway townships. An act passed March 24, 1881, gives full power to the commissioners. The swamp named is a breeding place for malarial and other diseases. The petition was signed by a large number of the farmers residing in that section, and a meeting was held at Justice Wood's office on Monday and a committee of gentlemen examined the swamp, and work will be commenced immediately.—Metuchen Enquirer.

ON Tuesday night the Hyers Sisters dramatic troupe appeared at Van Deventer Hall, and were greeted by a full audience. The play, "Out of Bondage" was performed in a style which showed true artists, and the rounds of applause which greeted their efforts attested to the enjoyment and satisfaction given. The singing which interspersed the several acts was very fine, and was frequently encored. The whole performance was very fair, and the troupe will hereafter draw the largest house in Plainfield of any troupe which has ever visited it, should they see fit to return.

One Year Ago.

The Grand Parade of the Plainfield Fire Department occurred on Thursday. John S. Harberger, Esq., died at his residence, the old Washington Headquarters on West Front street, on Saturday morning the 9th.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey.

The New York World replies to a correspondent who asks when the New Jersey Central Railroad Company is likely to be taken out of the Receiver's hands and what prospects there are of a dividend, that an officer of the company says that preliminary steps have been taken to get control of the road and it is expected that it will be turned over to the company before January 1. No dividend is to be expected this year, though it is estimated that the earning for the year will reach $11,000,000, against $9,600,000 in 1880.

Law Concerning Coroners.

The law concerning Coroners is the same as that relating to the Sheriff. They serve three years and are not eligible for re-election. Consequently, none of the present incumbents can be candidates. The incoming Coroners will find a considerable reduction in the emoluments of the office. The fees for viewing a body are reduced from $5 and costs to $3 and costs, or from $6.00 to $4.00. At inquests the price of taking testimony is reduced from fourteen to ten cents per folio. These and other proportionate reductions will make the value of the office much less than it now is.

Frazee—Warnock.

Mr. Vincent L. Frazee of this city was united in the bonds of matrimony to Annie, eldest daughter of Mr. Alex. Warnock, on Tuesday evening, at the residence of the bride's parents. A number of friends were present and most heartily congratulated the happy pair, besides doing ample justice to the hostess' bountiful bridal supper. The sentiment of the well known hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds," might appropriately have been applied to the occasion. The bride was most beautiful in a traveling suit of olive satin; and the groom's usual pleasant smile seemed, if possible, more radiant than ever. The couple have departed on a short trip, at the close of which we are told there is a cosy home on Fifth street awaiting them.

Opening the Season.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, has the reputation of giving in the past the most attractive social entertainments in Plainfield, and the opening affair of Friday evening last was an omen of continued success during the coming season. The officers elected were: President, Mr. I. C. Pierson; Vice President, Mr. Leslie M. Daniels; Secretary, Mr. Theo. Miller and Treasurer, Mr. Robert Strutheers. The first and last being re-elected. The entertainment consisted of most enjoyable piano solos by Mrs. Holmes, and the elocutionary efforts of Miss Gillies and Miss Thorn, The latter displaying remarkable talents in one so young and decided ability as a reader. The usual refreshments followed and social intercourse was kept up until a late hour.

A Bad Scare.

As Miss Rose Verdon of North Plainfield was driving her horse and phaeton under the Park avenue bridge on Tuesday afternoon last, the 5:48 train rushed across and above the animal's head with such a noise as to frighten it. The horse sprang forward and in another instant the phaeton was mixed up promiscuously with the two-seat of Mr. Thomas Worth at the corner of North avenue. Miss Verdon was thrown from her carriage and slightly bruised, while the son and daughter of Mr. Worth escaped without injury, although their vehicle was turned over on its side. The frightened horse broke loose and started for its stable, but was caught at the corner of Somerset street by Mr. Fred Clark. The other animal was fortunately seized at the time of the collision, else a possible loss of life might have resulted, as the carriage was an enclosed one and Miss Nettie Worth, who was inside, would have been unable to get out.

"No Cause of Action."

The case of John Wilson against the city of Plainfield was commenced in the County Court at Elizabeth on Monday, with Mr. Wm. H. Stillman of this city for the plaintiff and the Corporation Counsel in defence. A jury was empanelled and testimony in support of the suit received; but before the presentation of evidence in the case of the defendant, Judge Van Syckle ruled the matter out of Court on the legality and wisdom of the claims set up by Counsel Cass. W. Kimball in his very thorough and able brief. The latter argued:

"The city, viewed simply as a riparian owner, has the right to drain its territory into an adjacent stream or pond, and

"The city, as an instrumentality of the State, in caring for the health and well being of a portion of the public, must of necessity be allowed to determine when and where to construct a drain; and, in the absence of malice or neglect, is not liable for consequential damages."

Judge Van Syckle took the same ground and the plaintiff was non-suited.

Found Dead.

On Saturday last, Mr. Robert Walpole of Scotch Plains, discovered in Lum's woods, a dense grove of trees about 100 feet south of Feltville pond, the remains of a man lying in a natural position and decomposed beyond recognition. The proper authorities were advised of the matter, and upon the arrival of County Physician Terrill the body was by his advice placed in the morgue of David Leeson of this city. Steps were at once taken to discover who the deceased was, but the condition of the remains will undoubtedly prevent recognition. Mr. Charles Longstein of Bergen Point, and formerly of Springfield, viewed the body and said he presumed it to be that of "James Woodruff" of Newark (whose real name was William James). If so he leaves a wife and children. On Thursday the remains were dissected and buried—the County Physician retaining portions of scalp, &c., for possible identification. He says that the unknown died from natural causes.

The Muhlenberg Furnishing Fund.

The Committee appointed by the Ladies' Auxiliary Board of the Muhlenberg Hospital, are happy to announce that the building is so nearly completed that they have already commenced to select the furniture.

Their purpose is to purchase of Plainfield dealers so far as possible.

The plan is not to furnish luxuriously but neatly and comfortably. Some contributions to be appropriated to the supplying of beds have already been thankfully received. The question has been asked, "What is needed?" In reply we would say, the necessary articles of a kitchen, laundry, dining-room, parlor, wards and chambers.

The beds will be fitted with uniformity and it is estimated will cost from $12 to $15 each.

Any information in regard to the matter can be obtained from any member of the committee.

MISS E. SCHIFFER,
MRS. T. HONNBERK,

New Brunswick Target Shooters.

The Washington Guards of New Brunswick, of which Mayor Wm. S. Strong is President, visited this city on Monday last accompanied by the Goodwill Band. Their object was a rifle competition, which took place in Hyde's Grove upon the arrival of the Guards, after a short march through the city escorted by an informal delegation of firemen from different companies. The visitors were attired in citizen's suits with white gloves and black fatigue caps, and their target (before being completely riddled) was surrounded by a gilt wreath and surmounted by a portrait of the "Immortal George." Accompanying the Guards were Messrs. Ford Babcock and Al Bliss, representing the Fredonian and Times of New Brunswick respectively, and other invited guests. Mayor Strong, owing to pressing business engagements, was unable to come. The Vice President and Captain of the Guards is Henry C. Housell, Chief Engineer of the New Brunswick Fire Department.

The target shooting was unusually fine and some remarkable scores were made. Although the prizes are not yet distributed, the order of excellence among the competitors is as follows: Philip Smith, first; Walter Sanderson, second; John Carrigan, third, and Messrs. A. Streitwolf, T. Brennan and W. R. Jerner, fourth, fifth and sixth respectively. At the close of the contest the Guards were dismissed only to meet in the afternoon at the Mansion House dining rooms, where the host, Mr. E. P. Thorn, spread a bountiful supply of the best of the season. Fifty-five sat down to dinner and did ample justice to the dishes on the following handsome dinner card from the steam presses of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST:

WHEREAS, Since the last meeting of our society, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from among us one of our honorary members, DR. JOHN P. GROSS; therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of John P. Gross the "Deliber Society" has lost a valued friend and counsellor, and one who was always ready to uphold our society; and who, by his manly deportment and kindly sympathy, won the respect of all.

Mount Holly Fair.

The Fair of Burlington county, N. J., opened Tuesday at Mount Holly, under the most favorable auspices. The weather was all that could be desired, and the consequence was that the attendance was very large. The fair will close to-day. Premiums amounting to $11,000 will be distributed. Trotting, running, and hurdle racing took place each day, and on Wednesday and Thursday lawn tennis was presented.

Hidden Wealth.

After the funeral obsequies of Dennis Van Liew and wife, at Liberty Corner, some days since, members of the family found in a trunk, $5,000 in gold pieces, about $90 in money in a sugar box, and nearly a bushel of old fashioned pennies. It will be remembered that Mr. & Mrs. Van Liew, who were old residents of Liberty Corner, died within a few hours of each other. They had no children, and it was understood between them previous to their death that all property belonging to them should go to the one surviving. Now that both died so suddenly, unless a will is found, decreeing otherwise, the property will probably be divided among heirs of both the aged couple.

Who will Care for Mother Shipton Now?

The year 1881 started out under such malign auspices that one-third of the alleged civilized people of the earth never expected to survive it. Blood was on the moon; Jupiter had a facial eruption; Saturn was under ring rule; Venus was almost indecorously frequent in her transits; comets blazed in the sky, and the earth was the subject of such disturbances as had never before visited her.

Of course many new religions were the consequence of this state of things, and these new religions did their best to foster the belief that something horrible would happen unless the people would embrace their creeds.

Well, we have got tolerably far into October, and nothing has happened so far. It is true that Garfield has been shot, but any year is likely to produce a Guitau, and, while the chief of a free people was shot, the Emperor of Russia remains unmolested. The assassination of the President, therefore, cannot be specially credited to Mother Shipton.

Yet a little while—but a few days more than a couple of months—and we shall be able to deride Mother Shipton to our hearts content.—Truth.

Mr. John Crawford—Deceased.

The funeral of Mr. John Crawford of North Plainfield, held at the Church of the Holy Cross, was attended on Sunday last by a large number of his friends and acquaintances including the members of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., of this city; members of Ancient Chapter, No. 1, R. A. M., of N. Y. city; a delegation of the Veteran Corps of the 22d Regiment of New York State and Alert Hose Co., both of which organizations the deceased had belonged to. The following are

RESOLUTIONS BY ANCHOR LODGE.

F. C. GREENE,

Accused of Many Crimes.

There was arranged before Justice Wadsworth, at the City Jail on Wednesday, Bernard John Mullen, of 156 Rector street, Elizabeth, who was shown, by the evidence of many witnesses, to be about as bad a character as exists and one of the very worst to have running at large. The country is to be congratulated upon the fact that the evidence brought against the man will probably convict him of sufficient crimes to insure at least twenty years in State Prison, and the efficiency of Captain Dodd in capturing the rascal and fastening his deeds of wickedness upon him, cannot be too greatly appreciated.

The latest exploit of the offender is the one that led to his capture, and his subsequent identification by others as the perpetrator of numerous deeds in which the witnesses were unwilling participants and victims, followed the arrest. Mullen who is in his twenty-second year, worked a short time ago for Councilman A. H. Smith and was subsequently discharged. For some days recently he assisted Mr. John Harding, coachman for Mr. Charles Opdyke of Broadway, in his labors about the stable of that gentleman, and was allowed to sleep in Mr. Harding's room over the carriage house. On Saturday morning the latter, found Mullen had disappeared instead of being engaged about the work he was to do for the past night's lodging. Suspecting what had happened, Harding hurried into his room and discovered that about $176, which he had left in his clothes and bureau drawer, was gone. He immediately notified Captain Dodd of his loss, and the suspicions of that officer, from information of which he was possessed, rested upon the accused whom he believed to be in Yonkers, N. Y. The two proceeded to that city on Monday with nothing by which to trace the whereabouts of the missing one, but chance lent its assistance. While standing in the depot talking to another police officer about the affair, Dodd saw his man enter, and placing himself in front of Harding so that no sight of the latter would scare the game, Dodd ordered the policeman to seize Mullen. The prisoner was taken to "headquarters" and searched, when about $91 of the stolen money was found in his possession. He then admitted the crime of which he was charged and expressed contrition at the way in which he had treated Harding in return for his kindness. Of his own free will and accord the prisoner accompanied Dodd to this city. At the examination of Wednesday, Mullen again admitted taking the money, and stated that he had paid $16 for a suit of clothes and $3 for a pair of shoes, which he had bought in Perth Amboy. Also that he had expended $1 for a handkerchief and the rest of the amount taken for traveling expenses, "temperance drinks" and cigars.

On the above charge of grand larceny the prisoner was held in $1000 bail, and the same each in the following: Miss Pound of Scotch Plains identified Mullen as the man who had snatched a small bag containing $150 and some jewelry, from her on Front street a few weeks ago, and the charge of highway robbery was entered. Mrs. Watts recognized the prisoner as the one who seized from her hand a satchel and ran off with it, on Broadway, some time since and the same charge was recorded. Three young ladies by their evidence convicted the prisoner with having committed atrocious assault and highway robbery upon them separately and of having indecently exposed his person before them. It seems likely that, as it happened about the same time, Mullen is the unseen man who stabbed Mary Heenan on Putnam avenue on the night of August 26th. It is unfortunate for Captain Dodd that the girl did not see the face of her assailant, as a reward of $100 is offered by the city in this case, only.

The accused was remanded to the County Jail to await the action of the Grand Jury, in default of $5,000 bail.

FIRE MATTERS.

The Eagle Engine Co., of Trenton, is to have a new steamer, and the contract for a new steamer for Raritan Engine Co., No. 4, of New Brunswick, has been signed by all the members of the Fire Committee of the Board of Aldermen of that city. By this contract the builders of the steamer, Messrs. Clapp & Jones, through their agent, Mr. Preston, agreed to deliver the machine to the company for the $2,500 voted on the appropriation ticket last Spring, and the old hand engine. By this arrangement the company become responsible for the balance, which will probably amount to about $1,100. The new steamer is to be delivered immediately and may reach New Brunswick and be placed in possession of the company, if accepted by the Committee on Fire Department, within a fortnight.

OUR COURT.

Before Squire Godfrey, Monday, Oct. 10th, Flora Allen vs. Winnie O'Rouke, charge disorderly conduct; defendant committed to jail for 10 days.

The prompt action taken in the case of Winnie O'Rouke, on Monday last, will probably teach this person as well as others that their actions in some respects make them liable to punishment. It is high time that this should be understood.

John Kane, our well driver, suffered considerable loss on Monday night last at the hands of some scoundrel or scoundrels, who put his drills down the pipe of a well that he was driving at the Wittke building, having reached a depth of 22 feet, necessitating the taking up of the well. If these parties, names are found out they can rely upon receiving severe punishment.

The revival of an old but very pleasant style of entertainment is due to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Long, who held an old fashioned "Husking Bee" at their farm on the Mountain side, Tuesday evening last. At an early hour those invited began to arrive, and wagon loads of young and old emptied their happy freight at the door. The ladies soon made the house fairly ring with merry laughter, music both vocal and instrumental, games, &c. While the gentlemen visited an adjoining field, where in the bright moonlight they attacked the stacks of corn, and with twenty willing workers they soon had the ground strewn with corn and stalks. Songs, jest and laughter helped to pass the time away, and only after 280 shocks had been husked did the workers rejoin the party at the house, where with a bountifully supplied table and fair waiters to attend them, they did substantial justice to the good things before them. Music followed, and as usual the light fantastic toe was tripped until the wee hours in the morning. Not forgetting the privileges of the red ear, your local borrowed one from one of the workers, but this deception was discovered unfortunately and no benefit derived. Among those present we noticed Mrs. James Reeves, Mrs. Stewart Thoms, Mrs. Chas. Reeves, Mrs. Parmer, Mrs. Wm. Marsh, Mrs. Brooks Roll, Mrs. Geo. Campbell, Mrs. Samuel Long, Miss Annie Clark, Miss Lottie Clark, Miss A. Clark, Miss Hattie Long, Miss Bertha Taylor, Miss Georgia Taylor, Miss Bella Delacroix, Messrs. John Roll, Geo. Campbell, Chas. Reeves, Samuel Ballister, Chas. Van Houton, John Pudney, Benjamin Brown, W. T. Pudney, James Buill, Joseph Johnson and Stewart Thoms. Altogether the entertainment was an entire success.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

MANY MISERABLE PEOPLE drag themselves about with failing strength, feeling that they are sinking into their graves when Parker's Ginger Tonic would begin with the first dose, to bring vitality and strength back to them.—Sun.

IT is reported that the undertakers are about to have a law passed that no man shall re-marry until he has paid his first wife's funeral expenses. They say that a man will weep and rave at his wife's death, but although he is not too poor to marry in a short time, he is too poor to pay the undertaker.

THERE is MORE STRENGTH restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than in a bushel of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant for mind and body. See other column.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS.

In no way is the power of the press more surely shown than in the universal knowledge that has in less than a year, been diffused throughout fifty millions of people of the wonderful curative properties of that splendid remedy, Kidney-Wort. And the people from the Atlantic to the Pacific have shown their intelligence and their knowledge of what is in the papers, by already making Kidney-Wort their household remedy for all diseases of the kidneys, liver and bowels.—Herald.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, skin, etc. It corrects indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

For "The Constitutionalist."

THE IRISH PEASANTS' CONDITION COMPARED WITH THAT OF THE UNTUTORED SAVAGES OF NORTH AMERICA OR AFRICA.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—In perusing the New York daily papers I see the English government is still carrying into effect their obnoxious and tyrannical system of coercion, by frequently arresting Irishmen who dare give expression to their sentiments in regard to landlord tyranny, and I am surprised to see the apathy and indifference displayed by the branch of the American Land League in Plainfield, as elsewhere. I have not seen in any published reports of their meetings, any resolutions passed couched in language condemnatory or severe enough to express their indignation of the iron rule under which they are held by their landlords, upheld by the laws and government of Great Britain. Taking into consideration the present condition of the peasantry in Ireland to-day, I see no cause for the insensibility shown towards their suffering brethren by their more fortunate countrymen in this country. Oh, that another Irish Sarsfield or an English Cromwell would rise up to lead their serried and fighting hosts against the hydra-headed viper of land monopoly and landlord tyranny with British injustice. What is the cause of the apathy among the Irish people? Is it that their long servitude, a servitude worse than slavery, in its most indignant form, has broken that warlike spirit that in ages gone nerved their ancestors to daring and heroic deeds in defence of country and individual liberty, or is it possible they do not as yet see their condition as compared with those under a more favorable former government? I would fain believe, Messrs. Editors, that the descendants of a race whose name is handed down from time immemorial in the annals of history, as the participants in some of the most glorious heroic achievements in war, recorded in history, ancient or modern, has become so inert and insensible to their wrongs, as not to have some among them to cherish and imitate the glorious example left them by those noble sons of Erin, Sarsfield, Emmett, Grattan, O'Connell and a host of others, great in council, alike in war. Mr. Editor, I am myself an Englishman, but a true lover of liberty, as exemplified in all that the term implies, and as a descendant of a family who themselves took no inconsiderable part in the Chartist risings against the government of Great Britain, and drew upon themselves the resentment of that government, in the shape of confiscation for some members; others driven into exile. Therefore it is with feelings akin to those that animated the breasts of my countrymen, when they rose in their indignation and might, and wrested from King John that great bulwark of English liberty, the Magna Charter. The same feelings kindled the fires of your revolution, which went out when the glorious star of liberty outshone their reflection, and enabled the Boers in the Transvaal, at a more recent date, to resist the tyrannical policy of England, that induces me, through the columns of your valuable paper, to address these few remarks to the citizens of Irish birth in Plainfield and county, on the condition of the civilized peasant of Ireland, compared with that of the untutored savages. Let us see which is happiest. Whatever may be the case with regard to their origin or antiquity, which are both uncertain, it is perhaps a more interesting object of inquiry, whether those untutored savages are more or less happy than the peasantry of Ireland. Let us, therefore, examine whether the condition of rude man, left to mere animal instinct, who passes every day of his life in hunting, feeding, producing his species and reposing himself, is better or worse than the condition of that wonderful being, civilized man, who makes his bed of down, spins and weaves the thread of the silk worm, to clothe himself, has exchanged the cave, his original abode, for a palace, and has varied his indulgences and his wants in a thousand different ways. It is in the nature of man that we must look for his means of happiness. What does he want to be as happy as he can be? Present subsistence; and, if he thinks of futurity, the hope and certainty of that blessing. The savage is not in want of this first of necessaries. If he lays in no stores, it is because the earth and the sea are reservoirs always open to supply his wants. Fish and game are to be had all the year. The savage works but for his own benefit, sleeps when he is weary, and is a stranger to watchings and restless nights. War is a matter of choice to him. Danger, like labor, is a condition of his nature, not a profession annexed to his birth; a national duty not a domestic servitude. The savage is serious, but not melancholy; and his countenance seldom bears the impression of those passions and disorders that leave such shocking and fatal marks on ours. He cannot feel the want of what he does not desire. Pleasure is the mode of satisfying appetites, which his senses are unacquainted with. He seldom experiences any of that weariness that arises from unsatisfied desires, or that emptiness and uneasiness of mind that is the offspring of prejudice and vanity. In a word, the savage is subject to none but natural evils. But what greater happiness than this does the civilized man enjoy? His food is more wholesome and delicate than that of the savage; he has softer clothes, and a habitation better secured against the inclemencies of the weather. But the common people, the farm laborers of Ireland, who are the support and basis of society; those numbers of men who bear the burden of hard labor cannot live happy, either in those empires where the consequences of war and the imperfection of the police has reduced them to a state of slavery, or in those governments like Great Britain, where the progress of luxury and policy has reduced them to a state of servitude. The mixed governments seem to present some prospects of happiness under the protection of liberty; but this happiness is purchased by the most sanguinary exertions, which repel tyranny for a time only, that it may fall the heavier upon the devoted nation sooner or later doomed to oppression. Observe how Caligula and Nero revenged the expulsion of the Tarquins and the death of Cæsar. Tyranny, we are told, is the work of the people and not of Kings. But if so, why do they suffer it? Why do they not repel the encroachments of despotism; and while it employs violence and artifice to enslave all the faculties of man, why do they not oppose it with all their powers? But is it lawful to murmur and complain under the rod of the oppressor; will it not exasperate and provoke him to pursue the victim to death? The complaints of slaves he calls rebellion; and they are to be stifled in a dungeon, and sometimes put an end to on a scaffold. The man who should assert the rights of a man, would perish in neglect and infamy. Tyranny, therefore, must be endured under the name of authority; if so, to what outrages is not the Irish tenant exposed! If he is possessed of any property, he knows not how long he may call it his own, when he must divide the produce between the courtier who may attack his estates, the lawyer who must be paid for teaching him how to preserve it, the soldier who may lay it waste, (as will by present indications soon be the case in Ireland), or the Sheriff who comes to levy on crops for unlimited rents. If he has no property, how can he be assured of a present or permanent subsistence. What species of industry is secured against the vicissitudes of fortune and the encroachments of government? The man who is unfortunately born in Ireland, is compelled to endure all extortions, all the severities that the inclemency of the seasons and the injustice of government may bring upon him. In Ireland, the free mercenary, digs and ploughs the whole year around lands that are not his own, and whose produce does not belong to him, and he is even happy if his labor procures him a share of the crops he has sown and reaped. Observed and harrassed by a hard and restless landlord, who grudges the very straw on which he rests his weary limbs, the Irish tenant and laborer is daily exposed to disease, which joined to his poverty, make him wish for death rather than for an expensive cure followed by infirmities and toil. Whether tenant or laborer, he is doubly a slave; if he has a few acres, his first lord comes and gathers where he has not sown; if he is worth but a yoke of oxen or a team of horses, he must employ them in the public service; if he has nothing but his body, the Queen takes him for a soldier. Everywhere he meets with masters, and always with oppression. Tyrants in policy! These are the effects of their laws. Irishmen, where then are your rights? Irishmen who all groan more or less secretly, be not blinded in respect to your countrymen's condition. The British government who never entertained any affection for you, are come not now to have any fear for you. In extremity of wretchedness, one single resource opens to you—that of escape and emigration; even that will soon be shut against you. What becomes of the rights of the people, if all is due from the Nation to the Queen and nothing from the Queen to the Nation? She pretends to derive her power from God alone. This maxim which was invented by the clergy, only with a design of raising Kings above the people, that they themselves may command even Kings in the name of the Deity, is no more than an iron chain to bind a whole Nation under the power of one man or woman. It is no longer a mutual tie of love and virtue, of interest and fidelity, that gives to one family the right to rule in the midst of a society. But why should the sovereign authority wish to conceal its being derived from men? Kings are sufficiently informed by nature, experience, history, and their own consciousness, that it is of the people they hold all they possess, whether conquered by arms or acquired by treaty. As they receive from the people all the marks of obedience, why should they refuse to accept from them all the rights of authority? Nothing is to be apprehended from voluntary submission, nor is anything to be obtained by the abuse of usurped power. It can only be supported by violence, and is it possible that a Prince or Queen can be happy who commands only by force, and is obeyed only through fear? He or she cannot sit easy upon their throne, when they cannot reign without asserting that they hold their crown from God alone. Every man may more truly affirm that he holds from God his life, his liberty; the unalienable right of being governed only by reason and justice. The welfare and security of the people is the supreme law on which all others depend. This is, undoubtedly, the real fundamental law of all society. It is by this we must interpret every particular law which must be derived from this principle, and serve to explain and support it. In European cities, the workman and the artist who have no manufacture of their own, are at the mercy of greedy and idle masters, who, by their privilege of monopoly, have purchased of government a power of making industry work for nothing, and of selling its labors at a very high price. The peasantry of Ireland have no more than a sight of that luxury of which they are doubly the victims, by the watchings and fatigues it occasions them, and by the insolence of the pomp that humiliates and oppresses them. Even supposing that all the miseries to which the Irish tenant is subjected, were increased three-fold by the perils which through bad laws and poverty they are heir to, were less pernicious than the roving life of the savages, who live upon hunting and fishing. Suppose that men who are ever lamenting the sorrows and affronts that arise merely from opinion, are less unhappy than the savages, who never shed a tear in the most excruciating tortures, there would still remain a wide difference between the Irish peasant's condition and that of the Indian or African savage, a difference entirely to the disadvantage of the peasant. This is caused through the injustice that prevails in the partial distribution of land and fortunes; an inequality which is at once the effect and the cause of oppression. If they prefer their condition to that of the savages, it is because civil life has made them incapable of learning some natural hardships which the savage is more exposed to than they are, and because they are attached to some indulgences that custom has made necessary to them, even in the vigor of life. A civilized man may accustom himself to live among savages and return to the state of nature. We have an instance of this in that Scotchman, who was cast away on the Island of Fernandez, where he lived alone and was happy as soon as he was so taken up with supplying his wants, as to forget his own country. The consciousness of independence being one of the first instincts in man, savage or civilized, he who enjoys this primitive right with a moral certainty of a competent subsistence, is incomparably happier than a subject of England's Queen restrained by laws, masters and Kings, which incessantly remind him of the loss of his liberty. After all, a single word may determine this great question. Let us ask the Irish peasant whether he is happy, and the savage whether he is unhappy; if they both answer in the negative, the dispute is at an end. And now a word for your champion, Chas. S. Parnell. Every writer or speaker of genius is born a magistrate of his country, and he ought to enlighten it as much as it is in his power. Parnell's abilities give him a right to do it. Whether he be an obscure or a distinguished citizen, whatever be his rank or birth, his mind, which is noble, derives its claims from his talents; his tribunal is the whole Nation, his judge is the public; not the despot on the throne who does not hear him, nor the minister who will not attend to him. Reason and truth triumph over those daring and violent minds, which are roused only by restraint and irritated only by persecution. Let Great Britain love the people of her sister isle and treat them with justice. She will have then no reason to fear men of free sentiments or unsatisfied minds, nor the revolt of bad men. The revolt of the heart is much more dangerous; for virtue, when soured and roused into indignation, is guilty of the most desperate acts. Cato and Brutus were both virtuous; they were reduced to the necessity of choosing between two actions of violence—suicide, or the death of Cæsar. The tyranny of landlords is also diminishing the population of Ireland, for population can never be very considerable under the present policy of England. Population depends in a great measure on the distribution of landed property. Families are multiplied in the same manner as their possessions, and when they are too large, they are injurious to population from their too great extent. A man of considerable property, working only for himself, sets apart one-half of his lands for his income, and the other for his pleasures. All he appropriates to hunting is a double loss in point of cultivation, for he breeds animals on the land which should be appropriated to men, instead of subsisting men on the land which is appropriated to animals. Wood is necessary in a country for repairs and fuel; but is there any occasion for so many avenues in a park, or for parterres and kitchen gardens of such extent, as belong to a large estate in Ireland? In this case does luxury, which in its magnificence contributes to the support of the arts, prove as favorable to the increase of the population in Ireland, as it might by employing the land to better purposes? Too many large estates, therefore, and too few small ones. This is the great impediment to population in Ireland. And now in conclusion, this parallel must certainly be mortifying to you, Irishmen; but you cannot too strongly feel the weight of the calumnities under which you are oppressed. The more painful this sensation is, the more will it awaken your attention to the true causes of your sufferings. You may at last be convinced that they proceed from the confusion of your opinions, want of unity, which means strength, among yourselves, the defects of England's political constitutions and capricious laws, which are in continual opposition to the laws of nature. Shall England have two consciences, two measures, two scales; one in their own favor, one for the ruin of Ireland, both equally false? [God forbid.] Father of Heaven, what Nation hast Thou created in which the strongest, after having seized on the property of their brethren, are still resolved to compel them to manure with the blood of their veins and the sweat of their brows, that very inheritance of which she has robbed them? Deplorable race, whom she renders brutes to tyrannize over them; in whom she extinguishes every power of the soul, to load their limbs and bodies with burdens; in whom she effaces the image of God and the stamp of manhood. A race mutilated and dishonored by England. Englishmen, ye people favored by Heaven and respected on the sea, would ye be free and tyrants at the same instant? No, brethren! It is time we should be consistent with ourselves. Let us demand of our government, that she free from her rule these miserable victims of the pride. Let her restore the Irish people to that liberty which man should never take from man. May men, too long degraded, at length raise toward Heaven their bodies, freed from tyranny, and their eyes bathed in tears of gratitude, is the prayer of your English friend.— THOS. C. PRICE.

Helen Robinson, a servant girl in the employ of a Rahway family named Kid, gave birth to a child in an outhouse on Monday night, and then strangled the babe, and buried its body beneath two feet of ashes. When she was about to leave the place she fell to the floor from exhaustion, and was found lying dead there an hour afterward.

IT MAKES NO DRUNKARDS,
Breaks No Hearts, Excuses No Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. FAVORITE REMEDY is a combination of vegetable alteratives. It does not heat or inflame the blood, but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business documents and certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards, excuses no crimes, breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. Dr. Kennedy would have it understood that, while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, "Favorite Remedy," he still continues the practice of his profession. He treats all diseases, and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery.

Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists, $1.00 a bottle, or address Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. The Balm is easy to use and agreeable. Sold by druggists at 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package. Send for circular with full information. ELY'S CREAM BALM CO., Owego, N. Y.

"MERIT MUST REAP ITS JUST REWARD."

Of the many Catarrh and Hay Fever remedies we keep in stock there is none of which our customers speak more highly than of Ely's Cream Balm. A comparatively new discovery, but one which, from the many reports and evidences of cures produced, is destined to be a leading article. We have never handled a remedy which has increased so rapidly in sales or that has given such universal satisfaction. C. N. CRITTENTON, 115 Fulton Street New York.

POETRY.

A LEVEL-HEADED WOMAN.

She put the paper in the stove
And laid the wood upon it;
Then she put on her Summer shawl,
Likewise her big sun-bonnet.

A can she grasped in her fair hand
And forth, with honest mien,
She tripped to hang the grocer up
For a quart of kerosene.

Anon returning to the house
She filled up the can
And bent its nozzle o'er the wood,
While forth the liquid ran.

And now her fingers grasped the match—
And struck it!—not so green,
First in the woodshed she bestowed
That can of kerosene.

And then the match she struck! The wood
At once was in a flame;
The kettle sang, the steak was cooked
Before her husband came.

And is that all? Of course it is,
What further would you know, man?
I merely wished to show you
A level-headed woman.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

MR. PUMPER'S TELEPHONE.

Mr. Pumper concluded that he would have a telephone extended from his house to his store. Other people in the town had telephones and why not he? The idea you see was not original with Mr. Pumper.

When he mentioned the subject to his wife she went into ecstacies over the subject, and cried:

"Do, do, dear, when I want you to bring home anything it will be so convenient, and if you are going to bring a friend home you can just whisper the fact to me over the wires and I will be prepared."

"I shall have it put up at once," said Mr. Pumper; and he always meant what he said.

He purchased the wire, and bells for receiving and transmitting the sounds. His store was several blocks from his residence, and his next care was to procure a right of way or privilege to extend his wire along over the roofs of people's houses.

A German to whom he applied wanted one hundred dollars for the privilege of letting it go over his lots.

"You are certainly very unreasonable," said Mr. Pumper. "It will not be any injury to you and a great accommodation to me."

The German though, could not see what profit a telephone wire would do the proprietor of the land, and persisted.

But Mr. Pumper found a more accommodating neighbor, and the wire was put up.

Mrs. Pumper was delighted, and so was Mr. Pumper. The telephone entered at the front of the building and terminated near the desk where Mr. Pumper kept his account books.

One day an old lady customer came in the store and was sitting near the telephone waiting for her turn to come, to look at calicos, ginghams, etc. Mr. Pumper and the clerks were busy.

"Tap, tap, tap," went a knocking at the wall.

The old lady, rather superstitious, looked uneasily around.

"Tap, tap, tap," came the knocks once more.

"Oh, Lord, this house must be haunted, I hear spirits a rappin'!" gasped the old lady, starting to her feet.

"Can't you hear?" cried a voice, which the old lady was sure came from the other world.

"Oh, I can hear, it is a spirit voice," she gasped.

"Send me some roast, my love," said Mrs. Pumper through the telephone.

"Send 'em some 'un to roast from above," groaned the old lady. "Oh, its me they want down at that hot place," and with a shriek she fainted.

The attention of the merchant and the clerks was called to the old lady, and they were an hour bringing her back to life. It then took two hours to convince her that it was not the voice of the evil one demanding her body in the infernal regions for a roast.

The next day Mr. Pumper had been out and just come in. He slipped along in the store, as merchants who measure tape and dry goods usually do, without noise.

His chief clerk was at the telephone, and so busily engaged that he did not notice his employer's entrance.

"My love!" said a voice through the telephone, which he recognized as his wife's.

"Yes, my dear," said the clerk.

"Are you there?"

"I am, my darling."

"Do you really love me?"

"Dearer than life, my treasure."

"Will you come early to-night?"

"I will, my darling."

Mr. Pumper waited to hear no more, but kicked the astonished clerk out of the door, and went home swearing he would have a divorce. His wife met him with a smile on her face, and was astonished at the rage depicted on her husband's countenance.

"Yes, that is a nice way," he cried. "I will have a divorce."

"Why?" sobbed Mrs. Pumper.

"Did I not overhear you making love to Charley Brass through the telephone?"

"My dear, I thought it was you. He said it was you, though it did not sound like your voice," and Mrs. Pumper began to cry and wring her hands.

Pumper saw what a fool he had made of himself. He went back to the store, was arrested for assault and battery on Brass, paid a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs, and lost his best clerk.

Still he would not give up the telephone. A day or two later he heard a call.

"Well, what now?" he asked.

"Are you there, husband?"

"I am," he answered.

"Can you come home quick, the baby has the croup."

The father's cheek blanched. His darling baby seized with that deadly disease. He would lose no time. Charley Brass was out of his employ, and his other clerk had gone to deliver a package, but what care he for store or clerks. Hatless he ran out leaving the store open.

He ran to the doctor's office, had him seize his medicine case and come right along after him. The doctor being a corpulent man could not keep up with the anxious parent.

Out of breath and speechless, Mr. Pumper rushed in his house to be met by his wife with the crowing baby in her arms.

"How is it, is it better?" he gasped.

"Never was better, he stands it well," said the mother.

"The doctor is coming."

"What for?" asked Mrs. Pumper.

"To cure the child of the croup."

"I said he had a tooth."

"Tooth, thunder!" cried the husband and father. "I'll take down that telephone."

He explained all to the panting physician, who made a charge for the visit all the same.

When he reached the store he found it had been burglarized, and his cash box was one hundred and fifty dollars lighter.

Mr. Pumper's telephone now does duty as a clothes line.

A TRUE LOVE STORY.

The New York Sun recently, in an ar*ticle giving some statistics of the foreign* emigrants arriving at Castle Garden, incidently related the following beautiful story:

"The most remarkable exodus at present seems to be from Sweden. We expect at least 80,000 Swedes over here this year. I am told that entire villages and districts have become depopulated, and this may be true, as the population is only about 4,000,000. Compare the number we expect this year with the 139 arrivals from Sweden in 1874! Before last year our annual reports rarely showed more than 5,000 immigrants from there. In 1878 we had only 4,000, and in 1879, 12,000. In 1880 the number rose suddenly to 35,000, and this year we expect more than twice as many."

* * * * *

There was about 2,000 immigrants at the time in Castle Garden. It was easy to distinguish the various nationalities, for they were in separate groups, and they were striking differences in costume.

A group of Swedes was crowded into a corner near the entrance. The men were tall and powerful, the women slim and shapely, the complexions of both florid, the hair sandy or fair, and the eyes blue.

The women were clad in closely fitting homespun suits that barely reached down to their ankles; they wore heavy wooden shoes, and with one exception, red and green scarfs over their heads. The men, and a few of the women, were standing gazing around in a bewildered manner as though they did not know where to go or what to do next. The other women were seated on boxes or bundles, or on the floor, and resting their backs against the wall. Among the latter was the woman who did not wear the national head-gear. Nor was she clad in close-fitting, coarse homespun like the rest. Her head was covered with a plain black bonnet, and her sacque and skirt looked as though they might have been purchased here. Her face was buried in her hands, and she was weeping bitterly.

"She's Arne Bjornsen," said one of the men, "and she's come from Hussaby near Wexio. Not one of her family's with her, but we're all her friends, and she needn't cry so. We would not let any harm come to her."

As the girl heard her name mentioned she looked up through her tears at the speaker. Her features were very finely chiselled, and her blue eyes were shadowed by the light curls that clustered over her forehead.

"She's without her family because she ran away from them. She'd asked them again and again to let her follow Ralf Christiansen, but they wouldn't let her go. We left Hussaby a few weeks ago, and the first thing we knew when the steamer was under way Arne popped up among us. She and Ralf had been children together, and when they grew up he wanted to marry her. But old Bjornsen is well-to-do, as things go with us, and as Ralf hadn't a farm of his own, Bjornsen wouldn't listen to his proposal. So about two years ago Ralf came out here to seek his fortune. He's been writing to Arne that he's been getting on nicely and has been wanting her to come out and marry him, and she's answered all his letters. He sent her the pretty clothes she's got on now. She tells us that when we all began speaking of coming to America, she wrote to him and told him she was coming with us, and he answered, saying that he would be here in New York waiting for her. But we've been here since yesterday and he hasn't come, and that's why poor Arne's crying so. I think the place where he lives is called Iowa. We came over because we heard he was getting along so well. All the land in our neighborhood is owned by a few rich peasants, and we have to do day's work for very small wages. We heard that Ralf hadn't been here half a year before he got a farm, so we thought we might as well come over, go to Iowa and get a farm, too."

"Were you the only ones to leave your village?" the reporter asked.

"The only ones from Hussaby," he replied; "but a great many people are leaving neighboring places. There's Ljundy, for instance. As many as 500 have left there this year. They have the same reasons as we. They don't get paid well, they get letters from friends over here saying that they are coming on nicely, getting land and money, and they don't see why they shouldn't follow them and get along as well. We're brought up to work, and we're healthy and strong.—Why should we stay at home and be poor all our lives, when we have a chance to get rich? Then, too, the military laws are becoming too strict, and we want to escape those."

The reporter had turned away, and was talking to one of the officials, when the clerk who announces the names of the immigrants for whom friends are waiting outside called out "Arne Bjornsen." A moment later and the Swedish girl and her friends were hurrying towards the door. Arne's curls fluttered, she ran so quickly. Behind the rope outside, a big, handsome young fellow, with light curls like her own, was holding out his arms. She flew toward him, and in a moment her head rested on his shoulder, while she sobbed with joy, and his large, honest blue eyes looked tenderly down on her. A few hours afterwards, as the reporter was walking away from Castle Garden, he saw the Swedes with Ralf and Arne in their midst, emerging from a Swedish tavern and wending their way toward one of the railroad depots. They all seemed in the best of spirits, and the next time old Bjornsen hears from Arne she will be the wife of Ralf Christiansen, in Iowa.

TOO AWFULLY UTTER.

A DEADWOOD MAN'S INTERVIEW WITH A BROOKLYN GIRL.

"Well," said a Deadwood man, who had just been introduced to a Brooklyn girl, and who had been asked by her if they had many of those lovely frontiersmen out his way—"well, mum, we hev right smart of 'em in our neck o' the woods."

"And do they wear fringed legs and hunt those dear, sweet buffalo?" asked the girl.

"The stage drivers wear fringe and sich, and when a buffaler shines out some one is pooty apt to hook on."

"How supreme! And those gorgeous Indians, in their picturesque wigwams of wampum, with their blending combinations of war paint—do you often see them?"

"Oh, once in a while we get a hack at a buck, but mostly they are on the reservations," replied the Deadwood man, staring. "They don't come in occasionally, but we don't track with them."

"The sweet things! And you have such sunsets out in your mountain fastnesses, and such loves of highwaymen! Do you ever see those delightful highwaymen?"

"Not often, mum. They get in the brush, and as for sunsets, we get 'em pooty reg'lar in fair weather."

"Isn't it just too awfully too!" exclaimed the girl, clasping her hands and rolling her eyes.

"Yes, mum," stammered the Deadwood man, "sometimes its pretty dern, too, leastwise it was the day that Cobbler Duffy came into town on a landslide."

"An avalanche! Do you mean an avalanche? Oh! Can there be anything more crystally utter than an avalanche?"

"It was, pooty tooty, utter," hazarded the Deadwood man, dropping into his companion's style of expression. "The cobbler had a—a—he had a crystally shaft up the side of the butte, and one day he was—was tooing around up there, and things slipped out from under him."

"Oh, how radiant! How iridescent!"

"Yes, mum, and he began to radiate to'ards town at the rate of 1,000 miles and three furlongs a minute. We seen him a—a uttering down the side of the mountains, ripping up trees and rocks and tooing, and his iridescent wife flapped out of her schack and began to raise a row."

"Poor Lily," moaned the girl; "did she stop the glorious avalanche?"

"No, mum, not quite. Duffy fetched up against his schack all standing, and began to howl like a blizzard, 'cause he thought he'd lost his mine. But when they tipped the land slide on one end there was the mine underneath just as he had left it. So he could work it right under his winder. That was pooty considerable too, eh?" and the Deadwood man never winked.

"How sublime! How crystaline!"

"But I was going to say we never had a sunset since."

"So star like," murmured the girl.

"Yes, mostly star like. You see the land slide stands there to this day on end, and they don't dare to turn it over for fear of filling in the town, so we don't get any sun after 11 in the morning."

"A perennial twilight! So fearfully, terribly, awfully utter!"

"Yes," murmured the Deadwoodman, "It's just about as utter as you get 'em."

And she sat and gazed upon him, wrapped in admiration, while he fell into a reverie, and wondered at Brooklyn hospitality in not providing "sand boxes" for strangers.—Detroit Free Press.

A PUNSTERS' HANDBOOK.

The Norristown Herald says: We are preparing a Punster's Handbook for the use of new aspirants for paragraphic fame. When the "great American humorist" in embryo sees a patchwork paragraph in an exchange, built by a dozen different brilliant wits—a paragraph, for instance, on Boston, with its Hub-bub, good fellows, spokesmen, never tire, for wheel or whoa, a wag-on the press, axle lots of questions, hold your tongue, &c., when he sees such an effort he is seized with an irresistible desire to "catch on" with a pun of the same genus; but the pun for which he reaches may be so elusive, coy, and retiring that he grabs for the unattainable. It is for the benefit of such punsters the Handbook is designed. The annexed brace of specimens will show the character of the work:

Undertaker.—Shrouded in mystery; appall-ing; a grave subject; tomb much; a coffin fit, it is cemetery-al; brought to his bier; busy good; don't re-hearse any more; corse jokes; a little morgue gravity; please don't feel so "stiff" about it; ghoul long with such nonsense, &c.

Dressmaker.—Only sew hew; basque in her smiles; a-hem; a heedles remark; of corset it is; ruffle her temper; all tuckered out; jabot in his eye; a binding agreement; gusset 'll do; seams sew; a waist of time; don't train in that crowd; an un-bias-ed opinion; give him the sacque; up-braid her; such puns are enough to make an ap-ron, &c.

In addition to the foregoing samples, the book will contain all the possible puns on such subjects as the wasp, the goat, eggs, oysters, poker, the mother-in-law, the mule, comets, fowls, sea serpent, Jonah, and more than 100 others in daily paragraphic use. If our contemporaries will kindly allude to the Handbook as a highly immoral publication, not fit to be read aloud in the family circle—or a variety theatre—and call upon Anthony Comstock to suppress it, the work will have an immense sale.

THE "BOSS" GIRL

It is no longer the handsomest girl, but the "boss" girl, that is in demand. George W. Peck offered to give a premium (a sewing machine) to the boss girl of Rock county, Wis., the award to be made by a committee at the county fair. Miss Maggie Inman received the prize, and the Janesville Gazette tells what manner of girl she is:

She is not a girl of the period, so to speak, but a good housekeeper, industrious not particularly handsome, but energetic and in many ways accomplished. Several years ago she gained quite a reputation for capturing a den of wolves and securing their scalps, and last summer she went to Dakota and entered a quarter section of land. When the vote of the committee was announced the sewing machine was placed on a dry goods box in front of one of the buildings, and then there was a tremendous rush for the spot to see the "boss" girl. Mr. Fethers made a very neat little speech in presenting the sewing machine to the young lady, who stood in the crowd in front of the speaker. When her name became known, and the presentation was complete, Miss Inman mounted the box with as much confidence as an old stager at public speaking, and did herself much credit in thanking the committee for the honor they had conferred upon her, and remarked in closing that if the committee learned in after years that the gift had not been worthily bestowed, it was not the first time man was deceived by woman.

The town crier—A bran new infant.

A little nut brown made—A peanut in a roaster.

A lot of Boston girls are going West in a bunch to get married. Poor boys, when you all skipped to the plains we thought you would be safe, but alas! they're on the trail.

Squibs was asked what made his face so red. He said he had been down South for a while, and he supposed that's how he got so Florida complexion. Squibs is truthful, of course.

"Say, boy," called a woman to a barefoot lad, and admonishingly shaking a forefinger, "what are you throwing water on that cat fur?" "The water won't hurt the cat's fur," replied the youth. The woman whose grammar was rebuked said she didn't want any of his "sass."

"IF I WAS PRESIDENT."

"Now, if I was the President," began Mr. Butterby the other morning, as he passed his cup over for a second cup of coffee, "if I was President of the United States—"

"Which you aren't, you know," broke in Mrs. B. in an argumental and confidential tone.

"And not likely to be," added Mrs. B.'s mother, with a contemptuous toss of her head.

"No," assented Mr. B. pleasantly, "but I was just supposing the case—"

"Then suppose something in reason," retorted Mrs. B. snappishly. "You might as well suppose you was the man in the moon or the Man in the Iron Mask or—"

"So I might, my dear, so I might," assented Mr. B., still pleasantly, "but that has nothing to do with it. I was merely going to say that if I was President of the United States I'd—"

"My!" burst in Miss Gertrude, aged 18, "wouldn't it be splendid if you was, pa? Just to think how those Wheedletop girls would change their tune when I meet them, instead of throwing out their insinuations about people who consider it Christian-like to turn their last season's silk dress, so that they may have more to give to charity! But they might turn green with envy before I would ever—"

"Yes, and wouldn't I warm it to Sammy Dugan, just," chirped in Master Thomas, aged 12. "I'd go up to him an' smack him on the nose with a brick 'fore he knowed where he was, an' he dassent hit me back then 'cos it 'ud be treason, an' they'd hang him; and I'd slide on the sidewalk an' shy snow-balls at the p'liceman, an' sass Miss Ferule, an' play hookey every day when it didn't rain, an' I'd—"

"Yes," chimed in Mrs. B., catching the infection from her enthusiastic progeny, "and then I'd be the first lady in the land, let the next be who she would; and Governors' wives would beg to be introduced to me, and I'd have balls twice a week and banquets every day an'—"

"And I,d have the management of the White House, and run things," remarked Mrs. B's mother, her eyes sparkling with the prospect.

"Not much you wouldn't" from Miss Gertrude; "not much if I kept my health and know myself, you wouldn't; not as long as I was the President's daughter and—"

"Yah!" ejaculated Master Tom, "I guess the President's son would be the biggest plum in that dish! Wouldn't I be the Prince of Wales then—say? What 'ud you know 'bout—"

"Shut up—all of you!" commanded Mrs. B. "I reckon the President's wife is the highest authority in the land! Anyhow, there'd be a dusty old time if anybody questioned it, and I bet when the exercises were finished the survivors would not ask for any Electoral Commission to decide it over again! My! I'd like to see anybody—but, by the way, Mr. Butterby, what was it you was going to say you would do if you was the President of the United States?"

"Resign as soon as the Lord would let me," said Mr. Butterby, calmly but determinedly.

And then a meditative silence fell upon the family and remained there until the meeting arose.

ÆSTHETIC ON THE BILLOWS.

They were an utter—too utter—crowd, and right back of them sat a big, flat-footed chap on his way to the lumber camps.

"I think this lake breeze quite too exhilarating for anything," observed a young man who ate dinner with a pair of green kids on.

"I've got something that beats it all holler," chipped in the big man. "They filled the bottle right up for a quarter. I don't want to buck agin the saloon on board, but if you say you've got cramps you shall have a pull at it."

If green kids had 'em he wouldn't own it, and to cover his embarrassment another of the party with eye-glasses and a white necktie remarked:

"Roll on, thou troubled waters, roll."

"Oh, you'll get roll enough before you git across Saginaw Bay," replied the big man. "Time this breeze has been blowing an hour you'll feel like an old dish-rag hung up to scare the crows away."

White necktie gave him a killing stare, but it glanced off, and one of the ladies said:

"He struggled bravely with the storm-lashed sea."

"Who was that, ma'am? P'raps you mean my old pard. Yes, he struggled bravely, and if this lake wasn't jist a-bilin' then I don't want a cent. Jim was a good swimmer, but he had to cave at last."

The whole groupe gave him a looking over, but he was shot-proof, and turning to Green Kinds he asked:

"Think you could save yourself if this boat went down?"

No answer.

"Yer possibly might," continued the man. "I went down off that pint above us about ten years ago and got through it, but it was a powerful tight squeeze. If I'd had on one o' them shirts as button behind I'd bin a goner. What's the style o' yours, my son?"

They rose up as one, locked arms and passed into the cabin, and the big man looked after them and whistled:

"Maybe they hain't used to traveling fust-class and being polite to strangers! But I'll forgive 'em. Lands! but won't the starch begin to peel off as soon as we slide around the pint and git to feel the sea! Yum! yum! But it will be too enthusiastically billowy for anything!"

JAMES E. MARTINE, Pres.
LOUIS F. WADSWORTH,
Secretary.

ATTENTION! DEMOCRATS!

The coming election will be an important one for the County of Union, as there must then be chosen, in addition to Members of Assembly and Coroners, a Senator and Sheriff.

All that is required to achieve Democratic success in this County is the making of proper nominations, and that we doubt not will ensue, as the party possesses plenty of the right material.

The names of several worthy and competent gentlemen have been mentioned in connection with the offices to be filled, but we deem it needless to repeat them here, reposing as we do full confidence in the wisdom of the nominating delegates and being ready as we are to endorse their action.

Let the Convention bury deep everything like personal feeling or local prejudice, and aiming solely to advance the public welfare through the triumph of Democracy, select as nominees those who merit suffrage, and the result will be victory on the eighth of November.

Democrats! Do your duty!

PRESIDENT PRO-TEM.

The Republicans now hold possession of the National Senate through the unwarranted action of two members who were made Senators by Democratic votes—Messrs. Mahone, of Virginia, and Davis, of Illinois.

The first being a political adventurer, open for intrigue and bargain, the course pursued by him is not surprising, but the latter, having enjoyed the reputation of an honorable man, owing to recent events, occupies a sadly changed position in public estimation. Honest men detest crooked ways.

Judge Davis has, during his Senatorial career, voted with the Democrats on party questions and by word and pen advocated their cause. If he had continued to so act, and there was no just reason why he should not, the distinguished Democratic Senator from Delaware would have remained President pro tem of the Senate. Had he refused to be a party to the unseating of Mr. Bayard, the Republicans could not have made choice of one of their own number, unless such candidate forfeited self respect by voting for himself.

It was a piece of partisan jugglery, from the result of which Mr. Davis and the Republican Senators are welcome to all the good they can derive. Honor and dignity are on the Democratic side.

The trouble with Senator David Davis is Presidential brain malady. He has long been an acute sufferer from that terrible disease. The White House is the Mecca of his personal ambition, and to be placed in the line of possible succession, as the presiding officer of the Senate, was no doubt the temptation that led him from the path of political rectitude.

The Republicans care nothing for Senator Davis except so far as he foolishly serves their partisan purpose, and as soon as the opportunity safely presents, his ponderous form will be lowered back on to the floor and a full blooded radical, like Edmunds or Logan, hoisted into the chair he aided in filching from one of the purest patriots and most eminent statesmen of the age—Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware.

YORKTOWN.

The centennial of the battle of Yorktown, Virginia, celebrated during the present week with such patriotic fervor and on the ground where that decisive blow of the Revolution was given, is indeed worthy of applause.

The surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown to the combined forces of America and France virtually ended the bitter strife for Independence. It was there the great Washington became the immortal victor, and

> There
> Arose the loud—the long huzza,
> Which, echoing thro' the vaulted dome,
> Proclaimed Freedom won.

For the men of the North and the men of the South to meet on the site of that Revolutionary battle field, and after the lapse of one hundred years, to there honor the memory of those grand old patriots who achieved for us national existence, and so honoring and remembering, to pledge lasting fidelity to the cause they fought into sovereignty, is not only appropriate, but loyal duty; and how fitting to the memorable occasion that official representatives of France, the land of La Fayette, Rochambeau and De Grasse—

> France—
> Generous-hearted France who led advance
> Her fleets and armies strong—
> Sustain the right, repel the wrong,
> And sheathe not the blade 'till Freedom's star
> Beed thro' Western skies afar
> Its glorious ray—

should grace the anniversary with their presence, and mingling as fellow Republicans, share with American citizens its joys and hopes, past glories and future promises; and fitting, too, that there the German descendants of General Steuben should grasp the friendly hands of Washington's countrymen, and receive thanks for the signal benefits conferred by their illustrious ancestor upon our land through his devoted services in the cause of American liberty.

Hail! Yorktown's conquering day!

Whatever acquaints the people of this country with the heroic struggle for Independence and its cost, and the priceless blessings of free government victory transmitted, and if guarded aright, will continue to transmit through the coming centuries, is deserving of every possible encouragement. In that connection we greet the Yorktown celebration and all similar anniversaries of Revolutionary history as incentives to true patriotism.

Somerset Republican Convention.

The County Convention of the Republicans of Somerset was held at Somerville on Tuesday, and resulted in the nomination of the Hon. John G. Schenck for State Senator and the Hon. John L. Oakey for the Assembly. At one time of the day it was believed that Mr. W. W. Anderson was the strongest candidate for the nomination secured by Mr. Schenck, but later the support of many of the delegates in his favor, for some unaccountable (?) reason, drifted the other way. Mr. Anderson mounted the stage at the time the balloting for Senator was to commence, and in an agitated and excited manner made a speech withdrawing his name as a candidate, and assigning the following as a reason: "My early training renders it impossible to cope with the means and methods that have been used to prevent my nomination by this Convention." The Somerset Messenger in speaking of the scene says: "What their means and methods were he did not specify, but it was a plain insinuation that he had been cheated out of his fairly won honors, and he threw the charge in the face of the Convention, and no man arose or dared undertake to deny it."

Otherwise than on the above occasion the Convention was most orderly and well conducted under the able chairmanship of Mr. E. C. Van Norstrand of North Plainfield. Messrs. Thos. J. Young and E. C. Van Norstrand were selected as members of the County Committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. France are "at home" after their enjoyable wedding trip, and have settled down to a continuance of their honeymoon in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. P. P. VanZandt's golden wedding day was made particularly enjoyable by a surprise party of friends that visited the aged couple at their residence. The occasion on Friday of last week, was an event of unusual pleasure.

Mr. & Mrs. Seymour Hait of Union avenue entertained a number of their friends recently upon the celebration of their Crystal Wedding. The supper was furnished by a well-known New York caterer, and the handsome floral decorations were supplied by Mr. L. J. Denton of this city.

Mr. J. U. Fraley, while at the Water Gap this Summer, secured the engagement of Mr. Ralph Bingham the "boy orator"—and, in pursuance of the intention formed at the time, that young wonder will furnish an evening's entertainment for the scholars and young people of the Crescent avenue church, on this (Friday) evening, in the parlors of the church.

The many friends of William Laing, nephew of John W. Laing, Esq., were pained to hear of the death of that gentleman's young wife, on Monday last. After a wedded life of less than eighteen months, death claimed the loving mother and wife, leaving behind her an infant child of only three months of age, to console the grief of a kind and devoted husband.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Mr. George E. Vincent won the one-mile bicycle race, at the Fall meeting of the Yale Athletic Association at New-Haven, on Wednesday, in "2:27½."

A party of six will leave Plainfield for a week's duck shooting around Barnegat Bay next Monday. Another party of six follows on the 5th of next month.

Mr. William Manning, of New Brooklyn, killed on Thursday morning, 18 wild duck with four shots on the pond in the vicinity of his residence. "Bill" has every reason to feel proud of his achievement that has seldom been equalled.

The salmon eggs being hatched out at the State Fishery, Bloomsbury, N. J., are getting along nicely, and the young fry will be ready for distribution by the New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society in about six weeks.

The celebrated trotting horses, "St. Julien" and "Trinkett" trotted over the track at Fleetwood on Saturday afternoon last, for a purse of $5,000. St. Julien won the purse in three straight heats in 2:14½, 2:17¼ and 2:16, with Trinkett close on his heels.

Messrs. James VanWinkle, E. A. Ten-Eyck and Peter Garretson, three of Plainfield disciples of Isaak Walton, captured with rod and line, three black bass in the Millstone river on Wednesday last, which weighed 11 pounds plump. They were beauties and no mistake.

The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society, have agencies established at No. 2 Courtland street, New York, where Mr. Fred. Volckman is empowered to grant certificates, and at Philadelphia, corner Chestnut and Seventh streets, where Mr. J. F. A. Latour acts as agent.

Fish Warden Ohl, of this county, together with members of the New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society, on Saturday last planted a large number of good size healthy black bass in suitable streams in Union county. The law forbids the taking of these bass for three years after they are introduced into the waters of streams for stocking purposes.

Holly Grove Farm.

A correspondent of the Newark Advertiser recently paid a visit to the noted Holly Grove Farm near New Brooklyn, in Piscataway Township, in this county. He gives the following interesting account of what he saw and learned while there:

Holly Grove Farm is the country residence and stock farm of John L. Holly, the famous breeder of thoroughbred cattle. It is situated about three miles south of Plainfield on the road leading from the latter place to Metuchen. The farm proper now approximates three hundred acres though the original purchase was thirty-nine. The land when purchased by Mr. Holly was poor and unproductive, but under his system of farming it has been made as fertile and prolific as any in that section. While a great portion of it is given over to pasture for the magnificent herd of Jerseys, enough is farmed to produce the supplies necessary for the maintenance of all the farm animals and for family purposes. It was our privilege during the recent fair at Plainfield to enjoy for a brief season the elegant hospitality of the proprietor of Holly Grove and his accomplished lady. We also had the pleasure of inspecting his herd of far-famed thoroughbreds, as well as the model buildings occupied by them. The visit was one of those rare instances of unalloyed pleasure with which we are sometimes favored.

Mr. Holly is an enthusiast in the matter of thoroughbred cattle. It is an enthusiasm in the right direction, as has been proven by his success in the development of perfect stock. Such milk and cream and butter as come fresh from his dairy, even though the cows browsed on sun-parched pastures, it has not been our fortune ever before to have tasted. At the breakfast table milk fresh from the cow that morning turned to cream before the eyes, forming in a glass pitcher between three and four inches of pure cream; the milk dropping to the bottom and separating as distinctly as oil and water. Compared with milk such as this the desperate stuff dealt out to city dwellers from rusty cans, and continually demanding the attention of Dr. Newton, is not worthy the name.

Mr. Holly, besides being a cattle raiser and scientific farmer, is an architect as well. The barn for his cattle, just completed, was planned by himself and is a model of its kind. For the purpose it was designed it is difficult to see wherein it could be improved. In the first place nothing that the cattle eat is stored over their heads. It is all prepared on one floor, and the feed room is entirely distinct from the stables. The foundation of the stable was laid five feet deep with loose stones, over this is two feet of cement, and upon this the cattle stand. To the rear of the stalls is a trench, which drops towards the end, where a pipe connects it with the reservoir outside of the building, and through this trench is carried all the droppings. The cattle are fastened in the stalls by a chain which runs over a pulley in the cross-piece overhead, one end of which is fast, the other attached to a weight concealed in the sides of the stall, so that the animal can move its head to one side, up or down, at its pleasure, the chain being controlled by the weight which rises and falls at every motion of the head. The stalls are placed on either side, and between them is the space for the wagon to drive in with the feed. The stable is lighted by large windows and ventilated from above. The hanging gutters for water run along in front of all the stalls and are supplied by a faucet, and emptied by a plug, so that water cannot freeze. There are several box stalls appropriately fitted up for cows approaching maternity. A steam engine grinds the grain and cuts the green fodder for ensilage. For this latter there is a prepared cemented pit capable of holding a hundred tons. A cutting machine drops ten tons an hour into this pit. The upper floor contains the tank for water, and over the stable the straw for bedding. The private office of Mr. Holly is also on this floor. The engine room is below, as is also the room for the attendant, who in winter is also on duty night and day. This room contains bath room and lavatory.

The building is surmounted by a gilded life size figure of a Jersey cow as a weather vane. In every detail of this model farm the comfort and health of the cattle have been looked after with rare consideration, foresight and humanity.

The dairy house is supplied with Wilkinson's patent sub-earth air-duct, by which the temperature without ice can be kept at 56 with the thermometer outside registering 100. On a day as hot as any this Summer the butter in this dairy could scarcely be indented with the finger. We have scarcely left space enough to speak of the cattle, and yet they are the most important factor in the whole business. How to speak of them is the most difficult. Whatever breeding and inter-breeding can accomplish in perfecting stock has been done here, until there does not exist better bred cattle for domestic purposes than roam the fields of "Holly Grove" Farm. We saw Favorite of the Elms, the cow whose picture adorns the first page of the Catalogue, and conceded to be the best formed, best looking and best producer in this country. Her milk made 16½ pounds of butter in seven days. Favorite of the Elms was imported January, 1872, from the Isle of Jersey, and has taken the first premium whenever and wherever shown. The old lady has a calf a few days old, which has had as many visitors as a young scion of royalty. There was also Surprise, a young heifer with a history. The mother of Surprise was famous as the best cow on the Isle of Jersey, and although owned by a poor man, no amount of money could buy her. Mr. Holly's agent offered a fabulous sum for her, but could not get her. The next best thing was to get her calf, which he did, and under the name of Surprise, the daughter of the Princess of the Isle, last week, was nipping the herbage on Holly Grove Farm. There was also Uproar, in all the glory of his lordly lineage, for whose sire, the Duke of Darlington, $10,000 was offered and refused; Washita, by Polonius, who was sold for $4,500; Rex Filbert, whose mother Mr. Holly sold to Col. Russell, the owner of Smuggler, for $1,700. There were also Reno Noble, Madge Grey, Emily Hampton, Tethys, Farmer's Glory, Miss Muffit, who has also an infant, Queen of the Farm, and Dandelion, who gave daily twenty-six quarts of milk in the Summer of 1877, and whose four-year old heifer made fourteen pounds of butter in seven days. Those are only a few of those known to fame whose admirable points have made them the admiration of stock raisers. They all have the small heads, large lustrous eyes, curved horns, chamois-like skin and rich yellow tinge peculiar to their breed. This herd took the first premium at the International Dairy Show held in the American Institute, New York, in 1879. In presenting the costly silver vase, the President of the Institution took occasion to compliment Mr. Holly upon being the youngest breeder of the best cattle. The dining-room and hall of the mansion at "Holly Grove" Farm are hung with elegantly framed photographs of the favorite cows. The head of the "Lady Ida" in oil, painted by Cross, is a worthy ornament of the parlor. E. S. E.

C. E. Dunham of Bound Brook has the largest stock of stoves and ranges in the county, and is selling at the lowest prices.

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut [illegible] and our special style of Ulsterst. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut by all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to-day. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialities. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Bernard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments.

QUITE a large Assemblage was addressed at Van Deventer Hall, on Wednesday evening, by General (?) Weaver, the late "Greenback Candidate for President" of the United States. Although his arguments and eloquence held the attention of his hearers, no one outside of the five or six members of the party present seemed to feel assured that the promises of the Nationals were any more likely to be fulfilled than those of other political organizations. Mr. Weaver likened the Republicans and Democrats to "hogs in a struggle to reach the trough first and get the most swill," which was much like "pot calling kettle black" in view of the history of Mr. Weaver's own party. That gentleman should remember that the Nationals have become recognized as "on sale" to the highest bidder, and while unable to secure office in a fair fight will trade their support for the "swill" Mr. Weaver was so short a time ago unsuccessful in his attempt to "reach."

Common Council Proceedings.

MONDAY EV'G, Oct. 17, 1881.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment, at 8 o'clock, Pres. Whiton in the chair. Present, Messrs. H. Smith, Gilbert, Finch, Tracy, A. H. Smith, Waring, Tyler and Whiton. Absent, Messrs. Darling, Hamilton and Guion.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

Mr. Gilbert presented the claim of the Plainfield Relief Ass'n, $35.75. Ref'd.

By the same, a report from the Com. to which had been referred the com'n of the City Treasurer, for advice as to what action, if any, should be taken by the Council in relation to it. The following is the report in full, which was on motion, received and placed on file:

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 17, 1881.

To the Honorable, the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN:

Your Committee appointed to consider what action if any shall be taken with regard to the refusal of the Treasurer to pay out money belonging to the city as directed by the city charter, and the Common Council respectfully report

That they have carefully considered the various statutory provisions and judicial decisions bearing on the questions involved, and find nothing in any of them to justify the position taken by the Treasurer.

He is by the charter made the custodian of all moneys belonging to the city, and is explicitly enjoined to pay out the same under the direction of the Common Council. The provisions of the charter in this regard, are in substance as follows:

SEC. 12. The power and duties of the Treasurer of said city, if not otherwise provided for in this act, shall be those enjoined by the ordinance of the Common Council.

SEC. 13. It shall be the duty of the Treasurer of said city to receive and pay out all moneys belonging to said city, under the direction and by authority of the said Common Council.

SEC. 17. City taxes when collected shall be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of said city, and be subject to the order of the said Common Council.

There is no statutory provision, no judicial decision, and no pending judicial proceeding which calls for, or can in any way justify, or excuse, the refusal of the Treasurer to obey the plain injunction of the charter, and the orders of the Common Council in conformity therewith. And in the judgment of your Committee such refusal is a flagrant violation of his official duty.

As a city officer his aim should be to protect and promote the interests of the city, rather than any adverse interest of the county, especially in cases of doubt. And nothing can justify any action on his part, pending to embarrass the city unless such action is imperatively required by permanent and indisputable legislative or judicial authority.

SEC. 83 of the general tax law of the State which he quotes to sustain his position, makes no reference whatever to such an officer as he is. It provides "that it shall be the duty of the Collector of townships, cities, or wards of this State, out of the first moneys which shall be collected by them, to pay to the County Collector of the county in which they hold office, the State and county taxes required to be assessed, etc."

The City Treasurer is not a Collector, but an officer of an entirely different description, and this provision of the State law imposes no duty whatever on him.

So also the decision of the Supreme Court in the recent proceeding of the County Collector vs. the City Treasurer, from which he infers, what will be the decision in the second proceeding of the County Collector now pending, and which he cites in defense of his position, furnishes him no support. That decision did not define or profess to define the general obligations of the Treasurer under the charter, and laws with reference to State and county taxes, and in no respect changed or modified his relation or duty to the city. It was based upon an erroneous view of the facts, and made under the wrong impression that the State and county taxes were paid by the Collector to the City Treasurer. It is binding therefore, only in the particular case in which it was rendered, and has no force whatever as an authority to sustain the position now assumed by the Treasurer.

The language of the charter which as a State law is entitled to equal consideration with any other law of the State, leaves him no room for doubt, it is unmistakably clear and explicit, and had the Treasurer desired to study the interest of the city, he needed only to follow its plain provisions.

According to the Treasurer's statement of the 1st inst., he then had in bank applicable to city purposes, $10,968.74, an amount large enough to pay all outstanding warrants, the cost of lighting the street lamps, and of additional policemen, and of making needed repairs on streets. His refusal to discharge his official duty as defined in the charter, subjects the city to unnecessary inconveniences and expense and greatly embarrasses the Council in its efforts to promote the public good. We need hardly add that this is a serious injury to the prosperity of Plainfield. By reason of his breach of official duty the city is subjected to an increased interest charge on outstanding warrants, and is threatened with lawsuits to enforce the payment of just claims. For all loss or damage which may result to the city from the wrongful acts and omissions of the Treasurer he will be individually responsible, and an honest mistake on his part will not protect him from the consequence. His bondsmen who are also liable, therefore are abundantly responsible, so that in the judgment of your Committee the city need not suffer eventual loss. Your Committee have learned that legal proceedings have been commenced against the Treasurer by a holder of the city warrants to compel him to pay them as directed by the Common Council, and inasmuch as such proceedings will secure a judicial determination of all questions involved, your Committee recommend that no action with reference to the matter be now taken by the Common Council.

A. GILBERT,
M. W. TYLER,
J. EVANS TRACY.

Mr. Waring, from the Lamp Com., presented two com'ns relating to the lighting of the street lamps. One from the Plainfield Gaslight Co., offered to light the gas lamps of the city for the remainder of the year at the same rates as formerly paid. The other, from the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Light Co., expressed the willingness of that corporation to continue lighting the naptha lamps as at present, or it would enter into a contract to light the entire city for not less than a year, accept in payment the warrants of the city and wait for the redemption of the same any time not exceeding two years.

In reply to Mr. A. H. Smith, Mr. Waring stated that the gas lamps cost the city twenty cents per lamp each night, and the oil lamps ten cents each. Also that the gas lamps were turned out before half-past twelve, while the others were kept burning ten hours. He understood that if the Council contracted with the naptha company to light the entire city, the expense of changing the fixtures on the lamps would be borne by the Comp'y.

The com'ns were received and placed on file.

Mr. Tyler, from the Laws Com., reported on the ordinances submitted for inspection and revision. The titles were read and the report laid on the table.

The same presented a report in relation to the application made in behalf of certain hackmen to recover the license fees paid by them under an ordinance subsequently repealed. The Com. held that they could not recover under the existing laws, and recommended that the prayer of the petitioners be denied. Report laid on the table.

Mr. H. Smith, from the Aud. Com., reported as correct the following claims against the Poor Fund; W. H. Voorhees, $10.20; Mrs. J. Wilkins, 12; P. Langenbahn, 12; James Ross, 6; Lyon & Vail, 45; Ann Flynn, 6; A. M. Runyon, 61; D. Hand, 168.62; B. R. Force, 1.75; P. Casey & Son, 14; Plainfield Relief Ass'n, July, 33.96, August, 35.95. Warrants ordered drawn, all aye.

The report on the return of certain hack licenses was called up by Mr. Gilbert and read again by the Clerk.

Mr. Gilbert asked the chairman of the committee making the report to state what the facts of the case were. If as cited they be correct, he did not desire to take advantage of the law's protection and retain fees wrongfully paid.

Mr. Tyler explained that it was the committee's intention to corporate in a new hack ordinance a clause providing for the crediting of such fee as had already been paid towards a new license. The matter was referred for information as to what the law was and the committee had reported accordingly.

Mr. A. Smith, of the same committee, stated that he had signed the report as a matter of law but not as a matter of justice. He thought it was not right to retain the money and give nothing in return.

The report was re-read for the information of Mr. Tracy, and that gentleman expressed his opinion that the city had no right to do otherwise than as the law directed. He moved that the recommendation of the committee be adopted. Seconded by Mr. Finch.

Mr. Gilbert thought that inasmuch as the Com. on Laws intended to introduce an ordinance covering the matter in another way, he would move that the report be laid on the table. Not seconded.

Mr. Tracy's motion was carried—Mr. Gilbert voting no.

Mr. Gilbert called up the report of the Laws Com., relating to certain ordinances, and the clerk read the list of titles.

On motion "An ordinance to repeal certain ordinances" was read section by section, and after a number of amendments by Mr. Tracy was ordered engrossed and to a third reading.

"An ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled an ordinance for the correction of nuisances and for the preservation of health in the city of Plainfield," was treated in the same way, excepting that it was finally laid on the table to be re-written, including the many amendments of Mr. Tracy, for examination by the Council before passing to a third reading.

Mr. Gilbert moved that the consideration of further ordinances be postponed until the next meeting of the Council. Carried.

By the same, a resolution was presented instructing the Lamp Com. to contract with the Plainfield Gaslight Co. for lighting the gas lamps throughout the city during the remainder of the year upon the same terms as heretofore.

Mr. A. Smith moved as an amendment that the naptha lamps be also lighted.

Mr. Waring arose to correct a seeming mis-statement on his part. He did not mean that the gas lamps cost 20 cents each, but that if they remained lighted as long as the other lamps they would cost that much. He further stated that, from information he had received, if the Council took no action in the matter a number of citizens would the next day light forty-five lamps by private subscription.

Mr. Tyler thought any action by the Council would be premature. A decision was expected early in November regarding the right of the city to use its own funds, and a delay of two weeks would not cause any great additional discomfort.

President Whiton vacated the chair to Mr. H. Smith and spoke strongly in favor of the proposition of the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Co. He said the city would thereby secure better light, twice as long and for the same money. He was opposed to allowing private citizens to bear the expense of lighting any of the lamps.

Mr. Smith's amendment was accepted by Mr. Gilbert and the motion as amended was carried. Messrs. Tyler and Waring voting no.

Mr. Tracy moved that when the Council adjourn it be to meet again on Monday evening next. Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

Soon to Expire.

Among the postmasters whose salaries are $2,000 or over and whose terms expire before long are the following: William Ward, Newark, January 23 next; Joseph T. Fisher, New Brunswick, October 30; Wallace Vail, Plainfield, October 30.

Ex-Gov. Mc Clellan's Return.

Ex-Governor George B. McClellan arrived from Europe with his family on Tuesday afternoon—too late, however, to allow of his going to the Yorktown Centennial as he had been invited and intended to. Upon landing in New York he heard for the first time of the serious loss he had sustained in the late fire at Morrel's Storehouse, where he had stored a large quantity of valuable bric-a-brac and other articles.

Soldiers Re-Union.

The annual re-union of the 14th New Jersey Volunteers occurred at Elizabeth on Wednesday last, over 300 of the members of the Regiment being in attendance, who were cheered by the populace as they marched through the streets. Ulric Dahlgren Post received and banquetted the surviving heroes of the 14th. Speeches were made after dinner at Library Hall by Gen. Truax, commander of the 14th during the war and others. Among the members of the regiment participating on Wednesday, from this city were the following named—E. P. Thorn, Alonzo Townley, Jacob Naylor, Wm. Ayres, Wm. N. Pangborn, Charles King, Abraham King and James Giles. Each wore a neat badge pinned to the lappel of his coat, a gift from Ed. Thorn.

A Worthy Cause.

An opportunity is presented to the "Children's Home" of Plainfield to secure the property on Hillside avenue, now occupied by that Association on favorable terms. This property cost Mr. Job Male the present owner, over $6,500 and upon it there is a mortgage of $4,000. Mr. Male now proposes to transfer it to the Home at cost, donating $2,500, provided that the amount of the mortgage shall be raised by the citizens of Plainfield together with about $500 to make some necessary repairs and improvements. Toward this object there has been contributed (including Mr. Male's subscription) about $4,500, leaving about $2,500 still to be raised. The friends of the Home are requested to make prompt and liberal subscriptions in order that the committee having the matter in charge may close it up. The subscription books are in the hands of Messrs. J. W. Rush*more, S. H. Glenn, Geo. H. Babcock, and* James McGee, to whom or to either of the officers of the Home, subscriptions may be made.

The Muhlenberg Excursion.

The excursion party that left this city on Thursday morning of last week for Mauch Chunk, was supplemented by additions at stations along the C. R. R., that resulted in a combined patronage calculated to financially benefit the Furnishing Fund of the Muhlenberg Hospital of Plainfield. The weather in the morning was as pleasant as could be desired, and although a drizzling rain was experienced among the mountains, continuous shelter prevented any discomfort arising therefrom. The ride by rail is probably the most interesting and gratifying, by reason of the picturesque views and beautiful country along the line, that is to be found in the United States. Mountain and plain, valley and river, form a continually changing panorama of natural scenery that is unexcelled in the World; and in no other position can it be so completely enjoyed as from the cab window of the locomotive, where our representative was stationed through the kindness of Conductor Jack Smith and the courtesy of Engineer Locey. The Mansion House, Mauch Chunk, was reached in time for dinner, which was followed by a ride over the far-famed Switch-Back and a visit to the many points of interest made attractive to the curious by the exploits of the "Molly Maguires" and other less notorious characters and scenes. The journey back was made through the darkness of the evening varied by the flashing lights of the blast furnaces, and home was ultimately reached without a mishap. If the cause to be benefited should reap the financial success that all who attended the affair considers it deserving of in return for the enjoyment furnished, the increase of funds would be sufficient for all purposes sought after.

Councilmanic Notes.

We are not sure that the present Council have no power to enter into contracts that may not expire during the present year.

The public will be glad to hear of the progress towards the adoption of an Ordinance providing for the abatement of "stenches offensive to the senses."

No report has yet been made upon the proposition of the Plainfield Water Supply Co. The Committee seems to think that it has the power to prevent the laying of the Company's mains and pipes through the streets and, in consequence, should give the matter months of consideration before deciding whether or not to grant the permission already given by the State Legislature.

Those hackmen who intend to continue in business, will probably have the fee they may have paid under a void ordinance credited towards the new license they will be called upon to secure. But there are hackmen who have since adopted other professions (?) who—under the Council's action in adopting the recommendation of the Committee on Laws and Ordinances in relation to the matter—have no redress. The city retains this money for which it granted no especial privileges nor business protection.

Such a favorable proposition as that addressed to the Council by the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gas Light Co., should have been accepted at once for the interest of the community. Messrs. Waring and Whiton, however, were seemingly the only members of the Council who strongly urged entering into a contract that would have secured the lighting of the city all night long, at the same expense as has been paid for like accommodation and service during only half the night. The Company was also willing to accept the city's warrants payable in two years.

A great deal that is inaccurate has been said regarding the law upon which the City Treasurer seeks a foundation for his refusal to obey the Council's orders to redeem outstanding warrants from the funds in his possession. The report of the Committee, into the hands of which was placed the Treasurer's communicated determination, is published elsewhere, and should be read by everyone. It is a document that cannot fail to impress upon the understanding of every honest-minded and unbiased citizen the conviction that the City Treasurer has acted under a mistaken idea of right; and is most culpable if he continues such action in the face of the opinions of the Corporation Counsel, the mandates of the Common Council and the report to which we above refer.

THE CITY'S WARDS.

Through the courtesy of our City Clerk, Mr. O. B. Leonard, we are herewith able to present to our readers an exceedingly useful map of the boundaries of the City's new Wards. By its use every voter will be at once able to understand the divisions made, and the proper polling place at which to deposit his ballot. The following statements are merely submitted in explanation, and the figures are given as probable. It is impossible, however, to estimate with any degree of accuracy the population and number of voters in each Ward. The approximation given is probably a fair apportionment of the population, and will serve as a slight guide until an election settles the number of voters within the respective boundaries.

Wherever the boundaries Park avenue, Central Railway, Somerset or Fourth streets are mentioned, it should be understood that through the centre of those roadways runs the dividing line.

THE FIRST WARD

Includes all the territory lying between the Central Railroad and Green Brook, Terrell road and Somerset-st. and Park-ave. It contains an approximate population of 1850 with about 375 voters.

The polling place is Hoagland's express office on North-ave. opposite the depot.

THE SECOND WARD

Is bounded by Terrell road, Fanwood township on the east, Park-ave. and the Central Railway. It includes Netherwood and contains about 1700 inhabitants with 336 voters.

The polling place is V. W. Nash's store on Park-ave. near the railroad crossing.

THE THIRD WARD

Comprises all of that part of the city lying south of Park-ave. and east of Fourth-st., containing a population of about 1900 with 375 voters.

The polling place is Seaman's livery office on Sixth-st. near Union-st.

THE FOURTH WARD

Is the same as the old first election district, embracing all the territory west of Fourth-st. and South of Park-ave. and Somerset-st., containing 2675 inhabitants with 550 voters.

The polling place is Laing's Hall, Front-st.

The son of the proprietor of Guerrier's Hotel, near Scotch Plains, committed suicide by shooting himself, Oct. 16th. A young lad named Johnnie Clark, residing on Cottage Place, was burned to death the same day—his clothes catching fire from a pile of burning leaves around which the boy was playing.

Serious Accident.

Peter Stryker is a farm hand in the employ of Albert Voorhees, residing at Weston, near Millstone. On Thursday Striker ascended to the top of a load of hay for the purpose of bringing the same to market. On his way thence he fell (in some manner not explained) from the load to the ground, fracturing his leg and arm. He was discovered lying in the road near the wagon by a friend soon after. The horses had halted when Stryker fell. He is now under the care of a physician from Millstone.

The Game Laws.

A neat card has been issued by the "New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society," whose headquarters are at Plainfield, giving the "open" season for the different kind of game and fish in this State. Condensed, they are as follows: Ruffed Grouse, Quail and Rabbit may be taken between Oct. 31 and Dec. 31; Woodcock, July 1 to Aug. 1 and Sept. 30 to Dec. 16; Rail, the months of Sept. Oct. and Nov.; Marsh Hen, Aug. 25 to Dec. 1; Upland Plover, Aug. 1 to Jan. 1; Summer Duck, Grey, Black or Fox Squirrel, Sept. 1 to Jan. 1; Prairie Chicken, Oct. 15 to Dec. 1; Deer, not for 3 years; Salmon Trout or Brook Trout, March 1 to Oct. 1; Black or Oswego Bass, July 1 to Nov. 1. Copies of these cards may be obtained free of the Secretary, W. L. Force, Plainfield, N. J.

Another Factory.

The property recently occupied by the "Diamond Match Co.," and formerly known as "Bird's Mills," has just been purchased by Messrs. Newell & Wight of New York city, who will, as soon as the additional buildings necessary can be erected, commence thereat the manufacture of oil-cloth. Mr. Isaac S. Melbourn of this city is the contractor in charge, and on Wednesday he began the construction of an adjoining building to the Mill, to be 202 feet long by 118 feet wide. About one million brick will be necessary to complete the structure, nine hundred thousand of which have already been ordered of Mr. Aaron Jimerson, and the work is to be finished in about six weeks. Messrs. Newell & Wight will give employment to about 150 men when their factory shall be in running order.

John F. French vs. Rebecca Arcus.

This case, in which Mr. French, who engaged as farm hand for the defendant for a year and who was discharged at the expiration of five months and before the expiration of the year sues for the recovery of damages was decided by Justice Mc Laughlin on Wednesday last.

The Justice citing an opinion of Justice Depue rendered at the September term of the Essex Circuit, holds that in such a case the plaintiff is entitled to sue as soon as he is discharged and that he may recover as damages the wages for the whole term for which he was engaged less such wages as he might have earned during the balance of term elsewhere had he been able to obtain employment.

In the present case the judgment was for $70 and costs in favor of plaintiff. John H. Jackson for plaintiff, Henry C. Suydam for defendant.

The Relief Association.

The annual meeting of The Ladies' Relief Association, was held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Church, Thursday, October 6th. The officers chosen for the current year were as follows: President, Mrs. G. W. Ferry, Vice President, Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Myers, Secretary, Mrs. J. S. Lamson, Assistant Secretary, Mrs. H. C. Marshall. The Superintendent, Miss A. J. Pray, will be in attendance at the rooms of the Association, from November 1st and from eight o'clock a. m. till six o'clock p. m., to receive applications for labor or relief.

The success of the past year encourages the members to commence active operations with much enthusiasm and with confidence in the sympathy and hearty cooperation of the public.

MRS. JOHN M. LAMSON,
Secretary.

Killed by a Fall.

On Friday afternoon about four o'clock Jonathan R. Nellor, aged thirty-six years, a wheelright of Bound Brook, but formerly of Somerville, was killed by falling from an apple tree. He had gone to a field in the rear of his home with a basket for the purpose of gathering some apples. There were a number of men in the field husking corn, and seeing him fall, went to his assistance. He did not appear to be seriously injured and refused to let the men carry him to his home. A few minutes later they discovered that he was dead. It is supposed that he was attacked with vertigo, which occasioned his falling. He had of late been complaining of malaria, and it is thought that from this cause and from the shock received internally, the man expired thus suddenly. He was a son-in-law of the late Wm. Linbarger of this city, and was for some years in the employ of Solomon F. Dunn, Carriage Maker, on 4th street. He leaves a wife and four children.

Improving Water Privileges.

The drouth the past summer, has seriously interfered with the business of mill owners located along Green Brook from its fountain head at Feltville to this city. Therefore to gain a large supply in event of future drouths, said mill owners entered into an agreement to remedy the evil. The first point was to raise the dam and put in new head gates at the upper Feltville Pond, which is designated a reservoir. Miles below, commencing near John Taylor Johnston's residence, a large force of workmen have been engaged for many days in digging out and deepening the bed of the brook to Tier's Lake, which supplies French Bros'. mill with water. The reservoir at Feltville will hold a large amount of water, which can be reserved for judicious use instead of its being allowed to escape after high water. Messrs. French Bros. of this city, Harper, Hollingsworth & Co. of Scotch Plains and E. A. Seely of same place, together with Mr. Chas. Hyde, of this city, are the parties making the improvement.

Our Post Office has arrived at the dignity of a new floor.

There was a members' meeting of the Lyceum Tuesday evening last.

We hear of numerous weddings to come, no less than ten being reported.

The Grand Jury failed to find indictments in any of the cases forwarded by our justices.

The confinement of our local to the house by illness, will excuse his lack of reports of many matters of interest.

Our popular Tinsmith Mahlon H. Ferris is in large demand at present, everyone wants their stoves up the same day.

Well driver Kane, despite many difficulties, has secured a good well of water at the "Wittke building" at a depth of 45 feet.

The improvement to the sidewalk in front of the Hotel deserves notice. We understand that credit is due to the proprietor.

Westfield has the champion quinces, the product of trees owned by Mr. Nathaniel Day of Elm Street, average weight 1½ pounds.

Mr. Cyrus P. Wilcox has accepted the position of assistant with Messrs. E. Miller & Sons, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Arthur Clark.

Bucket and Engine Co. No. 1 held an adjourned regular meeting meeting on Monday night last. Considerable business of importance was disposed of.

The Congregational Sunday School seems to be in a flourishing condition; average attendance about 90. Mr. Hosford is the efficient Superintendent.

The many friends of Mr. Johnathan Cory who have heard of his serious illness, will learn with pleasure that the latest reports indicate his recovery.

Mr. Clarkson Munday, formerly of Plainfield, who has been seriously ill with typhoid fever, is out again though not as yet able to entirely resume work.

Miss Emma Valentine, of Closter, N. J., an artist of acknowledged ability, has been visiting Mrs. H. L. Webb on Central avenue, during the past week, and has made many sketches of points of interest in this vicinity. We are sure that Westfield presents many pictures to an artist's eye.

Mr. A. Edgar Wilcox has embarked in the oyster trade, and has established headquarter in the rear of the Turf Exchange on North avenue, opposite the depot. Choice varieties constantly on hand and delivered at your house free of charge. Our citizens should favor Eddie with a trial.

That popular distributor of Agricultural machinery, who has already done so much to educate the farmers of this vicinity to the necessity of improved cultivation for profit, we refer to Mr. Lewis C. Thiee, has secured the agency of the Randall Pulverizing Harrow. Call and see him with reference to it.

The Republican Primary was held last night at the office of W. W. Connolly. Besides the election of five delegates each to both the County and Assembly Conventions, officers of the Republican Association for the ensuing year were elected and two members of the County Executive Committee. Particulars in our next.

The Necktie and Fruit entertainment held at Lyceum Hall under the auspices of the Ladies of Zion's M. E. Mission, on Thursday evening of last week, proved, despite the unfavorable weather, very successful. The attendance is variously estimated from 200 to 300. It was for the benefit of the church and pastor, and a goodly sum must have been realized.

The addresses of Mr. C. E. Wilde at the M. E. Church Sunday afternoon and evening last were very interesting. The afternoon exercises consisted of an explanatory exhibition of Idols. In the evening the subject was "Manners, costume and religion of the Chinese," this was illustrated with Idols. The attendance was good and all departed apparently greatly pleased.

The marriage of Mrs. Mary E. Goodrich for many years a popular teacher at our school to Mr. Samuel Colt, a merchant of Hartford, Conn., which pleasant event occured on Thursday of last week, proved quite a notable social occasion. A large number of friends both here and elsewhere were present and united in hearty congratulations and well wishes. We are sure that the presence of her fellow co-workers in our school added greatly to the pleasures of the occasion. The happy pair left on the 3:39 train followed by the God-speed of the many present.

The committee of the Congregationalist church have received the front and side elevations of the proposed new church, but the working plans are not as yet received. It is rumored that subscriptions received hardly reach the anticipations of the committee, and that this may necessitate a postponement of its erection until spring. It is said that this fact is largely due to dissatisfaction as to the location, but we can hardly credit this as it was selected by an almost unanimous vote. The committee appear to be thoroughly in earnest, however, and rumors are hardly to be credited.

Saturday was gala day for Westfield's Amateur Athletes, being no more nor less than the occasion of the Club championship games of the Westfield Athletic Club. The hour set for the opening, 4:30 p. m., is itself, rather late, was added to by half an hour before the contestants were ready; and here it is but fitting to speak of an error made by this as well as by many other clubs, the failure to have a sufficiency of officers for the occasion, as it is hardly possible for one or two to take entire charge of the games, be at all parts of the course at the same time and keep everything moving promptly and smoothly; perhaps, though, those who accepted these positions and failed to be on hand, should receive a portion of this censure. The attendance was good and largely composed of the friends and relations of the young contestants. The games were held on Elm street, north of Broad, making a very good track for a roadway, a little down grade being in favor of the contestants. The first event, 100 yds dash, was won by Mr. S. S. Mapes, Mr. Frank Harbison, second. Time, 10½. This was followed by a quarter-mile run, won by Chas. Day, in 53½ seconds; his competitor did not finish. In the 220 yds run, Mr. Augustus Alpers had a walk over, but covered the distance in 29 sec. The 120 yds hurdle race (9 hurdles) excited a good deal of interest as it was between Mr. L. V. Clark, who held the club championship, and Mr. S. S. Mapes, the club champion at 100 yds. It was a close struggle, Mr. Clark gaining slowly in the jumps and finally winning by a few yards. Time 18½ seconds. The mile walk or run followed with three contestants, between two of whom a decided rivalry appeared to exist, and both of these would-be champions appeared in very poor form. The walking continued fair until the approach to the finish, when in their joint zeal not to be passed, they skipped and ran; the judge got near enough to give them two cautions and his inability to reach them on the home-stretch, alone prevented their disqualification. The third contestant who had been almost overlooked, so interested were all in the leaders, walked fairly until the excitement consequent upon the finish overcame him, and he broke his gait several times. Considerable dispute arose as to the winner, but the judge awarded the medal to Mr. C. P. Wilcox; however, to his credit be it said, that he returned it to the club to be contested for again. It it as well here to say to those who endeavored to interfere in the judge's decision, that it was in ex*ceedingly bad taste and that its only ef*fect was to increase the ill feeling of the adherents of the different walkers. An adjournment to the gymnasium was then made and the running high jump was contested, Mr. C. P. Wilcox winning.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A PLUCKY PREACHER.

Edward Irving, the famous London preacher, had a strong sense of justice, and would never permit his rights to be trampled on. When a young man, his immense stature, six feet four inches, and superb physical frame were strong arguments in his favor, when he chose to assert himself. On one occasion he was waiting with a crowd for the opening of the doors at a great public meeting.

Some ladies, whom he had escorted, were by his side. A self-important doorkeeper appeared on the steps, and began to threaten the people if they did not move back. Laying hold of Irving, he ordered him, in an authoritative tone, to move backward.

Irving quietly lifted his cane, and said, in a voice of thunder: "Be quiet, sir, or I will annihilate you!" and the frightened doorkeeper retreated amid the jeers of the crowd. At another time he stopped with a friend at a country inn for dinner. Being on a pedestrian tour, they left coats and knapsacks in the room, and went out to explore the neighborhood. On returning, they found another party eating their dinner, having thrown equipments into the corner. Irving courteously stated their claim, but the intruders answered contemptuously, and sought to exclude him and his friend from the room. Irving strode to the window, threw it open, and called to his comrade, "Will you toss out or knock down?" His resolute bearing so startled the intruders into politeness that they at once invited him to the table.

DIAMONDS AND IGNORANCE.

I observe with dislike the complete obliteration, at least in our Eastern States, or certainly in our great cities of New York and Philadelphia, of native born American boys in the trades and useful departments. It is common to hear these young men say that they ought to have rich fathers, thereby admitting their miserable incapacity to maintain themselves.

The women, I am sorry to say, are very much responsible for the worthlessness of their children. They have got the notion derived from our imperfect social type and rapid growth in money without any corresponding education of the head and habits, that it is demeaning to their girls to do any work and to their boys to be anything but brokers, lawyers, etc.

You look around our hotels and see the diamonds worn in the ears of every girl and every woman from sixteen years old up. They represent millions of dollars in one of these big hotels. What is it all for? Do these heads contain anything corresponding to the flash of those diamonds?

Why, a young girl with a pair of diamonds as big as the end of your thumb, came up to me only a night or two ago, and hearing me mention Benjamin Franklin, said, "Who was Franklin? Wasn't he the inventor of printing?" "Yes," said I, "and of thunder and lightning." She said, "Oh, thank you," and went away without the least idea that their had been any satire.—New York Letter.

WISE WORDS.

It is not life to live for one's self alone. Let us help one another.

Ragged clothes cannot debase a man as much as a frayed reputation.

Favors of every kind are doubled when they are speedily conferred.

Always do a kind act in a kind way; to do it otherwise destroys all its value.

When one gets so much humility that he is proud of it, he is just too good to live.

There are three classes of men—the retrograde, the stationary, the progressive.

A failure establishes only this, that determination to succeed was not strong enough.

True benevolence is to love all men. Recompence injury with justice and kindness.

There are some who seem to have no appetite for mirth; others appear to have no relish for anything else.

Many men claim to be firm in their principles, when really they are only obstinate in their prejudices.

There never were in the world two opinions alike, no more than two hairs or two grains. The most universal quality is diversity.

Talent is the capacity of doing anything that depends on application and industry, and it is a voluntary power, while genius is involuntary.

When we feel a strong desire to thrust our advice upon others, it is because we suspect their weakness; but we ought rather to suspect our own.

FOR YOUNG MEN TO REMEMBER.

That clothes don't make the man.

That their fathers know more than they do.

That if once they get into debt they may never get out of it.

That they will need something more substantial than cigars, light kids and a cane to start housekeeping with.

That an employer who hears of a clerk living in style a good ways above his salary, is very apt to show him the door when he least expects it.

That a girl who decks herself in the latest thing out, and parades the street while her mother does the family washing, isn't worth wasting much love on.

That they can't reckon on their father's fortune alone to bring them through life. Fortunes are slippery things—better have something besides to fall back on.

That if they wish to fall stark in love with a girl because she is pretty, they ought to be sure how much powder and paint there may be in the question and figure upon it accordingly.

That a fellow who deliberately proposes matrimony to a young lady when he can't support himself, is either a first-class fraud or a fool—unless he marries for money and becomes her "hired man."

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.

[OFFICIAL.]

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 6, 1881.

The Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union met at the Court House, on Thursday, October 6, 1881, at 2 o'clock p. m. Regular meeting.

Present—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Clark, Doty, Eller, Forsyth, Isemann, Melick, Mapes, Newbury, Randolph, Smith, Sullivan, Thompson—15.

Absent—Freeholder Hubbard—1.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read, (the communication from the County Attorney and list of bills ordered paid, being on motion omitted) and on motion the minutes as read were approved.

The Director called Freeholder Randolph to the chair, and presented the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, Since our July meeting at which on behalf of ourselves and the people of Union County, we passed a resolution attempting to express our great condemnation of a crime that shocked all good men, James A. Garfield, President of the United States, has died, therefore it is proper as individuals and representatives we should again declare our unqualified condemnation of the act that has caused his death, and express our sympathy for his family, and condole as citizens with each other; therefore be it—

Resolved, That we again reiterate the language then used, "That this blow has been struck at every individual and every individual interest in our Union, therefore language falls far short of expressing our indignation and condemnation of the crime," and we extend to the afflicted family our heartfelt sympathy in their sorrow and great affliction, and while condoling as citizens one with the other, mourning with those that sorrow over the new made grave, we lift our faces upward, onward, and to the future, counselling all citizens to practice good order and moderation in all things, awarding the one to the other that consideration and respect for opinions and sentiments each would claim for himself, and to stand firm in the faith of our fathers with an undying fidelity to our form of government, loyal to our constitution and willing to stand by it in all its parts.

Which was on motion of Freeholder Briant received and ordered spread upon the minutes by a unanimous vote.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

From Committee on Bridges on Jersey avenue and Bayway and Murray street.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

GENTLEMEN:—

You Committee appointed at the last meeting of this Board to report as to the necessity and probable cost of enlarging the two bridges, one corner of Jersey avenue and Bayway and the other on Murray street near Bayway, would respectfully report that they have examined the places named.

Across Jersey avenue to Bayway we find an earthen pipe about 18 inches in diameter; the complaint is that it does not and never has carried the water. At times the avenue is said to be impassable from the depth of water on the street and sidewalk.

In Murray street, near Bahway, is another bridge of plank one foot high and two feet wide, much too small to carry the water.

After a careful examination we would recommend that the bridge on Murray street be enlarged to 1½ feet high and 3 feet wide, walls to be of stone and top of flag, and on Jersey avenue we would recommend that a bridge be built with three walls, each wall three feet apart covered with flag stone and to extend from the gutter to the north side line of the avenue.

The Murray street bridge will probably cost $175, the Jersey avenue bridge will probably cost $250. All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS FORSYTH,
OWEN SULLIVAN,
PETER ELLER,
E. S. G. NEWBURY,
WILLIAM J. THOMPSON,
Committee.

David E. Townley - -	$134 00

IT MAKES NO DRUNKARDS,
Breaks No Hearts, Excuses No Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. FAVORITE REMEDY is a combination of vegetable alteratives. It does not heat or inflame the blood, but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict woman, the action of FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business documents and certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards, excuses no crimes, breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. Dr. Kennedy would have it understood that, while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, "Favorite Remedy," he still continues the practice of his profession. He treats all diseases, and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery.

POETRY.

SONG OF THE SEASONS.

Gaunt winter flinging flakes of snow,
Deep burdening field and wood and hill;
Dim days, dark nights, slow trailing fogs,
And bleakened air severe and chill.
And swift the seasons circling run—
And still they change till all is done.

Young spring with promise in her eyes,
And fragrant breath with dewy mouth,
And magic touches for the nooks
Of budding flowers when wind is south.
And swift the seasons circling run—
And so they change till all is done.

Then summer stands erect and tall,
With early sunrise for the lawn.
Thick foliaged woods and glittering seas,
And loud bird chirpings in the dawn.
And swift the seasons circling run—
And so they change till all is done.

Brown autumn, quiet with ripe fruits,
And hay-yards stocked with harvest gold,
And fiery flushes for the leaves,
And silent cloud-shine soft outrolled,
And so the seasons circling run—
And still they rest till all is done.

Swift speeds our life from less to more,
The child, the man, the work, the rest,
The sobering mind, the ripening soul,
Till yonder all is bright and blest.
For so the seasons circling run—
And swift they change till all is done.

Yet, yonder—if indeed the orb
Of life revolves round central light,
For ever true to central force
And steadfast, comes the balm or blight.
And so indeed the seasons run—
And last is best when all is done.

MARRIED FOR LOVE.

BY SARAH SPARKLE.

To say the sun had been hot would not in the least do it justice. It had shone from early morning until night, not even the smallest cloud had interfered to moderate for a moment its heat; and now that the hour was come, when, according to established usage, it must set, it seems to have gathered all its energy for a final effort, and hangs in the western sky like a ball of fire, lighting up Nahant's beach for a long stretch and reflecting in the placid water an image almost as brilliant as the original.

The scene is really beautiful, but poor humanity has suffered so much from that luminary, that it is totally unable to appreciate its parting salute. One poor mortal is devoutly grateful and sits on the piazza of the principal hotel, his chair tipped back, his feet on the railing and a cigarette in his mouth contemplating the sunset with decided satisfaction. At this moment another individual appeared on the scene.

"Hot, ain't it?"

"Confounded," replied our friend of the cigarette, and offers one to the new comer, who takes it, pushes back his hat and assumes a position almost as graceful as our friend, and falls to contemplating the water and the sunset. The new comer is a man of about five and twenty years. His light hair falls on a broad, intellectual forehead, his mouth is proud and sensitive, and the upper lip is adorned with a moustache that men take genuine delight in. His eyes are quite blue, in which there is a drift of humor; altogether the face is very pleasing and the large stalwart figure which accompanies it, makes the man decidedly worth looking at. This is Raymond Leister.

His companion is entirely different. Jack Hasting's best friend never ventured to call him handsome. His eyes are large and dark and have in them a dissatisfied expression. He does not revel, as does Leister, in a fine moustache, his face is smooth, and his mouth is perhaps a trifle large, but his teeth are fine, and when Jack Hastings laughs one feels like racking his brain for something to provoke his mirth afresh.

Jack Hastings is a favorite, and this summer he is a decided hero, for he has a history, and all the young ladies are devoutly interested in him in consequence. Last winter the news came to Jack that an uncle in England had died and left him a considerable fortune on condition that he marry a niece of the old man, who had lived with her uncle ever since her infancy, and in case of his not complying the fortune reverted to the niece.

Now, Jack had never been overburdened with lucre, and the idea of having a fortune was not in the least objectionable to him, but the incumbrance was not all to his taste. Up to the time that the news came of the will, Jack had been heart whole, and his friends, however, thought him a lucky fellow, for Miss Helen Isabelle Leighton was said to be a beauty, but as the young lady had never visited America it was rather difficult to say whence came this important information.

Jack had made no decided objection, so it was arranged that the young lady, accompanied by her aunt, after a short tour through the continent, was to start for America and was expected to arrive about the middle of September. Miss Leighton's aunt resided in Boston, and shortly after her arrival in that city she was to give a reception, the purpose being to present Jack Hasting to his future bride.

Jack had been informed of all these arrangements, but had taken little interest in them. As he must become a Benedict he determined to make the best of the time left him; but the fates were against him. A few weeks after his advent at the beach he had fallen desperately in love with a young lady stopping at one of the cottages. In consequence of this Jack fully believed himself one of the most deeply injured mortals on the face of the earth, hence the dissatisfied expression in the young gentleman's eyes, as he looks toward the cottage which holds the object of his adoration.

"For a person who had just had a fortune thrown at his head, you are about as disconsolate as a fellow can be," said Raymond; but as the former made no response, he continued: "I say, Jack, don't you like it?"

"Like it?" said Jack, turning fiercely on him, "I like the fortune, but who would like to have a girl thrown at his head; would you?"

"That depends altogether on the size of the girl," replied Raymond, smoothing his hair and laughing at his friend's eagerness; "but to be serious, Jack, I would not get entangled with any one until I had seen Miss Leighton, and I should put a stop to my visits to the cottage, for pretty Miss Nellie's sake, if I were you."

Jack looked after the retreating figure and then, utterly regardless of his friend's advice, walked off in the direction of the cottage.

Miss Nellie Long had been expecting him. She lay in a hammock, her hands resting listless in her lap; white, soft hands that were strangers to labor. Her white dress just escaped the ground as she swayed lazily in the soft summer twilight. Her head was covered with a shower of golden curls and her complexion was as fair as a baby's. Her eyes were large and blue, and just at present were fixed rather anxiously on the road where Jack would first appear.

He was late and she had almost given him up, when the stalwart figure appeared striding along toward the cottage. A smile of satisfaction plays around the pretty mouth which breaks into a merry laugh as Jack leaps the low fence and stands by her side. Raising her eyes to his she says:

"You could not stay away, could you, Jack, dear?"

He stoops to kiss her but she pushed his face away and says, gently: "You must not do it, Jack, I feel quite sure Miss Leighton would object."

"Confound Miss Leighton," says Jack, as he throws himself on the ground.

"That is what I say, Jack, but that does not alter in the least the facts in the case."

"I have told you, Nellie, a dozen times, that I never will marry her."

"I know it, but I am horribly jealous of her, and cannot get her out of my mind, night or day, and I know you think about her all the time, now don't you, Jack?" and she bent forward till her eyes are looking straight into his and then as he made no reply, "I do wish you would smile, Jack, I am trying so hard to delude myself into the belief that you are handsome, and I never can if you look like that."

Taking no notice of her last remark, Jack straightened himself up and says with decision, "I have made up my mind—"

"To marry Miss Leighton?" interrupted Nellie, doing her best to squeeze a few tears into her eyes. Nellie is a coquette, but to do her justice she is very fond of Jack.

"I have made up my mind," repeated Jack.

"Well, you said so before," impatiently.

"I have made up my mind," again repeated Jack, slowly, "to write to Miss Leighton and tell her that, owing to a previous attachment, I am unable to comply with the conditions of my uncle's will."

"Jack, you dear, old darling," giving his hand a little squeeze, at which a smile lights up Jack Hasting's plain face, but it vanished on hearing her next words: "How about the fortune, Jack?"

"Hang the fortune!" replied the young man, and then as she looks dubious, "Nellie, you don't care about the money?"

"No, but—"

"But what?"

"A little money is very nice to have; but, Jack, I had ever so much rather have you," smoothing his forehead with her cool, soft hand.

"I know you would, Nellie. Now when shall it be dear."

"Oh, not before you have seen Miss Leighton."

"But I shall never see her. She will not want to see me after she receives my letter."

"Oh, but I would rather you should. Just imagine you seeing her after our marriage and falling in love with her; I should die, Jack," and this time there are tears in the blue eyes, but whether of grief or with mirth, Jack cannot tell. All his persuasion cannot move her, and so he leaves her.

As she watches his retreating figure her face dimples and smiles; she is quite sure of her conquest, now, and is a little less jealous of Miss Leighton.

The weeks sped swiftly by, and the second week in September had arrived. In two days Jack is to meet Miss Leighton, for notwithstanding his letter, her guardian has sent word that he thinks it advisable for the young people to meet, as Miss Leighton is anxious to make some arrangement about the property, and next Wednesday is set for the meeting.

He has taken his farewell of Nellie, after swearing eternal fidelity; but she is not fully convinced. She has pictured Miss Leighton in glowing colors as a beauty, with dark flashing eyes and a stately figure, for since she is a relative of Jack's, Nellie cannot get the idea out of her head that she is a brunette, and is certain that Jack will fall in love with the young lady on the spot. She ends by asking him in pathetic tones, "What will then be left for me to do," adding to Jack's misery.

The night has at last arrived, and Jack has spent a longer time that usual on his toilet and feels in a dissatisfied mood as he rides along toward Beacon street. At last the carriage stops, Jack is admitted and shown into a small reception room by a servant in livery. He hears the low strains of a waltz, but his attention is instantly caught by a portrait which hangs over the mantle. It is the portrait of a lady; the face is proud and intelligent, the eyes, dark and brilliant; instinctively Jack knows it is the picture of Miss Leighton, and he laughs to himself as he recalls Nellie's description of her. He hears the rustle of a silk dress in the hall and the original of the portrait, only prouder, handsomer, if possible, is standing beside him.

For a moment, Jack remained motionless, his breath almost taken away by the suddenness of her appearance. All his fine speeches fly to the four winds.

"I—I believe you wish to see me," he stammered.

"Yes." Her voice is low and contrastingly strange with his. "Mr. Cary, my guardian, thought it best, as he wished you to know that it is over half a million that you are refusing when you refuse to —when you refuse the alliance."

A soft flush covers face and throat as she speaks. She is very beautiful and so Jack must admit.

His thoughts fly back to a golden head, and not for a moment does he falter in his allegiance.

"I am unable to comply, as I am to be married to Miss Long, in two weeks."

A smile curls the lady's lips.

"Yes, so Mr. Cary informed me, and we have decided to make over to you a portion of the fortune, for which I have had a deed of gift made out."

She said this in a rather sarcastic way as she handed him the paper.

Something in the tone offends Jack, and taking the paper he deliberately tears it up and throws it into the grate. "I am obliged to you, Miss Leighton, but you must excuse me if I decline your gift."

Utterly unprepared for this contingency, the lady stands glaring at him. Feeling rather awkward, and not knowing what to do, Jack bows and takes his leave. The lady hides her face in her hands and cries? no, laughs! Her mental observation is, that he must indeed be in love. Then she returns to her guests, not without a feeling of mortification that, not only had she been rejected herself, but her gift has been indignantly thrown at her feet by this haughty young man.

Jack has told Nellie everything, and Nellie at last convinced of his constancy, is all the fondest lover could wish.

They are to be married in a week; Jack has bought a small house and furnished it as well as his means would permit. Nellie has been over it and declared it to be the loveliest, coziest little house in the world. The wedding is to be very quiet; they are to have a few friends, at the house, among others Raymond Leister, who mentally sets Jack down as the biggest fool on record.

It seems as if nature had made a particular effort on this day, or at least so Nellie thinks, as she returns home from the church with Jack, now her husband, to their cosy little home. As they enter they are met by a servant who hands them two cards, on which is written: Miss Leighton and Mr. Cary."

Jack becomes dignified, feeling quite sure that they have come to renew the offer of the money as a wedding present, and he is fully determined to refuse it as bluntly as before. Nellie, for the first time in he life, is seized with bashfulness and begs her husband to go in alone, but he will not hear to this for a moment, and putting his arms reassuringly around her, walks into the room and up to Miss Leighton.

"Miss Leighton," he begins, "allow me to present you to——" when he stops. Nellie has slipped from his arms and is seated on the sofa laughing in anything but a dignified manner. Jack looks from one to the other in bewilderment. Nellie finally taking pity on him, slips her hand through the lady's arm, and leading her up to Jack says: "Mr. Hastings, allow me to present to you my aunt, Mrs. Leighton."

"Mrs. Jack Hastings, at your service," making him a low courtesy, turns to the old gentleman, and taking both his hands, says gravely: "I told you Mr. Cary, he should not marry me for my money, and I dont think he has."

A NEEDY OLD CHAP.

STRANGE GUEST AT AN ACTOR'S DINNER.

Some years ago, when John McCullough was in New Orleans, says the Louisville Courier-Journal, a complimentary dinner was given, to which Robeson and Crane, the comedians, were invited. Robeson tells the following story of an incident which occurred:

"It was a private affair, so that when I saw, sitting between Crane and myself, a very seedy-looking old gentleman, my attention was arrested, and I began to eye the old chap with suspicion. By-and-by he began to attract the attention of the company. He was a man of say sixty or thereabout, unshaven, and very shabbily dressed. The night outside was bitterly cold, and yet the old fellow wore a thin summer coat buttoned up to the throat. What first drew my attention to him was his appearance, and after that his appetite. He ate voraciously, and his drinking kept pace with his eating. Again and again did Crane and I replenish his plate and fill his glass, and again and again were they emptied.

"I confess that a barbarous sense of the humor of the thing came over me, and I gave way to it. From my 'pride of place' I deliberately plied the ancient mariner with wine, and made a point of inviting the attention of the whole table to him. They all went into the joke, and insisted, one after another, upon drinking wine with the old man. The idea, of course, was to get him tipsy, but here we all failed, for the old gentleman had a head as hard as Socrates, and, moreover, seemed to know when he had enough. The quiet whisper and nudge was going round the festive board, 'Who's our friend? Who brought him in?' etc. But it was quickly suppressed, for at last, with quiet dignity, but firm courtesy, he declined to drink any more, and no entreaty could move him from his resolution. None of our party seemed to know him, so we finally concluded that he was a poor relation or acquaintance of some of the givers of the banquet, who had kindly rung him in for a good feed. In the meantime speeches were made, toasts were drank, and a slightly inebriated individual sung out:

"'Say, mine ancient friend, won't you please give us a speech? Something about Shakespeare, you know. He's the fellow.'

"Nobody of course imagined that the old man would have the nerve to get up and say anything, but he did. Well, sir, in the course of my experience I have heard a great many clever people talk about the immortal bard, but on this occasion I heard in fifteen minutes the most intelligent exposition of Shakespeare's genius that it has ever been my fortune to listen to.

"And the whole thing was done so easily, and with such an entire absence of effort, that it was not until he had finished that we all began to realize that we had been under the spell of a profound critic and an accomplished orator. And those who came to scoff remained to pray.

"John McCullough rushed over and grasped his hand enthusiastically, thanked him for the honor of his presence, and begged his name, that the company might know to whom they were indebted. For the first time the old man seemed to lose his self-possession. He articulated a few words, but it was plain his emotions were getting the better of him. Crane filled him a glass of wine, and the old man drank it, and after a little pause rose slowly, and with difficulty. His manner had quite changed. He no longer looked the keen critic and fluent orator, but a weak, infirm old man, who, in spite of every disadvantage of appearance, still retained a certain dignity—an elusive but unmistakable something that pronounced him a gentleman.

"Said a friend to me as the old man got upon his feet:

"'Bob, this don't look like art; this is nature.'

"'Gentlemen,' said the unknown, in a voice tremulous and full of pathos, 'I owe an apology to you all. I have no excuse to offer for having intruded upon your festivity, but I can at least make the poor amend of confessing that I am an intruder. I came to this house this evening on the invitation of a man I once knew, and I stumbled by accident into your banquet. I came here hungry and cold (and I thought I could hear the wind whistling outside as he intoned rather than pronounced the words, "hungry and cold") and I could not resist the temptation. I wanted to eat and drink and get warm.'

"And the old man's eyes dropped upon the table as if overpowered with a sense of his degradation.

"'I know this is shameful,' he continued, 'but physical weakness sometimes begets mental weakness, and I had eaten nothing for three days. For three weeks past I have not slept in a bed, but stolen a rest in doorways, or in a chair in the office of some hotel. Sometimes I have walked the streets till daylight. Such things, gentlemen, tell heavily upon a man of my age. Otherwise, no man with a remnant of pride left could have acted as I have done to-night. But I thank God I have at least retained courage enough to tell the truth. And now, gentlemen,' said the brave old man, straightening up with wonderful dignity of manner, 'accept my gratitude for what I have received. I have eaten and drank with you, and am refreshed and grateful. I trust you will pardon my infringement of hospitality and common honesty, and permit me to depart.'"

The dinner-party immediately raised a purse of sixty-eight dollars for their needy friend. Robeson will not tell his name, but says that twenty-five years ago he was a Congressman from Ohio, and he was once a candidate for the Vice-Presidency of the United States.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS.

One of the old-time editors of Michigan was boasting the other day that he had never been sued for libel, or attacked in the sanctum, but he could recall many narrow escapes. Twenty-five years ago he was running a red-hot paper on the line of the Michigan Central Railroad. A man named Carson, who was running for some county office, was given a bad racket, and the editor received a note that if he had anything more to to say he might expect to receive a good pounding. He had still more bitter attacks the next week, and the paper was hardly mailed before in walked Carson, the candidate, accompanied by his brother and two cousins. The four were strapping big fellows, and each was armed with a horsewhip. The two compositors and the "devil" got out with all speed, leaving the editor without support. He realized the situation at once, and said:

"Walk in, gentlemen; I presume you have come in to worship me?"

"We have," they answered.

"Very well. Have you thoroughly considered the matter?"

"It doesn't need any consideration," replied Carson. "You have lied about me, and I'm going to lick you within an inch of your life!"

"Just so, my friend, but first hear what I have to say. Did you ever hear of the press being stopped because the editor was cowhided?"

"I dunno."

"Well, you never did. Lick me all you choose and my paper comes out week after week just the same. The power of the press is next to the lever which moves the universe. It makes or breaks parties, builds up or tears down, plants or destroys. Aggravate the editor and the press becomes a sword to wound or kill. Wollop me if you will, but next week I'll come out more bitter than ever."

There was an embarrassing silence right here, and the face of each horsewhipper had an anxious look.

"It will go out to the world—to America, Canada, England, France—aye! clear to Jerusalem, that the Carson family of this county live on roots and johnny-cake; that they stole a dog from a blind man; that they murdered a peddler for a pair of two-shilling suspenders; that the women are club-footed, and the men work their ears when they sing; that the—"

"What is the regular subscription price for the Herald?" interrupted Carson.

"Only twelve shillings a year."

"Put us four down."

"Very well—six dollars—that's correct. Run in and see me—all of you, and if any of you want to see any of my exchanges I shall be only to glad to serve you."—Detroit Free Press.

How to get round a man—Get square with him.

Butchers kill to dress, many other folks dress to kill.

"I'd laugh if I should fall and break my neck," jestingly remarked James Maloney of Tapan, New York, while in the act of descending from a tall pear tree. The next moment he lay upon the ground with his neck broken. But he did not laugh. What infernal liars some men are.

Upon the wise action of such representatives much depends, and it is essential that their united and determined purpose shall be to nominate the very best man for each official position. We feel certain that the Plainfield delegation will be swayed only by patriotic motives of that kind.

There is encouragement in a fully attended Primary, and we would urge all Democrats who can possibly respond to be present on this, Friday evening, pursuant to published call.

Rally! Democrats!

OUR GOVERNMENT.

The recent disability and death of President Garfield showed plainly the inherent strength of our system of government.

For three months the General Government at Washington was virtually without an official head, owing to the prostration of the President on a bed of languishing pain, and yet everything went on devoid of trouble or confusion.

Why so?

It is an interesting query.

It was because of the limited and defined powers conferred by the Constitution on the United States as a national organization, and further, because each of those individual States had in full and lawful operation a distinct government of its own.

There never was a more striking illustration of the efficacy of the American Union, and the vital importance of preserving unimpaired its original integrity as a family of sovereign commonwealths.

Had we been a consolidated nation, like England, Germany or France, such an ordeal as we have just passed through would have created serious difficulties, if not violent revolution.

The most critical investigation will disclose the fact that the doctrine of State Sovereignties, so long and still earnestly maintained by the Democratic party, is the life blood of a permanent and prosperous government.

Democracy is the truth.

Besides the enormous frauds, "Star routs," known to exist in the Postal Department, there is reason to suspect similar crookedness in that of Pensions. Not until the Democratic party takes the reins of administration can any thorough and complete overhauling be expected. Then look out for real disclosures that will make the hair of honest men stand on end.

The real wealth of a country consists in its valuable productions made available for the good of mankind, and the creators of such wealth are they who industriously toil. That cannot be truthfully denied, although for sinister ends it is often shamefully discarded.

The Half Breeds thought they had killed Stalwart Conkling politically. The terrible idea now haunts them that he may not be dead—only sleeping.

Since the great non-partisan Senator from Illinois was elected by the Republicans President of the Senate he has voted with them on a strictly party question. His professed political virtue weighs about one fifth of a ton and it is all for Davis.

SOMERSET COUNTY DEMOCRATS!

At the County and Assembly Conventions held at Somerville on Thursday, the following gentlemen—whose names we learn as we go to press—were placed in nomination by the assembled delegates from the Democratic primaries. They are candidates of unblemished public and private record, with characters that claim for them the undivided support of their party and an election by a large majority. The importance of a Democratic victory in Somerset County, cannot be too thoroughly impressed upon the understanding of the party in that section of the State. Issues of importance depend upon the complexion of the next Senate and Legislature, and the candidates elected this Fall will have a voice in the choosing of a United States Senator to succeed the Hon. John R. McPherson. Let every Democrat of Somerset County go to the polls on Nov. 8th, and cast his ballot for EUGENE S. DOUGHTY, as Senator and WILLIAM A. SCHOMP, as Assemblyman.

NATIONAL GLORY.

It was well remarked by Mr. Winthrop, of Massachusetts, in his eloquent oration at the Yorktown celebration last week—"No anathemas shall escape my lips on this auspicious day. Let me rather invoke, as I devoutly and fervently do, the choicest and richest blessings of Heaven on those who shall do most, in all time to come, to preserve our beloved country in unity, peace and concord."

To that every sincere American must respond—Amen!

No better advice could be offered the people of this country than the foregoing oratorical quotation conveys.

In it abides both wisdom and safety.

Happy indeed will it be for the present and future generations, if the curtain of oblivion shall forever hide from thought and view sectional animosity of every name and nature, and if rivalry between Americans shall hereafter consist only in promoting mutual personal welfare and exalted public virtue throughout the whole land—North, South, East and West.

The utterance of Mr. Winthrop is in keeping with the spirit of the age, and most appropriately did it find expression on ground made historic by the devoted patriotism of Washington.

Unity, Peace and Concord!

They are jewels becoming the coronet of Liberty.

"Unity"—A galaxy of sovereign States revolving with fixed purpose and in harmony around one National centre—the star of Constitutional Union.

"Peace"—Perfect tranquility beneath the protection of established civil laws; a land free from the cause of war and unblighted by its cruel touch.

"Concord"—Brotherly love among citizens of a common country, each charitable for the opinions of others and zealous for the rights and interests of all.

Steering by that chart will waft us into the haven of National Glory.

THE TREASURY REPORT.

The report of the committee charged with the investigation of the Custodian's office of the Treasury Department was submitted to the Senate on Monday and ordered printed. The document and accompanying papers cover about one hundred foolscap pages. The report refers in detail to various questionable transactions, the most flagrant of which are that during the fiscal year of 1880, a shortage of 159 yards of carpet was found in the store-room; that $10 per dozen had been paid for file-holders, which might have been bought for $7.50 or less; $5 for district directories, which might have been obtained for $4.50 each; $12 for Webster's and Worcester's Dictionaries worth $10; $20 for atlases worth $18, and $2.50 per day for a horse which could have been obtained for $1.75. The story of Appointment Clerk Lamphere's book being purchased by the wholesale at $3 per copy, while being retailed at $2.50 with 20 per cent. discount, is mentioned as one of the most glaring extravagances. One hundred and thirty-two dollars was found as having been expended for candles, which, according to the custodian, was really used in the purchase of sugar and lemons used for lemonade for the Secretary, Assistant Secretaries, and the chief clerk, and for "a certain lunch" which was furnished in the Treasury Building about the time of the Chicago Convention. Assistant Secretary Upton and Chief Clerk Power affirm that they had no knowledge of this, and that they contributed money for the occasion, and believed that both the lemonade and the lunch referred to were furnished in a legitimate manner.

Michigan gave $35,000 more to Chicago at the time of the great fire than Chicago has contributed to the burnt-out sufferers of Michigan.

"Let us strive to aid and advance the liberty of the world in the only legitimate way in our power, by patriotic fidelity and devotion in upholding, illustrating and adorning our own free institutions."

There is an important battle to be fought in this country. The weapons will not be bombs and bullets, but ballots. Monopoly is the enemy, freedom or slavery the issue. It is time for the people to fall into line.

"Are there not symptoms of malaria, in some of our high places, more pestilent than any that ever emanated from Potomac or even Pontine marshes, infecting our whole civil service, and tainting the very life-blood of the nation."

"We are one by a Constitution and a Union which have not only survived the shock of foreign and of civil war, but have stood the abeyance of almost all administration, while the whole people were waiting breathless in alternate hope and fear for the issues of an execrable crime."

Mahone was a red-handed fighting General in the Confederate army. Now he is a Republican Senator. Edmunds, Hoar and Dawes, bowing obsequiously, grasp his hand, and never breathe to him as they shout to others the odious term of rebel. He votes with them. There is nothing more transparent than hypocrisy.

Stirling Items.

A stock company from New York are erecting eleven nice cottages at Stirling. John Dentz has the contract for the masonry, Clark Moffett the carpenter work and Mahlon T. Mulford the lathing. All are to be completed and ready for occupancy by December 1st. They will be quite an improvement to the village.

Additions are being put to the button factory, new boilers put in, &c., and will soon be again in full blast, with greater capacity and increased force.

This little town is fast growing in size and population and will soon take its place as one of the prominent towns of the State. It being upon high ground, free from malaria, and commanding an excellent view of the surrounding country.

State Treasurer—Turney, (Rep.,) 316,292; Winslow, (Dem.,) 286,531; Schumacher, (Proh.,) 15,842; Gloyd, (Grbk.,) 6,487.

Total vote of the State, 627,002.

Returns from all but two counties in Iowa give the Hon. Buren R. Sherman, Republican, for Governor the comfortable majority of 59,768 votes.

A Probable Death from Hydrophobia.

A lad of about 11 years of age, the son of Mr. Charles Ward residing near Warrenville, died on Tuesday of this week, under circumstances and with prominent symptoms that suggest hydrophobia as the cause. The deceased was bitten in the thumb, about a month ago, by a spitz dog which his brother had brought from New York; since which occurrence the animal has disappeared. The boy during the sickness that preceded his death, was attended by Dr. Matthews of Bound Brook, and is said by many who were present and experienced, to have shown in many ways every evidence of his suffering from an attack of hydrophobia—becoming enraged at the sight of water and being thrown into spasms thereat. It is reported that a little sister of the deceased, was also bitten by the same animal.

THE Chancellor's decision in the suit of the Building Loan Association against a former Board of Directors of that organization, is said to satisfy both the plaintiffs and defendants. The ruling holds that the Directors are not liable for loans honestly made, even should the securities accepted prove, afterwards, to be worthless; neither are they chargeable with the negligence or mistake of the solicitor of the association, in the execution of mortgages. But, on the other hand, loans on the bonds of members, secured by an assignment of their stock, though continued for a long time without objection, is not sufficient to protect the Directors.

THE citizens of Lambertville show their appreciation of the merits of Mr. Samuel E. Perry, by his appointment as both the Counsel of the Board of Freeholders and the Counsel of the Corporation.

CLOTHIERS!
NEW CLASS FRONT STORE,
797 Broad St.,
NEWARK, N. J.

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsterst. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to-day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Berard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments.

THE many pupils of Miss O. L. Rogers, will be glad to learn that she has resumed her lessons in pianoforte instruction at her rooms corner of Park avenue and Fifth street.

IF parents did not encourage their children to disobey their teachers, there would be less trouble, both at home and in school. Unruly pupils do not often grow up to be law-abiding citizens.

THE Fair held at the residence of Miss Addie Winter on Friday last, by the scholars of Miss Austin's Craig Place School for the benefit of the Children's Home, netted the satisfactory sum of $30.

MANY of the farmers are keeping back their butter, potatoes, etc., for higher prices. We hope that in the course of a few weeks they will find they have made a mistake and wish they had not been so wise.

BECKER, the Plainfield Dyer, is building a brick factory on Washington ave., where he will have all the necessary steam boilers and fixtures to insure every facility for carrying on his large business.

MONDAY, night and day, brought with it a most acceptable storm of mist and rain that fell in such an easy way as to allow the parched ground to thoroughly absorb the moisture. It did incalculable good.

THE public has not forgotten how to appreciate efficient work. Mr. W. C. Smith has been awarded the masonry contracts for Mr. P. M. French's Somerset street buildings and the Episcopal church at Evona.

THE general advance in all kinds of provisions and coal is going to make it very difficult for the working classes to get along during the coming winter, unless their wages are correspondingly increased.

MR. A. A. Titsworth, Civil Engineer and Surveyor, and successor to J. B. & F. A. Dunham, having returned from a professional trip through the State, may now be found at his office on Front street opposite Somerset.

THE many friends of Mr. John Staats, son of the proprietor of the Washington Rock House, will learn with regret of a very serious relapse that has followed what was supposed to have been an entire recovery from his late illness.

THE appointed Constable is around with warrants for the collection of delinquent fire taxes. You expect the service of the Department if your property is in danger from fire; consequently don't crawl out of paying your portion of the expense.

ON Saturday last Wm. Jourdan ("Boot-Black") was sentenced to six years in State Prison on three charges of assault and battery. The Court is in receipt of the thanks of the public for thus ridding the community of a most objectionable character.

WE have received N. W. Ayer & Son's American Newspaper Annual for 1881, and upon examination believe it to be a most complete and thorough list of the journals of the United States and Canada and full of information of interest and importance to the general advertiser.

A MEMBER of this community becoming surcharged with a quantity of "Dutch courage" on Monday evening last, expressed his intention of running the city to suit himself. Our gallant police objected, and "Bill" was placed behind that which he prefers to stand in front of—the bars.

THE Dover Index says: "Most of the youngsters appear to have gone nearly crazy since the big, many-colored circus posters were put up." But when Batcheller & Doris have come and gone, the old folks will "have gone nearly crazy" and at the money they wasted in attending the show.

AT the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Manning Vermeule, died, on Sunday, Mr. Daniel Drake, in the 90th year of his age. The deceased was a life-long resident of this place and the former owner of the Washington Headquarters' property on Front street. His death followed a paralytic stroke of last week.

MR. Isaac Coulter, of Harmony street, North Plainfield, has just completed a bridge across the Passaic River, in Warren Township, near the residence of Mr. David Smalley. The structure is an admirable piece of workmanship, and has been accepted by the Board of Freeholders as entirely satisfactory in every particular.

THE many people who, when passing our office, stop and admire the handsome gold lettering on the window, are herewith informed that the artistic beauty and workmanship of the sign is due to the remarkable talent in that direction of Mr. David Runyon of Peace street. THE propositions of the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co. read well, but if the promises contained therein are not carried out more satisfactorily than the present contracts, they are not so favorable as may appear. Take the lamp under the New street bridge, for instance—the only light at that point—which upon many evenings only remained burning until about 7 o'clock.

ON Thursday evening of last week, Mr. John H. Carney, one of the firm of Carney Bros., was united in marriage, by the Rev. Thos. Stockton, to the daughter of Mr. Jacob Voehl, at that gentleman's residence on Somerset street. A large number of friends and relatives gathered upon the occasion and united in many wishes of future happiness for the newly wedded pair.

THE Council are considering a proposition of the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., which, if accepted, will assure our streets being lit all night long, and cost the city about $450 less than it is now paying for half the accommodation. We are assured, however, that the Plainfield Gaslight Co. will also submit a proposition covering the same ground and fully as generous and advantageous in its provisions.

MR. P. McCarthy, a resident of this city and before his marriage of this year, one of the "Jolly 3," was severely injured on Thursday afternoon of last week in the drilling yard of the Central R. R. at Communipaw. The victim who is an employee of the railroad company, was struck by a car that was being shifted, and so terribly bruised and maimed that he was at one time thought to be fatally injured. He was, however, able to be brought to his home in this city, where his friends will be glad to hear, he is slowly recovering.

THE great popularity of Voehl's "New England Bread," is shown by the fact that the job presses of this office recently printed the labels for one hundred thousand loaves.

Plainfield's courteous ticket agent and general good fellow, Mr. John F. Gibson, has the most sincere sympathy of the public and the Central R. R., officials, with him in his unfortunate illness.

LET there be no stay-at-home Democrats this year. A full Democratic vote will elect our entire County ticket and every Democrat should bear this in mind and go to the polls and deposit his ballot on election day.

THE household furniture of the late Dr. John P. Gross having been disposed of by private sale, on Monday evening, to a Westfield gentleman who has also rented the house, the auction that was advertised for Wednesday was withdrawn.

THE Hon. H. C. Baldwin of Connecticut, one of the most eloquent and able orators of the day against the encroachments of corporate monopolies, will speak at Excelsior Hall, Scotch Plains, this Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

A C. R. R. freight brakeman was fatally injured on Saturday by being struck by a bridge at Fanwood. The unfortunate victim was riding on the top of a car and had carelessly neglected to watch out for the obstruction with which he came in contact.

AN exceedingly fine second story with steam power is offered for rent by Mr. L. L. Manning in the upper part of his marble works on West Front street. The new engine lately put in, under charge of Mr. Al. Rosell, is capable of furnishing any amount of power desired.

MR. T. George Dodworth's classes for dancing and deportment at Seminary Hall, will be held in future on Wednesday afternoons from 3:30 to 5:30. Being called upon to assist his father, Prof. Allen Dodworth on Tuesdays, is the former gentleman's reason for changing the day.

A MEMBER of the Board of Education remarked recently, that Acting Principal, Miss Julia E. Bulkley, deserved the highest praise for her efficient management of the schools under her charge. He further said that never before has the general discipline of the scholars reached a higher standard.

TWO cats slung over a clothes line can do more sound arguing in a given number of minutes than seventeen drunken men in a Democratic primary in one hour.—Fredonian. But when its a Republican primary, Bro' Babcock, the cats can't be heard within a thousand yards of its place of meeting.

A YOUNG married man named Daniel Hulick, in the employ of Messrs. Spicer & Hubbard, while chestnutting on Saturday last, fell from a tree and striking upon the base of the spine, was seriously injured. The unfortunate man is confined to his father's house back of the North Plainfield mountains.

THE Women's Christian Temperance Union of this city, held its Fourth Anniversary in the First Presbyterian church on Monday evening last. Interesting addresses were a feature of the occasion, as well as the reports of officers showing the steady growth and deserved success of the grand work of the Society.

JAMES MULDOWNEY, of this city was arrested and taken to Somerville last Saturday, on complaint of Deputy Revenue Collector Jos. B. Smith. He was examined before U. S. Commissioner, Jas. J. Bergen, on a charge of selling liquor without a government licence, and was committed to await the action of the U. S. Grand Jury.

THE proprietor of the Sewaren House at Boynton Beach advertises in this issue for Fall and Winter patronage. His address is John P. Turner, Woodbridge, N. J., and he will always be found ready to entertain sleighing parties and such in a satisfactory manner. Suppers may be ordered ahead and one of the finest dancing parlors in the State, engaged.

W. C. T. U. Officers.

At the Annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Joseph W. Yates; Vice President, Mrs. A. M. Powell; Secretary, Miss H. M. Conrey; Treasurer, Mrs. S. E. Struthers, and a board of managers selected to include a representation from each of the churches of the city.

Success of the Somerville Fair.

The Board of Directors of the Somerset County Agricultural Society met at Fritts' Hotel last Friday. From the Treasurer's report we learn that at the late Fair the total receipts were: Premiums awarded, $1,965.50; expenses $1,116.18, leaving a surplus of about $600.

This is a success undoubtedly due to the active interest of the officers to whom the stockholders owe their gratitude.—Gazette.

North Plainfield Primary.

The Democrats of North Plainfield held their primary at Demler's Hotel on Saturday afternoon. Mr. John Bodine, as a member of the County Executive Committee, called the meeting to order and was elected chairman with Mr. Fred. H. Martin, secretary. Ballotting for delegates to the County Convention at Somerville, resulted in the selection of Messrs. Frank Doty, Albert L. Force, David J. Carney, John Vetterlein and Fred. H. Martin. An election of a member of the County Executive Committee, being also required by the call, Mr. A. L. Force was chosen for the position.

Mayor Randolph's Declination.

At the primary of the First Ward Republicans held in Association Hall on Thursday evening of last week, Mayor Randolph's request that he might be allowed to occupy about a half-minute of the meeting's valuable time, was favorably received, and that gentleman said: "It seems that, as a sort of a practical joke of many good-natured citizens of this place, my name is being mentioned for Senatorial honors. Now as I have never aspired to be a State Senator nor anything else, it seems hardly necessary for me to state that I have neither the time, disposition nor desire for the office."

The Y. M. C. A. Entertainments.

The Fifteenth Annual Course of Entertainments of the Young Men's Christian Association of this city, has been completed by the engagement of Prof. E. J. Fitzhugh who will perfect arrangements for the giving of a grand vocal concert. As it unfortunately seems probable that the Plainfield Vocal Society will be unable to secure sufficient financial assistance for the giving of its usual concerts, we are indebted to the managers of the Y. M. C. A., Course for thus affording us an opportunity of enjoying one of Conductor Fitzhugh's unexcelled programmes. A large and unequalled chorus, principally from Brooklyn, will not be the least attractive feature of the affair.

The other specialties of the list of entertainments published in our advertising columns, are too well known to need any testimony of ours regarding their particular excellence. The New York Philharmonic Club, Mr. John B. Gough and Miss Nella F. Brown have already established themselves so favorably with the Plainfield public as to command its patronage whenever they appear. The Rev. P. S. Henson has been heard among us by a fortunate few who will endorse our opinion that no more interesting, inspiring or instructive a speaker can be found upon the lecture platform of the present day. Mr. Benj. F. Taylor is a stranger except by a reputation which guarantees that one of the most enjoyable of the entertainments will be that gentleman's exposition of the rather enigmatical subject chosen. As a dessert to the more substantial literary and musical feast that will precede it, The Royal Hand-Bell Ringers and Glee Men of London will close the Course with an original and charming entertainment that has captured the enthusiastic commendation of all who have heard them. They are said to be witty and enchanting—two qualities that promise an evening of amusement and pleasure.

Common Council Proceedings.

MONDAY EV'G, Oct. 24, 1881.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. President Whiton in the chair. Present Messrs. Finch, Gilbert, Hamilton, A. H. Smith, Tyler, Tracy and Whiton. Absent, Messrs. Darling, Gulon, H. Smith and Waring.

On motion of Mr. Tracy, the reading of the minutes of last adjourned meeting was postponed until next regular meeting.

The President presented a further communication from the N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., wherein they state they will light the lamps all night, for at least 20 nights in the month, for 8½ cents per light per night. They will furnish as good light as that now furnished by the Plainfield Gaslight Co., and will make all changes in substituting their burners at their own expense, and will take city warrants in payment for lighting; and in case the city has not the money to meet the warrants, would hold them until such time as the city had the available funds.

Mr. Tracy moved that the communication be referred to the Corporation Counsel for his opinion whether this Council has the right to make a contract with this Company for one or two years, and report at next meeting of Council. Carried.

Mr. Finch moved that the Plainfield Gaslight Co. be requested to present to this Council a proposition as to what they will light the lamps for. He had been informed that the Plainfield Co. would make as favorable a proposition as that presented by the N. Y. Co. Carried.

By Mr. A. H. Smith, claim of Louis F. Wadsworth, services in suit of Overseer of Poor Vanderbeek, vs. Lawrence Minor, $6.65. Ref'd to Alms Co.

By Mr. Gilbert, as correct from Alms Com., claim of Geo. W. Townley, $40, and J. O. Hand, $29. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

By Mr. Tracy, as correct from St. Com. claim of St. Com'r Wm. Hand, work on streets month of September, $13.25. Referred to Aud. Com.

The following ordinances were called from the table and action taken thereon, and ordered engrossed and to a third reading:

An ordinance entitled "An ordinance to amend an ordinance relative to the correction of nuisances," and "an ordinance for the erection of street lamps and the lighting thereof."

Owing to the lateness of the hour the ordinance relative to the erection and removal of buildings within city limits was left unfinished until next meeting of Council.

Mr. Tracy moved that when Council adjourn it adjourn to meet next Monday evening, Oct. 31st, at 8 o'clock. Carried.

On motion, Council then adjourned.

RESERVED seats for the Y. M. C. A. course may be selected and secured at Reynold's Pharmacy on Tuesday morning next at 7 o'clock and anytime thereafter.

One Year Ago.

Amateur theatricals at Van Deventer Hall in aid of the Muhlenberg Hospital, on Oct. 26th. Mr. Clark Rogers, a deacon of the Seventh Day Baptist Church, died on the morning of the 25th.

Run Over.

On Saturday evening last at about dusk, Johnnie Voehl, the little son of the Somerset street baker, was sitting in his miniature express-cart and being drawn across Emily street, when he was run over by a passing horse and wagon. The cart was all crushed to pieces and the boy was literally covered with cuts and bruises, but it was found upon taking him into an adjacent door-yard and washing away the blood, that no bones were broken. The wagon and horse were the property of the unfortunate lad's father and driven by the latter's hired man, who was unable, by reason of the darkness, to see the boy and cart soon enough to prevent the accident.

Opening of the Muhlenberg Hospital.

At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital, held on Tuesday evening, it was resolved to formerly "open" the project on Thanksgiving Day. The building is rapidly approaching final completion, and only a slight delay in the plumbing and heating contracts has prevented the "opening" at an earlier date. Further particulars regarding the exercises and ceremonies of the occasion, will be given later.

An exceedingly generous offer of Mr. George F. Brown of North Plainfield, was accepted by the Board with most sincere thanks. That gentleman, the senior member of the well-known firm of house decorators, Messrs. G. F. & C. E. Brown & Co., of New York, will furnish the entire Hospital building with window shades free of expense.

A Most Serious Accident.

While on the way home from the fire of Saturday night, at about two o'clock Sunday morning, Mr. Andrew Jennings, the 2d Asst. Foreman of No. 2 Engine Co., met with an accident that will probably lame him for life. Jumping across the tiller he either landed on the side of his right foot or upon a stone that turned it under him in such a manner and with so much force as to break two of the principle bones in the ankle. The unfortunate young man was carried on the Steamer to its house and thence, by carriage, taken to his home on Fourth street. Here Dr's. Tomlinson and Endicott performed the very difficult operation of setting the ankle, the pain of which was allayed by the administration of ether to the patient. We are sorry to state that Mr. Jennings has suffered considerably since the accident, but the physician in charge gives every hope of a final recovery.

The Boy Orator, Ralph Bingham.

The scholars of the Crescent avenue Sunday School and the young people of the church, are greatly indebted to Mr. J. U. Fraley for the entertainment that was given them through that gentleman's generosity, on Friday evening of last week. While at the Delaware Water Gap, this Summer, Mr. Fraley had the pleasure of hearing Ralph Bingham, the Boy Orator, and immediately entered into an engagement with the "little wonder's" father, that culminated in the appearance of the lad in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church as the evening mentioned.

Quite a large audience assembled to witness the young orator's powers, and for over an hour he entertained it with less apparent effort than the average elocutionist of four times his age. He is indisputably the only "professional" infant prodigy in his line, that is worth listening to. A remarkable specimen of manly health and beauty he was also a pleasant thing to look at with his easy and graceful style of gesture, and fascinating ways. The programme of the evening comprised a wide range of sentiment, expression and character, as will be seen by the following list of its selections:

"Do just what I have [illegible]" Temperance.
"Over the river."
The old man in the stylish church. } In Character.
The old man in the model church. }
John Adams' speech in favor of a Declaration of Independence.
Prayer and potatoes, or practical piety.
"Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud."
The new church organ; in character.
Board by the wholesale.

The boy, in the above, showed himself to be a born actor as well as an elocutionist. He rendered the speech of John Adams with the all the grace and dignity of a polished Senator. His acting in the "Stylish" and "Modern church" selections brought forth the most enthusiastic applause, while his rendition of Nancy Brown's bewailment over the New Church Organ, was almost perfect and has seldom been equalled. We feel constrained to agree with Prof. Murdock, the distinguished elocutionist of New York, when he says—referring to Master Bingham—"He stands alone in the world without an equal as a natural elocutionist, and it would be absolutely impossible for the ablest elocutionist in the country to teach him that which Nature has taught him better."

COMMUNICATED.

For "The Constitutionalist."

MESSRS. EDITORS:

In the proceedings of your City Council I see a report by a Committee "to consider what action, if any, should be taken in regard to the refusal of the City Treasurer to pay out money, etc."

Now I like to see fair play, and honest criticism will do no harm. It appears to me that your Council are excited to a degree uncalled for when they charge a respected official with "a breach of official duty," notwithstanding there can be no question as to the integrity of the official, and in addition he has taken an oath and given bonds to faithfully perform his duty.

Creditors of your city should know that it is not the Treasurer who stands between them and their money: it is the laws, the opinions of our courts, his official oath and the interests of his bondsmen; and a man who handles public funds, when in doubt, had better trust to courts than City Councils or other boards, made up of ordinary or extraordinary mortals.

The Committee say "That they have carefully considered the various statutory provisions and judicial decisions bearing on the questions involved, and find nothing in any of them to justify the position taken by the Treasurer." They then cite the "12th 13th and 17th sections of your city charter" and say, "there is no statutory provisions, no judicial decision and no pending judicial proceeding which calls for or can in any way justify or excuse the refusal of the Treasurer to obey the plain injunction of the charter." They then refer to the recent mandamus and say "that decision did not define or profess to define the general obligations of the Treasurer under the charter, and laws with reference to State and County taxes."

You will notice above they say they have "carefully considered statutory provisions, judicial decisions, and quote the 12th, 13th and 17th sections of your city charter;" they have just as carefully omitted the 15th section. Fair play, and an honest desire to deal justly with the Treasurer, would have prompted a reference to it at least. Why did they skip from the 13th to the 17th? the eye must have rested on the 15th, while copying from the 12th to the 17th. Did they give the 15th section the go-by for the reason that Judge Dixon in the mandamus to which they refer, said as follows: "The language of the city charter pertinent to this matter is in the 15th section; the collector of revenue shall pay over all money received by him for the city as soon as collected, to the Treasurer of said city, who shall pay over to the Treasurer of the State or to the Collector of Union county, the full quota of taxes required by law to be raised in said city for State and County purposes, so far as the same may have been collected." From these provisions it appears that the whole duty of paying devolved upon the Treasurer; the duty of the City Collector is to pay to the City Treasurer, therefore no mandamus should be issued against him (Collector). As to the Treasurer * * * it is insisted he is bound to pay County and State tax only so far as the same may have been collected. But this question is res adjudicata to the contrary * * * the general tax law coupled with the charter provision already cited, expressly make it the duty of this official to pay these quotas out of the first monies collected at the time required by law to pay the same, Dec. 22d * * * not to pay them therefore as soon as practicable after that day, is official delinquency." How gentlemen with the general laws, the city charter, the mandamus they refer to, the Bayonne case contested to the Court of Appeals, the cases of Elizabeth, Rahway, New Providence and Linden before them, could report to their associates that they had "carefully considered statutory provisions and judicial decisions" and found nothing in them to justify the position taken by the Treasurer, is to say the least, incomprehensible. Your City Treasurer needs only the words of Judge Dixon's mandamus (to which the Committee refer) to sustain him and his bondsmen from loss, certainly until those words are reversed, which the authorities of Plainfield claim will surely come to pass. But after all the Committee are to be commended for the conclusion arrived at, viz: "that no action with reference to the matter be now taken by the Common Council."

Game Protection.

The N. Y. Sun, Friday of last week, published an article complimentary to the workings of "The New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society," whose headquarters are in this city. This Society was organized in 1878 by a few earnest advocates of law and enforcement of the game laws, and although there were obstacles to overcome and determination required to enforce the laws, the Society rapidly increased in numbers, until to-day, it is recognized as the leading organization of the kind in the State for its efforts to stop illegal shooting, trapping and fishing, not in any one particular locality, but all over the whole broad expanse of the State. Violators of the game and fish laws have been arrested and fined through the Society's efforts, and where a few years since could be seen alighting from a railroad train strings of men with dog and gun, who roamed the hills and meadows long before the law was "open" on game, shooting everything that came within their vision, not one of that class can be seen to-day in sections where they were formerly wont to visit with impunity. The arrest of some of their number as "non-residents" warned them they must pursue their avocation as "pot hunter" in other climes and States. There are other Societies organized under the State laws who are doing equal good work, one of which is the "Westfield Game & Fish Protective Society," who have employed detectives to arrest "pot hunters," and have been instrumental of much good in the enforcement of the game laws. The article in the Sun alludes to a "speck of war in the horizon" between the N. J. G. & F. P. S. and the "West Jersey Game Society," alluding to the fact that the latter Society refuses to allow non-resident members of any other like Society to shoot in certain counties of the Sate claimed to be under their jurisdiction without they become also members of their Society. This action is condemnatory, because all Societies for the protection of game and fish have but one grand ultimate object in view, and should work in harmony together. The West Jersey non-resident members have not been prohibited by the "New Jersey" members from hunting or fishing in any other counties of the State outside of those claimed to be controlled by the former Society, while bearing their certificates. Both Societies expend money for the purpose of stocking portions of the State with game birds and fish, and 'tis true there exists a friendly rivalry between them as to who shall secure the most members. Their roll books are certainly not large enough, however, to hold all the names of non-residents who ought to join either Society and assist by their small yearly dues, to keep the proper sections of the State stocked with game for them to indulge in the pleasurable pastime of hunting when the proper season arrives. As the writer of the Sun article states, "the matter may probably get into the Courts" ere long, as to the alleged authority vested in the "special" act alluded to. The members of the "New Jersey" Society say they shall certainly protect their members from illegal arrest and test the matter in the Courts as to the legal right of the "West Jersey" Society attempting to prohibit the former's non-resident members from exercising and enjoying the rights and privileges accorded them by the General Law of 1879.

The New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society have agencies established at No. 2 Cortland street, New York, where Mr. Fred Volckman is empowered to grant certificates, and at Philadelphia, corner Chestnut and Seventh streets, where Mr. J. F. A. Latour acts as agent.

FIRE MATTERS.

The Morristown Banner says: "The attempt to get up a "boom" in Fire Department circles for a parade this Fall has most miserably failed." "Ditto in Dover, judging from the apathy thus far manifested," says the Index—and ditto in Plainfield remarks THE CONSTITUTIONALIST. You may all come to Somerville on the 3d of November and witness our firemen on parade.—Gazette.

Shortly after ten o'clock on Saturday night last, a fire, from some unknown cause, broke out in the stable of Mrs. John Crawford of Duer street, North Plainfield. The man in charge had but a short time before finished his work about the place and retired; and his attention was called to the circumstances by hearing the horse kicking in the stall. Although immediately upon the spot it was impossible to save the contents of the stable, which were entirely consumed including a valuable horse, two carriages, harness and other property. By this time a general alarm had brought to the scene the entire Fire Department and its attention was directed to preventing the spread of the flames. From the original starting point the fire spread to a shed adjoining, also on the property of Mrs. Crawford, in which was stabled a cow that, however, was saved in time. From thence caught the stable of Messrs. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown, situated about twenty feet away; and, despite the efforts of the firemen, the flames spread to the large two story carpenter shop of the same firm and a shed used for storing lumber, all of which structures were burned to the ground. Mr. Tunis Carey and Mr. P. Kiely, who lived near the spot and were at home when the fire first broke out, succeeded in rescuing from Messrs. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown's stable, their span of horses, wagon, harness and other movable articles. These gentlemen with the help of others, were also successful in their further labors of rescue, and the large quantities of valuable carpentering tools in the shop and many thousand feet of lumber from under the shed were carried to a place of safety before the flames reached them.

No water was obtained by the steamers until Mrs. Crawford's stable was consumed and the carpenter shop thoroughly started. No. 3 was the first to get any through her hose from the bridge over Stony brook, but at such a distance away, even with the help of Alert's hose, as to be of no service. No. 2 almost immediately after got an effective stream on the flames from Stony brook at Lover's Dell, being enabled to reach them by the assistance of a portion of the hose from No. 1's carriage. No. 1 was so unfortunate as to break the blow cock off of her boiler and it became necessary to draw her fires. The remainder of her hose was given to No. 3 which also rendered great service. The labor of the truck men was undoubtedly one of the main causes of the ultimate arrest of the conflagration. In fact every member of the department worked admirably and had the hydrants of the Plainfield Water Supply Co., been available, it is reasonable to believe that the loss of property would have been greatly reduced.

Messrs. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown had a policy of $1,000 in the London Assurance Corporation of which Messrs. J. C. Pope & Co., are the agents in this city, and which was promptly adjusted. About $300 of such insurance, however, was on the horses, wagon &c., that were saved. In consequence, the firm will only realize about $700 to cover a much greater loss. Besides the buildings, a large stock of mouldings and other finished work was consumed, which will for a time interfere with the speedy progress of such contracts as the firm was completing. Messrs. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown are too industrious, however, to allow even so great an interference to retard their business. Mrs. Crawford's loss is about $2,000 on which there is a policy of $800 in the Commercial Union Assurance Co. This lady expresses her desire to sincerely thank her many friends for their kind assistance and consideration during her trials of the past few weeks.

It is rumored that three members of one of the fire companies will be reported at the next meeting of the Board of Managers for expulsion. The charge is disorderly conduct around the house.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING.

MANY MISERABLE PEOPLE drag themselves about with failing strength, feeling that they are sinking into their graves when Parker's Ginger Tonic would begin with the first dose, to bring vitality and strength back to them.—Sun.

A melancholy fact: A tombstone in a graveyard, not far from Washington, reads: "Here lies a little nigger; If he'd lived a little longer he'd have been a little bigger."

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a VIOLENT BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced to take DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists. 1 3

THERE IS MORE STRENGTH restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than in a bushel of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant for mind and body. See other column.

A FRONTIER INCIDENT.

Calamity is the name of a man who lives at the gold camp of Gummins City. He has another name, but nobody knows what it is. It has been torn off the wrapper some way, and so the boys call him Calamity.

Last spring he had a little domestic trouble, and his wife made complaints that Calamity had worn out an old long-handled shovel on her, trying to convince her about some abtruse theory of his.

The testimony seemed rather against Calamity, and the miners told him that as soon as they got over the rush a little and had the leisure they would have to hang him. One evening after the work of the day was done and the boys had eaten their suppers, one of them suggested that it would be a good time to hang Calamity. So they got things in shape and went down to the Big Laramie bridge.

Calamity was with them. They got things ready for the exercises to begin, and then asked the victim if he had anything to say. He loosened the rope around his neck a little with one hand, so that he could speak with more freedom, and holding his pantaloons on with the other, said:

"Gentlemen of the convention, I call you to witness that this public demonstration towards me is entirely unsought on my part. I have never courted notoriety.

"Plugging along in comparative obscurity is good enough for me. This is the first time I ever addressed an audience. This is why I am embarrassed and ill at ease.

"You have brought me here to hang me because I seemed harsh and severe with my wife. You have entered the hallowed presence of my home life and assumed the prerogative of subverting my household discipline.

"It is well. I do not care to live so long as my authority is questioned. You have already changed my submissive wife to an arrogant and self-reliant woman.

"I have always been thoughtful and kind to her. When she had to go up into the gulch in the winter after firewood my coat shielded her from the storm, while I sat alone in the cabin through the long hours. I could name other instances of unselfishness on my part, but I will not take up your time.

"Death with its wide waste of eternal calm and shoreless sea of rest is a glad relief to me. I go but I leave in your midst a skittish and able bodied widow who will make Rome howl. I bequeath her to this camp. She is yours, gentlemen. She is all I have to give, but in giving her to you I feel that my untimely death will always be looked upon in this gulch as a dire calamity.

"The day will come when you will look back upon this awful night and wish that I was alive again, but it will be too late. I will be far away. My soul will be in a land where domestic infelicity and cold feet can never enter.

"Bury me at the foot of Vinegar Hill, where the sage hen and the fuzzy bumble bee may gambol o'er my lowly grave."

When Calamity had finished an impromptu caucus was called, and when it was adjourned Calamity went home to surprise his wife. She hasn't fully recovered from the surprise as we go to press.—Bill Nye.

KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

"Can I see the lady of the house?" inquired the peddler. "Well, yes, you can if you ain't blind!" snapped the woman who had answered the bell. "Oh, beg pardon, madam; you are the lady of the house then?" "Yes, I am? What d'yer take me for? Did you think I was the gentleman of the house or the next-door neighbor, or one of the farm hands, or the cat, or the ice-chest?" "I didn't know, madam, but you might be the youngest daughter." "Oh, did yer? Well that was nat'ral too," replied the lady of the house. "What d'ye want, sir?" Then the peddler displayed his wares and when he left the door step half an hour later, his face was full of pleasure and his pockets were full of money. He understood human nature and had made a good sale.—Boston Transcript.

The Republican County Convention at Freehold last week nominated John S. Applegate for State Senator.

The Democrats of Monmouth nominated George H. Patterson for State Senator.

The Democratic County Convention of Union will be held at Elizabeth, Tuesday, November 1st.

In all probability Hon. Benj. Vail, of Rahway, will receive a re-nomination for State Senator by the Republicans at their County Convention, which will probably be held November 2d.

For Sheriff of Union County, the Democrats talk strongly of Freeholder Thomas Forsyth, of Elizabeth, who is an excellent man for the nomination.

The names of Director of the Board of Freeholders, C. W. L. Martine, of Fanwood Township and Lewis S. Hyer, editor of the Democrat, Rahway, are named in connection with the nomination for State Senator by the Democrats of Union County.

The Republicans of Middlesex County have nominated for Sheriff, Mr. Andrew Jackson Disbrow, of East Brunswick. The Democratic Convention will be held Oct. 22d.

The Democrats of Warren County have nominated George H. Beatty for State Senator and William K. Bowers for Sheriff. For Assembly, 1st Dist.—William Fritts, 2d Dist.—Robert Bond.

In Morris County, the Democrats have placed in nomination for Sheriff, Charles H. Munson, of Randolph Township. The Republicans have nominated William H. Howell for the same office, and William T. Leport for Assembly in the 2d Dist.

The Republicans of Warren County have nominated Benj. F. Howey (present sheriff) for State Senator, Miller R. Nunn, for Sheriff, and John Schoonover and J. H. Griffith for Assembly.

The Greenbackers in Hunterdon County have nominated Samuel Rockafellow for Sheriff, and Nathan Pace and Oliver Kugler for Assembly.

The Greenbackers of Union County have nominated Benj. Urner for Senator; John R. Burnett, for Sheriff and R. W. Welsh and Harris McFarland for Assembly.

Messrs. Nathan Robins, Oliver Kelley, Theo. A Wood, Manning Freeman and Luther H. Tappen were elected on Saturday, delegates from Raritan Township to the Middlesex County Convention of Oct. 22d, and Henry G. Craig, David Cottrell, R. Bruce Crowell, Paul M. Guiteau was taken from jail the 14th, to the City Hall in Washington, and listened to his indictment for murder. He showed great fear when brought into the Court room. He made a plea of "not guilty." The defence will be insanity and that the wound was not the cause of the President Garfield's death. The date of the trial is fixed for November 7th. The question of jurisdiction will be argued Oct. 30th.

STATE ITEMS.

The Pennsylvania R. R. Company are going to erect a new station at New Brunswick.

A man-eating shark, about 14 feet long, has been seen in the Delaware at Red Bank for several days, but attempts to capture it have failed.

The fishermen at the Deal Lake fish pond, Asbury Park, made a haul with their nets on Thursday, of over 6,000 pounds of blue and weak fish.

Edison has begun work on his experimental railroad at Menlo Park. Two miles of the track will be laid, and it is expected that the road will be in working order in about two months.

The newly-elected officers of the New Jersey Woman's Christian Temperance Union are as follows: President, Mrs Sarah Downs, Ocean Grove; Vice President, Mrs. M. C. Nobles, Newark; Recording Secretary, Miss Morton, Trenton; Cor. Secretary, Mrs. Ellis, Flemington; Treasurer, Mrs. T. Mickle, Millville.

James McGuire was placed on trial in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, at Newark, on Thursday, for manslaughter. On July 5, McGuire drove a heavy lumber wagon down Main street, Orange, at a furious rate and ran over and killed the three year old daughter of Julius Harris. Witnesses testified that McGuire was drunk and was lashing his horses so that they were in a measure beyond his control. The defence sought to show the negligence of the parents in allowing the child upon the street. At an early hour Friday morning the jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter.

The British Government has arrested a number of the prominent Irish Land Leaguers, Messrs. Parnell, Dillon, O'Kelly, O'Brien, Heffernan and others. This is probably what the parties expected, and no doubt other leaders will also soon be arrested. Now is the time for the people of Ireland to do one thing or the other; either to give a fair trial to the new land law, or else to present a united and forcible resistance to English rule. Half-way measures will only have a tendency to paralyze all business in Ireland and to cause great suffering among the poorer classes, in addition to getting the contempt of foreign countries.

Mr. Cyrus W. Field reports that the total amount of subscriptions received and paid to the United States Trust Company of New York for the Garfield fund is $360,345.74; the amount paid by that company for the purchase of $300,000 United States 4 per cent. registered bonds was $348,968.75, which leaves the balance of cash with the United States Trust Company, $11,376 99.

As the Governor of New Jersey said to the Governor of Indiana—it's a long time between shakes.—Commercial Advertiser.

If this is intended as an insinuation that the Governor of New Jersey ever indulges in the pastime of shaking for drinks we repel it as a vile slander.—Jersey City Argus.

"Previous good character" counts in Texas. A man who was on trial for arson brought forward witnesses to prove that he had neglected two good chances to steal horses, and the jury decided that no such man could have been guilty of burning a barn.

"My brethren," said a western minister, "the preaching of the gospel to some people is like pouring water over a sponge—it soaks in and stays. To others it is like wind blowing through a chicken-coop. My experience of this congregation is that it contains more chicken-coops than sponges."

One of the first requisitions received from a newly appointed railroad station agent is said to have been "Send me a gallon of red oil for the danger lanterns."

IT MAKES NO DRUNKARDS,
Breaks No Hearts, Excuses No Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. FAVORITE REMEDY is a combination of vegetable alteratives. It does not heat or inflame the blood, but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business documents and certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards, excuses no crimes, breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. Dr. Kennedy would have it understood that, while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, "Favorite Remedy," he still continues the practice of his profession. He treats all diseases, and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery.

POETRY.

THE OTHER WORLD.

It lies around us like a cloud,
A world we do not see;
Yet the sweet closing of an eye
May bring us there to be.

Its gentle breezes fan our cheek;
Amid our worldly cares
Its gentle voices whisper love,
And mingle with our prayers.

Sweet hearts around us throb and beat,
Sweet helping hands are stirred,
And palpitates the veil between
With breathings almost heard.

The silence—awful, sweet and calm—
They have no power to break;
For mortal words are not for them
To utter or partake.

So thin, so sweet, so soft they glide,
So near to press they seem—
They seem to lull us to our rest
And melt into our dream.

And in the hush of rest they bring,
'Tis easy now to see
How lovely and how sweet a pass
The hour of death may be.

So close the eye and close the ear,
Wrapped in a trance of bliss,
And gently dream in loving arms
To swoon to that—from this.

Scarce knowing if we wake or sleep,
Scarce asking where we are,
To feel all evil sink away,
All sorrow and all care.

Sweet souls around us, watch us still,
Press nearer to our side;
Into our thoughts, into our prayers,
With gentle helping glide.

Let death between us be as naught,
A dried and vanished stream;
Your joy be the reality,
Our suffering life the dream.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS.

What the colonel's business was nobody knew, nor did anybody care particularly. He purchased for cash only and never grumbled at the price of anything he wanted; who could do more than that?

Curious people occasionally wondered how, when it had been fully two years since the Colonel, with every one else, abandoned Dutch creek to the Chinese, he managed to spend money freely and lose considerable at cards and horse races. In fact the keeper of that one of Challenge Hill saloons which the Colonel did not patronise, was once heard to wonder absent-mindedly, whether the Colonel hadn't a money mill somewhere, where he turned out eagles and "slugs" (the coast name for $50 gold pieces.)

When so important a person as a bartender indulged publicly in the idea, the inhabitants of Challenge Hill, like good Californians everywhere, considered themselves duty bound to give it a consideration; so, for a few days, certain industrious gentlemen who won money of the Colonel carefully weighed some of the brightest pieces and tested them with acids, and sawed them in two, and retired them, and melted them up, and had the lumps assayed.

The result was a complete vindication of the Colonel and a loss of considerable custom by the indiscreet bar-keeper.

The Colonel was as good-natured a man as had ever been known on Challenge Hill, but being mortal the Colonel had his occasional terms of despondency, and one of them occurred after a series of races in which he had staked his all in his bay mare Tipsie, and had lost.

Looking reproachfully at his beloved animal, he failed to heed the aching void of his pockets, and drinking deeply, swearing eloquently and glaring defiantly at all mankind were equally unproductive of coin.

The boys at the saloon sympathized most feelingly with the Colonel. They were unceasing in their invitations to drink, and they exhibited considerable Christian forbearance when the Colonel savagely dissented with every one who advanced any proposition, no matter how incontrovertible. But unappreciated sympathy grows decidedly tiresome to the giver, and it was with a feeling of relief that the boys saw the Colonel stride out of the saloon, mount Tipsie and gallop furiously away.

Riding on horse back has always been considered an excellent sort of exercise, and riding is universally admitted to be one of the most healthful means of exhilaration in the world. When a man is so absorbed in his exercise that he will not stop to speak to a friend, and when his exhilaration is so complete that he turns his eyes from well meaning thumbs pointing significantly into doorways through which a man has often passed while seeking bracing influences, it is but natural that people should express some wonder.

The Colonel was well known at Toddy Flat, Come Hand, Blazier's, Murderer's Bar and several other villages through which he passed. As no one had been seen to precede him, better men were soon offering odds that the Colonel was running away from some body.

Strictly speaking they were wrong, but they won all the money that had been staked against them, for within half an hour there passed over the same road an anxious-looking individual who reined up in front of the principal saloons in each place and asked if the Colonel had passed.

Had the gallant Colonel known that he was followed, and by whom, there would have been an extra election held at the latter very shortly after, for the pursuer was the constable, and for all officers of the law the Colonel possessed hatred.

On galloped the Colonel, following the stage road, which threaded the old mining camps on Dutch creek, but suddenly he turned out of the road and urged his horse through the young pines and bushes which grew thickly by the road, while the constable galloped on to the next camp.

Suddenly a voice from the bushes shouted:

"What's up?"

"Business—that's what."

"It's time," replied the voice, and its owner—a bearded six-footer—emerged from the bushes and stroked Tipsie's nose with the freedom of an old acquaintance. "We ain't had a nip since last night, and there ain't a cracker or a handfull of flour in the shanty. The old gal go back on yer?"

"Yes," replied the Colonel, ruefully; "lost every blasted race. 'Twasn't her fault—bless her—she done her level best. Ev'rybody home?"

"You bet," said the man. "All been a prayin' for yer to turn up with the rocks an' somethin' with more color than spring water. Come on."

The man led the way and Tipsie and the Colonel followed, and the trio suddenly found themselves before a log hut, in front of which sat three solemn disconsolate individuals, who looked appealingly at the Colonel.

"Mack'll tell you how it 'twas, fellers," said the Colonel meekly, "while I picket the mare."

The Colonel was absent but a very few moments, but when he returned each of the four was attired in pistol and knife, while Mack was distributing some dominoes made from a rather dirty flour sack.

"Taint so late as all that, is it?" inquired the Colonel.

"Better be an hour ahead than a miss in this 'ere night," said one of the four. "I ain't been so thirsty since we came around the horn in '50, an' we run short of water. Somebody'll get hurt if there isn't any bitters in the old concern—they will, or my name ain't Perkins!"

"Don't count on you chickens 'fore they're hatched, Perkey," said one of the crowd, as he adjusted the domino under the rim of his hat. "'Sposin' there should be too many for us?"

"Stiddy, stiddy, Crankes" remonstrated the Colonel. "Nobody ever gets along if they 'lows themselves to be skeered."

"Fact," chimed in the smallest and thinest man in the party. "The Bible says somethin' mighty hot 'bout that. I disremember exactly how it goes, but I've heard Parson Buzzy, down in Maine, preach a rippin' old sermon many's time. The old man never thort what a comfort the sermons wuz agoin' to be for a road agent, though. The time we stopped Slim Mike's stage and he didn't have no more manners than to draw on me, the sermons was a perfect blessing to me—the thorts of 'em cleaned my head as quick as a cocktail. An'—"

"I don't want to dispute Logroller's pious strain," interrupted the Colonel; "but es it's Old Black that's arrivin' today instead of Slim Mike, and es it's Old Black allers makes his time, hadn't we better varmose?"

The door of the shanty was hastily closed and the men filed through the thicket until near the road, when they marched rapidly on in parallel lines with it. After about half an hour Perkins, who was leading, halted and wiped his perspiring brow with his shirt sleeve.

"Fur enough from home, now" said he. "Tain't no use bein' a gentleman if you have to work too hard."

"Safe enough, I reckon," replied the Colonel. "We'll do the usual; I'll halt 'em, Logroller tend to the driver, Cranks take the boot, and Mack and Perk takes right and left. An' I know it's tough—but considerin' how everlastin' hard up we are, I reckon we'll have to ask contributions from the ladies, too, if there's any aboard—eh, boys?"

"Reckon so," replied Logroller, with a chuckle that seemed to inspire his black domino with a rinkle or two. "What's the use of a woman's rights if they don't ever have a chance of exercis'n 'em! Hevin' their purses borrowed 'Id show 'em the full doctrine in a bran new light."

"Come, come, boys," interrupted the Colonel, "that's the crack of old Black's whip; pick yer bush—quick! All jump when I whistle."

Each man secreted himself near the roadside. The stage came swinging along handsomely; those inside were laughing heartily at something, and Old Black was giving a delicate touch to the flank of the off leader when the Colonel gave a shrill, quick whistle and five men sprang into the road.

The horses stopped suddenly as if it were a matter of common occurrence. Old Black dropped the reins, crossed his legs and stared into the sky, and the passengers all put out their heads with a rapidity equaled only by that with which they withdrew them as they saw the dominoes and revolvers of the road agents.

"Seems to me something is the matter, gentlemen," said the Colonel, blandly, as he opened the door. "Won't you please get out? Don't trouble yourself to draw, 'cos my friend here's got his weapon cocked, an' his finger's rather nervous. Ain't got a handkerchief, hev yer?" asked he of the first passenger who descended from the stage. "Hev? Well, now that's lucky! Just put yer hands behind yer, please, so—that's it." And the unfortunate man's arms were securely tied behind in an instant.

The remaining passengers were treated with similar courtesy, and the Colonel and his friends examined the pockets of the captives. Old Black remained unmolested, for who ever heard of a stage driver having money?

"Boys," said the Colonel, calling his brother agents aside and comparing receipts, "tain't much of a haul; but there's only one woman, and she's old enough to be a fellow's grandmother."

"Like enough she'll pan out more than all the rest of the stage put together," growled Cranks, carefully testing the thickness of the case of the gold watch. "Just like the low lived deceitfulness of some folks to hire an old woman to carry their money, so it'd go safer. Mabbe what she's got ain't nothin' to some folks that's got hosses that can win money at races, but—"

The Colonel abruptly ended the conversation, and approached the stage. He was very chivalrous, but Crank's sarcastic reference to Tipsie needed avenging and as he could not consistently with business arrangements put an end to Cranks, the only lady would have to suffer.

"I beg your pardon, ma'am," said the Colonel, raising his hat politely with one hand while he drew open the coach door with the other, "but we're taking up a collection for some deservin' object. We was goin' to make the gentlemen fork over the hull amount, but es they ain't got enough, we will have to bother you."

The old lady trembled, felt for her pocket-book and raised her vail. The Colonel looked into her face, slammed the stage door, and sitting on the hub of one of the wheels, stared vacantly into space.

"Nothin'?" queried Perkins in a whisper, and with a face full of genuine sympathy.

"No—yes," said the Colonel, dreamily.

"That is, untie 'em and let the stage go ahead;" he continued, springing to his feet. "I'll hurry back to the cabin." And the Colonel dashed into the bushes and left his followers so paralyzed with astonishment that Old Black afterward remarked that if there'd be anybody to attend to the horses he could have cleaned out the whole crowd with his whip.

The passengers relieved of their weapons, were unbound, allowed to enter the stage, and the door is slammed shut, upon which Old Black picked up his reins as if he had laid them down at the station while the horses were being changed, then cracked his whip and the stage rolled off, while the Colonel's party hastened back to their hut, fondly inspecting as they went certain flasks they had obtained while transacting their business with the occupants of the stage.

Great was the surprise of the road agents as they entered their hut, for there stood the Colonel in a clean white shirt and in a suit of clothes made from the limited spare wardrobes of the band.

But the suspicious Cranks speedily subordinated his wonder to his prudence, as laying on the table a heavy purse he exclaimed:

"Come, Colonel, business before pleasure, let's divide and scatter. If anybody should hear about it, an' ketch the traps in our possession, they might—"

"Divide yerselves," said the Colonel, with a white abruptness and a great oath, "I don't want none of it."

"Colonel," said Perkins, removing his own domino and looking anxiously into the leader's face, "be you sick? Here's some bully brandy which I found in the passengers' pockets."

"It hain't nothin'," replied the Colonel with averted eyes. "I'm goin' and retirin' from business forever."

"Ain't going to turn evidence?" cried Cranks, grasping a pistol on the table.

"I'm going to make a lead mine of you ef you don't take that back!" roared the Colonel, with a bound that caused Cranks to drop the pistol and retire precipitately apologizing as he went. "I'm goin' to attend to my own business, and that's enough to keep anybody bizzy. Somebody lend me $50 till I see him again."

Perkins pressed the money into the Colonel's hand, and within two minutes the Colonel was on Tipsie and galloped off in the direction the stage had taken.

He overtook it, passed it, and still he galloped on.

The people at Mud Gulch knew the Colonel well and made a rule never to be astonished at anything he did; and they made an exception to the rule when the Colonel canvassed the principal barrooms for men who wished to buy a horse, and when a gambler who was flush obtained Tipsie for twenty slugs—only $1,000, when the Colonel had always said there wasn't gold enough on top of ground to buy her—Mud Gulch experienced a decided sensation.

But when the Colonel after remaining in the barber shop for half an hour, emerged with his face cleaned and his hair nicely trimmed and parted, betting was so wild that a cool-headed sporting man speedily made a fortune by betting against the theory that had been advanced.

Then the Colonel made a tour of the stores and fitted himself with a new suit of clothes, carefully eschewing all of the gorgeous patterns and pronounced colors so dear to the heart of the average miner. He bought a new hat and put on a pair of boots, and pruned his finger nails, and stranger than all, he mildly declined all invitations to drink.

As the Colonel stood in the door of the principal saloon, where the stage always stopped, the Challenge Hill constable was seen to approach the Colonel and tap him on the shoulder, upon which all men who bet that the Colonel was dogging somebody claimed the stakes. But those who stood near the Colonel heard the constable say:

"Colonel, I take all back. When I seed you go out of Challenge Hill it come to me that you might be in the road agent business, so I followed you—duty, you know. But when I seed you sell Tipsie I knew I was on the wrong trail. I wouldn't suspect you now if all the stages in the country was robbed; and I'll give you satisfaction any way you want it."

"It's all right," said the Colonel, with a smile. The constable afterward said that nobody has any idea of how curiously the Colonel smiled when his beard was off.

Suddenly the stage pulled up at the door with a crash, and the male passengers hurried into the saloon in a state of utter indignation and impetuosity. The story of the robbery attracted everybody, and during the excitement the Colonel slipped out quietly and opened the door of the stage. The old lady started and cried:

"George!"

And the Colonel jumped in the stage and putting his arm tenderly around the trembling form of the old lady exclaimed:

"Mother!"

STREET CAR RIGHTS.

The driver came into the car and sat down to mend his whip. He had ten minutes' time. Gilhooly was in the car with both legs on the seat waiting for the train to move out, so they conversed:

"Do you own this Galveston road?" asked Gilhooly.

"No, it's not mine."

"I thought you didn't. You don't look much as if you had ever been that kind of a philanthropist."

"No, I ain't that kind of a billy goat," observed the driver still busy with his whip, "but, then, there is no telling what misfortune may happen me yet. Garfield used to warm the rear elevation of a mule on a canal, and Jay Gould used to be so hungry he didn't know where he was going to sleep. Two years from now I may have street railways to sell."

"Well," said Gilhooly, "as there is great danger of your suddenly being a street railroad magnate, I'll hurry up and give you a few pints."

"Of beer?"

"No."

"O, pshaw!"

"In the first place, let me tell you that you have no right to make a man put his nickle or anybody else's nickle in the box. It is contrary to the constitution of Galveston. A sure-enough railroad that extends across the continent does not make a passenger put his fare in the box, but here a little railroad, a mile or so long, whose motive power is only a mule, makes the passenger put his fare in the box. When the passenger has taken his seat in the car, the company has the right to demand the fare of him, and if he refuses to respond then the company has the right to call on the United States for troops and artillery to put him out, but if the company wants the passengers to collect the fare it should pay them a percentage for collecting and putting it in the box. Of course there is nothing in the Civil Rights bill to prevent you from putting up boxes to receive contributions. You can have them all over the car, and you can hang one around the mule's neck, and have another dangling from his tail. There is no law to prevent you ringing your bell, and bawling out to the passenger to come up and put in his fare; but if he hasn't time, or would rather spell out the signs, you are liable to be arrested by the United States authorities for bulldozing colored voters if you eject them from the car. That's what the Barons contended for at Runnymede with King John—but you don't remember him?"

"Didn't he drive a street car in Houston along in the fall of last year?" asked the driver.

PUT HIS ARM AROUND HER.

The other day as several men were standing on the street corner talking, a lady passed by.

"You may not believe me," said a man named Spriggins, "but I have put my arm around that lady."

"You are a vile slanderer!" exclaimed young Mr. Paperage, and drawing off, he struck Mr. Spriggins a heavy blow between the eyes.

Both parties were instantly arrested, and when Mr. Spriggins requested that the lady be summoned, a policeman caught up with her and requested her presence in court, which had just convened.

"Judge," said Paperage, "while several acquaintances and myself were on the street talking, the lady passed. Then this man," pointing to Spriggins, "remarked that he had put his arm around her. The lady is nothing to me, Judge, but my mother was a lady, and my sisters are ladies, and I have always made it a point to chastise a man who speaks ill of a lady."

"Mr. Spriggins," said the Judge, severely "did you say you had put your arm around the lady?"

"Yes."

"Then the gentleman did right in striking you. Ladies are not safe so long as ruffians are allowed to insult them."

"Judge, allow the lady to speak," requested Spriggins.

"Certainly."

Turning to the lady the Judge remarked;

"I should be pleased to hear your statement."

"I didn't hear the man when he said that he had put his arm around me, and as I passed on I do not know what occurred."

"Excuse me for being blunt, but—but—"

"Do you mean to ask if he ever put his arm around me?"

"Yes."

"He has."

For a few moments there was a silence that was only disturbed by a boy who picked at the plastering with a horseshoe nail.

"What right had he to put his arm around you?" stammeringly asked the Judge.

"Because," said the lady, "he is my husband."

The Court adjourned.

WHAT AN ALBANY MAN SAID.

One of the lumber dealers of this State has for the past three years been supplying a dealer at Albany. For the first year everything went well, but at length the Albany man began to complain. He found shortage and culls in every car load sent him and demanded discounts therefrom, and this spring it was impossible to please him. No matter how carefully lumber and shingles were culled and billed here, he was sure to write back that they were not up to the standard. Two weeks ago a car-load of "star" shingles was sent him. The "star" shingle beats anything made in the country, and they know it at Albany as well as in Michigan, but as soon as the car arrived the dealer replied that he really must protest. The shingles were hardly "clear butts," and he could not unload the car until assured of a discount of twenty-five cents per thousand.

The Michigander had suffered long, but the end was nigh. He had inspected every bunch of shingle on that car, and he made up his mind to go to Albany and inspect over again. The dealer there had never seen him, and the Wolverine walked into his office as a would-be purchaser of some extra fine shingle.

"I've got exactly what you want," promptly replied the Albanian. "I've got a car load of Michigan 'stars' which lay over any shingle you ever saw."

"Are they all perfect?"

"Every one of them."

"I'll eat every cull you find. I got them from a Michigander who is as straight as the Ten Commandments, and he has never yet sent me a stick of second-class stuff. Come and see 'em."

The Wolverine quietly pulled out his business card and laid it on the desk.

The dealer took it up and read the name, and sat down on a stool with a queer feeling in his knees.

There was an awful silence as they glared at each other, and it was a full minute before the victim slowly extended his hand and hoarsely whispered:

"Did you ever see a man make such an infernal ass of himself? Shake?"

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS

FOR SENATOR,
EUGENE S. DOUGHTY.
OF SOMERVILLE.
FOR ASSEMBLY.
WILLIAM A. SCHOMP.
OF BEDMINSTER.
FOR CORONERS,
A. F. VOORHEES, Bernards,
H. G. WAGONER, Somerville,
J. S. B. RIBBLE, Montgomery.

POLLING PLACES AT THE COMING ELECTION.

FIRST WARD—at HOAGLAND'S EXPRESS OFFICE, North ave., opposite Depot.
SECOND WARD,—at NASH'S CIGAR STORE, Park ave., near Railroad.
THIRD WARD,—at SHAMAN'S LIVERY OFFICE, 6th street, between Park ave. & Union street.

OUR TICKET.

We present to-day the names of the candidates nominated by the Democracy of Union County for the offices of Senator, Sheriff, Assemblyman and Coroners. That they are good and fit men to represent the people of this County in the various capacities assigned, is positive. There is not a stain or blot upon each individual record, for the opposition to pick at. It therefore becomes the duty and privilege of every Democrat, as well as every lover of good and honest government to vote for LEWIS S. HYER for Senator, THOMAS FORSYTH for Sheriff, GILBERT R. LINDSAY for Assembly and DAVID LEESON and CLIFFORD I. BROWN for Coroners. Every Democrat should bear in mind that the election of a Senator is of the most vital importance at the approaching election. Through his vote it may be possible to determine the election of a United States Senator next Fall to succeed the present incumbent, JOHN R. MCPHERSON, who has made a most able representative of the people at Washington. The Republican party have made a good nomination for Senator as well as ourselves, for well they know the closeness of the district. It is Democratic if Democrats will but vote for the candidate selected by the Democracy. We therefore urge that every Democrat go to the polls on the 8th of November and cast his vote for the whole Democratic ticket. The Democratic county of Union has too long been represented by a Republican Senator. There is no discord in the ranks of the Democratic party as there is among the Republicans. We can win this fight if every Democrat will do his duty. The nominees for the various offices to be filled are all men of unexceptionable character, and there is therefore no reason to scratch a name from the ticket. Democrats, redeem Union County. You can do it.

Through the gerrymandering of the last Republican Legislature, there is hardly a possibility of electing our Assemblyman from the Third District, over eighty Democratic votes having been transferred from the Third to the Second Assembly Districts. Nevertheless, in Mr. Lindsay, of Rahway, we have a most worthy candidate, one who if elected would represent the District in a capable manner. The voters of the County should bear in mind also the importance of electing a Sheriff. While the office may not be very remunerative, still the incumbent has the selection of all jurors in his hands, and to faithfully and honestly administer justice, good and capable men must be selected as such. Therefore, it is necessary to elect such a man as THOMAS FORSYTH, who is known throughout the County as an honest man. His political opponents even, cannot bring a word of reproach against him.

The Coroners are both gentlemen of worth and capability. Taken altogether, the voters of Union County never had a better ticket presented for their suffrages. It will lay with the Democrats to say whether it shall be elected or not. We believe it will be.

Vote for Lewis S. Hyer for Senator.

LEWIS S. HYER.

It is with pleasure that we hoist at the mast head the name of Lewis S. Hyer, of Rahway, as the Democratic nominee for Senator for Union County. While Mr. Hyer may not be known to many of our Democratic brethren or those who cast their votes for honest and capable men, we desire to assure all such that in Mr. Hyer, our nominee, we have an honest and capable candidate for Senator, one who, as his remarks in the Convention testifies, will be no tool of cliques, rings, or monopolies. Mr. Hyer was born in Freehold, Monmouth County, in the year 1839. At an early age he entered the office of the Monmouth Democrat as "devil," or "boy of all work," and learned the printing business. For the past sixteen years he has been editor and proprietor of the Rahway Democrat, an ably conducted journal in the interest of the Democracy. As Mayor of Rahway, which position he has held, he faithfully administered affairs satisfactorily to the voters of that city. Previously Mr. Hyer held the position of City Clerk to the Council. In his present place of residence, and in fact everywhere he is known, he is held in high esteem for his many excellent qualities. If elected to the position to which he has been nominated, the people of Union County may rest assured that in Lewis S. Hyer they will have an honest, capable and representative Senator. Vote for him.

Vote for Thomas Forsyth for Sheriff.

THOMAS FORSYTH.

The Democrats of Union County have nominated for Sheriff an unexceptionably good man, Thomas Forsyth, of Elizabeth. There can be no question as to his popularity, strength and fitness for the position. Mr. Forsyth embodies all that we have always advocated in a candidate for political honors. He is HONEST, he is CAPABLE. Our political opponents cannot say anything detrimental to his character. Although poor in this world's goods, he has the brains to conduct the office of Sheriff satisfactorily to the citizens of Union County or his political party. Mr. Forsyth was born in Elizabeth in the year 1835, and for a number of years was engaged in the grocery business in that city in connection with his brother. He has held several offices of trust within the past twelve years, among which we may mention that of Chief Engineer of the Elizabeth Fire Department, Superintendent of the Fire Alarm Telegraph and member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, (which latter position he now holds.) His neighbors, friends, and even political opponents speak in the highest terms of his capability for the office to which he has been nominated. During the War of the Rebellion, Mr. Forsyth was attached to Bramhall's Battery, of Rahway. As a fireman, Thomas Forsyth has proven his heroism; as a member of the Board of Freeholders he has evidenced his capability as a legislator for the people. Let us send him one step higher on the ladder. He fills the bill.

GILBERT R. LINDSAY.

The nominee of the Democrats of the Third Assembly District, is a resident of Rahway, where he is engaged in the practice of law. He is a man every way qualified for the position of Assemblyman, and should be elected to that office by the vote of all lovers of fair government.

OUR CORONERS.

Union County's Democracy presents the name of our fellow citizen, David Leeson for the office of Coroner, together with that of Dr. Clifford I. Brown, of Linden. Both gentlemen are eminently fit for the position and we doubt not, will be elected next Tuesday. Roll up a good majority for Dave.

Vote for Gilbert R. Lindsey for Assembly.

TO THE DEMOCRATS OF SOMERSET COUNTY!

The delegates from your respective townships and districts have proved true to their trust in placing in nomination for your support candidates of irreproachable character and undoubted fitness. It now remains for you to assemble at the polls Tuesday next and by acting and voting for your party's candidates and your party's principles, insure the Democratic majority which is honestly due the County. Upon the election of MR. EUGENE S. DOUGHTY of Somerville to the Senate of the State, you will be represented in that body by a citizen who will have at all times the interests of his constituents at heart, by a man whom years of experience admirably qualify for the duties of a statesman and by a gentleman without parallel and without reproach. Not only may you feel assured that upon every question of local import he will vote as your best interests demand, but when the election of a United States Senator becomes necessary upon the expiration of the term now being completed by the HON. JOHN R. MCPHERSON, your votes for EUGENE S. DOUGHTY may be shown to have indirectly assisted in deciding in favor of your party the control of the United States Senate and the consequent prevention of a Republican maladministration.

As one good term deserves another you are in duty bound to emphatically endorse the past admirable record in the Legislature of Assemblyman WM. A. SCHOMP of Bedminster, and return your representative to that body by an overwhelming majority. It is reasonable to suppose that the experience of last session has added to the efficiency of the present member from your district, and that he is more than ever capable of fulfilling the duties of a legislator in an active, business-like and satisfactory manner. As his unanimous nomination by your delegates was a well-deserved recognition of his past course, so let the Democratic majority of Somerset County evidence the party's appreciation of the services rendered by its chosen representatives.

Vote for Lewis S. Hyer for Senator.

The voters of the First Assembly District of Middlesex County have placed in nomination for member of Assembly a man well worthy of their suffrages, Hon. Manning Freeman, who by his past record as a legislator and citizen, has proven that he is the right man in the right place. He is one who is always willing to sacrifice personal interests for the public good, and it behooves every friend to good government to cast their votes for such men on election day.

Vote for Gilbert R. Lindsay for Assembly.

The Senate in executive session Thursday, confirmed the following nominations: Charles J. Folger of New York, Secretary of the Treasury. Thomas L. James of New York, Postmaster General. Chas. W. Seaton of New York, to be Superintendent of the Census. Frank Hatton of Iowa, First Assistant Postmaster General, vice Tyner, resigned.

Vote for Thomas Forsyth for Sheriff.

The Republican County Convention on Wednesday last re-nominated Hon. Benjamin Vail for Senator and Asa T. Woodruff, of Springfield, for Sheriff. Also two coroners from Plainfield, Drs. M. B. Long and H. H. Lowrie.

Thomas Forsyth, our candidate for Sheriff, has been identified with the Fire Department of Elizabeth, for years, and has held the important offices of Chief Engineer and Superintendent of the Fire Alarm Telegraph.

Who was it that by his efforts, when State Senator, abolished the "bonus" law in Monmouth County? Why, Geo. W. Patterson—who should again be returned as State Senator.

Vote for Gilbert R. Lindsey for Assembly.

As a member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, our candidate for Sheriff, Thomas Forsyth, has faithfully and honestly served the people for several terms.

Hon. John T. Dunn has again received the Democratic nomination for member of Assembly in the First District of Union County.

Vote for Lewis S. Hyer for Senator.

The Democracy of Elizabeth have nominated for Freeholders, Owen Sullivan, Geo. Tenney, William Oliver and Peter Eller.

Vote for Thomas Forsyth for Sheriff.

Peter Bonnett, the present efficient Mayor of Elizabeth has been re-nominated for that office by the Democrats. He will be elected—eh? what? Sure!

FIRE MATTERS.

THE crowded state of our columns, necessitates our omitting a full report of the meeting of the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department, until next week.

An incipient conflagration was started at the residence of Mr. Wm. Wright, on New Street, at about five o'clock of Tuesday morning. Mrs. Wright was awakened by the room becoming filled with smoke and choking her severely in consequence. An examination resulted in the discovery that a large lamp, that was left burning during the night, had burst into flames that would shortly have communicated to surrounding objects. With usual courage and presence of mind "Bill" fired the lamp out of a convenient window and thus prevented a further destruction of property.

Personalia.

We are pained to learn of the sudden death of the wife of Prosecutor James J. Bergen, of Somerville, which sad event occurred on Saturday night last. Mrs. Bergen was a daughter of T. W. Young, a former resident of this city.

Miss Cora B. Smalley of Summit, formerly of Fanwood, with a gentleman of the former place, were to have acted as bridesmaid and groomsman at the marriage of Mr. Scudder and Miss Hetfield, in Westfield on Wednesday evening of last week, but were prevented by an accident, which resulted in the sudden death of the gentleman about two weeks ago.

The City Beats The County.

As we go to press this (Thursday) afternoon we are in receipt of a telegram from Corporation Counsel Kimball to the effect that the Supreme Court had denied the mandamus against City Treasurer VanWinkle in both cases.

In our next issue we will publish the advertisement of Plainfield's veteran newsdealer, Wm. H. Williams. He offers the New York dailies at publisher's prices and the leading monthlies at $3.50 per year. A call at Mr. Williams establishment at No. 7 Park avenue, will convince anyone that he can supply all the periodicals at advantageous prices.

NEW GLASS FRONT STORE,
797 Broad St.,
NEWARK, N. J.

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to-day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Bernard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments. o14m3

Thos. Forsyth the nominee for SHERIFF.

EXCELLENT NOMINATIONS.

The Democracy of Union County assembled in Convention at the Court House, Elizabeth, on Tuesday afternoon last for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Senator, Sheriff and Coroners to be supported at the approaching election.

The Convention was called to order by Thos. B. Budd, Chairman of last Convention.

L. F. Wadsworth, of Plainfield, Mayor Peter Bonnet and Gen. Jules A. Fay, of Elizabeth, were nominated for Chairman of the Convention. Mr. Wadsworth declined the nomination, and Mr. Bonnet withdrew in favor of Mr. Wadsworth. The Chair, however, declared Mr. Bonnet the choice of the Convention after a vote by ayes and nays.

Mayor Bonnet took the Chair after a few well chosen remarks.

John L. Crowell, of Rahway, and Chas. B. Place, of Elizabeth, were chosen Secretaries.

The Convention elected Messrs. S. S. Mapes, of Westfield, Oliver Coolen and John Keron, of Elizabeth, Vice Presidents.

He promised to do all in his power to elect himself and the whole ticket nominated. He did not belong to any clique, ring or monopoly, and had no pledges to make to any one. If elected, he would do all in his power to obtain such legislation for the cities of Union County as would better their condition.

At the close of Mr. Hyer's brief remarks he was enthusiastically cheered.

On motion of Mr. E. C. Morse, of Plainfield, the Chair appointed a Committee of three to notify Mr. Lindsey of his nomination. The Committee appointed were Messrs. E. C. Morse, Wm. Mellick and W. L. Force.

Mr. Wm. Mellick moved that when this Convention adjourn it does so to meet next year at Lambert's Hotel, Rahway. Which was carried.

James E. Martine, Esq., of Plainfield, being called upon, made a brief but stirring speech to the large assemblage present, and was vociferously cheered during his remarks, especially whenever the name of the candidate, Mr. Lindsey, was mentioned.

He was followed by Louis F. Wadsworth, Esq., of Plainfield, who made one of his good old Jeffersonian speeches, and was loudly applauded during its continuance and at the close.

A vote of thanks was tendered the presiding Chairman and Secretary for their services, after which the Convention adjourned.

The Convention was well attended by delegates and spectators despite the inclemency of the weather, and all seemed inspired with a determination to do their utmost to elect the candidate nominated, despite the overwhelming odds against them by the gerrymandering of the District by the Republicans through the last Legislature.

Vote for Eugene S. Doughty for Senator from Somerset County.

The Somerset County Democratic Convention

Met at the Court House in Somerville on Thursday last, Oct. 27th. Mr. George E. Pace, of Millstone was made temporary chairman, and Mr. John T. Van Cleef, of Somerville was elected temporary Secretary; these officers were afterwards made permanent. There being no contested seats, a committee on credentials was dispensed with. One delegate from each township was appointed as a committee on Resolutions, and after a recess offered the following which were unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That speaking in the name of the Democracy of Somerset, we denounce as the most heinous of crimes the fatal assault made on the life of President Garfield, and demand that speedy and condign punishment shall be meeted out to his murderer;

Resolved, That the time has come when the honor and safety of the country and the peoples' best interests require a positive change in the manner of appointing to office in order that morality and capability may be justly rewarded and rise superior to the corrupting spoils of partisanship;

Resolved, That the Democratic party now as at the very beginning of the Republic, yields loyal obedience to the Constitution and to a union of co-equal States; and holds now as it has ever held, that civil and religious liberty; freedom of speech, of the press and the ballot; rigid economy and accountability in public expenditures; decreased debt and taxation; fidelity to obligations; honesty and ability in all official positions; a coin based currency; impartial encouragement and protection to every industrial pursuit and species of labor, and the guaranteed right of each and every citizen, the small capitalist as well as the large, to ply his lawful business unmolested and uninjured by monopolies of any kind, are the sure prerogatives of free government and the essentials for permanent prosperity, which should never be impaired or surrendered.

The rules of the last Convention were taken to govern the present, and it was resolved that any candidate voted for in this Convention, securing the majority of ballots cast by the delegates chosen, should become the nominee of the office voted for. The Convention then proceeded to the nominations for State Senator, and the townships were called with the following result:

Bridgewater, E. S. Doughty; Bedminster, no nomination; Bernards, no nomination; Franklin, Henry P. Cortelyou; Hillsborough, no nomination; Montgomery, E. S. Doughty; North Plainfield, no nomination; Warren, Wm. Ross, Jr.

The Convention then proceeded to ballot for Senator, with the following result:

Doughty	received	24	votes.
Cortelyou	do	12	do
Ross	do	6	do
Blank	do	3	do

Eugene S. Doughty having received the majority of all the votes cast upon the first ballot was declared the nominee of the party for State Senator for the term of three years, and his nomination was made unanimous.

William G. Schomp was nominated for the Assembly by acclamation.

Nominations for Coroners resulted in the choice of Dr. A. F. Voorhees, of Bernards, Dr. Henry G. Wagoner, of Bridgewater and Dr. J. S. B. Ribble, of Montgomery.

The following Executive Committee were then appointed:

Bernards Township—Dr. A. F. Voorhees.
Bedminster—Elias Philhower.
Branchburgh—John S. Teneyck.
Bridgewater—1st dist. Wm. V. Steele, 2d dist. Dr. C. M. Field, 3d dist. John Purcell, 4th dist. Geo. P. Doughty.
Franklin—John M. Garretson, Richard H. Brokaw, George E. Pace.
Hillsborough—Paul Beardsley, Gilbert Lane.
Montgomery—Abram B. Van Cleef.
North Plainfield—A. L. Force, F. H. Martin. (Mr. Martin has since resigned in favor of Mr. John Vetterlein.)
Warren—David D. Smalley.

Messrs. Doughty and Schomp the candidates were then introduced to the Convention and each made a short but telling speech. After spirited remarks by Prosecutor Jas. J. Bergen, the Convention adjourned amid great enthusiasm and good feeling.

Vote for William A. Schomp for Assemblyman from Somerset County.

John F. Gibson—Deceased.

Following our announcement of last week in relation to the serious illness of Mr. John F. Gibson of this city, we are now called upon to record the death of that estimable gentleman on Monday. The deceased was in the fifty-second year of his age, and died at his late residence on Second street, at 6 o'clock in the evening, after a short illness. While in the employ of the Central railroad of New Jersey as a conductor on the Newark and New York Division, Mr. Gibson was one of the victims who suffered injury in a collision at Brills, some years ago. His subsequent recovery left him with incurable ailments of a paralytic nature that unfitted him for such service as required any continuous use of the lower limbs. He was appointed ticket-agent at this city about three years ago, which position he occupied up to the time of his death from a paralytic stroke growing out of the past injury. No more popular employee of the Company was ever in its service, and his kindest thoughts and most generous acts were always for those fellow-officials whom he numbered by the score as his cherished companions. They on the other hand, had nothing but pleasant words and good wishes for him whom they admired and respected so much, while not a suitable occasion passed without their contributing towards a substantial token of their appreciation.

The funeral was held at the deceased's late residence on Wednesday afternoon at half past twelve and attended by a large gathering. Ferry Superintendent Morford read the "Conductor's Burial Service" and the Revs. Everitt Jones of New Market and A. V. V. Raymond of this city spoke appropriately to the occasion. The Rev. Robert Lowry offered prayer and the choir of the Central Baptist Church lead by City Judge Runyon, sang favorite hymns of the departed. There were present at the services, General Passenger Agent Chas. Cummings of the Lehigh Valley R. R., who had been conductor with the deceased in former years, on the Boston & Springfield Railroad; Captain Hopper, the Newark agent of the C. R. R.; station agent Haynes of this city and Conductors Smith, Clark, Johnson, Murphy, McVey, Downing and many others. The body was taken on the 2:40 train from Plainfield for burial near Boston, Mass., the deceased's native place.

A Word About Church Fairs.

Already the approach of the Christmas holidays has suggested to the young people of our congregations the holding of a customary Church Fair. Would it not be well in this connection for the older folks to stop and consider how unjust such competition is to the holiday trade of the Plainfield merchants? In the enjoyment of special privileges and through the influence of members, church organizations are enabled to secure lines of goods on sale and be satisfied with a small percentage as a profit. Our merchants must charge more to allow for their rent and other necessary expenses of carrying on a business, and it consequently seems hardly christianlike for religious societies to open up a competition so disastrous to the success of our enterprising store keepers.

Vote for the Democratic nominees for Coroners of Somerset County.

A Trip to Barnegat.

Last Monday week, a party of six of our citizens, Messrs. E. P. Thorn, M. M. Thorn, A. Vanderbeek, Arthur Griffen, Geo. P. Suydam and W. L. Force, started on a trip to Barnegat Bay with deadly intentions and thoughts against the wild fowl that do inhabit that locality, and which were reported in the language of Capt. Dorset, to be "very gentle." Arriving at Point Pleasant, the terminus of the Long Branch Division of the Central Railroad, the party were speedily transported to where the trim little pleasure yacht "Bertie Jardon," was lying at anchor in one of the numerous streams emptying into Barnegat Bay, where they were warmly welcomed by Capt. John L. Dorset and gunners Wm. Morris, John Forsyth and J. Taylor Johnson. While the swift "Bertie" was sailing down the bay, and after full justice had been done to one of Capt. Dorset's famous dinners on ship board, guns were uncased and put together and practice commenced on the single ducks flying about the Bay. By evening the "Bertie" was anchored off the "Bonnet," ten miles below Barnegat Inlet Light House. Next morning all hands were up at an early hour and after breakfast the party divided up into three sections, each one being stationed in comfortable "blinds," on points of land past which the wild duck were sure to pass in their flight up and down the Bay. As the fowl circle about the decoy ducks in front of the blind, the excitement to the novice is intense. Every nerve is strung to its highest tension. He must lie down on his back so as not to be seen by the fowl and at the right moment by command of the gunner he rises to a sitting posture and blazes away into the flock as they are settling over the decoys. The novice is always sure to miss killing anything until he gets over the "fever," although he will swear that at least nine out of the ten dead ducks lying on the water in front of him were the result of his fire. The dead ducks are gathered up by the gunner, the cripples killed, and again the party snugly ensconce themselves in the blind to await the arrival of other flocks or single ducks. Of course, as is usual upon such occasions, each one of the party were "peculiar" on some one subject or thing. In this case Bro. Vanderbeek made the evenings pleasant after supper by his singing, M. M. Thorn by his essays on astronomy, Ed. Thorn by his funny stories, Arthur Griffen by the manner in which he knocked down the ducks with his "screaming" cartridges, Judge Suydam by his total abstinence from food the entire trip on account of dyspeptic trouble and W. L. Force by the efficient manner in which he failed to induce Yellow Leg snipe to form a part of the day's bag of shooting. Capt. Dorset was noted for his genial disposition, accommodating manners and hospitality, while gunner Wm. Morris, with his "crow-bar," Taylor Johnson with his "nigger" and Forsyth with his Clayborough guns dealt death and destruction to the wild fowl. The total bag of the trip amounted to 166 good ducks and about 50 snipe. We recommend Capt. Dorset, the yacht "Bertie" and gunners Morris, Forsyth and Johnson to all lovers of duck shooting about Barnegat Bay.

SCOTCH PLAINS SCRATCHINGS.

At the Democratic Primary held on Friday evening of last week, Messrs. Thomas Nicholl and William Pangborn were elected delegates to the County Convention.

An exciting and interesting shooting match will be held at Brittin's Hotel in a short time. The date selected will be published in due season.

Vote for William A. Schomp for Assemblyman from Somerset County.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The new Swiss Cottage in process of construction on Quimby street for Eb. Hart Jr., is well under way, the outside being nearly finished. Robert Woodruff has completed the grading around the same.

The funeral of Mrs. Scudder, widow of Linus Scudder, whose sudden death was recorded last Spring, took place from her late residence on Rahway road on Monday Oct. 31. Interment at Hazelwood Cemetery, Rahway, N. J.

The erection of the brick store building corner of Broad and Elm streets, is fast assuming proportions under the superintendance of Chas. H. French. It will be occupied by the owner, Charles F. W. Wittke, as soon as completed.

The death of Grace, youngest daughter of James and Mary McMurray, occured on Sunday last. It is a sad bereavement to the family and they have the sympathy of the community. The funeral services were held at the house on Tuesday last. Burial at South Amboy.

Mr. Joseph Sanborn, living on Mountain avenue, had stolen from him about two months ago, a valuable dog. He has been on the look out for him since and after tracing him to Plainfield, he and Constable Marsh succeeded in getting the animal back on Sunday last.

Cory's Wonderful Twenty-minute Washer, as will be seen by reference to the Westfield advertising column, is the new name of that great invention, Cory's Champion Washer, of which Messrs. P. Traynor and M. Beiler of this town are the agents for the State of New Jersey.

A local correspondent of Westfield in another paper was wrong, last week, in his statement that the township paid for cleaning out the brook in the village. It was done by order of the Board of Health of the village, and the bill ordered paid by them. The funds did not come from the township at all.

Overseer Eustace has completed the laying of the new plank walk voted for by the residents of his district last Spring. There is some fault found with him for not making the same so that two could walk side by side on Elmer street. He no doubt did the best he could with the amount of money voted for that purpose.

There will be given on Wednesday evening next, in the parlors of the Presbyterian Church, under the auspices of the Mite Society, a social entertainment that promises to be most enjoyable. Supper will be served from six to ten o'clock, whereat oysters, ice-cream and such tempting edibles will be obtainable. Music during the evening will also be a feature.

On Thursday last, Mrs. Joseph Butcher, who was a nurse in the family of Mr. Chas. Pierson, met with a serious and almost fatal accident. She fell down a flight of steps to the bottom, striking on top of her head and producing concussion of the brain. Dr. McConnell of Cranford was immediately sent for and dressed her wounds. She is doing well as can be expected at present, but not yet out of danger.

The marriage of Miss Mary P. Ferris to Mr. Edgar R. Pearsall, at the Methodist church on Thursday evening, Oct. 27, was one of the fashionable events of the week, and a large party witnessed the ceremony. A reception was afterwards held at the residence of the bride's parents, on Broad street. The toilets of the ladies and particularly that of the bride, were exquisite in taste and design. Mr. and Mrs. Pearsall have gone on a wedding tour in the Eastern States.

Mr. Joseph Moffett, an old resident of this place, met with a serious accident on Friday morning last. He has been for a month or two in New York city superintending the erection of a dwelling in the upper part of the city. On Friday morning in stepping off the horse cars to go to his work, he slipped and broke his left leg above the ankle, breaking both bones. He was taken in a carriage to Liberty street ferry and brought to his home in Westfield per C. R. R. of N. J. where the fractured limb was set by Dr. Jos. B. Harrison. It will probably confine him to the house for some time.

At a meeting of the Democratic voters of Westfield township, held at Moffett's Hall on Friday evening, Oct. 28, for the election of delegates to the County and Assembly Convention, Addison S. Clark was chosen chairman and John M. C. Marsh Secretary. The following gentlemen were duly elected delegates (there being no opposition) to the several conventions:

Stephen S. Mapes, John M. C. Marsh, George Godfrey and Charles R. Clark, to the County and Thos. H. Clark, John Pierson, John D. Jaques and Addison S. Clark to the Assembly Convention. Addison S. Clark, the present member, was elected without opposition a member of the County Executive Committee.

The new culvert to North avenue bridge is completed by the contractor, and no doubt will be a great benefit to Broad and Prospect streets in relieving them of the surplus water that used to lie some six inches deep over the plank walk after a heavy rain. Freeholder Mapes deserves the thanks of the people for having the same constructed at that point.

As mentioned in a previous issue, no less than ten weddings are reported as taking place in Westfield during the last month, among which we notice that of Miss Alvira Hetfield, only daughter of Franze Hetfield, Esq., to Isaac L. Scudder, only son of ex-Collector Isaac F. Scudder, which occurred on Wednesday evening of last week at 7:30 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's father on Broad street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. H. Gill, and the music furnished by Mr. Theo. Ludlow and sister of Rahway. Only a few of Westfield's fair ones and their escorts were afforded the privilege of numbering themselves with the large circle of friends who were present from many parts of this State and New York. The bride was most tastefully attired in a stylish and elaborate white brocaded silk, over which fell gracefully her bridal veil, fastened by a delicate wreath of orange blossoms. Mr. John Stutzman, acted as groomsman, with Miss Annie S. Brown as bridesmaid, who was also becomingly attired in white silk. The guests were catered to in good style, and did ample justice to a bountiful repast of all the delicacies of the season. The happy couple left on a short tour, with the best wishes of their many friends, for a pleasant trip, a safe return, and a life of continued brightness and prosperity.

Town Committee met at Town Rooms on Oct. 18, 1881, at 7:30 p. m.

Present, Henry F. Alpers, Robert R. Sinclair and James Moffett. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Bill of A. W. Moffett for transportation of Mary Healy, insane person, to Asylum at Morris Plains, amounting to $11.50, endorsed by S. E. Young, Overseer of Poor, on motion ordered paid.

Bill of John M. C. Marsh, expenses and services in same case, amt. $6.00, endorsed by the Overseer, ordered paid.

Bill of Jos. B. Harrison, smallpox case of Gus. Koester, amt. $95.00 on motion laid over.

Chairman reported he had submitted to Counsel notice received Oct. 3, 1881, relative to condition of drain in the neighborhood of property belonging to T. J. England, Mountain avenue, and had also submitted statement made by Road Overseer of Dist. No. 4, before meeting of Town Committee of Oct. 3, regarding the actions taken by him in response to Committee's direction of July 28, 1881, and was of the opinion that if the Town Committe accepted the statement made by Road Overseer, as evidence that he, the Road Overseer, was endeavoring in good faith to obey the instructions issued by Town Committee to him on July 28, 1881, there was no necessity for further action by Committee until it was proven otherwise.

On motion adjourned subject to call of Chairman.

L. M. WHITAKER,
Town Clerk.

AN OLD DOCTOR'S ADVICE.

It was this: "Trust in God and keep your bowels open." For this purpose many an old doctor has advised the habitually costive to take Kidney-Wort—for no other remedy so effectually overcomes this condition, and that without the distress and griping which other medicines cause. It is a radical cure for piles. Don't fail to use it. Translated from the New Yorker Zeitung.

IT IS THE HEIGHT OF FOLLY to wait until you are in bed with disease that may last months, when you can be cured by a timely use of Parker's Ginger Tonic. We have known sickly families made the healthiest by it.—Observer.

FROM E. F. LIEPENER, A. M., Red Bank, N. J.—Ely's Cream Balm Co., Owego, N. Y.: Gents, I have been troubled with Catarrh so badly for several years that it seriously affected my voice. I tried Dr. ——— remedy without obtaining the slightest relief, but one bottle of your Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored and my head feels better than it has for years. I feel deeply indebted to you. Very truly, E. F. LIEPENER. Jan. 28, 1881. n4w2

W. L. HAWKINS, Druggist, Princeton, N. J.—The past year is the first of many that I have been free from Catarrh and cold in the head (having suffered intensely), which I attribute to the use of Ely's Cream Balm. I have recommended it to many of my friends, and in every case it has worked like a charm. JARED D. WOLF, Insurance Agent. Oct. 28, 1880. n4w2

IF YOU ARE SICK, READ the Kidney-Wort advertisement in another column, and it will explain to you the rational method of getting well. Kidney-Wort will save you more doctor's bills than any other medicine known. Acting with specific energy on the kidneys and liver, it cures the worst diseases caused by their derangement. Use it at once. In dry and liquid form. Either is equally efficient, the liquid is the easiest, but the dry is the most economical.—Interior.

Vote for Thomas Forsyth for Sheriff.

NOT OPEN TO THAT OBJECTION.

Temperance people often say that most of the popular medicines they see advertised are nine-tenths rum. That is true of many, but not of Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy." The Doctor agrees with his temperance friends that it is better to die of disease than to drink. Favorite Remedy cures Kidney Troubles, Liver Complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, as nothing else does or ever did. It drives away sickness. It cools the blood. It costs only a dollar to try it. Ask your druggist or send to the Doctor at Rondout, N. Y.

WOMEN EVERYWHERE use Parker's Ginger Tonic, because they have learned from experience that it overcomes despondency, indigestion, weakness in the back and kidneys, and other troubles of the sex.—Home Journal.

DON'T BE SILLY.

Don't let a foolish prejudice against popular medicines stand between you and the health of your wife, child or baby. It is always right to advertise a blessing. Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" is a blessing. It has saved thousands, and it will help you. If you are sick and miserable, we advise you to spend One Dollar for this Medicine, and then write to the Doctor at Rondout, N. Y., as to how you feel. For troubles of the kidneys, bowels, liver and blood, it has no equal.

Derangement of the liver, with constipation, injures the complexion, induces pimples, sallow skin, etc. Remove the cause by using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose.

HOW TO SECURE HEALTH.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects Indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

LOCKING THE TRUNK.

"My dear," said Mrs. Spoopendyke, as she arose from her knees, hot and tired with packing, and rubbing the small of her back as she straightened, "I'm all through now, and I wish you would lock this trunk."

"Certainly," replied Mr. Spoopendyke, dropping his paper and slamming down the lid. "All you've got to do is to fit the hasp in the lock and turn the key."

But the key didn't quite turn, and Mr. Spoopendyke hit the hasp with the side of his fist and tried it again.

"Don't it work?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, watching the proceeding with considerable interest.

"It'll work if you let it alone," said Mr. Spoopendyke, severely, and he raised the lid, dropped it again, pounded the hasp, and wrenched at the key with all his strength. "Stand back and give me room, can't you?" he growled, as he pressed down on the cover and gave the key quick twists in a vain effort to catch the lock unawares.

"Why don't you rest your weight on it and let me lock it?" asked Mrs. Spoopendyke, fluttering around her husband and wondering if he was thoroughly aware that his plug hat was immediately under the lid.

"Have you got the time to keep away from this thing and let me work it?" demanded Mr. Spoopendyke, contemplating his wife with a Spartan expression of visage. "S'pose I can do anything with you sitting on my elbow? If you'll go down cellar for a minute I'll lock the trunk," and Mr. Spoopendyke banged away at the hasp and breathed hard. But his best efforts could only turn the key half way.

"Oh! ain't I glad you couldn't lock it!" exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke, anxious to stay her husband's growing wrath. "I forgot to put in your cane."

"Dod gast the cane!" sputtered Mr. Spoopendyke. "S'pose it's going to lock any easier with a dod gasted walking cane sticking out at one end? Who says I can't lock it? What's the reason I can't lock it?" and he stood off and fetched the hasp a tremendous kick. "Anything else you've forgotten to put in?" and he sprang on the lid and tugged at the key, with his head thrown back and his teeth set. "Got a couple of mirrors you want in here? Any chiny around the house that wants a ride in this trunk? Want to put in that dod gasted ass on the top floor who tries to play the fiddle?" and he flopped off on the floor and banged at the hasp again.

"Let me sit on it," suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke, climbing up without waiting for a response. "Now try it."

Mr. Spoopendyke fumbled around and worked at the hasp and key, but fruitlessly.

"Can't ye sit any harder than that?" he yelled, as the key stuck and wouldn't turn either way. "'Fraid of breaking the measly thing. Press down, can't ye?"

Mrs. Spoopendyke squirmed around and said, "now dear," and looked over to see how he was getting on, but still the lock was obdurate.

"Dod gast the measly trunk!" howled Mr. Spoopendyke, firing the key out of the window and giving the trunk a farewell kick. "If you want it locked get a blacksmith and a steam derrick," and Mr. Spoopendyke threw himself into a chair and pretended to bury himself in his paper.

"I don't know how we're ever going to get it open," said Mrs. Spoopendyke after a long silence.

"Get what open?" growled her husband.

"The trunk. Now I remember, it's got a spring lock and when you took the key out it locked itself. I don't suppose we can ever find the key."

"That's it!" yelled Mr. Spoopendyke. "You know all about it now! Why didn't you tell me it was a spring lock? What d'ye keep it to yourself for?"

"I forgot," whimpered Mrs. Spoopendyke, "but it will be all right. I can open it."

"Oh, you can open it!" snorted Mr. Spoopendyke. "You're an opener! All you want is to be sharpened on both sides to be an oyster knife! With a dark lantern and a skull cap you'd make a full set of burglar's tools! Oh, yes, you'll open it! If you had a loose handle and one corner kicked off, you'd get rich as a screw driver!" and Mr. Spoopendyke tore out of the house to see if he could borrow something to pry open the unfortunate trunk.

"That gives me time to pack the valise," murmured Mrs. Spoopendyke, "and, as I've got another key to the trunk, we'll do pretty well after all," and the worthy lady began to jam night shirts and hair oil into the bags, together with sandwiches and tooth brushes, wondering betimes whether Mr. Spoopendyke's silk hat had been so badly smashed that it wouldn't do to go fishing in on rainy days, even if it didn't look well enough for church.—Brooklyn Eagle.

EDITORS CONVICTED.

Judge Magie on Friday last sentenced Whitfield Gibbs and John J. Stanton, editors of the Sussex Independent, to the State Prison; Gibbs to ten months and to pay a fine of fifty dollars; Stanton to six months and a fine of fifty dollars. There were four indictments against them, and before being sentenced they retracted their plea of "not guilty" and pleaded "guilty."

New Jersey may well feel proud of her citizen soldiery. The Provisional battalion, which acted as a guard of honor to Governor Ludlow and represented the "Jersey Line" at the centennial celebration of the siege of Yorktown, received the highest encomiums for their soldierly appearance and bearing, efficiency in drill and excellence in marching. The Philadelphia Times' correspondent, in his report of the celebration, says that the New Jersey contingent "fairly surpassed" the regulars. The National Guard of New Jersey is one of the best of the military organizations of the several States, as were her volunteers during the late war and her "Line during the Revolution."

The World has at length acknowledged its error, in charging that the residents of "Cincinnati were so blinded with tears at President Garfield's sad fate as to be unable to see the way to their pocket-books." And the World recants in letters and figures as follows: "In Mr. Field's last list of subscriptions to the Garfield fund we find $19 forwarded through the Cincinnati Gazette." Of this sum $10 came from Houston, Tex.; $1 from Little Rock, Ark., and $8 from the colored citizens of Maysville, Ky. Cincinnati possibly claims the title of the 'Paris of America' because of the effusiveness and economy of its residents."

The New Jersey Constitutional Commission will meet again on the 11th of November.

It is a fact worth noting that no Democratic President ever died in office, and that three Vice Presidents, Tyler, Fillmore and Johnson, who were elected on the opposition ticket, and succeeded to the Presidency, all became pronounced Democrats.

Had anybody predicted last fall that in less than a year after Garfield and Arthur's election Confederate bonds would be in demand in Wall street, it would have been set down as a preposterous and wicked Democratic libel on the Republican party and its candidates.

The total contributions of New Jersey to the Garfield fund was $1,448.14, of which sum one person gave $1,000. Delaware contributed $178, and Pennsylvania $25,104.76, of which $23,600.47 was from Philadelphia, one person contributing $10,000 of the amount.

A threatened water famine in New York has again brought up the question of utilizing salt water for the extinguishment of fires. Something must certainly be done for the procurement of a more reliable supply of the precious Croton.

The recent burning of a Woolen Mill in Philadelphia, attended with sad loss of life, showed criminal neglect on the part of owners in not providing fire escapes. It also makes questionable the safety of electric lights, the origin of the fire being charged by some to that newly applied system of lighting.

Sir Moses Montefiore, of England, has reached the patriarchal age of ninety-seven years. Deserving honor attaches to his name as the liberal and faithful friend of his own religious sect, the Hebrew, and because of the open handed generosity extended by him to other denominations and various charitable institutions. Such men are blessings to the world.

It was a well conceived and gracefully worded order of President Arthur that caused the conquered flag of Great Britain to be saluted at the close of the Yorktown celebration. Such acts of national courtesy cost little, but pay largely in the way of cementing friendly relations with foreign powers. The event appears to have invoked hearty applause throughout England.

The next Legislature will have important work before it. Besides disposing of the measure to secure equitable taxation and to relieve municipal corporations, the report of the Constitutional Commission will claim a great deal of attention and time. State Treasurer Wright's time will expire next winter, and his successor will have to be elected in joint meeting by the next Legislature.

The Grand Jury of Warren county has declared against the use of deadly toy pistols in the hands of children and youth of the county. They also call upon the Legislature of the State of New Jersey at its next session to pass such laws as will remedy the said evil by prohibiting the sale and use of the same, or in such other manner as their wisdom may suggest.—[A sensible movement.

It is said that the Republicans are boasting of the matter that Republican Greenbackers will work right along with the Greenback party until the day of election, when they will turn about and vote the straight Republican ticket; and that only the Democratic Greenbackers will be foolish enough to vote the Greenback ticket straight. It is a very pretty scheme, and while it may work all right, there are some reasons to believe that it won't.—Index.

The conviction of Kankowski for the murder of Miss Muller was attended with very dramatic scenes, the murderer completely giving way under the verdict. It is not probable, however, that his lawyer will have much difficulty in securing another trial. The evidence was almost all circumstantial, and the prosecution did not succeed in making out a very strong case in regard to the motive for the crime. But the murder was a most brutal one, and the murderer—if this indeed be he—deserves the full punishment of the law.

The rumor that Edmunds is to be offered a seat upon the United States Supreme Bench fills the Republicans with new alarm on account of the scarcity of intellect on their side of the Senate Chamber. The lack of ability in the Republican senators has been painfully apparent during the present extra session of the Senate, and if Edmunds is removed the question is, who will take his place? One of the leading Republican journals, while admitting that the indebtedness of the party to Edmunds is great, says of its party representation in the Senate, "Take out Mr. Edmunds and only dwarfs are left."

STRANGE WEATHER.

Not only during the Summer, but thus far through the Fall, the weather has been such as is seldom witnessed. Since Summer closed there have been many sudden changes, in at least one instance the thermometer indicated a change of no less than forty degrees, in the short space of twelve hours, thus passing from almost summer heat to the freezing point in a few hours. There have been numerous similar changes, which have rendered it quite impossible for people to clothe themselves properly, and the result has been much sickness throughout the entire country. Malarial fever has raged to a greater extent than probably ever was known before, and diptheria has also been quite prevalent. So far as we know, no section has been entirely free from these diseases, most cases of which have doubtless arisen from causes which are seemingly beyond human control.

THE N. J. CENTRAL R. R.

The report that the Jersey Central is to be taken out of the hands of the receiver has been revived and industriously circulated. An officer of the company says that the affairs of the company have, for several months, justified the dissolution of the receivership, but that it had been continued, and probably would be for some time, partly as a matter of convenience in settling certain business of the company and partly to accomplish the plans of large holders of the stock. The last may relate to the control of the company, for which a vigorous contest is predicted. It is said that Mr. Vanderbilt is endeavoring to control the next election in order to use the road in connection with the Reading against the Pennsylvania, also that the latter, either independently or with the Gould party, will oppose Mr. Vanderbilt's efforts. How largely these reports are in the interests of the clique that is manipulating the stock, it is impossible to determine.

An exchange says that soot falling on the carpet from open chimneys or from carelessly handled stovepipes, if covered thickly with salt, can be brushed up without damage to the carpet. As the season for putting up stoves has come, the above may be of profit to housewives.

POETRY.

LOVE WITHOUT THE LOVER.

He comes across the daisies,
Their bloom is on his cheek;
He comes across the daisies,
With glances bold and meek.

A sweet and gentle maiden,
With face a-blending fair,
Beneath the blossoms laden,
Is waiting for him there.

But angels see their meeting,
But angels should be near,
To fill the air with greeting
At love so pure and dear.

Beneath the blossoms laden
With joy they sit them down,
The lover and the maiden,
All in the evening brown.

They pledge their love forever,
And call on Heaven to see
That naught but death should sever
Two hearts so young and free.

On dingle flits the fairy,
On hillock falls the gleam,
True signs to lovers wary
'Tis time for hying home.

"To-morrow he'll be with me,"
She said in gleeful tone;
"To-morrow he'll be with me,
And the priest will make us one."

To-morrow! ah, to-morrow!
What hope is on thy wing!
What bitter, bitter sorrow
Thy disappointments bring!

What news is this that's brought her?
What cruel tale is told?
But yesterday he sought her;
To-day he marries gold.

Her eyes are red with weeping,
Her cheeks are blanched with care;
Her lily hands are creeping
In anguish through her hair.

Ah, love without the lover!
Ah, sky without a star!
What empty shadows hover
Along thy mighty bar!

Like sails upon the ocean
No gentle breezes fill,
The loving soul's emotion
Abates without the will.

Like mist upon the roses,
When sunlight's in the cloud,
The broken heart reposes
On love's unhallowed shroud.

HUGH F. McDERMOTT.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

I am a poor man—only a clerk. I have a wife and two children—as pretty a wife and as nice little children as can be found within a hundred miles of Bristol, and I am prepared to fight any man—smaller than myself—who pretends to deny it.

Now, having a pretty wife and nice children, I naturally desire to place them in a good position. I have a weakness for a fine house, plenty of pictures, fine china, and so forth. So has my wife.

I like to see Mrs. Martin dressed handsomely, and my little ones looking as well as my next neighbor's children. Mrs. Martin does not object to being handsomely dressed, and dotes upon adorning our little ones till they look like little faries.

Now it must be obvious to the meanest capacity that a clerk's salary would not secure a large house filled with fine art. Mrs. Martin and myself talked the matter over, and we agreed that the thing was impossible; the sum to be expended could not be made to procure all these things. Said my wife:

"You know, Dick, the rent of a good house in a good neighborhood is more than half your salary, and it is impossible for us to live fairly and dress decently on what remains—even though I do make all the children's clothes and my own bonnets."

I was thinking over the matter the next day down at the office, and Mollie's words, "You know, Dick, the rent is more than half your salary," kept ringing in my ears.

Of course I knew it! The rent—that was the stick. If I could get a nice house for a small sum—"Owners going abroad," or something of that sort—we might make the rest work by careful management.

"No use!" I sighed. "Nice houses does not rent for nothing." And I was about to resume work and relinquish the hope when my friend Johnston came in to see me.

"What's the matter, Martin?" he said "You look as sober as a judge."

"Nothing," I answered, dubiously; "only wishing I could rent a nice house for only about thirty pounds a year."

Johnston looked at me seriously for a moment; then drawing closer to me, he said:

"I'll give you one rent free if you will agree to live in it! It's furnished in good style, too—everything to your hand."

"Where is it?" I asked.

Johnston mentioned the street and number. The locality was unexceptional.

"What is the matter with it?" I demanded.

My friend put his lips close to my ear and whispered one awful word:

"Haunted."

"Is that all? Well, as I am not afraid of anything in the ghost line, and Mollie is not one bit timid, I will agree to live there as long as you are pleased to accept thanks for rent."

"All right, Martin," said Mr. Johnson. "I shall be glad to have you try it; but I give you fair warning that you won't be able to stand it. I've had ten tenants in two years, and the boldest only remained there three weeks. I tried it myself, but it was of no use; I had to leave."

"What happened?" I asked eagerly.

"Oh, I saw horrible things," said Johnston, turning pale. "Don't ask me!"

Just then I was called away by a customer, and had no further opportunity to think about the matter.

After our little ones were in bed for the night I told my wife all about it, and asked her opinion in regard to it. Neither of us being superstitious, we decided to give the house a trial. Said Mollie:

"I'll send the children to Aunt Kate's and go with you. We can live in the house till we see whether we can unearth the ghost."

Next day I saw Johnston, asked for a history of the house, and told him of our determination to give it a trial.

"All right," said my friend. "I know you are a brave man, and your wife true hearted; nevertheless I have no faith in your ability to outwit the ghosts; and ghosts certainly hold possession of that house. If you can, you shall have a five years' lease for nothing. I built the house; before it was completed I was called away by the death of my father.—I left my business in the hands of my partner, Davis, telling him that when the house was finished he could occupy it until my return.—Davis did move in but terrible misfortunes overtook him. His only child—a lovely little girl—was attacked with scarlet fever and died. The mother, insane with grief, committed suicide. Poor Davis! he could not endure the house after that and left, giving permission to his nephew, George Madden, to occupy it. George was a pretty wild boy, but he had about that time married a French woman with some money, and was glad of the chance to live in so good a house rent free. Mrs. Madden was an ambitious woman, and it seems was not satisfied with the plainness of the house.—She spent a considerable sum of money decorating the ceilings and placing mirrors in almost every place a mirror could be placed. You know a French woman will have mirrors and curtains, if she goes without shoes or stockings. After I came home I concluded to live in the house myself, and give to the Maddens notice to leave. You never saw anything like the rage madam flew into, and some pretty warm words passed between her husband and myself. The upshot of the matter was I bought the furniture and paid a good price for the mirrors—since they could not remove them without disfiguring the walls. Well, I lived in it just one week and gave up in despair; having frightened my wife into a nervous fever and made my child a coward for life, I fear. I have told you the whole story and advise you not to take your wife and children with you until you have given the house a trial yourself," were the closing words of my friend.

I reported my interview with Johnston to Mollie, but she remained firm in her determination to accompany me.

In a week the children were dispatched to Aunt Kate's, and Mollie and I paid a visit to the haunted house. In appearance we found it all we could desire. The hall was spacious, the rooms, high, large and elegant, furnished with all a French woman's taste. The dining-room was rich in mirrors.

The second floor was, if possible, more elegant than the ground floor, since here had crept in, together with the glow and glitter, an air of cosy comfort. Especially was this true of the little ball room. At each point of the intersection—where usually a button or tuft is placed—was a crystal ball, which under the gaslight must be garish and queer. At least so thought Mollie and I going through for the first time. In the day time, with the sun streaming in at the windows, nothing could be more charming.

After we had made the tour of the house, Mollie and I descended to the basement. Here plainness reigned supreme; no frescoes or mirrors. Evidently Mrs. Madden took small interest in this part of the dwelling.

Having convinced ourselves of the desirability of the premises, so far as pertaining to the external comforts, Mollie and I seperated for the day; she to do a little necessary shopping and I to attend to business.

The day passed slowly. Some misgivings on Mollie's account took possession of me.—At last I resolved to get her two brothers, Charley and Edward—two gay, don't care young men—to come and bear us company.

When I saw Molli's face again she looked pale and anxious, though she insisted she felt no fear.

After dinner—about half-past six—we started for the house. The weather was warm, and as Mollie had sent bed linen and articles necessary for our use, we had nothing to do but wait patiently as we could the arrival of the ghosts.

The rooms were close and musty, from their long disuse, and we were glad to open the windows and pass the hours of daylight near to them. But when the shadows began to fall, I left Edward with Mollie, and taking Charlie, went to light the gas, determined no trick should be played upon me in the dark.

Nothing occurred to alarm us until we reached the second floor. I had just lighted one burner, and was about to light another, when I was startled by a sharp cry from Charlie. Turning around, I saw him starting up with a face like marble, eyes extending out of his head with horror, and his lips drawn back and disclosing his white set teeth.

Startled more by his look than by the fear or dread of the something which I knew he saw, I shouted to him:

"Charlie! what is it, old man?"

He clutched my arm with one hand and pointed with the other to the blue room.

'For goodness sake,' he said hoarsely, 'look there!'

I turned slowly around and looked where he pointed. In the centre of the little upholstered room I saw a figure—thin, unsubstantial and gigantic. The eyes were closed, but one hand moved restlessly to and fro across the forehead.

For an instant I was rivited to the spot staring with all the facination of terror at the unearthly figure reflected so horribly in the garish light.

Shaking of Charlie's detaining hand I sprang forward brandishing the gas lighter, and aimed a savage blow at it. To my horrow the blow passed through the body but the object never stirred, except to continue the wearied motion of the hand. A moment more, then it disappeared as mysteriously as it had come.

Calling up all my resolutions I persuaded Charlie to continue the rounds of the house with me, and preceded him up stairs.

Nothing more occurred worthy of mention until the time for retiring. Charlie and Edward had gone to their room—the second floor back—and Mollie and I were about to follow to ours, when I saw walking towards me a man with a razor in his hand. I glanced at Mollie; her eyes were fixed on the same object. Neither of us spoke, but both watched with bated breath.

Presently the spectre began to shave; suddenly he cut himself, and the blood streamed down; he threw the razor angrily away and walked toward us, disappearing into the opposite wall. I was dumb with surprise, Mollie white and cold, but very firm.

'Dick, did you see that man?' she said.

'Yes, dear; I am sure I saw something.'

'Well' whom did it look like?'

'Very much like Edward,' I replied, as calmly as I could.

'So I thought,' faltered Mollie. 'Can it be a warning? Let us send him away. Perhaps he will be murdered!'

'No, Mollie,' I answered. 'I think we can prevent any thing of that kind taking place, though we may not be able to resist being frightened. Bear up, little woman. To-morrow we will give it up if you say so. There is a mystery here which we might be able to discover. Don't let us yield to the first thing that appears.'

With the exception of Mollie's anxiety on Edward's account, I confess I think she was less frightened than I. She indignantly refused to give the matter up, or allow me to investigate without her.

After waiting a half an hour, and nothing appearing, we retired—but not to rest. My nerves had been more strained than I knew, and I found it impossible to sleep. Each tiny noise grew big in my waiting ears, and my eyes were strained in the half light to see what there was not.

Day was breaking when I fell asleep, and the sun was three hours high when I awoke. Mollie looked a little pale, and Charlie, too; but all reported a quiet night undisturbed by unseemly visitants.

When we were at breakfast, Mollie suddenly turned to Edward with the question:

'When did you shave last?'

'Last night,' was the response. 'Why?'

'Turn around,' persisted his sister. 'What is that court plaster for? Did you cut yourself?'

'Yes—should say I did—you should have seen it bleed. But why are you so curious?'

'Oh, nothing,' said Mollie, with a quick glance at me. After breakfast she drew me aside.

'Yes,' I answered, 'and I think you have discovered a clue. But say nothing at present.'

My first impulse was to go down to the office and get permission to take my week's holiday then—not a difficult thing to do, as most of the clerks preferred to take theirs later in the season. My next, to call upon Mr. Johnston. I found him awaiting my arrival.

'I knew you would come,' he said, before I had time to speak. 'You can't stand it either? Well, well! I'll let the place go as Davis advises—only one thousand offered—it's too bad—too bad!'

'Mr. Johnston,' I interrupted, 'wait a minute. I haven't given up yet; on the contrary I think we have a clue. Will you answer me a few questions—and be so good as to ask me none in return? When you lived in the house you saw figures which passed through solid substances—came and went mysteriously, &c. Now please try and remember; did these ghosts bear any resemblance to members of your household?'

"I think they sometimes did—but not always. The most horrible to me was the spirit of the woman who committed suicide, Mrs. Davis."

"Did you know Mrs. Davis well?"

"No, not very well, but well enough to recognize her. I tell you it was awful!"

"One more question, and I have done. Did you use the basement floor at all, and if so, did you see any spectre while there?"

"Two evenings we sat in the breakfast room. We could not keep a servant in the house, except an old woman who went home at night. Neither Mrs. Johnston nor myself cared much going through the place after nightfall; so we stayed down stairs till the old woman went home; but I am positive we never saw anything strange while there."

"That is enough—thank you," I replied. "Ask me no questions," as he opened his mouth to speak. "Give me the week out, and if I don't enchant your house, I'll agree that evil spirits hold possession."

About noon I went home, got Mollie, and went once more to the haunted house. On my way to town I stopped and ordered four cot beds, which I had placed—two in the breakfast room and two in the kitchen. Then I made another thorough search of the house.

In the cellar I found a window which, though looked securely enough, could by a slight effort be opened. The door which led into the kitchen from the cellar next claimed my attention. It closed with a spring and looked very innocent; but an instant use of my pen-knife disclosed the fact that the door, though minus a knob or handle on the cellar side, had a place for a latch key, hid by a piece of paper cunningly applied.

"I think we have scotched the snake," I announced to the boys that evening. "But we will thoroughly test the question before we declare ourselves victors."

We all slept in the basement that night—the boys in the kitchen, Mollie and I in the breakfast room. All quiet. Next morning I called my force together and held a consultation. Said I:

"Boys and Mollie, here is the case—plain as a pikestaff. We want to live in this house, if possible. It is nice, handy and desirable. Mollie, you have guessed half the ghost riddle, and boys, you and I must discover the rest; for the part we have not discovered is far more dangerous to our comfort here than is the first half. My theory is that this house is haunted by a person or persons whose object is to render the property worthless in the market. Let us darken the house, light the gas, and experiment."

No sooner said than done, Charlie and Edward went to the second floor front room, standing in about the position Charlie and I had been when we saw the spectre. I then directed Mollie to place herself where she could be reflected both in the pier glass and in the mirrors which lined the stairway. No sooner had she taken this position when Charlie shouted:

"Here's our ghost, Dick, sure as fate! Rub your forehead, Mollie! By Jove! it is she, sure enough! I heard him mutter."

"All right!" I laughed. "Now, Edward, for yours. Go into the back room, leave open the door, and stand where you did when shaving!"

In a moment Mollie and I were highly edified by seeing our spirit of the razor, with his thumb at his nose in a most unghostly like manner.

When we were all gathered in the parlor once more, I said:

"You see Mollie was right about the mirrors producing the figures which have frightened so many; but the brain that designed this means has not stopped here. Mr. Johnston assures me that he more than once saw the spirit of Davis's wife. We must discover how that was possible. I am convinced that the unfortunate lady will be made to appear to us very soon. If she does, we must be ready to receive her. Charley, you and Edward slip quietly into the breakfast room to sleep, but see that you sleep lightly. If you hear the cellar door open keep quiet; but after the ghost has passed up stairs secure the door and steal after her. Mollie and I will be ready to receive her up stairs."

Night came; my programme was followed out to the letter, and to my intense satisfaction the spirit of Mrs. Davis appeared.

I cannot even now repress a shudder as I recall the figure which stood in the little blue room that night. I confess my hair stood on end then, and my blood turned cold. It was the figure of a tall woman dressed in white, with a ghastly cut across her throat which gaped fearfully in the gaslight of that scintillating little room. I never wish to a look more horrible than glowed in her wild black eyes.

Knowing as I did that the boys had cut off retreat, I whispered to Mollie—

"Don't be frighted; it's only a woman, masquerading."

I sprang from my bed—the figure did not stir. Of course the real culprit was not in the blue room, but in the parlor, and any attempt to seize her on my part would be useless. I rushed into the hall and shouted—"Boys, catch her!"

In the flash of an eye something more tangible than air sounded from below. The haunter knew the house better than we, and would have escaped as after all if Edward had not sprung down the stairs, stationed himself at the cellar door, and seized her just as she came down the servant's staircase. Charlie and I were almost instantly on the spot, and brave Mollie was not far behind.

"It proved to be a young and handsome woman—in short, just whom I expected—Mrs. Madden."

Beaten at her hideous game, exposed, disgraced, she never for one moment lost her courage.

"So," she said in broken English, "so the game is up. You are brave men—I wish Madden was as brave I'd not have failed. You, madam, to Mollie, are the only woman I have seen who is not a cowardly fool."

In the morning we sent for Mr. Johnston and Mr. Madden. The unfortunate husband crouched and begged like a spaniel; but his wife showed no sign of contrition.

At first Mr. Johnston was determined to let the law have its way; but at last consented to let the matter drop upon Mr. Madden's taking a solemn vow to leave the place and molest him no more.

In another week nearly every mirror had been taken from the house. Some were concave, hence the size of the figures. But the greatest discovery was the reflecting glasses in the ceiling, that were not hardly to be seen, but which aided much in producing the illusions which had driven twelve tenants from the house, and reduced it to one-half its value.

Mr. Johnston was as good as his word. For five years I lived in his house with Mollie and the little ones, Edward and Charlie—five quiet, peaceful years—and Mr. Johnston tells me that he still considers himself my debtor, since my discovery not only restored his property to its real value, but his wife to health and his boy to courage.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

There was a railroad excursion from Jackson county yesterday, and among the crowd was a man who called at the office of the Chief of Police to make a statement. When the Chief was ready to hear the details the man began:

"I was just coming out of the depot when I met a fellow with a squint in his left eye. Got that down?"

"Yes."

"Well he held out his hand and said: 'How do you do, Judge Perkins?' I kinder held out my hand and said I was purty well, thank you. I'm no more Judge Perkins than you are, but I thought I'd draw the fellow out a little. Got that down?"

"Yes."

"Well, we shook hands and walked for the corner, and he asked me if I ever absorbed. I said I did, and we went over to a saloon and surrounded some beer. Are you following?"

"Yes."

"My friend said his name was Collins and that he was in the mule business. Then we absorbed some more."

"Yes."

"He asked if I didn't remember of loaning him $2 in Toledo in 1866 and hang my buttons if I wasn't fool enough to remember. I wasn't in Toledo in 1866 or anywhere nigh it, but I saw a purty good chance to make $2. Hang me if I didn't think I'd found one Detroiter good enough to go to heaven. Then we absorbed some more."

"Yes."

"Well, the chap wanted to pay me back the $2, and I also wanted to get hold of it. He hands out this $20 bill for me to change, and I give him back $14 and was to hand him $4 more at the depot to-night. Then we absorbed some more."

"It's a counterfeit bill."

"You bet, and I'm a gone-up man! Farewell, old Jackson county!"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that $7 out of that $14 was to buy school books and the other $7 was to buy porous plasters and a new dress for the school teacher out there. I have been done for and laid low. Do I return to face the music? I do not. Do I jump into the river and sleep in the arms of death? I do, and don't you forget it. I want a chew of tobacco, a few instructions as to the best place to jump, and I'll trouble this earth no more."

But he didn't jump. He had 22 cents and this sum was enough to get drunk on. He was picked off the walk in the evening and taken to the station, and when asked his name replied:

"No use, old Filar—no use. If I lent you two dozzars in Chicago in 1877 you can't pay it back, nowhow—won't have it—won't take it back."

BUYING A BIG HERD OF CATTLE.

Tim Foley, the Leadville millionare, who used to live here, was considerably of a humorist in his way. He don't lay any great claim to hilarity in a literary way, but he can tell you things that have occurred to him personally that would make you roll over in the tall grass and howl with mirth.

Some years ago Tim had a bunch of cattle up north, and learning that Frewen Brothers had more money than they wanted, he decided to sell to them.

The Frewen Brothers were just over from England at that time, and hadn't learned the wild, peculiar ways of these uncouth people of the West. They came to Wyoming as civilizers, so to speak, bringing with them the air of refinement and culture from their foreign home.

It looked odd to the old timbers here in the mountains to see a pair of blooded cusses, with hollow, æsthetic chests, and pants that were too short. Nothing could seem more queer than two noble sons of Albion, with eye-glasses and dyspepsia, starting a cattle ranch on the frontier, and the boys had a good deal of fun over it.

Foley found out that the Frewens had about $4,000 on hand that they wanted to squander in bulls, so he tackled them and told them that he had about enough to make the sum an even thing for his herd.

The Frewens were taken out to the base of a big hill and stationed where the herd could be driven by them while they tallied them.

Foley fixed it so that a herd of a hundred or so, by judiciously revolving it around that hill, counted up high enough to make $4,000 worth of cattle, and then he told the herders to drive them over on the range behind the hill.

This goes to show that by using a 200-foot hill judiciously it can be worked in at a good price. Foley no doubt worked that hill in at about $2,000, and it didn't cost him a cent, either.

If we could work off a range of sand hills at that rate, and get cash for them, we would cease to write abstruse editorials, and make some money in this new and attractive style for two or three summers, and then go to Europe and visit the crowned heads.

There are people who do not believe the above story, and, in fact, we don't believe it either, but we give it for what it is worth.—Bill Nye.

A dentist presented a bill for the tenth time to a rich skinflint. "It strikes me," said the latter, "that this is a pretty round bill." "Yes," replied the dentist, "I've sent it round often enough to make it appear so; and I have called now to get it squared."

The Constitutionalist.

W. L. FORCE and A. L. FORCE.

DEMOCRATIC DUTY.

The duty of the Democratic party is plain and as ever remains to be—

The support of the Constitution in every part.

The maintenance under the Constitution of a Union of co-equal and sovereign States.

The cultivation of peace and fraternity throughout the whole land.

To defend liberty of conscience and the civil rights and privileges of all the people.

To uphold freedom of speech and of the press and purity of the ballot.

To keep inviolable public obligations.

To preserve a sound coin-based currency.

To protect by impartial legislation every species of home industry and enterprise, and through enlightened action open and extend markets for American products abroad.

To defeat the mercenary designs of monopolists of every name and hue.

To lower taxation and honestly reduce indebtedness.

To enforce practical economy and rigid accountability in the conduct of public affairs—National, State, County, Township and Municipal.

To make integrity, morality and capability the passports to office.

An important duty!

Fearlessly discharge it, Democrats!

A GLORIOUS EVENT.

The defeat of a noted millionaire for an election to Congress in the City of New York should be hailed with delight by every citizen who values the purity of the ballot more than the vicious use of wealth.

The young gentleman in question being politically ambitious, and having no particular qualification for public position outside of a plethoric pocket-book, determined to ride into Congress, as some like patriots had done, on the strength of that. He therefore, hat in hand, went to work scattering funds throughout the district regardless of amount, and in such a profligate way, that hundreds of respectable Republicans became disgusted and openly voted for his Democratic opponent.

The defeat above named is a glorious event, because it proves that money cannot always be made to pass current as an equivalent for brains, nor strike down the weapon of free citizenship, nor outrage common decency.

We hope similar condemnation will overtake and crush every political corruptionist in the land.

The day has arrived when the people, for their own safety, must in thunder-tones declare that an unpolluted ballot-box, not a bribe filled money-chest, shall rule.

DOWNWARD.

The political annals of our country show that when a party begins to speculate in expediency at the expense of principles, the road to bankruptcy is opened before it.

Political trading ruined the old National Republican and Whig parties and it is working similar fate for the Republicans of to-day.

No political party can afford to champion repudiation, the trampling under foot of sacred obligations. Depraved public sentiment, made so by wily demagogues, may for a time in certain localities sanction such a departure from common honesty, but, as sure as daylight, the party so assenting will eventually find around its neck the heaviest of mill stones.

There never was uttered a truer saying than that "Honesty is the best policy." It attaches alike to organizations and individuals.

A man may through chicanery and dishonorable dealings accumulate much property, but we venture to assert, that bad results will, sooner or later, overtake and swallow up his unprincipled gain.

Just so with a political party. It may reap temporary advantage by doing violence to former good professions and joining hands with profligacy, but the end will be disaster and humiliation.

We repeat that "Honesty is the best policy," and are warranted in adding, that Honor is the pearl of priceless value.

These remarks are directly applicable to the Republican leaders in their active support of Mahone, the Readjuster, or, more correctly speaking, the Repudiationist of Virginia, and whatever may be the result of last Tuesday's election in that State, which at the present writing is not definitely known, odium will certainly cling to the Republican party because of its connection therewith.

SHIPWRECK.

Rarely, if ever, was there a more complete financial shipwreck than that exhibited by the recent failure of the Mechanics' National Bank of Newark.

Enjoying the highest degree of credit, after a business career of many years, passing through storms of panic and commercial depression, with capital stock selling at seventy per cent. above par value almost up to the day of explosion, suddenly the Bank's apparent prosperity is transformed into positive ruin, its boasted strength found to be rottenness, the enormous sum of over two million dollars having been abstracted from its assets, and, through some foul means, utterly lost.

It is not only a financial wreck of appalling magnitude, but a moral one of the most criminal character, and repeats the villainous story which has been too often heard and sorely felt by the honestly confiding people of this country.

That story is FRAUD!

It is time, quite time, that official rascality, both in public offices and private corporations, was effectually stopped, even though the result necessitated increased taxation for the enlargement of State Prisons. Such would prove a profitable investment for honest men, provided, it set to work behind iron bars for the remainder of their worthless lives the horde of fashionably attired, palatial living, highly perfumed, hypocritical scoundrels who are diligently endeavoring to sport riches without earning them, preying upon the honest gain of others, and converting to profligate use property placed in their keeping as custodians of a sacred trust.

Excuse is justly due for mistaken judgment, however unfortunate, but none whatever for premeditated and continued stealing.

Let us hope that the day is not far distant when personal rectitude will command the premium it deserves, and its "opposite" be ousted and properly punished. Then we shall have fewer shipwrecks to chronicle, and a vastly increased amount of virtuous action and sincere profession to applaud.

Place practical integrity at the helm and throw arrogant pretense overboard.

THE ELECTION IN OTHER STATES.

The latest indications from New York State, are that the Republicans have elected their State ticket by a small majority, but the Democrats have a majority in the Legislature.

Seth Low, Republican, was elected Mayor of Brooklyn.

The Readjusters, led by Mahone, claim to have carried Virginia.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania elect the State Treasurer by a small plurality vote.

The Democrats carry Maryland.

Republicans carry Wisconsin, although the Democrats made large and unexpected gains.

The result in Minnesota is in doubt.

Mississippi goes Democratic by a large majority.

Republicans carry Nebraska.

Massachusetts as usual goes Republican.

New York City has just experienced another horror. Two tenement houses on the corner of Grand street and South Fifth avenue, collapsed of their own weight on Wednesday morning last, and buried a score of people beneath their ruins. Eight persons were taken out dead and many wounded.

Bank Examiner Shelly finished his preliminary investigation of the affairs of the defunct Mechanics' National Bank last week, and forwarded his report to the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington. The assets are shown to be $2,035,252.96, and liabilities, $4,446,253.43.

The Children's Home Association.

The Anniversary exercises of the Children's Home Association will be held on the evening of Thursday, Dec. 1st, at the Trinity Reformed church. An address by the Rev. A. A. Willetts, D. D., of Philadelphia, is promised besides the usual interesting features of the occasion. The Annual Fair of the organization will begin Dec. 13th, and claims the liberal patronage of our entire public.

Common Council Proceedings.

MONDAY EV'G, Nov. 7, 1881.

The Council met in regular session, all present excepting Messrs. H. Smith and Darling.

The minutes of the previous adjourned meetings read and approved.

Mr. Waring presented a communication from the Plainfield Gas Light Co., offering to light the street lamps all night, at 11 cents each per night, providing the contract be made for not less than a year. The Company also agreed to accept such payments as other creditors of the city, received. On motion of Mr. Gilbert the communication was laid on the table.

Mr. Tracy presented the claims of Street Commissioner Wm. Hand $13.50 for work on the streets during the month of Oct., and salary $50. Ref'd.

Mr. Hamilton presented claims for police service of Chas. W. Dodd, $71.19 and R. Randolph, $22.84. Ref'd.

Mr. Gilbert presented claims of Overseer of the Poor of Elizabeth $36.25, Mrs. Wilkins, $6, and Overseer of the Poor of Basking Ridge, $54. Ref'd.

The President at this stage of the proceedings announced that Mr. Hamilton was excused from the session.

Mr. Guion presented the claims of City Physician Lowrie $33.50, Runyon & Leonard, $61.45 and City Judge Runyon, $75. Ref'd.

The President presented a communication from Corporation Counsel Kimball informing the Council that the case of the City against Laing had been decided against the city and asking for further instruction.

Mr. Gilbert moved that the communication be received and placed on file and that the Corporation Counsel be instructed to cause the proceedings of the City against Laing to be reviewed in either the Circuit or Supreme Court.

Mr. A. Smith thought that in view of the amount of the claim and the cost of continued legal proceedings, it was not worth carrying the matter any further.

Mr. Gilbert spoke in favor of the motion, as the principle at stake was to establish the power of the city to collect its taxes by means of the civil courts. The motion was adopted; Mr. A. Smith voting no.

Mr. A. Smith from Police Com., reported as correct the claims of C. W. Dodd, $71.19; R. Randolph, $22.84; and from Sala. Com., as correct the claims of N. Runyon, $75; Wm. Hand, $50; All ref'd to Aud. Com.

Mr. Tracy from St. Com., reported as correct the claim of P. M. French $56, for sprinkling Park avenue during the continuance of the County Fair. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The rules were suspended to allow Mr. Tyler to report from the Laws Com., for adoption an ordinance entitled an ordinance to establish and regulate public pounds in the city of Plainfield. Read by the Clerk and on motion of Mr. Gilbert, laid on the table.

Mr. A. S. Smith presented a resolution to the effect that the City Collector be directed to pay at once to the City Treasurer all the money now in his hands or which may come into his hands belonging to the State, County or City. Seconded by Mr. Guion.

Mr. Tyler thought that such action was premature. That the Council should receive an official communication from the Corporation Counsel as to what the Court's recent decision in the premises was, before any such resolution was adopted.

Mr. Tracy agreed that it would be unwise to proceed in the matter before it was ascertained what the ruling of the Court required. He thought the action proposed would prove to be the course to pursue, yet, until a certified copy of the decision was received, he would not favor the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. Gilbert was prepared to vote for the resolution, as he felt there would be no harm in so instructing the City Collector.

Mr. Tracy did not consider it was any part of the Council's duty to "instruct" the City Collector. If the Court defined the duties of that officer, he considered any action in that relation by the Council to be unnecessary. He moved the resolution be laid on the table. Seconded by Mr. Tyler and carried—Messrs. Gilbert, Guion and A. Smith voting no.

Mr. A. Smith moved the adoption of the following resolution, seconded by Mr. Finch:

Resolved: That a committee of three be appointed to ascertain the condition of State and County arrears of taxes; whether the law has been complied with in relation to the returns of delinquents and the issuing and return of warrants and whether any deficiency actually exists by reason of any neglect and to what extent—and report at the earliest possible moment.

On motion of Mr. Tyler, seconded by Mr. Gilbert, the resolution was laid on the table. Mr. A. Smith voting no.

The Pres. called the attention of the Council to certain ordinances on the table and others ordered engrossed and to a third reading.

Mr. Gilbert moved that the ordinance entitled an ordinance for the correction of nuisances &c., be referred back for further consideration as on its second reading. Carried, and on motion the ordinance was laid on the table.

By the same that the claim of James T. Pierson $48.75, be taken from the table and referred to the Alms Co. So referred.

By the same, that when the Council adjourned it be to meet one week from to-night. Carried.

Mr. Finch mentioned for the information of the Council, that he had learned that quantities of the naptha lamps adopted in other cities had been returned to the company as unfit for use. He also stated that by a previous resolution $50 had been appropriated to repair a certain "mud-hole" that existed on Park avenue between Fifth and Sixth streets. He desired to call the attention of the Street Commissioner to the matter and moved that it should carry out the provisions of the resolution.

Mr. Waring was positive that such an amount would not be sufficient to repair the street, and moved as an amendment that the committee be empowered to use its discretion regarding the amount expended.

The President called the attention of the Committee to the fact that it was authorized to expend an amount not exceeding $250 without any action by the Council.

Mr. Waring's amendment was accepted by Mr. Finch and the motion lost. Messrs. Gilbert, A. Smith, Tracy, Tyler and Waring voting against. [illegible] to allow [illegible] salary bills of C. W. Dodd, $71.19; [illegible] Lowrie, $33.50; R. Randolph, $22.84; Wm. Hand, $50; N. Runyon, $75. Warrants ordered drawn.

The Council then adjourned.

Personalia.

It is with profound regret and feeling that we this week announce the sudden death of Mrs. Phœbe Sandford, of this city, wife of William Sandford, resident of Seventh street. Deceased was connected by family ties with the editors and proprietors of this journal, who were schoolmates with her. Of a bright and enlivening disposition and temperament, Mrs. Sandford made friends wherever she went. Blessed with a kind and indulgent husband, endowed with plenty of this world's goods, loving children, a happy home, it is no wonder that her many friends are grieved and shocked at her early demise. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the stricken family in their irreparable loss.

Mr. Percy C. Ohl who has been confined to his bed for some time past with inflammatory rheumatism, is again able to be about, although not yet sufficiently recovered to leave the house.

Mr. Thomas B. Stillman of this city, was married on Thursday of last week to a Baltimore lady at the residence of the bride's father in that city.

Messrs. W. A. Bass, Jr., W. Rogers, H. M. Gilligan, J. B. Miller, J. Gavett and Geo. Hallock have been slaughtering wild duck in the vicinity of Barnegat Bay.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

During the excitement caused in the vicinity of Warren Engine house by the alarm of fire on Tuesday evening, some unknown thief picked the lock of Mr. George Hartfelder's saloon on Somerset street, and entering stole the entire contents of the money drawer.

A young daughter of Mr. Rowland Smith residing on Manning avenue, fell over the bannisters of the stairs on Tuesday and was seriously bruised.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The Board of Directors of the "New Jersey Game & Fish Protective Society" held a meeting at the Mansion House, this city, Wednesday evening last. Business of interest to the growth of the Society was transacted, and a large number of new members added to the roll. Reports from Committees showed that a large number of young black bass had been planted in various streams of the State within the past six weeks, and that the 50,000 salmon fry, now being hatched out at the State Fishery at Bloomsbury, were progressing finely, and would soon be ready for delivery to the Society for distribution. It was also decided, and a committee appointed, consisting of Messrs. Wm. B. Dunn, I. D. TenEyck and M. W. Schenck to purchase a sufficient quantity of Western quail to let loose in proper localities and sections of this State. The Board adjourned to meet at the time prescribed by the By-laws, the first Wednesday evening in December.

CLOTHIERS!
NEW GLASS FRONT STORE,
797 Broad St.,
NEWARK, N. J.

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

—Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. [illegible] Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality of our garments.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

Official Paper of the State, the County and the City, and has the Largest Circulation of any Weekly in Union County.

COMMON Council meeting next Monday evening.

THANKSGIVING day a week from next Thursday.

WE publish this week the new time table of the C. R. R., for the coming winter. As usual, no notable changes are made.

THE Rev. K. P. Ketcham will preach a sermon especially to young men, at the First Presbyterian Church, on Sunday morning next.

A TRAMP with a pitiful story about his family afflictions, was sent to the County Jail for 3 months, from Wednesday last, by Justice Wadsworth.

AN exhibition of pool playing by those well-known champions of the game, Messrs. Frey and King, will be given at Emmer's billiard parlor on Front street, this (Friday) evening.

DR. Gedney the veterinary surgeon of North Plainfield, has built a number of box-stalls at his residence on Pearl near Somerset street, where he is prepared to board and undertake the entire care of sick and lame horses.

THE bursting of a lamp in the store of Messrs. D. F. Randolph & Son, on Saturday evening last, almost started a conflagration. The flames were extinguished before any particular damage was done, except to those who had to fight the fire.

WM. C. AYRES and Finton Hibbits, contractors, have just completed the erection of a substantial new bridge in place of the old one across Green brook at Mountain avenue crossing, Scotch Plains. The work reflects credit upon Mr. Hibbitt's skill.

THE demand made upon our columns by political matters and election news, prevents our publishing in this issue as we had intended, any consideration of the late opinion of the Supreme Court in the County Mandamus matter and of the result of the decision as given.

THE Plainfield Saengerbund proposes to give entertainments of music and dancing at its rooms corner of Park and North avenues, on the evenings before Thanksgiving and Christmas days. Cards of invitation signed by members of the Society, will shortly be issued to its friends.

THE Ladies' Land League of Plainfield will hold its Second Annual Sociable at Laing's Hall Wednesday evening of next week. Tickets may be procured of the members, and both the good time promised and the cause that will be benefited financially, insure a large attendance.

MR. Fintin Hibbits, mason, has contracted with the Potter Press Works to construct a stone wall along the railroad embankment of the Company's works, which, when completed, will be 300 feet long, 10 feet high and 3 feet thick. The fact of Mr. H. receiving the contract insures a good job.

WE wish to announce that the manufacturers of "Saponax" have kept good all their promises to the drug trade as to commencing their advertisement in this paper on Nov. 1st. The advertisement appears in this issue and the cause of its non-appearance previously, should be attributed to unavoidable delay on our part.

CAUGHT in the act of making a free speech in front of the First Ward poll on Tuesday evening, "Cuckoo" was consigned to the City Jail for the night and released the next morning with a reprimand. "White Apron" who also recently fell into the hands of Captain Dodd, did not fare so well—she will eat her Thanksgiving dinner with Warden Marsh.

OUR congratulations are extended to Craig A. Marsh, Esq., on his victory against two able counselors in the tax case appeal, noted elsewhere; while at the same time we deplore the fact that so many taxpayers interpose technical defense to the just demands of the city. We sincerely trust that some method may be devised by which to secure to the city its just dues.

THE Plainfield Relief Association will hold their annual public meeting on the evening of Nov. 17th, at Trinity Reformed Church, on Second street near Park Ave. Full reports of the operations of the society during the year will be read. Mr. Alfred Hatch, of the firm of Fisk & Hatch, of New York, has kindly consented to deliver an address. A choice selection of music has been provided for the occasion. The Ladies of the Association earnestly request a full attendance of their patrons and friends.

MRS. MASON W. TYLER,
Ch'n of the Com. of Arrangements.

One Year Ago.

Mr. Alexander Dunham died on Thursday Nov. 4th. The Common Council ordered a money election. The "Old Folks" of St. Mary's Church held a sociable on the 11th.

The Turn Verein.

An entire night of continuous enjoyment was the result of the Turn Verein Ball at Blatz's Hotel on Monday evening. In spite of the extremely unpleasant weather a large crowd gathered to enjoy the contortions and gymnastics of the society's members as well as the music of Prof. Frazee's orchestra and the dances that occupied the principal attention. The success of the affair is undoubted, and the Turn Vereins are most deserving of any favorable financial result.

Y. M. C. A.—Sermons.

At the request of the Young Men's Christian Association and in observance of the week of prayer for young men appointed by the World's Conference of the Associations, the preachers of this city will speak to young men, Sunday. Rev. Mr. Lewis will do so Saturday forenoon, (Seventh Day) and the other preachers, each in his own church, Sunday morning and evening; Rev. Messrs. Ketcham, Lowry, Manchee, Murphy and Rodman in the forenoon and Rev. Messrs. Bliss, Fairfax, Raymond, Stockton and Yerkes in the evening. A meeting Monday evening at the Association Hall, will be led by Rev. Mr. Meeker. Union services will be held the following Sunday, and Richard C. Morse, of New York, is expected to be present.

Killed by the Cars.

Mr. Samuel Titus, residing in one of the "eight cottages" adjacent to the railroad track near Dunellen, was instantly killed within a short distance of his home on Friday last. Conductor Hibler's train leaving Plainfield at 2:04 p. m., for Easton, was approaching the "cottages" when the engineer noticed a man walking along the side of the track and eating an apple. Just as the locomotive got within a few feet of the man he stepped in front of it and almost immediately was struck by the pilot. The unfortunate victim was hurled to one side, struck a second time and then thrown clear of the engine. The train was stopped and backed down to the scene of the accident where neighbors of Mr. Titus identified the dead body as being that person. The remains were placed in the baggage car and taken to Dunellen.

To the Lovers of Vocal Music.

The Grand Concert to be given on the evening of the 24th inst., under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., and the direction of Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh, needs no other recommendation than the published list of the artists in our advertising columns. It is destined to be the finest entertainment of the kind ever given in Plainfield, and will compare favorably with like affairs in the musical circles of much larger cities. Miss Wilkinson has been heard many times by our public with favorable effect, and we feel justified in repeating our endorsement during March last, of Mr. Charles Thompson as one of the most talented and enjoyable tenor soloists of the day. The other artists, included in the programme are above the average that favor this city with their abilities, and the affair, in consequence, deserves extended patronage.

The City Non-Suited.

The case of the city vs Laing brought for taxes due for years prior to 1880 was first tried before Justice McLaughlin, who gave judgment for the personal taxes in favor of the city. Certain delinquent tax payers, dissatisfied with the decision, caused the case to be appealed, and on Oct. 27th the appeal was argued in the County Court. Corporation Counsel Kimball and R. V. Lindabury, Esq., appeared in behalf of the city and Craig A. Marsh, Esq., represented the defense.

After the city's evidence was in, defendant's counsel without offering any evidence, moved to non-suit on fair grounds. The entire day was consumed in argument on this motion, and the Court adjourned with the announcement that they would consider the points raised, and render decision in one week.

On Saturday last, the respective counsel appeared in Court and received the following opinion, pronounced by the presiding judge: "The Court are unanimous in their opinion that non-suit be granted."

An effort was then made by the city to limit [illegible]

Democratic Senators and Assemblymen Gained Throughout New Jersey.

IN THE CITY.

Although Tuesday was a stormy day, the total vote fell but a few below that of the last Senatorial election. Hacks were in a great demand by both parties for the purpose of bringing the unenthusiastic to the polls, and in consequence no decrease in the vote was apparent aside from the large number of Democrats who failed to take sufficient interest to cast their ballots in support of their principles. Plainfield did her part towards the reduction of the majorities by which Senator Vail was returned and assisted (although not to any great extent) in the election of Honest Tom Forsyth. To say that the Democracy of Plainfield did nobly is speaking but faint praise for its gallant fight. In the face of the apathy of scores of the Democrats, the absence from the polls and failure to vote of many more and the open antagonism of others—in spite of all this and more, those leaders who often before conducted the party for its good, succeeded by their untiring labor and earnest work on Tuesday in reducing the Republican majority in Plainfield. The following table shows the city's vote the last time an election for Senator and Sheriff was held, and the vote on Tuesday. Figures cannot lie and the Republican loss cannot be denied.

Union County's popular Republican ex-Sheriff was elected Mayor of Elizabeth, over the present Democratic incumbent, Mayor Bonnett. The Democrats elected two out of the four Freeholders.

Somerset County Redeemed.

The returns from Somerset County are very encouraging, and show the gratifying result of a victory for the Democracy. As the Messenger well says: "Our entire ticket has been elected and the Democracy is wearing smiles all over their faces. This has been a victory achieved by pure worth against corruption and wrong. We have hopes of the Republic when we see that the lavish use of money can't succeed against character. Money has been used without stint to influence the election in Somerset County by our opponents, but all to no purpose, the people have said—'thy money perish with thee.'"

The following are the figures as near as can be obtained unofficially.

Nothing in the way of a comparison can be fairer than to publish the majorities of Messrs. Doughty and Schenck in the recent election and in 1878 when about the same vote was polled and no other issue than party principals represented by the same two men, entered into the campaign. In the State.

The latest returns from the State show that the Democrats have made considerable gains, but not enough to change the complexion of the Legislature, which will remain Republican on joint ballot. The Republicans do not quite hold their own, as, in spite of a gerrymander of the Assembly districts which was outrageously unfair, they only retain control of the Senate by a reduced majority, and do not control the Assembly, which is a tie politically. The following is the situation from a Republican stand point:

[illegible], 29; Democrats, 29; Independent [illegible] Republican and anti-monopoly, 1.

Out of the 8 Senators elected, the Republicans elect 4 and the Democrats 3. Camden, Salem, Monmouth and Union Counties elect Republicans; Gloucester, Somerset and Warren, Democrats. The Senate will stand 13 Republicans and 8 Democrats; the House, 30 Republicans and 30 Democrats, leaving a Republican majority of 5 on joint ballot. House of Assembly—Atlantic, 1 Democrat; Bergen, 2 Democrats; Burlington, 3 Republicans; Camden, 2 Republicans and one Democrat; Cape May, 1 Republican; Cumberland, 1 Republican, 1 Democrat; Essex, 7 Republicans, 3 Democrats; Gloucester, 1 Democrat; Hudson, 3 Republicans and 7 Democrats; Hunterdon, 2 Democrats, Mercer, 2 Republicans and 1 Democrat; Middlesex, 2 Republicans and 1 Democrat; Monmouth, 1 Republican and 2 Democrats; Morris, 2 Republicans, 1 Democrat; Ocean, 1 Democrat; Passaic, 3 Republicans and 1 Democrat; Salem, 1 Republican; Somerset, 1 Democrat; Sussex, 1 Democrat; Union, 2 Republicans and 1 Democrat, and Warren, 2 Democrats; total, Republicans, 30; Democrats, 30. The latest returns give a reduced Republican majority in the Legislature. The Senate stands—Republicans, 13; Democrats, 8, and the Assembly, Republicans, 28; Democrats, 30, with one Anti-Monopoly Republican from Jersey City, and one doubtful, but claimed by the Republicans, in Monmouth. The Democrats gain Senators from Somerset, Gloucester and Warren Counties, and the Republicans one from Monmouth.

From the latest reports we are unable to state whether the County of Union is Democratic or Republican on Coroners. It looks as though Lesson, (Dem.) is elected by a small majority.

FIRE MATTERS.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department met in regular meeting on the 2d of November. Present Messrs. VanWinkle, Depew, Jones, Gillies and Finig. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. Eng. Co., No. 2 recommended Mr. Chas. VanWinkle as a new member and gave notice of Mr. Walter Grant's removal from town. Messrs. W. S. Chase and P. S. Hapenny of No. 2., and Messrs. D. McCarty, P. Flynn and P. Galbraith of No. 3., were confirmed by the Board as members of the Department. Mr. Gillies from the Com. on Repairs and Supplies, submitted a report of Messrs. Carney Bros who had been requested to make an examination of the heaters in the different engine houses. That in No. 1's house was reported as not worth fixing, No. 2's as in fair condition and No. 3's as needing some repairs. Mr. Jones moved, seconded by Mr. Depew, that the Com. make inquiry and submit estimates at the next regular meeting, as to the cost of new heaters in each of the three houses. Mr. Jones from the Com. on Wells reported that the property in the vicinity of Ninth street and Broadway was in danger from fire, on account of a lack of water supply in that section. He also advised that three new wells be built, one at Ninth street between First Place and Broadway, one on Franklin Place and one on Grandview avenue, North Plainfield. The latter location was 2,000 feet from any water and it would be necessary to go down about 23 feet. On authority of the Board, the Committee advertise in this issue for sealed proposals for building wells at two of the locations recommended. The Treasurer reported as balance on hand $3,624.36. The following were presented for confirmation by No. 1 Eng. Co.: Messrs. Chas. Huff, James Huntington, Isaac Taylor, Frank Runyon, A. Ackerman, John Nicholl, Chas. Ward and P. Gaskill. Laid over for thirty days. A communication from No. 2 Eng. Co., was read reporting two members expelled and three dropped from the roll. Laid on the table to allow such members an opportunity of defending themselves if they so choose to do. On the report of the Secretary as to the correctness of the application of Mr. A. M. Vail, a certificate of exemption was granted. The following bills were ordered paid: Jas. R. Frazee, $4.80; H. Hamilton, 8; C. R. Hope, 2; Charles Johnson, 1; Henry Goeller, 2.25; T. O. Doane, 17.14; and Jacob Sutphen, 1.80. The claim of Mr. Isaac Brokaw for assessing in North Plainfield, $29.20, was referred to the Treasurer with power to pay if found correct. The President stated that charges had been made against a member of Alert Hose Co., a copy of which he would forward to the former company in order that it might appear in the matter at the next meeting of the Board. Mr. Jones stated No. 2 Eng. Co., had reported to him disorderly conduct on the part of some of its hose boys. The President replied that the Board did not recognise any "Hose Co.," as being connected with No. 2 Eng. Co., and that the latter must attend to the conduct of any such organization of its own. The Board then adjourned.

The Zephyr H. & L. boys were agreeably surprised at their house on Monday evening last at about 9:30 o'clock, by a visit from the members of the Goodwill Band of New Brunswick. These well-known musicians were cordially welcomed and generously entertained, while they followed up their unexpected appearance with the presentation to the fire boys of a token of esteem in the shape of a handsomely framed picture containing the photographs of every member of the band. Mr. George Vincent was delegated to present the gift and said:

GENTLEMEN:—It affords me great pleasure to say to you that I have been selected to present to you a slight token of our esteem and good will, and in accepting it we trust that you will take with it the kindest wishes of each and every member of the band, and may the friendship which has sprung up between us, grow and endure forever.

Speeches short but full of good-fellowship and sincere appreciation of the favor received, were made in reply by Foreman Chas. Smith, 2d Ass't. Samuel Robinson, Chief Frank Vail, Fire Commissioner Solomon Finig and ex-foremen N. Sebring and Chas. Davis. A visit to the house of No. 2 Engine Co., followed, where the party were treated to brief speeches by Foreman Wm. Wright and Secretary Horace Martin, during which they also enjoyed the fragrant cigars so generously furnished. As bountiful a supper as could be gotten up on so short a notice was then served and, in the words of the New Brunswick Fredonian, "Our boys left the beautiful city of Plainfield at three o'clock this morning, more than satisfied with their reception at the hands of the Zephyrs, and bearing in fond remembrance the welcome accorded to them by No. 2's men, whom they visited."

Just after the false alarm of fire on Tuesday evening had called out the Department, Mr. John Gable, 2d Ass't. Engineer of Gazelle No. 1, had two of his toes crushed by the unexpected cranking of the front wheels of the steamer and the passing of one of them over his foot.

The first of a series of lectures and entertainments for the season of 1881 and '82 under the control of the Congregational Church of Westfield, was given last Monday evening, by J. Beaver Page, consisting of miscellaneous readings, &c. There was a small attendance, owing to severe rain on that evening.

The Commissioners appointed by the Court of Chancery to divide the real estate which Brooks Hall owned at the time of his death, have had several meetings and, after viewing the premises, come to a decision about the same. Their preliminary report will be placed in the hands of the Attorney to be written up and presented to the Chancellor.

The election on Tuesday passed off very quietly and a small vote was polled. However, the Democrats made inroads upon the Republican majority of last Fall, which was twenty-nine for their whole ticket. The result this year was a tie on Senator, between Hyer and Vail, Forsyth, Democrat, one majority and Sheldon six majority. There were thirteen National or Greenback tickets cast.

A disgraceful row occurred last Saturday evening on Broad street. After the Hotel had been closed, some rowdies who had partaken of a little too much beer, attacked and beat an innocent man on the street because he had refused to fight one of their party. It is a disgrace to the community that this is allowed, but the query is, how are you going to stop it? No lock-up! No police regulations!

On Friday evening last the house of Patrick Grogan, on Broad street, was entered by a sneak thief while the family were at supper. Hearing a noise in the upper part of the house, one of the family opened the door leading into the hall and had started to go up stairs when the thief ran down and out of the front hall door, succeeding in making his escape. None of the male members of the family were at home at the time. On searching through the house nothing was missed.

On Friday evening last two tramps appeared on Broad street; one with his head tied up and face covered with blood. They were looking for a surgeon to have the wound dressed and finally succeeded in finding Dr. Cooper, who kindly consented to dress the wound which was a very deep gash over the left eye, as if it had been made with a very sharp instrument. It was impossible to get any facts from the parties as to how he came to receive the wound. Rumor has it, that they, with several other tramps, had a desperate fight on North avenue towards Cranford, and came of second best.

LIFE AND WORK OF GARFIELD: Embracing an Account of His Struggles in Childhood; His Career as a Soldier; His Success as a Statesman; His Elevation to the Presidency; His Dastardly Assassination. By John Clark Ridpath, L. L. D. Published by Jones Brothers & Co., Cincinnati, Chicago, Philadelphia, Kansas City. The preparation of this memorial volume was well and wisely committed to the hands of Professor Ridpath. Himself an accomplished scholar, of severe and delicate taste, and a love of research which no difficulty can daunt, he is just the man of all others to find the facts and make up the record of the scholar and statesman whose memory now occupies a place in the hearts of his countrymen. It may be truthfully said of Dr. Ridpath that he has "an elevated and pure discretion, sound and steady judgment; that he has seen and heard and read many of divers books and writings; and, what is more, he has the skill and practice of turning all this rich and varied knowledge to the best account." He stands in the front rank of living historians, and his contributions to standard literature are not only voluminous, but well-judged, scholarly and finished. He cannot make an uninteresting book upon any subject.

"I DON'T WANT A PLASTER,"

said a sick man to a druggist, "can't you give me something to cure me?" His symptoms were a lame back and disordered urine, and were a sure indication of kidney disease. The druggist told him to use Kidney-Wort and in a short time it effected a complete cure. Have you these symptoms? Then get a box or bottle to-day—before you become incurable. It is the cure; safe and sure.—Knoxville Republican.

NOT OPEN TO THAT OBJECTION.

Temperance people often say that most of the popular medicines they see advertised are nine-tenths rum. That is true of many, but not of Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy." The Doctor agrees with his temperance friends that it is better to die of disease than to drink. Favorite Remedy cures Kidney Troubles, Liver Complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, as nothing else does or ever did. It drives away sickness. It cleans the blood. It costs only a dollar to try it. Ask your druggist or send to the Doctor at Rondout, N. Y.

WOMEN EVERYWHERE use Parker's Ginger Tonic, because they have learned from experience that it overcomes despondency, indigestion, weakness in the back and kidneys, and other troubles of the sex.—Home Journal.

DON'T BE SILLY.

Don't let a foolish prejudice against popular medicines stand between you and the health of your wife, child or baby. It is always right to advertise a blessing. Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" is a blessing. It has saved thousands. [illegible] For troubles of the kidneys, bowels, liver and blood, it has no equal.

Derangement of the liver, with constipation, injure the complexion, induce pimples, sallow skin, etc. Remove the cause by using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose.

SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a Cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1. If your Lungs are sore, Chest or Back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by R. M. Steele.

ANSWER THIS QUESTION.

Why do so many people we see around us, seem to prefer to suffer and be made miserable by Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Coming up of the Food, Yellow Skin, when for 75 cts. we will sell them Shiloh's Vitalizer, guaranteed to cure them. Sold by R. M. Steele.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A Marvelous cure for Catarrh, Diptheria, Canker Mouth and Headache. With each bottle there is an ingenious nasal injector for the more successful treatment of these complaints without extra charge. Price 50 cts. Sold by R. M. Steele.

WHAT AILS YOU?

Is it a disordered liver giving you a yellow skin or costive bowels, which have resulted in distressing piles or do your kidneys refuse to perform their functions? If so, your system will soon be clogged with poisons. Take a few doses of Kidney-Wort and you'll feel like a new man [illegible]

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a VIOLENT BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS followed by a severe cough. I soon began to loose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced to take DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists.

SAVED BY A BONNET.

The other day Colonel Fizzletop, of Austin, took his wife out for a drive. He was driving a very high-spirited horse, when it occurred to Mrs. Fizzletop that she would like to drive that kind of an animal. She remarked:

"I have often heard you say, colonel, that a woman did not know how to drive; I want to show you how badly mistaken you are. Give me the reins."

"Not with this buggy," replied Fizzletop, trembling all over. "I know you can drive splendidly, but wait until to-morrow, and I'll borrow an old second-hand buggy from a friend for you to practice with. I saw where a woman in Galveston smashed up a new buggy, so that it cost $40 to repair it, so that it could be used for kindling wood. Let us keep this buggy to go to our funerals in."

"So you think I can't drive."

"I know you can drive well enough, but before going down the avenue let's drive back and kiss the children and your mother good-bye, and then go over to the marble yard and pick out a tombstone, and then down to the undertaker and get measured, and then—"

"Out to the lunatic asylum and leave you there for a while. You are talking like you didn't have good sense."

"All right. Just take the reins and give the people a chance to fresco the wheels with their brains."

"You are in no danger of losing any brains. Get up!" said Mrs. Fizzletop, as she took the lines.

"How polite people are to get out of the way," she remarked, as the near wheels scraped a flying drummer's pants and the end of one of the shafts knocking the hat off the head of a prominent banker, while a life insurance agent was acting as a brake for the off wheel, without intending it at all.

Just at this moment, when Fizzletop had given up all hopes, just as the buggy was about to telescope a street car full of passengers, just as the drivers of other teams were whipping up their teams to escape from the Fizzletop avalanche on wheels, Mrs. Fizzletop saw a new hat in a store window, and in spite of the frantic efforts of the frenzied animal, held him as in a vise, until Fizzletop had purchased the hat, and thus the danger was averted. When a lady makes up her mind to have a new bonnet, two locomotives cannot pull her past the store window.

A BRIDE THAT HESITATED.

A couple from Virginia landed in Milton the other morning to be married by 'Squire Lewis. They walked hand-in-hand up Main street and took a seat on the front step of the 'Squire's office, and the man asked for a license. As the 'Squire was preparing to make it out the buxom girl began to inch off, and hesitated, and finally said to the young man in a half whisper:

"John," said she, "I don't believe I will—I never did feel so flustrated—lawd! I wonder what pappy's doing now—I feel right tremblesome—let's go back; come on, John." "Well, you don't want the license, then?" said the Squire.

"Hold on thar, Mister; yes, we do," said the man, and he moved closer up and set his chin to earnest work. "Now Sally," said he, "don't go on that way; what 'ud the folks say? It 'ud be awful hard on me. An' thar's the candy stew at Bob Brown's to-night, an' aller that, and Sukey Jones would jest die a grinning over you about it. She was mad as pizen yisterday when she heard we was comin'—"

"I don't mind her more'n the dust off my feet, but I feel so skittish like, John; wish I may die if I hain't sorry we come. I don't want 'er get married, John."

"Say, Mister, fix on your papers," said John. "Marryin's nuthin'; no more than standin' up in spellin' class at Oldfield school."

"Well, stand up," said the 'Squire. "I'm ready."

But as the ceremony was under way the girl jerked back, exclaiming: "I'll be John-dinged ef I do!"

The 'Squire suggested that the license had been given and they had gone too far to back out now.

"That's so!" said John. "Stand fast, Sally! Don't get all in'er quiver now—" gently taking her arm. "Come'r long in place; it's most over with"—and she sidled back.

As the 'Squire said, "I now pronounce you man and wife!"

"Lud a mercy!" cried the bride, "an' is it done?"

"You bet 'tis—easy as spellin,' and now we'll go," said the man, and they mounted the horse double and rode out of town.—Reidsville (N. C.) Times.

When a country editor is requested by his wife to stop at the dry goods store on his way home and purchase a spool of gold-colored cotton, he is obliged to first call at a bank to ascertain the color of gold.

Smith—"I once possessed a splendid dog, which could always distinguish between a vagabond and a respectable person." Jones—"Well, what became of him?" "Oh, I was obliged to give him away. He bit me."

Brownson—'Well, I always make it a rule to tell my wife everything that happens.' Smithkins—'Oh, my dear fellow, that's nothing. I tell my wife lots of things that never happened at all.'

A bridal couple from Washoe Valley, at breakfast in a Reno hotel, conversed as follows: He—'Shall I skin you a pertater, honey?' She—'No, thank you deary. I have one already skun.'

A young lady who had ordered home a pair of unusually high-heeled boots, was flushed by the announcement of Bridget, fresh from answering the door bell: 'If ye plaise, miss, there's a man in the hall below wid a pair of shtilts for yez.'

Thackeray's idea of a dandy is given in the following note: 'My Dear Edward: A dandy is an individual who would be a lady if he could, but as he can't, does all he can to show the world he's not a man.'

An agricultural paper has an article on kicking cows. It is hard to imagine a man who can be so mean as to go around kicking a useful and inoffensive animals, but we suppose there are such wretches, or this article would not have been written.

A son of ex-Senator Randolph, who has been Assistant Despatcher on the Central Railroad at Phillipsburg for several months past, has been appointed Superintendent of the High Bridge Railroad, and will make Dover his headquarters.

A new step, called the "glide" is being taught by Boston dancing masters. Chicago young men have long practiced it on evenings when the girl's sire is at home. On a smooth gravel path the glide is all right, but where there is a high gate and a dog in the yard it won't work.

'Any letter for me?' asked a young lady of a post-mistress in a country town.

'No,' was the reply.

'Strange,' said the young lady aloud to herself as she turned away.

'Nothing strange about it,' cried the post-mistress, through the delivery window. 'You ain't answered the last letter he writ ye.'

A very handsome collection of gems purchased by John Taylor Johnston from Rev. C. W. King, has been presented to the New York Metropolitan Museum, which now, in some of its departments, stands on a level with the best museums of Europe. Mr. Johnston has shown a great deal of public spirit, and especially in the promotion of art. New York is indebted to him more than to any other of her citizens. The Metropolitan Museum would hardly have had existence but for him. Would that such public spirit were more universal.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

Jones was eating dinner at his boarding house, and during his investigation of his plate of hash he ran across a piece of postage stamp. The landlady saw him pick it out and look at it, and she began to get mad. But Jones said nothing, and laying down his knife and fork, began to dig with a spoon in the dish from which the piece of stamp had come. Finally when the lady could stand it no longer, she said:

'Well, Mr. Jones, what is the matter?'

'Oh, nothing,' replied the philosopher.

'What are you prying in the victuals for, then?'

'Why, you see the piece of stamp reminded me of a letter I was expecting, and I just thought I'd prod around this dish a while, and see if I couldn't find the mail carrier, and ask him about the letter without walking down to the office.'

The mail carrier was not found, and Jones has changed his boarding house.

A man feels boulder when he has the rocks in his pocket.

It was the schoolmaster that wrote "The Vacant Chair," soon after a boy left a bent pin in it.

Sam Johnson says that the worst kind of a "widder" to be struck wid is to be struck wid a brick.

Some folks we know of appear to have more fear of getting into the papers than they have of getting into jail.

"Why don't you have some stile about you?" said the man who had looked along a mile of barbed fence for an entrance.

The wild geese fly early this year. Better lay in a good stock of coal, weather-strip the doors and windows, buy a dozen extra blankets, and see that your wife and daughters have thick boots and ulsters. P. S.—If you have no wife and daughters, remember those of some other man. Always do as you would be done by in such matters.

IT MAKES NO DRUNKARDS,

Breaks No Hearts, Excuses No Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. FAVORITE REMEDY is a combination of vegetable alteratives. It does not heat or inflame the blood, but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business documents and certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards, excuses no crimes, breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. Dr. Kennedy would have it understood that, while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, "Favorite Remedy," he still continues the practice of his profession. He treats all diseases, and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery.

POETRY.

I WOULD LIKE TO BE TRUE TO YOU.

Not but to me but to thyself,
To thine own heart, and mind and soul,
Shall world, or wealth, or silly smiles
Thy very life henceforth control?
Shall purest love be cast aside
To gratify a worldly pride?
The beggar in his straw thatched cot,
Is happier than the monarch crowned:
His heart, his mind, his love is pure,
Nor are his best affections drowned
In dreams of wealth and strange delight,
That come upon him day and night.
I had not asked the that though should'st,
Be true to me, had not thy lips,
In tell-tale speech betrayed thy thoughts,
So truth unbidden often slips;
E'en Ponto raised his little head,
As if he knew what you had said.
You would decide our future fate,
There at thy feet the priceless gem
Of pure affection I will lay,
And will you fling it back again,
And with a mighty will control,
The purest feelings of your soul?
Others with smiles they do not mean,
Will court your love but for a day,
Dazzle you with their show of wealth,
To win you from your love away.
Shall they prevail, how shall it be?
Loved one, I leave it all with thee.

MRS. M. A. BARTTIX.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

A TERRIBLE NIGHT.

In 1870, Job Morrison, guide and frontiersman, was acting assistant paymaster in the Yellowstone division, U. S. A., having been temporarily employed to fill the place of an officer whose sickness prevented him from performing the regular duties of the position. As such assistant it became necessary for Morrison, early in May, to traverse a large section of country, visit a number of outlying posts and pay the troops. He was entitled to a guard, but, having visited Laramie, Fetterman, McKinnie and Kearney, he dismissed his escort and proceed alone across the Big Horn Mountains by Indian trails toward Camp Brown, from which point he could strike to the railroad again at Green River, and thus return home.

The greater portion of his funds was exhausted. Only some fifteen hundred dollars remained to be paid at Camp Brown. He was unknown as a government officer, was a thorough mountaineer and well-armed and he, therefore, had no fear nor hesitation in proceeding as described. It would be far quicker to follow the beaten road with his guide.

It was the third day of his lonely ride, toward night, that he struck the Bay Water Creek, a tributary of the Big Horn. Following this stream, he would at length leave the mountains and enter upon a plateau, across which a ride of thirty-six miles would bring him to his destination. One more night in the wilderness, and the risk of his adventure would be over.

Musing, as his horse picked his way along the obscure trail, yet watchful, Morrison had ridden a dozen miles, and the shadows of the coming night were warning him that it was time to camp, when suddenly there fell upon his trained ear the bark of a dog.

He haulted, and again it sounded, not far in front.

He urged his horse onward, and upon rounding a bluff, thirty rods ahead, to his astonishment he saw a small cabin, a white man standing in the door and a hound at his feet.

A veritable hunter's retreat. Morrison's heart was gladdened. He rode rapidly forward.

"Evenin' friend," he called to the man. "Yer deep in the timber, but it's lucky for me. Can I stay all night?"

The fellow raised his head, and a terrible recollection passed through the paymaster's brain. This newly-found friend was none other than Dan Lamoreaux, a border ruffian of the worst stripe whom he had known in Kansas City years before—a man stained with crime, and for whose head a reward was even now offered.

The cabin in the wilderness was a hiding place, not a home.

But the other seemed to regard Morrison as an utter stranger, and looking at him carelessly he drawled:

"I reckon ye kin light. Thar's a blanket inside, and the women-folks 'll knock ye up somethin' to eat."

Women-folks! Morrison stared, but obeyed his host's injunction, and, dismounting, entered the cabin.

A coarse supper of venison, tea and hard bread was spread, and seated with the desperado and his pretended wife, Morrison ate. Then removing his pistol belt, he hung it upon the wall and filled his pipe for an evening's smoke.

As the paymaster knelt upon the broad, rough hearth-stone to draw a coal from the fire, with which to light his pipe, the old woman, who shivered in the corner, shot one sharp glance at him, and then, rubbing her hands together until the joints crackled and the long nails rasped upon her tough and leathery skin, she muttered some hardly distinguishable words.

"Under the stone—under the stone! Ha! ha! and I did it! I did it! His throat was soft and smooth, and I did it! Under the stone! Ha! ha!"

"Be them thar weepins loaded?" Asked the younger woman as he resumed his seat, pointing to the revolvers. "I'm despute skeered 'o powder."

"What! A hunter's wife afraid 'o powder. That's a good un," and Morrison laughed heartily, even while his heart quaked at the suggestive question. "Well, I'll put them on ag'in, an' then you won't be in no danger."

He arose to execute this suggestion. But at that instant Lamoreaux entered, and as if cognized of what had happened, he raised his hand took the pistol belt from the wall, and placed it carefully in a deep chest that served as a seat near the fire, closed the same and locked it remarking as he did so:

"Thar, Lizette! Ye needn't be skeered now. Them pistels is safe." Then, turning to his astonished guest, he continued, "No need of weepins in these diggin's, an' they'll be redy for ye in the mornin'."

There was nothing for it but to acquiesce and so, unarmed, this old enemy of Lamoreaux's sat in his den, and with the certainty in his heart that the desperado had discovered him and meditated his death, he coolly speculated upon his chances of escape.

Small, indeed, he found them, trapped as he was, and the words of the old mother again recurred to him with more of fatal meaning than before—"Under the stone! under the stone."

The evening wore on. Morrison attempted some conversation with his host, but the man was taciturn and morose, and answered him shortly. The younger woman busied herself about the room, and the elder one crooned and muttered in her chimney corner, her ugly, wrinkled face lit by the fitful gleams of the dying fire, until, to the brooding imagination of the watchful traveler, she seemed a very witch gloating above the grave of her victims. Bad thoughts those for one whose wits alone must save him from the murderer's knife ere morning, and at length, as the tallow dip shortened and its "winding sheet" grew long and white, Morrison arose from his stool, knocked the ashes from his pipe, and asked that he might be shown where to lie, as he was worn and weary.

He felt sure of one thing—no attack would be made upon him until he slept, unless he should show a fear of attack, and he therefore desired by an apparent trustfulness, to obtain all possible time, in order to plan a defense or escape.

At his request Lizette arose.

"Ye kin go into the loft," said she pointing toward the rough ladder. "Thar's a blanket thar, an' I reckon ye'll be comfortable. Ef you here any noise below don't be disturbed, for the old woman sleeps by the fire, an' she talks and walks around sometimes. She's broke, kinder."

Morrison laughed lightly.

"I'm to hearty a sleeper to notice that under a roof. In the timber one's ear is open all night, but when I bunk in a cabin I sleep."

He took the candle offered him and climbed to the loft above. Then, finding the blankets, he threw himself down, extinguished his light, and waited.

One weapon his enemies had left him—his trusty knife in his boot-top—and with this closely grasped in his hand, he turned his face to the roughly-hewn floor of logs and listened.

For a little no sound broke the silence below. Without, he could hear the occasional stamp of his horse, tethered near the hut, and the soughing of the night wind in the pines.

There was no window in the attic, and the roof was of heavy logs. Flight was out of the question. If attacked, he must fight for his life.

He set his teeth grimly. This was not the first time he had faced death, but the odds were fearfully against him.

An hour passed, when suddenly there was a stir below. With bated breath he listened.

Lamoreaux had evidently arisen, for his heavy feet could be heard upon the floor beneath. He stopped near the fire-place.

"Git up!"

The words were half whispered, but they came clearly to Morrison's ears. And it was the hag who answered, cackling, meantime:

"Under the stone—under the stone! I did it!"

"Curse ye and the stone, too!" hissed the man. "You must do it ag'in. Git up above an'—ye know what."

There was silence for a moment.

"Come, be quick, ye old devil."

"Under the stone—under the stone!" crooned the witch. "What, more?" she suddenly continued, in an intense tone. "An' has he money, money—gold? An' will ye give me some if I tear his throat out? More than before?"

Her voice was louder now, and wild.

"Aye, I'll give ye more! Git up—quickly, too, and see he does not cry out. See," continued Lamoreaux, as the woman arose, "he must not wake. Ye must shut yer hands so—tight! tight! an' never open them!"

"I know, I know," croaked the murderess, hoarsely. "Help me up."

And, from the sound, Morrison knew that together they were approaching the foot of the ladder.

His blood ran cold. Must he kill this old woman? Was she the strangler who carried out the crimes her demon son planned? It would seem so.

The ladder was creaking beneath her ascending tread. A moment later, and the waiting man in the loft could discern a crouching figure upon the floor, creeping cat-like toward him. He even noted the glisten of her fiendish eyes, the light scratch of her claw-like nails against the logs. Motionless he lay, his knife thrust back into his boot-top, both hands ready for the attack.

The woman was alone. Her noble son waited below until the danger was past.

Nearer and nearer she drew, now halting to listen, and again advancing, but so directing her course as to come upon her intended victim from the direction in which his head lay. So doing, she could seize his throat with her whole strength; and he, thus terribly awakened, would vainly beat the air without danger to the strangler. It was a simple plan, yet diabolically cunning.

Already the hag was in place—already her skinny arms were outstretched to her victim, her poisonous breath upon his brow—when, with a sudden sweep of his arms of steel, Morrison caught his assailant as in a vice, lifted her bodily from the floor and buried her face downward in the blankets upon which he lay, winding her body from head to feet in the heavy cloth, until she was securely gagged and bound; then he again drew his knife and crept silently to the edge of the hole.

Lamoreaux was standing below. The sound of the struggle had reached him; and now, with outstarting eyes and trembling limbs, he awaited the signal to seize his prey. But it came not.

The man was troubled. He whistled softly, then called:

"Granny! How is it?"

No reply, and only the far-away cry of an owl broke the deathly stillness of the night. Lamoreaux's breath came hard and hissing through his teeth.

"Curses upon her wrinkled hide! what has happened?" he muttered, and called a second time.

Still no reply; even the cry of the owl was silenced now. Night and mystery reigned.

"The devil's witch is robbing the corpse herself," exclaimed the desperado, in a low, intense tone. "I must see to it."

And the man began slowly and with the utmost silence to ascend the ladder.

Above crouched Morrison, every nerve tense as steel, his eyes gleaming with that light which shines from those of a panther ere he springs, his breath indrawn—waiting.

Step by step Lamoreaux drew near, until first his head, then his neck, and last his shoulders were above the level of the floor; then, with a fierce yell—an Indian war-cry—Morrison's arm shot forward like the bolt from a bow. There was a single gleam of a flashing blade, a half-uttered cry of horror cut cleanly in two, a sudden sinking of the man's body, and with a heavy plunge the desperado went backward to the floor below, dead!

Morrison was saved!

And then terror seized him, and the strain once gone he trembled like an aspen leaf. Quickly descending, with a shudder he passed the motionless figure at the ladder's foot; stayed not to secure his pistols even, mounted and spurring hard the astonished steed through all the hours of the starry night that remained, he rode southward until, just as the bright sun tipped the eastern sky with red, the Stars above Camp Brown gladdened his weary eyes, and a little later, exhausted and wan, he told his tale to the wondering officers at the post.

Ere night a mounted guard had investigated the cabin upon Bitter Water Creek, found and buried Lamoreaux and his mother who had died the death she would have meted to others, strangled by the blankets in which she was bound, and returned to Morrison his stolen pistols; but the younger woman was never seen again.

The hut was burned, the lonely graves hidden beneath its ashes and no trail to-day remains of the den or its inhabitants; but the memory of that terrible night will sadden the life of Ben Morrison, even though he live beyond the allotted period of three score years and ten.

A MODERN MIRANDA.

I wish William Black could have seen Rosalind Young, who supplied the interesting article on the Pitcairn Island, published in Scribner's for May, as I saw her four years ago. A tall, straight, black-haired, black-eyed, brown-skinned young woman with bare head and bare feet and ankles, standing on the beach of her native island waiting for our boat to make a landing in the surf. Her long hair was tossed and tangled by the wind which swept her short calico skirt lightly against her lithe, graceful form. I knew just as much about her history as any one else, and that, I thought, was all there was to know. She was the descendant of an English sailor, one of the mutineers of the ship Bounty, and his Otaheitean wife. She was about twenty years old, and had lived all her life on Pitcairn Island, excepting the two years passed on Norfolk Island, to which all the Pitcairn Islanders had immigrated when she was a baby. This was about all that history told of her and her strange people, but I knew more. The captain of our ship had visited the island once, and told me that this Rosalind Young was very clever, was a teacher of music and the ordinary grammar school branches to the island children; that she had never seen a white young lady; had only such ideas of the world outside of her little South Pacific Island—smaller than Angel Island—as she could gather from the miscellaneous collections of books, papers and magazines left at long intervals by passing ships. Surely, then, I thought I knew all that could be of any interest in the history of such an uneventful life. But when our boat neared the surf, and I saw this strange girl standing there and looking at me with perfectly honest wonder, I began to think of her in a very different way. Her situation was so unlike anything else in the world that there was nothing offered to my mind giving even a hint how to greet her or how to consider her. If she had only been a semi-barbarian, I thought for the moment that she would have been more interesting. But she was a devout Christian, and intelligent at that; knowing ever so much more about the Bible than I did, but she had never seen a regularly ordained minister, was utterly unacquainted with missionary work, had no conception of what a church society was, and was blankly ignorant of the subtile relation of sewing circles to the salvation of souls. Looking across the line of white surf that rolled between us, I saw her standing like a statue on a tide-washed rock, holding her tangled hair back from her eyes with a bronzed hand, her bare feet half buried in the sea moss covering the rock. I saw, too, that she was beginning to look just a little shy, and my feminine intuition told me that she was for the first time beginning to realize the difference between her and the rest of civilized womanhood in the matter of dress.

Just as our boat touched the beach and a stalwart islander had lifted me in his arms beyond the line of wet sand, Rosalind stepped behind some of the older women with exactly the expression of doubting wonder a young child will suddenly turn from the approach of a man whose friendly relations are not understood. She greeted me, and from that moment talked freely and unaffectedly with me. I had intended to ask her a thousand questions that had occurred to me while I watched her across the surf. Did she want to see the world? Had she any longings for the joys of shopping? (I thought to establish by this last question the fact that the desire for shopping was a natural and not a cultivated one.) Had she formed any idea, independent of her reading, of what people in great cities were like? But somehow there was an air about her that repelled any thought of such question. I soon began realize that here was a woman of education and refinement, who had only such notions of the world as children have of fairy-land—a place in whose existence they firmly believe, but never expect or even hope to see; the wonders of which possess only such abstract interest as lies in the fact that they furnish material for beautiful and strange stories.

She was busy, happy and contented in the little dot of surf-fringed land—of which, by the way, she was very proud, and lovingly spoke of as "our beautiful island home." The last thought with her—as, indeed, with all of the islanders—is the strangeness of their life and situation. The third, fourth and fifth generations removed from the mutineers and their island wives, who settled upon Pitcairn nearly a hundred years ago, are now living upon the island.

The Elders follow the example of the original Young and Adams, but endeavor to preserve no traditions of the tragic early history of the island, but teach instead strict moral precepts, the services of the Church of England and habits of frugality and industry. A hundred years of this has left the minds of the generation to which Rosalind belongs clear of even inherited ideas of the world outside, and imbued them with thorough unquestioning contentment with the life they find about them. The quaint mannerism of speech and droll (to us) line of topics chosen for conversation by Rosalind, are fairly represented in the article she furnished for the May Scribner's. It was because she did not know in what light she would appear most interesting that she considered her position a natural one, and had no idea that any of her personal thoughts and impressions, and the manner of life on the island would be most interesting, that she prefers to talk and write only about the births, marriages and deaths, the condition of crops, and the prospects of another vessel stopping at the island. These are the subjects that most interest them, and ingenuously they think will most interest others. I stayed only a few hours on the island, and in that time learned the family history of nearly the entire population, numbering about eighty.

I took a meal at Rosalind's house; heard an eloquent grace before, and thanksgiving after, eating; heard Rosalind play on the melodeon (Queen Victoria has since sent them a handsome cabinet organ), and heard some religious music very well sung.

The children are taught to read music when they are taught to read English, and read either with equal facility. Few of them care to progress in learning beyond a degree which makes reading their Bible, prayer book and religious song books an easy matter. Rosalind, however, eagerly looks forward to the occasional consignment of books, papers and magazines. She reads—studies rather—everything printed which is sent to the island, and the result is that her literary attainments are of a broader and higher character than those of the average seminary girl. All this, however, without any more personal interest in the people and things read about than any city bred young lady would have in the character of "The Daughters of an Egyptian King."—San Francisco Call.

A PATHETIC INCIDENT.

Some days since a disseminator of Chaff noticed a ragged little bootblack culling some bright blossoms from a bruised and faded boquet which a chambermaid had thrown from a window into the alley.

"What are you doing with that bouquet my lad?" asked the disseminator.

"Nawthin," was the lad's reply as he kept on at his work.

"But do you love flowers so well that you are willing to pick them out of the mud?"

"I s'pose that's my bizness an' none o' your'n."

"Oh! certainly; but you surely cannot expect to sell those faded flowers."

"Sell 'em! I'm goin' to take 'em to Lil."

"Oh, oh! Lil is your sweetheart. I see."

"No, Lil is not my sweetheart—she is my sick sister," said the boy, as his eyes flashed and his dirty chin quivered. "Lil's been sick a long time—an' lately she talked of nothin' but flowers an' birds, but mother told me this mornin' that Lil would die b-b before the birds and flowers come back."

The boy burst into tears.

"Come with me to the florist's, and your sister shall have a nice boquet."

The little fellow was soon bounding home with his treasure. Next day he appeared and said:

"I came to thank you, sir, for Lil. That boquet done her so much good, and she hugged and hugged it till she set herself a coughin' agin. She says she'll come bime-bye and work for you, soon's she gits well."

An order was sent to the florist to give the boy every other day a boquet for Lil.

It was only the day before yesterday that the bootblack appeared again. He stepped inside the office door and said:

"Thank you, sir, but Lil—Lil" (tears were streaming from his eyes) "won't—need—the florist any more."

He went quickly away, but his brief words had told the story. Lil won't need the flowers any more, but they will grow above her and the birds will sing around her just the same.

A HUSBAND WHO LAUGHED.

Several men were making purchases in a Michigan avenue store yesterday, when a man, who had been looking of a window for some time turned and said:

"Well, that's a bad case."

"What is it?" inquired two or three at once.

"Well, I don't know who is the husband of this woman out here in the wagon, but if I was he I'd go across the street and smash that fellow's head."

"Why?"

"Why, because he has been working like a beaver for the last half hour to get up a flirtation with her."

At this one of the men began to chuckle. Then the chuckle ran into a laugh, and finally he had to sit down.

"What's the matter with you?" was asked.

"Why, I'm—I'm that woman's husband."

"Are you? And are you laughing over the flirtation?"

"I—I can't help it," he said, as he went off into another fit. "Just think of him a flirting and a strutting up and down and a doing the purty when the old woman out there has been stone blind for seven years—ha! ha! ha!"—Detroit Free Press.

An authority says that Pennsylvania's coal supply will be exhausted in another century. The wise will see the necessity of at once laying in a full supply.

Man in a St. Louis barroom refused to drink, and when he left, one citizen remarked to another: "Did you ever see anybody so durned eccentric?"

A Nashville woman committed suicide because her husband persisted in eating Limberger cheese. A Chicago woman would have considered this sufficiently strong ground for a divorce.

"What kind of a mark is that?" said Margrady to his friend Taltborge, pointing to a scar on his face. "It's a question mark," replied the other; "got it for asking a man if it was warm enough for him."

"You don't find any flies in my butter which I put on my table," said a Boston boarding mistress, proudly. "No," replied a border, "it's too strong for them." That boarder was given immediate notice to quit.

PROCLAMATION
BY THE GOVERNOR.

State of New Jersey,
Executive Department.

A retrospect of the events of the past year shows much of protecting mercy and beneficent grace for which we, as a people, should be grateful to Almighty God. Peace and prosperity have prevailed within our borders and pestilence has been kept aloof.

In accordance, therefore, with the custom established among us, I, George C. Ludlow, Governor of the State of New Jersey, do hereby appoint THURSDAY, THE 24TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, instant, as a day of public thanksgiving and praise throughout the State, wherein we may offer to the Ruler of the Universe our acknowledgment of the many blessings bestowed upon us and our supplication for a continuance of His favor and mercy.

Given under my hand and privy seal, at Trenton, this 9th day of November, Anno Domino, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty-One.
[L. S.]
Attest: GEO. C. LUDLOW, Governor.
Jos. L. Naar, Private Secretary.

OF IMPORTANCE TO ALL.

We elsewhere publish a letter signed by the representative men of our city of both parties requesting the Mayor to call a public meeting for the consideration of the interests of the community. This is followed by a notice in compliance with such request, designating Van Deventer Hall as the place and Tuesday evening next as the time for the holding of such a gathering. The importance of the occasion will be apparent to all, and we need hardly advise those who have the city's welfare at heart, to attend. Those especially who are given—in their ignorance of the true cause of Plainfield's unfortunate financial predicament—to an undeserved abuse of the city's officers, should be present and learn just who and what is to blame. There is hardly a citizen that cannot be persuaded, upon a thorough ventilation of the facts of the matter, that the laws are at fault and legislation of some sort is probably the only remedy. Those who allow the malcontents of their party to form their opinions for them, would be surprised if they knew how designedly they are being misled.

THE RESULT.

The result of last week's election, although failing in some particulars to meet the just expectations of our party, is on the whole satisfactory and favorable to the onward progress of Democracy.

Notwithstanding the choice of Republican Senators in the Counties of Union and Monmouth, both of whom ought by right to have been Democrats, we have increased our strength in the Legislature by equally balancing the House and cutting down the large opposition majority in the Senate. The Sheriff-elect of Union is a Democrat.

So far so good.

In New York there is a Democratic majority in both branches of the Legislature.

That is a grand victory.

In Pennsylvania and throughout the Western States the Republican majorities have been largely reduced, evidencing the growing might of the gallant old party of the Constitution and the People.

Democrats! Pick your flints and at them again!

AN OPEN DOOR.

The voice of indignation and threats of punishment heard in official circles at Washington few months ago against the Star Route thieves, promises to end in nothing.

A legal flaw, that proceedings should have been commenced by indictment and not by information, is the door opened for the robbers to escape and re-establish their villainous trade.

What kind of material composed the Attorney General and other Government officers to allow such a defect, if they desired conviction?

"If" becomes a serious word in that connection.

Did they so desire, honest men inquire.

The affair is very suspicious and not by any means pleasing to those who value integrity above chicanery.

The guilty Star Routers may go free, but the time comes when the people will know really why.

SHERIFF FORSYTH.

Sheriff Forsyth was sworn into office before the Judges of Union County Pleas at Elizabeth on Tuesday last and submitted for approval his bondsmen. After the legal ceremony, a bountiful collation was served in the Sheridan House and partaken of by a large number of the newly elected Sheriff's friends. Among those present were Judges McCormick, Mulford and Harper, ex-Sheriff and Mayor elect Ryder, County Clerk Vosseller, Surrogate Gerber, County Collector Sheridan, Gen. Drake, Hon. John Eagen, Hon. J. T. Crowell, &c. It was an enjoyable event throughout, made bright and happy by the best of personal good-will and the utterance of well chosen remarks. The occasion being an impromptu and informal affair, accounts for the absence of many who would otherwise have taken advantage of the opportunity to show their admiration for the County's popular Sheriff-elect.

THE ESSEX COUNTY SENATORSHIP.

The office of Senator from the county of Essex is in dispute. Ex-Judge Teese is claimed to be elected, as is also Mr. Stainsby, his opponent. The Republican committee gives Stainsby 28 majority and the Democratic committee claims ex-Judge Teese's election by 18 majority. Errors sufficient to make this change, have, it is said, been discovered in the returns from South Orange and Orange. It is likely that a recount will be had. The clerk of the First district of the Ninth ward states that an error was made by him—that the votes for Teese were credited to D. Smith and Smith's were credited to Teese. The change of these will make a difference of 37 votes in favor of Judge Teese.

In looking over the result of Tuesday's elections there is much to encourage, and little to discourage the Democracy. The Democrats have everywhere held their own, and in several States—particularly in our own and New York, they have made great gains. In New York they have elected a part of the State ticket, and carried both Houses of the Legislature, besides making an important gain in Congress. In Pennsylvania, owing to the treachery of pseudo Democrats, the ring candidate was elected Treasurer by a small majority. Grant carried the State by 130,000, and Baily by only about 8,000. In Virginia the Repudiation ticket, by the aid of Federal funds, was elected. The Democrats in that State have lost nothing, as the Mahoneites were in possession of the State government.

On the whole, the Democracy should be encouraged by the elections, and be stimulated to greater efforts in the future.

The break-down of the Star-route prosecution is a scandal which President Arthur will have to scramble hard to escape responsibility for.

Mahone's friends talk of his having a place in Arthur's Cabinet. Why not? But for the Republican Administration he would have been nowhere.

This has been a bad year for the New York Republicans. In 1878 Albany gave them a majority of 2,208; at the recent election there was a Democratic majority of over 4,000. In Erie the Republican majority was reduced from 3,500 to 1,500. Last year there was a Republican majority of eighteen in the Senate and thirty-four in the House; this year both Senate and Assembly are Democratic, with a clear majority of at least eight on joint ballot.

Now they are beginning to calculate the advantages of Mahonism in its national application. Virginia purposes to repudiate $12,000,000 of an honest debt of $32,000,000, and tax the bonds on the remaining $20,000,000, which is to be paid at the convenience of the State! Suppose the Republicans carry out the policy they have indorsed in Virginia, by repudiating 12-32 of the national debt! Surely what is honest and politic for the Old Dominion is perfectly proper for the United States.

The Trenton True American very properly takes the Democratic State Central Committee to task for its supineness and unmasterly inactivity in the recent campaign. Nobody heard of the concern at all and it is extremely doubtful if said committee held a meeting. There was plenty of work for it to do and it might have changed the complexion of the Assembly if proper effort had been made. If the gentlemen who are on the committee mean business let them show it, otherwise they had better resign and give way to men who can and will work. There is too much figurehead about this committee for the good of the party.—Mt. Holly Herald.

The National Ticket received the following vote: For Senator, A. C. Corriell, 38 votes. For Member of Assembly, S. Barber, 65 votes. For Coroner, A. B. Voorhees, 61 votes.

Middlesex County's Official Vote.

From the official table it appears that the average Republican vote on Coroners in Middlesex County was 4773, average on Democratic Coroners 4271—Republican majority 502. Disbrow, Republican, for Sheriff, has a majority of 1213 over Fouratt, Democrat. Assembly—Adair, Republican, over Freeman, Democrat, 96; Goodwin, Republican, over Parsons, Democrat, 310. Van Cleef, Democrat, in the Second District, had no opponent.

The Short Route to Long Branch.

The Rahway Democrat understands "that the recent surveys made by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from near Metuchen to connect with the Camden and Amboy route, for the purpose of making a shorter connection to Long Branch, have demonstrated the fact that the route will be eight miles longer from New York to the Branch than by the Central, and that now negotiations are pending to allow a connection with the Central at Perth Amboy. Such an arrangement would, no doubt, prove advantageous to both roads, from the great increase of travel which would result from this section of the State, and would compel the construction of an additional track from Rahway to Perth Amboy."

"Now to Business."

Mr. Lewis F. Hyer, editor of the Rahway Democrat and late candidate for Senator of the Democratic party of Union County, says "For the past two weeks our position has been such as to interfere with our usual routine of business, and our readers, no doubt, have noticed it in the lack of attention to our paper. We "filled the breach," not of our own choice, as a candidate for Senator, but to comply with the solicitations of many friends who assured us that it would be for the interest of the Democratic party. The election is over; in this city where we should have at least ran even with our opponent, he has a majority of nearly 200, brought about by the liberal bestowal upon the weak voters, of $5 and $10 bills, as well as the manipulations of railroad bosses and others who are in a position to control votes in the interests of monied corporations. We unhesitatingly announced, at the time of our nomination for the position that, if elected, we would be the tool of no individual, clique or corporation, and doubtless that aroused the opposition, especially of the railroad corporations; and as soon as Mr. Vail was nominated it was heralded forth by his friends that he could not be beaten as he would be backed by the railroads and other monied influences—in fact, the issue seemed to be made between a representative of the people on the one hand, and a representative of corporations on the other; and in these days of barter and corruption the people have but little chance in such a contest. Therefore, we are not disappointed at our defeat, and only wonder, under the circumstances, why the majority against us was not greater. We have the satisfaction of believing that the votes given to us were not purchased or impressed, but were freely given without any such influences. Our readers by referring to the table of majorities published elsewhere can see for themselves where the "crooked" work was done. Elizabeth which was put down, at the lowest, by our Democratic friends there, to give us 450 majority and probably 600, gives us the paltry figures of 180, while the Democratic candidate for Sheriff, whose home is there, reaches 1,250; while in some of the outside townships which we counted against us by a considerable majority, have reversed the figures, or cut them down to almost nothing.

"We did not start out with the intention of writing in the above vein, though we think a few hints of that kind would be food for reflection for many. Our object was to state that we have settled down to business, which is a much more agreeable occupation than running for office."

LOCAL ANNEX.

THE many friends of D. C. Smalley, butcher, No. 78 Somerset street, corner of Race street, will be pleased to learn of his continued prosperity, inasmuch as he has recently secured the services of a second assistant. "Dave" says he proposes to make things hum this winter, in the way of business.

For the third time the valuable building lots on Grove street, Linden, Washington and Rockview avenues are offered for sale. This time they will be positively disposed of to the highest bidder, and another such opportunity may never occur. On Thursday afternoon next at 2 o'clock, T. J. Gillies, auctioneer, will sell without reserve, on the premises, the property spoken of.

A PUBLIC MEETING CALLED.

Hon. L. V. F. Randolph, Mayor.

DEAR SIR: The embarrassments now surrounding the city and its officers resulting from recent proceedings of the County Collector with reference to State and county taxes, and the position assumed by the City Treasurer, whereby all public moneys have been impounded and made unavailable for city uses, and the various important questions arising therefrom, demand thoughtful attention.

In order that these matters may be generally understood, and, if possible, a way be found to obtain present relief, and avoid further difficulties, it seems to the undersigned desirable that a public meeting be held for mutual consultation and action.

To this end, the undersigned respectfully suggest that you call a public meeting of tax payers, irrespective of party, on Tuesday evening, the 22nd inst., at 8 o'clock, for the purpose—

1st. Of considering the position, rights, obligations and duties of the city and its officers with reference to State and county taxes, and the various questions connected therewith, and the best method of obtaining or seeking relief from present embarrassments, and anticipated future difficulties, whether by legislation or otherwise.

2nd. Of considering what, if any, action should be taken looking to the selection of suitable men for nomination for the public offices to be filled at the coming city election; and

3rd. Of taking such action concerning the matters above mentioned and other matters incident thereto as to such meeting shall seem best.

NOTICE.

Pursuant to the above request, a meeting of tax payers is called for Tuesday evening, 22nd inst., at Van Deventer Hall. It is hoped that the attendance will be large and the interest and action of the meeting will correspond to the importance of the subjects referred to in the above letter.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH.

Personalia.

Mr. M. H. Van Derveer, Somerset Co.'s courteous Clerk, will please accept our thanks for his kindness in forwarding to this paper the election returns from the several districts.

Mr. Samuel Godschalk, the genial proprietor of the Bedminster Hotel at Pluckamin, will shortly give a game supper to a number of Somerset County's successful politicians and their constituents.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Frazee celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day, on Tuesday evening, at their residence on Orchard Place. A number of invited guests bringing a quantity of handsome presents, were liberally entertained by the generous couple.

Mr. George Wotherspoon formerly of this city, has been engaged as musical critic of The Town the latest addition to the list of "society papers" of New York. The first number which made its appearance last week, contains a review of the principal musical events of the day, that betrays the careful writing and intelligible perception of our late townsman.

Mrs. Thomas B. Stillman, who filled the position of leading soprano in the Crescent avenue choir on Sunday last, gave, it is understood, entire satisfaction to the Musical Committee of the church. The permanent engagement of that lady for the position, will add materially to the high reputation already gained by the choir she will adorn.

The Rev. A. V. V. Raymond of the Trinity Reformed Church, in each successive discourse, gives evidence of the improvement that experience gains in the way of both substance and eloquence. His sermon to young men on Sunday evening last, was one of the most able extemporaneous addresses it has ever been our good fortune to hear.

FIRE MATTERS.

Most of the fire engine companies of Paterson having determined upon visiting New Brunswick, on Thanksgiving Day for target practice, the fire department of that city are making arrangements to welcome the Paterson boys, and parade with them upon their arrival.

Only two sealed proposals for digging the wells advertised, have been received by the Committee on Wells of the Plainfield Fire Department. These will not be opened until the regular meeting of the Board of Managers Dec. 7th, and up to that date further proposals can be made.

Just after noon of Tuesday, the roof of a dwelling house on East Fourth street, owned by Mr. John Day, caught fire in three places from the sparks of a passing locomotive. The alarm bell was rung and the department turned out, but before the fire apparatus reached the scene, the flames had been quenched by the efforts of neighbors. The damage was very slight.

THE C. L. S. C., has issued in pamphlet form a list of the books recommended for the use of its members. An appropriate introduction by the Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, prefaces the volume.

AT the establishment of her husband, No. 6 West Front street, Mrs. Henry S. Barnes has opened a department for the sale of stationery, music and artist materials. Her "Swiss-cottage" envelopes and letter-paper, is one of the most stylish and latest productions in stationery, and must be seen to be appreciated.

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost, to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 8 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Common Council Proceedings.

MONDAY EV'G, NOV. 14, 1881.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. All present except Messrs. H. Smith and Darling.

Minutes of last regular meeting read and approved.

Mr. Gilbert presented a com'n from County Attorney Gilhooley as follows, which was read and ordered filed:

"Heretofore the County Collector has received the State and County taxes from the Collector of your city, with your knowledge and approval. So long as the money was paid it really made no difference. Now, however, since the recent decision of the Supreme Court, declaring that the County Collector has no claim on your City Collector, he will receive the State and County moneys only from your City Treasurer. You will therefore take notice, that the County Collector refuses hereafter to recognize the Collector of taxes in your city, and any moneys paid or offered him on such account, by any person but your City Treasurer, will be returned."

Mr. Finch presented the claim of D. W. Littell, $9. Ref'd.

By Mr. Tracy, the claim of W. L. Force & Bro., $56.30. Ref'd.

The Pres. presented a com'n from Corporation Counsel Kimball as follows, enclosing a certified copy of the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of the County vs. City Treasurer VanWinkle:

The opinion delivered in the cases of Sheridan vs Van Winkle, recently decided in the Supreme Court is transmitted herewith.

The importance of the questions involved in these cases is such that it is perhaps proper for me to call attention to certain features of the opinion and to some of the reasons that will necessarily flow from the doctrine enunciated.

The denial of the application for a mandamus against the City Treasurer is, of course, the main point actually decided in the case. The opinion of the Court is given, however, upon the question of the city's ultimate liability to pay the State and County quotas of taxes out of the first moneys received by the City Treasurer in each year.

Judge Dixon expresses the opinion that the city is thus liable, and he arrives at this conclusion by construing the Act of 1872 (charter) to impose upon the city's Assessor and Collector the duties of assessing and collecting respectively the State and County taxes. He also construes the word "taxes" in the amendment of 1872 (Sec. 4) to embrace State and County taxes as well as city taxes. This construction of the law puts a new phase upon our whole municipal history.

The following are some of the results which will follow from this view of the law:

1. The State and County taxes assessed for the years 1872 to 1877 inclusive, have been assessed at a wrong time and by an officer who had no jurisdiction or power in the premises.

2. That no future State taxes can be assessed—much less collected—in the city of Plainfield.

3. That notwithstanding this, the amount of State and County quotas must be paid out of the first moneys received by the City Treasurer in each year. That is, a tax which can in no way be imposed upon persons or property, must nevertheless be paid out of the city treasury.

4. That although taxes are due and payable before September 1st in each year, the amount of State and County quotas (some $20,000) must be [illegible] in the Treasurer's hands until December 20th, every year.

5. That delinquent State and County taxes as well as city taxes, must be collected through the City Judge, and inasmuch as the City Judge's term of office expires once in three years, and, under the decision in Plainfield vs Runyon, no warrant can be issued by one city judge to enforce the collection of taxes returned as delinquent to his predecessor, there will be in every third year, but four months during which any taxes can be collected by warrant and even during that period nothing but personal property can be sold.

Other difficulties present themselves, but the foregoing suffice to show the gravity of the situation and the confusion to which we are reduced, when we adopt the theory as against which we have so strenuously contended.

Com'n laid on the table.

Mr. Gilbert presented the following report of Overseer of the Poor Vanderbeck, which was read and ordered filed:

To The Hon. Common Council:

A. VANDERBEEK, O. P.

Plainfield, Nov. 7, 1881.

Mr. Tracy presented the quarterly report of the Corporation Counsel, giving a list of the causes pending to which the city was a party, as follows: City against Anna Martine for taxes; City against Eugene Laing for taxes; D. J. Marshall against city for $55.33 and interest for services of plaintiff as commissioner; and Flannagan against Treasurer of city of Plainfield. Report filed.

The same presented an opinion of the Corporation Counsel regarding the making of a contract for lighting the streets. The Counsel held that the Common Council had the power to determine in its discretion what arrangement it may choose to make for lighting the streets, and for what length of time—whether one year or a period of years. But he also called the attention of the Council to a recent decision to the effect that the members of a Common Council voting for the making of contracts exceeding the appropriations available, are guilty of malfeasance in office. Com'n laid on the table.

Mr. Gilbert, from the Alms Com., reported as correct the claims of Mrs. J. Wilkins, $6; Overseer of the Poor of Elizabeth, 36.25; Overseer of the Poor of Baskingridge, 54; A. V. Searing, 8.75; Jas. Ross, 2; A. M. Runyon, 8. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

By the same, the bill of Jas. T. Pierson, dated Feb. 16th, $48.75, reporting that the orders for the articles furnished had been issued by Overseer Gillies, but the Com. was unable to secure the affidavit of the Overseer of the Poor to the bill, as required. That present officer was not cognizant of the matter and justly declined to attach his signature to the claim, while his predecessor being no longer the Overseer of the Poor did not think himself competent to attach an affidavit. The Com. recommended, however, that the bill be paid.

A motion of Mr. Guion that the report be accepted and the recommendation adopted, was not seconded; but a subsequent motion of Mr. Gilbert that the claim be referred to the Aud. Com., was carried.

Mr. Gilbert, from the Finance Com., presented the report of the City Treasurer which was placed on file. It showed $14,548.97 to be in the treasury, viz: general fund, $7,824.86; poor fund, $4,675.34; library fund, $575.71; judgment fund $1,473.06.

Mr. Tracy, from the Street Com., reported as correct the claim of Wm. Hand, $13.50. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

The same offered and moved the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS, the dictum of Judge Dixon accompanying the decision of the Supreme Court refusing to grant the writ of mandamus against the City Treasurer recently sought by the County Collector, to the effect that Section 4, of the amendment to the City Charter, approved April 1st, 1872, applies to all taxes alike, point to the conclusion that State and County taxes in Plainfield should be returned as delinquent at a date earlier than they have heretofore been assessed, and raises new and important questions concerning the rules which govern the assessment and collection of the city's quota of such taxes; and

WHEREAS, the whole subject is fraught with such difficulty that the Common Council cannot now be certain or reasonably sure that any steps which it may take in relation to this matter will conform to the law; therefore

Resolved, That the Corporation Counsel be, and he hereby is requested to furnish to the Common Council his written opinion, and to also obtain and transmit to the Common Council the written opinion of the Hon. Cortlandt Parker as to the rights, duties, obligations and responsibilities of the city and of the Common Council and its members respectively, with reference to the assessment, collection and payment over to the County Collector, of the city quota of State and County taxes, and particularly as to the specific present duties and responsibilities of the Common Council and its members with reference to the same.

Seconded by Mr. Tyler.

In support of the above, Mr. Tracy in an able speech and comprehensive review of the bearings of the recent decision of the Supreme Court, upon the existing charter and the State laws, showed how instead of greater intelligibility more confusion arose in the matter. He pointed out that according to the dictum of Judge Dixon, the assessor must assess prior to July 1st a quota of State and County taxes that is not apportioned until September.

Mr. A. Smith thought that the decision of the Supreme Court was better than the opinion of either Parker or Kimball. He advised the Council to acknowledge the decision as being against the policy adopted, accept the liability of the city for State and County taxes, collect the same as speedily as possible and see the Freeholders of the County and endeavor to make as favorable arrangements as could be secured.

Mr. Gilbert asked whether the last speaker had considered the means to be employed in the collection of State and County taxes, and whether he could point out a way.

Mr. Smith felt assured that if warrants were issued the people would pay them. He advised that the same means be employed as were used to insure the collection of city taxes.

Mr. Gilbert [illegible] that Mr. Smith was laboring under a serious misapprehension. He (Mr. Gilbert) had supposed there was a way to collect the State and County taxes, until the decision of the Supreme Court was rendered. He had felt willing to assume the responsibility of ordering a Justice of the Peace to issue his warrants in the direction referred to. But Judge Dixon had said that all the power the Council requires to collect the State and County taxes is to be found in a certain section of the charter—which section, under such a ruling, orders the city to collect the State and County taxes before the Board of Assessors informs the city what is the amount to be raised. He believed that a greater duty than the collection of the delinquent State and County taxes of 1879-'80, devolved upon the Council; and that was to keep at the matter until it secured for the city a charter that would bring the system of collecting taxes in uniformity with the laws of the State.

The resolutions were adopted. Mr. A. Smith voting no.

Mr. Tyler presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee of three members of this Common Council be appointed by the chair to co-operate with the Mayor and Corporation Counsel to confer with the County authorities and arrange, if practicable, subject to the approval of this Council a settlement of existing issues in such a way as shall enable the City Government to proceed with business and, in connection therewith, to take steps in concert with the County Board toward obtaining such necessary legislation as shall put beyond cavil the power to enforce the collection of all taxes already assessed or hereafter to be assessed in the City of Plainfield.

Seconded by Mr. A. Smith, and unanimously adopted.

Mr. Finch offered a resolution, amended by Mr. Tyler, directing the Finance Com. to examine the accounts of Mr. Geo. W. Moore referring to the collection of taxes, and authorizing an audit of the same. Adopted.

On motion of Mr. Tracy, it was ordered that when the Council adjourns it adjourns to meet in one week.

On motion of Mr. Tyler, seconded by Mr. Finch, the com'n of Corporation Counsel Kimball in relation to the Supreme Court decision, was taken from the table and placed on file.

Mr. Finch moved to take from the table the resolution offered by Mr. A. Smith at the previous meeting, providing for the appointment of a committee of three to make an examination of the books of the City Collector.

Mr. Tracy thought that in view of the various resolutions that had been adopted bearing on the same general question, the resolution under discussion was unnecessary.

Mr. Tyler saw no objection to making a full examination of the Collector's accounts. He thought, however, that a special committee now acting in the same direction, was authorized to carry out the provisions of the later resolution.

After further discussion the resolution was taken from the table and carried, including an accepted amendment offered by Mr. Finch, giving the same power of employing clerical assistance as was possessed by a former committee.

The Pres. appointed as such Committee, Messrs. A. Smith, H. Smith and Gilbert.

Mr. Gilbert moved to take from the table the resolution offered by Mr. A. Smith at the previous meeting, directing the City Collector to pay over to the City Treasurer all monies now in his hands or which may hereafter come into his hands from City, State, County or other taxes.

Mr. Tracy considered that the Council had no duty to perform in directing the City Collector as to what he should do, when the charter and the recent decision of the Supreme Court defined that officer's duties.

Mr. Gilbert offered instead a resolution "requesting" instead of "directing" the City Collector to do as was desired. This was seconded by Mr. Tracy, accepted by Mr. Smith as an amendment, passed as a substitution, moved for adoption and so carried. All voting aye.

Mr. Hamilton offered a resolution that a sum not to exceed $50 be expended by the Street Com. to put in order Park ave., between 5th and 6th streets, and that such work be done previous to Dec. 25th. Adopted. Messrs. Gilbert, Tracy, Tyler and Whiton voting nay.

The Pres. appointed as a Committee to confer with the county authorities, as provided by Mr. Tyler's resolution, Messrs. Tyler, Tracy and Waring.

The Council then adjourned.

Muhlenberg Hospital.

The Board of Governors having resolved to formally open MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL for the purposes of its erection, on the afternoon of Thanksgiving day, 24th inst., at 3:30 o'clock, the citizens of Plainfield and vicinity are respectfully invited to be present on that occasion.

By order of the Managing Committee.
NATHAN HARPER,
Secretary.

Plainfield, November 15th, 1881.

The First of the Course.

The first entertainment of the Y.M.C.A. Course was given on Thursday evening of last week, at the M. E. Church before an unusually large and select audience. The New York Philharmonic Club sustained the principal portion of the programme, and rendered with almost painful correctness a number of selections and arrangements by the most approved of classical composers. Miss Emma S. Howe, an*nounced as the leading soprano of the* Plymouth Church, was the vocal soloist of the occasion and achieved, we believe, a great success as the result of her first appearance before a Plainfield audience. There were some among the gathering who audibly expressed an insane desire to hear Miss Howe in some more popular music than that with which she displayed the remarkable compass of her voice. Plebian tastes that cannot soar above the vulgar harmony of a sweet sounding ballad and appreciate in its complete intensity the unmelodious clash, are behind the age and out of the fashion. Still the selections were not so ultra but what parts would occasionally strike the ear with pleasing effect. Mr. Richard Arnold's violin solos and Mr. Eugene Weiner's flute performances were favorably received; and Mr. Chas. Weiner's execution on the cello gained that artist an encore, which unfortunately resulted in his playing for the third time in Plainfield, during the present year, of a composition of his own. As a whole, no more perfect and "grammatical" a rendition of vocal and instrumental music has ever been given in this city, and the managers of the course deserve great praise for securing the appearance of so talented a list of artists. If the future occasions prove half so commendable, the success of the series is assured. Let us, however, advise more prompt an opening of future entertainments, if possible.

Next.

On Thursday evening of next week at the M. E. Church, the second of the Y. M. C. A., Course of entertainments will be given, and for which seats may be secured at Reynolds' Pharmacy. The event is in the form of a grand concert under the direction of Prof. E. J. Fitzhugh who has so often in the past conducted to success like affairs in this city. The solo artists are designated in the advertisement elsewhere, and include more than one of superior talents and undoubted ability. The debut in Plainfield of that remarkable young pianist Mr. Hermann Rietzel, who may justly claim to rank with the highest of his profession, promises to be of itself an occasion of great interest and enjoyment.

Opening the Season.

The Second Annual Sociable of the Ladies Land League at Laing's Hall on Wednesday night, opened the coming season of merriment and dance in a most auspicious manner. The music was furnished by the celebrated Goodwill orchestra, and about fifty couples at times joined in the waltzes and quadrilles. The floor was waxed just enough, and the managers and committees, Messrs. Robert Manning, Michael Moss, John Kenny and John Motley, kept the gaiety of the night unabated. The reception committee composed of Messrs. Jas. O'Neil and John Killbride also attended to its duties with great satisfaction to all. A large number of tickets were sold for the affair, and a financial success seems assured.

The Last Sad Rites.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Wm. Sandford took place at her former residence on the afternoon of last Friday, and was attended by a large gathering of the deceased's relatives, acquaintances and friends of religious and social circles. The Rev. John C. Bliss preached a most beautiful sermon appropriate to the occasion, and the Rev. D. J. Yerkes delivered a prayer and the closing benediction. A feature of the services was the singing by a quartette composed of the Misses Nettie Potter and Gussie Runyon, and Messrs. Elmer Runyon and Corydon Tyler. The casket was remarkably rich in construction and ornament, while the floral decorations were unusually costly and abundant. At the head was a pillow of blossoms, on which the words "Dear Mamma" were displayed in colored flowers. This was surmounted by a white dove, emblematic of purity, as was also a broken column formed of opening buds that stood at the foot. On the casket were wreaths, with the words "Dearly Loved" and "Rest" mingled amongst the flowers. The body was interred the subsequent day at Greenwood.

THE defeated candidates are now consoling each other.

Jenkins—Hallock.

On Tuesday evening of this week, at the residence of the bride's mother on Fifth street, the Revs. Bryan and Stockton, past and present pastors of the M. E. Church, united in matrimony Mr. Otis Jenkins formerly of this city and Miss Rhoda Hallock. The occasion was most select and the invited guests were only relatives and a few particular friends. The presents were handsome and numerous, including tokens of admiration for the bride from the officers of the M. E. Sunday School and from the scholars of the Scotch Plains district school of which she formerly had charge. The groom who was well known in Plainfield circles some six years ago, has since established an extensive practice as a homeopathic physician in Danielsonville, Conn., and takes his bride to a home where the ease and luxury of life will always be present. The happy couple left on the 9:40 train the same evening.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Mr. Edgar R. Pearsall and wife arrived home last week from their wedding tour.

One of our prominent citizens has taken charge of a class in Locust Grove Sabbath School.

David Sayres, residing on Westfield avenue, lost a valuable cow on Sunday. It was choked to death with a turnip.

The regular meeting of Westfield Hook and Ladder Co., was held on Monday evening, Nov. 14th inst. No business of importance was transacted.

Some person ought to be employed to keep the crosswalks clean during the muddy weather. They were in a very deplorable condition, Saturday evening last.

Swapping watches unseen seems to have been all the rage at the Turf Exchange the past week, several trades having been made in that very way. Nobody squealed.

Three of the parties who were engaged in the row mentioned in last week's Wisps were arrested on Friday evening last and held to bail to await the action of the Grand Jury at its session in January next.

The oyster supper given in the Presbyterian church parlors by the Ladies Mite Society, on Wednesday last did not prove a success financially. Owing to the severe rain storm during the evening, very few people patronized the same.

Invitations are out to the friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Barcalow, requesting the presence of their company on Wednesday evening the 30th inst., upon the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the wedding of that lady and gentleman.

First vote. Lewis Carl, a colored citizen aged 82 years, cast his first vote on last election day at the polls in our town. After an attempt to bulldoze him somewhat by one of our Republican workers, he walked up to the ballot box and deposited a straight Democratic ticket.

A meeting of Westfield Bucket and En*gine Co. will be held on Monday evening*, Nov. 21st inst. Business of importance will be transacted, and election for foreman of Company will be held, in place of Otis G. Webb, who has removed from the village.

On last Wednesday afternoon, Miss Anna Urmston, eldest daughter of John H. Urmston, residing on Elmer street, was joined in the bonds of matrimony with Mr. —— Giles of Bound Brook, by Rev. Mr. Hoagland, pastor of the M. E. Church.

The entertainment on last Thursday evening in Westfield public school hall, proceeds for the benefit of the school, by Prof. Williams and other artists, was slimly attended, netting but a small sum to the treasury of the school. The performances were worthy of a full house, especially that upon the piano, by Miss Fairchild, which was well worth the price of admission.

The new time table on Central Road, which went into effect Monday, Nov. 7th inst., making the mail train in the morning an hour later, has effected the newspaper trade with our newsdealer, Chas. Whittke, quite a number of his customers having to leave on trains to New York before the mail train on which he receives his papers arrives.

Complaint has been made to Overseer of road, Pierson, district No. 8, to the condition of the sidewalk, corner of Broad and Elm street, in front of Wittke building, the same being obstructed with mortar beds, brick, etc., so it is impossible to pass to get to the butcher shop and stores on that side of the street. Charley ought to put a lamp there by night, to keep persons from falling into his mortar beds. Last Saturday night several persons succeeded in carrying away considerable mortar on their boots and clothing, owing to the darkness at that point.

A warning to the young lads of our town who are daily jumping on and off passenger and coal trains at our depot. Frederick Gale, aged 14 years, brother of Augustus K. Gale, on Friday last, the 11th inst., at Jefferson avenue, Elizabeth, in attempting to jump on a passing coal train, slipped under the wheels and had one of his legs crushed and mutilated, so it had to be amputated just below the knee. Young boys take warning; there is a State law, which if enforced, would lock you up in the County Jail, for attempting to get on passenger and coal trains while the same are passing our depot.

An old land mark to be removed. The store building, and lot on which it stands, on Mountain avenue near Broad street, known as Pierson's store, was purchased last week from its owner, Mr. Gideon E. Ludlow, of Cranford, by Dr. Frederick A. Kinch of our place, whose lot it adjoins. We understand he intends removing the buildings, and grading the lot so he can enlarge his lawn and yard. Until within a few years, it was the location where nearly all the business of our village was done for nearly a century back. The present building and buildings, on same location before, being used as a dry goods, grocery and provision store. The Post Office was in the same buildings for years, under both Democratic and Whig Administrations.

Regular meeting of Town Committee, held at town rooms Wednesday evening.

Present—H. F. Alpers, E. E. Sinclair, and James Moffett, Committee, L. M. Whitaker, Clerk.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Communications from counsel, Mr. R. V. Lindabury, under date of Oct. 19, read and on motion ordered to be placed on file.

The following complaint was received and on motion ordered on file.

WESTFIELD, N. J., Oct. 26, 1881.

1. Orren Pierson, Overseer of road district No. 8, would respectfully call the attention of Town Committee to the fact that during the rains of last Spring, portions of Broad and Prospect streets in my district were greatly damaged by water flowing thereon, because of a stoppage of a bridge on North avenue near Clark street, in district No. 14, said stoppage still exists and said streets will suffer further damage if said obstruction is not removed before any further heavy rains occur.

Yours,
ORREN PIERSON,
Overseer of Dist. No. 8.

An order in favor of J. E. Caffrey for $19.98, against Thomas Eustace, overseer of road district No. 11, passed to hands of Treasurer.

Bill received of Geo. A. Bayard, for disenfectants furnished Gustave Koester's house during care of small pox. Amount $8.96.

On motion bills of Dr. J. B. Harrison, (small-pox case) amount $95, and Geo A. Bayard, for disenfectants furnished, amount $8.96, were referred to counsel.

The following instructions were issued to overseer of road district No. 14:

WESTFIELD, Oct. 27, 1881.

CHARLES COURTIER, ESQ., Road Overseer, Road Dist. No. 14

DEAR SIR:—Whereas the road overseer of district No. 8, has notified Town Committee that portions of Broad and Prospect streets suffered great damage from water flowing thereon last spring by reason of a stoppage of a bridge on North avenue near Clark street, on road district No. 14, that said stoppage still exists and that greater damage to said streets will ensue unless said obstruction is removed before any further heavy rains occur; therefore resolved, that overseer of dist. No. 14, be and is hereby directed to open said bridge immediately. By order of Town Committee.

On motion adjourned subject to call of Chairman.

TOO HANDSOME FOR ANYTHING.

BY BULWER-LYTTON.

Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy was one of those models of perfection of which a human father and mother can produce but a single example—Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy was, therefore, an only son. He was such an amazing favorite with both his parents, that they resolved to ruin him; accordingly, he was exceedingly spoiled, never annoyed by the sight of a book, and had as much plum-cake as he could eat. Happy would it have been for Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy could he always have eaten plum cake, and remained a child. 'Never' says the Greek tradition, 'reckon a mortal happy till you have witnessed his end.' A most beautiful creature was Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy! Such eyes—such hair—such teeth—such a figure—such manners too—and such an irresistable way of tying his neck-cloth! When he was about sixteen, a crabbed old uncle represented to his parents the propriety of teaching Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy to read and write. Though not without some difficulty, he convinced them; for he was exceedingly rich, and riches in an uncle are wonderful arguments respecting the nature of a nephew whose parents have nothing to leave him. So our hero was sent to school. He was naturally (I am not joking, now) a very sharp, clever boy, and he came on surprisingly in his learning. The schoolmaster's wife liked handsome children. 'What a genius will Master Ferdinand Fitzroy be, if you take pains with him!' she said to her husband.

'Pooh, my dear, it is of no use to take pains with him.'

'And why, love?'

'Because he is a great deal too handsome ever to be a scholar.'

'And that's true enough, my dear!' said the school-master's wife.

So, because he was too handsome to be a scholar, Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy remained the lag of the fourth form.

They took our hero from school.

'What profession shall he follow?' asked his mother.

'My first cousin is the Lord Chancellor,' said his father, 'let him go to the bar.'

The Lord Chancellor dined there that day; Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy was introduced to him; his Lordship was a little, rough-faced, beetle-browed, hard-featured man, who thought beauty and idleness the same thing—and a parchment skin, the legitimate complexion for a lawyer.

'Send him to the bar!' said he; 'no, no, that will never do!—send him into the army; he is much too handsome to become a lawyer.'

'And that's true enough, my Lord!' said the mother. So they bought Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy a cornetcy in the —— Regiment of Dragoons.

Things are not learned by inspiration. Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy had never ridden at school except when he was hoisted; he was, therefore, a very indifferent horseman; they sent him to the riding-school, and everybody laughed at him.

'He is an ass!' said Cornet Horsephiz, who was very ugly; 'A horrid puppy!' said Lieutenant Squintem, who was still uglier; 'If he does not ride better he will disgrace the regiment!' said Capt. Rivalhate, who was very good looking; 'If he does not ride better, we will cut him!' said Colonel Everdrill, who was a wonderful martinet; 'I say, Mr. Bumpemwell (to the riding-master,) make that youngster ride less like a miller's sack.'

'Pooh, sir, he will never ride better.'

'And why in the deuce will he not?'

'Bless you, Colonel, he is a great deal too handsome for a cavalry officer!'

'True!' said Cornet Horsephiz.

'Very true!' said Lieut. Squintem.

'We must cut him!' said the Colonel.

And Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy was accordingly cut.

Our hero was a youth of susceptibility. He quitted the —— Regiment and challenged the Colonel. The Colonel was killed.

'What a terrible blackguard is Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy!' said the Colonel's relations.

'Very true!' said the world.

The parents were in despair. They were not rich; but our hero was an only son, and they sponged hard upon the crabbed old uncle.

'He is very clever,' said they both, 'and may do yet.'

So they borrowed some thousands from the uncle, and bought his beautiful nephew a seat in Parliament.

Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy was ambitious and desirous of retrieving his character. He fagged like a dragon, conned pamphlets and reviews, got Ricardo by heart, and made notes on English constitution.

He rose to speak.

'What a handsome fellow!' whispered one member.

'Ah, a coxcomb!' said another.

'Never do for a speaker,' said a third very audibly.

And the gentlemen on the opposite benches sneered and heared. Impudence is only indigenous in Milesia, and an orator is not made in a day. Discouraged by his reception, Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy grew a little embarrassed.

'Told you so,' said one of his neighbors.

'Fairly broke down,' said another.

'Too fond of his hair to have anything in his head,' said a third who was considered a wit.

'Hear, hear!' cried the gentlemen on the opposite benches.

Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy sat down—he had not shone; but, in justice, he had not failed. Many a first-rate speaker had begun worse, and many a country member had been declared a phœnix of promise on half the merit.

Not so thought the heroes of corn laws.

'Your Adonises never make good orators,' said a crack speaker with a wiry nose.

'Nor men of business either,' added the chairman of a committee, with a note like a kangaroo's.

'Poor devil!' said the civilest of the set, 'he's a deuced deal too handsome for a speaker! By Jove, he is going to speak again—this will never do; we must cough him down.'

And Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy was accordingly coughed down.

Our hero was now about seven or eight and twenty, handsomer than ever, and the adoration of all the young ladies of Almacks.

'We have nothing to leave you,' said the parents, who had long spent their fortune, and now lived on the credit of having once enjoyed it. 'You are the handsomest man in London; you must marry an heiress.'

'I will,' said Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy.

Miss Helen Convolvulus was a charming young lady, with a hare lip and six thousand a year. To Miss Helen Convolvulus then, our hero paid his addresses.

Heavens! what an uproar her relations made about the matter. 'Easy to see his intentions,' said one; 'a handsome fortune hunter, who wants to make the best of his person!' 'Handsome is that handsome does,' says another; 'he was turned out of the army, and murdered his Colonel!' 'Never marry a beauty,' said a third; 'he can admire none but himself.' 'Will have so many mistresses,' said a fourth; 'Make you perpetually jealous,' said a fifth. 'Spend your fortune,' said a sixth. 'And break your heart,' said a seventh.

Miss Helen Convolvulus was prudent and wary. She saw a great deal of justice in what was said; and was sufficiently contented with liberty and six thousand a year, not to be highly impatient for a husband; but our heroine had no aversion to a lover, especially to so handsome a lover as Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy. Accordingly, she neither accepted nor discarded him; but kept him on hope, and suffered him to get into debt with his tailor and his coachmaker, on the strength of becoming Mr. Fitzroy Convolvulus. Time went on, and excuses and delays were easily found; however, our hero was sanguine, and so were his parents. A breakfast at Chiswick, and a putrid fever carried off the latter, within one week of each other; but not till they had blessed Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy, and rejoiced that they had left him so well provided for.

Now, then, our hero depended solely upon the crabbed old uncle and Miss Helen Convolvulus; the former, though a baronet and a satirist, was a banker and a man of business; he looked very distastefully at the Hyperian curls and white teeth of Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy.

'If I make you my heir,' said he, 'I expect you will continue the bank.'

'Certainly, sir!' said the nephew.

'Humph!' grunted the uncle, 'a pretty fellow for a banker.'

Debtors grew pressing to Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy and Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy grew pressing on Miss Helen Convolvulus. 'It is a dangerous thing,' said she timidly, 'to marry a man so admired; will you always be faithful?'

'By Heaven!' cried the lover.

'Heigho!' sighed Miss Helen Convolvulus, and Lord Rufus Pumilion entering, the conversation was changed.

But the day of the marriage was fixed; and Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy bought a new curricle. By Apollo, how handsome he looked in it! A month before the wedding day the uncle died. Miss Helen Convolvulus was quite tender in her condolence. 'Cheer up, my Ferdinand,' said she, 'for your sake, I have discarded Lord Rufus Pumilion.'

'Adorable condescension!' cried our hero; but Lord Rufus Pumilion is only four feet two, and his hair like a peony.'

'All men are not so handsome as Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy,' was the reply.

Away goes our hero, to be present at the opening of his uncle's will.

'I leave,' said the testator (who, I have before said, was a bit of a satirist), 'my share of the bank, and the whole of my fortune legacies excepted, to' (here Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy wiped his beautiful eyes with a cambric handkerchief, exquisitely brodé) 'my natural son, John Spriggs, an industrious, pains-taking youth, who will do justice to the bank. I did once intend to have made my nephew Ferdinand my heir, but so curly a head can have no talent for accounts. I want my successor to be a man of business, not beauty, and Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy is a great deal too handsome for a banker; his good looks will no doubt win him an heiress in town. Meanwhile, I leave him, to buy a dressing case, a thousand pounds.'

'A thousand devils!' said Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy, banging out of the room. He flew to his mistress. She was not at home. 'Lies,' says the Italian proverb, 'have short legs,' but truths, if they are unpleasant, have terrible long ones. The next day Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy received a most obliging note of dismissal.

'I wish you ever happiness,' said Miss Helen Convolvulus in conclusion, 'but my friends are right; you are much too handsome for a husband.'

And a week after, Miss Helen Convolvulus became Lady Rufus Pumilion.

'Alas, sir,' said the bailiff, as a day or two after the dissolution of Parliament, he was jogging along with Mr. Ferdinand Fitzroy in a hackney-coach, bound to the King's Bench, 'Alas sir, what a pity it is to take such a handsome gentleman to prison.'

"Good God, thy will be done!" exclaimed Mattie Kankowsky recently when sentence of death was passed upon him. It is by the will of man that this convicted murderer is to be punished, and as it happens to be Jerseymen who have condemned him, there is no hope for him. Kankowsky showed himself an unskillful murderer in going into Jersey to commit his crime.

TWO EDITORS IN STATE PRISON.

A few days ago, in the Sussex County Courts, Judge Magie of this city sentenced to State Prison the two editors of the Sussex Independent—one for ten months and one for six months. From what facts can be gathered in the case, the sentences were well deserved, and if anything, were not severe enough. A private family was disrespectfully alluded to in the articles which were published, and a young woman was charged with going out upon the public street to "brawl, blackguard and lie." It was also charged that "two thousand dollars was wasted on that girl, at a college built from the profits of lager beer, in the attempt to level her up to an equality with the average age of girls educated in our common schools." The editors admitted in Court that the statements which they had made were untrue, and that they were totally unable to prove the libels which they had uttered. Judge Magie addressed the indicted men at considerable length, and said their conduct had been defiant of the law. The Court had not heard from their counsel or themselves anything to indicate repentance of the wrong which had been done, or any proposals to make amends. There had been a wanton attack made on citizens of the county. A reputable female, a daughter and sister of the same parties, was needlessly and without cause held up to ridicule. The Judge reviewed the case in all of its points, and the men who have been guilty of defaming the characters of men and women have not received half the desserts which they are entitled to. Judge Magie could have sentenced them to longer terms, and imposed heavier fines than he did—fifty dollars in each—and it is hoped that the justice which he has dealt out to a pair of scallawags will not be without its proper effect on other newspaper men who have long villified those who have had no opportunity to defend themselves.—Elizabeth Herald.

WE'VE A BABY AT OUR HOUSE.

We've a baby at our house,
Not much bigger than a mouse;
It has such a tiny nose,
Tiny feet and tiny toes,
That I fancy some fine day
It will wing its flight away—
We've a baby at our house.

We've a baby at our house,
Not much bigger than a mouse;
It has eyes as blue as [illegible],
Ringlets of a golden hue,
And, if I remember right—
Three months old 'twill be to-night—
We've a baby at our house.

We've a baby at our house,
Not much bigger than a mouse,
Little naughty, precious wight,
Keeps me 'wake the livelong night,
With its crying—I declare
Sometimes almost makes me swear—
We've a baby at our house.

We've a baby at our house,
Not much bigger than a mouse—
"Oh! how happy you should be!"
Said a friend of mine to me,
"For there's many folks to-day
Would give worlds if they could say
We've a baby at our house."

GRANDMA PORTER'S MISTAKE.

"Oh, grandma, please tell us a story, or something funny that happened when you were young."

There were three of us—myself and two young ladies, sitting by a cosy fire one cold afternoon. The snow and rain beat against the windows in the east room; it made them lonely, for they wished to go out and make some calls.

"I will not tell of any of my school-days; but I will tell you of an amusing story about an old aunt that was very deaf; but she tried to make every one believe that she could hear as well as the best of them. When she had cleared her skirts of the sin and disgrace of being deaf, she would dig the end of her knitting-needle into the sheath pinned at her side and go to knitting again. But aunty had a strong faith in her gift of 'edifying' as when she was fifty years younger, and never hesitated to try it when any one called, if she were alone.

"One fine spring afternoon, young Mr. Stewart, getting sleepy over his law studies, put his books aside and passed out to make a call upon the Porter girls. Now, it so happened that Mrs. Porter was at the sewing-circle, and the hired girl had gone home sick; so Bertha and Mabel had work in the kitchen to do. Bertha was up to her dimpled elbows in a batch of bread, and Mabel was giving the dish-cupboard an overhauling and putting it in a neater form than the girl left it, and neither of them heard the door bell. Neither did Aunt Lydia, but she was passing through the hall and saw it ringing, so she was quick witted enough to open the door and found Mr. Steward all smiles and bows on the steps.

" 'Good afternoon, ma'am,' he said, politely raising his hat, 'are the young ladies in.'

" 'Pretty well, I thank you,' squealed Aunt Lydia tho' my rheumatism bothers me some. Walk right into the sitting-room;' for Mr. Stewart often called there, so she knew him well by sight and she felt quite flattered by his polite salutation. Mr. Stewart hesitated, but there were two other fellows just coming down the sidewalk, and he dared not risk another question and answer, so in he went.

" 'Take this chair,' and Aunt Lydia was very active in hauling up a big armchair for him; 'now ain't that soft and nice? That cushion is the best of hens' feathers; I have seen live geese feathers not a mite softer. I worked the cover myself, since I was seventy years old; but I have I sight handsomer one that I worked when I was a gal.'

"And down on her knees at the bureau-drawer plunged the old lady and drew out at once gay but now faded sampler, whereon divers impossible birds and flowers were wrought in worsted.

" 'There,' she said, 'I did all this before I was fifteen. Gals ain't nowadays what they was then.'

" 'It's very pretty,' said Mr. Stewart, thinking he must say something in praise of it. 'I called to see the young ladies; are they at home this afternoon?'

" 'Not but dreadful little of it at home; I did it at school, mostly. Such things were taught at school in them times, and I think if they was now, in place of sixby and bottommy, and such nonsense, it would be better; don't you?'

" 'I dare say,' was the reply; and while Aunt Lydia carefully put away her souvenir of old times, Mr. Stewart tried to study his way out of the scrape. 'She must be very deaf,' thought he, 'but I'll try once more.'

" 'Where are the Misses Bertha and Mabel?' he screamed, when she had settled herself in her chair.

" 'Yes, sir; Bell Toby has been here at work all winter, but she's gone now with a sore finger, and I am afraid she will have a felon on it; anyhow, it begins just as James's wife's first husband's sister's felon began (she was Sukey Dobson); and she had a proper hard time on't. She was keeping the deestrict school and boarding with us when she was took with it—the gals have to do the work now, but they are as smart as election, though I think Bertha is a trifle better for business. Maybe you are courtin' one on 'em,' she continued, looking up at him with a roguish smile.

" 'Hang it!' was Mr. Stewart's mental ejaculation, 'but the girls will probably be in soon; I will relieve her mind of of that notion. 'Oh, no, indeed,' he replied, loudly. 'I am only a young man just studying law, you know.'

" 'What, next Sunday morning?' cried the old lady, fairly starting out of her chair with surprise. 'Now, you don't say so! At meeting, of course. Now how sly they have kept that from me.

" 'You misunderstand me,' he screamed, in terror; 'I did not say so.'

" 'Bertha, too! well, I'm glad it's her, for your sake, 'cause she won't say no to so good an offer. Bertha is a good girl. I named her; perhaps that is why I like her a little better than Mabel; but I shall do what is right by her when she goes to housekeeping. I am savin' up half a dozen solid silver teaspoons for her, and I shall give her my gold beads, too. Shall you go right to keeping house?'

" 'I tell you I'm not going to be married!' he shouted—so loud that it seemed to him that all the neighbors must hear.

" 'Of course you want to be happy—anybody does, and I did always believe in young folks going to housekeeping as soon as they was married.'

" 'You are altogether mistaken,' he screamed in her ear; the perspiration starting from every pore.

" 'The house already taken. Now, I never! and think they was tryin' to keep it from me, and you have told me all about it. I shan't tell them nor any one else, so you needn't be a grain afraid; I can keep a secret, if I am an old woman.'

" 'I wonder who grandmother is talking with,' said Mabel, as a lull in the clatter of dishes brought the sound of voices to their ears.

" 'Father, probably,' replied Bertha. 'I have not heard any one come in.'

"Mabel put her last loaf of bread down to rise, washed her hands, took off her big apron and appeared in the sitting-room, much to Mr. Stewart's relief, just after grandma had pledged herself to secrecy. Mabel started in surprise when she saw the guest.

" 'Mr. Stewart, you here! come into the parlor.' Mabel led the way, leaving grandama alone. 'You must have had an interesting visit with grandma.'

" 'I think I have,' replied the gentleman, wiping the perspiration from his face. 'She is very hard of hearing, isn't she?'

" 'Yes,' said Mabel; but she does not think so.'

" 'I see it is so. I could not make her understand a word; yet, from the answers she gave me I saw she thought she understood all I said to her. I guess she will conclude I have told her some very strange stories.'

"Never mind,' said Mabel, 'she is always making blunders.'

"Meanwhile, grandma had recovered from her speechless indignation at seeing Mabel carry off Bertha's beau to a private conference, and waddled out to the kitchen.

"Bertha she squealed, taking the scrub cloth from her hand, 'go right into the parlor; Mr. Stewart's there with Mabel.'

" 'No matter, grandama,' laughed Bertha, wondering very much at her nervous frame of mind.

" 'I will finish up here, I tell you. You go right into the parlor.'

"Grandma went to scrubbing. Bertha, to please her went into the parlor.'

"Later in the afternoon, as the girls were in the kitchen getting supper, Deacon Goodman called to see Mr. Porter on business.

" 'Walk right into the sitting-room,' said Mabel; 'father will be in directly.'

"So the deacon went in.

" 'Are you pretty well this spring,' he shouted to grandma.

" 'Oh, yes; our well and spring hold out wonderfully, though some of the neighbors were plagued for water all winter. How is your folks?'

" 'Well as usual,' nodded the deacon. 'You have not got out to meeting any this winter, have you? I have not seen much of Bertha.'

" 'Well, she is very steady, and industrious, and ain't always a gadding, like some girls. 'Virtue is its own reward,' the writing-book used to say, 'and Mabel will have to dance in the pig trough, for she is two years older, you know, than Bertha, and she is going to be married first!'

" 'Shoo!' said the deacon, looking surprised.

" 'Yes, Bertha's going to be married in meetin' next Sunday morning to Mr. Stewart that's reading law with Squire Howard. A dreful nice young man he is, too, pooty as a pink. Now he come in here this afternoon when the gals was at work in the kitchen, just set down and visited with me as polite, and talked over all his affairs just as open hearted. He's got a house all engaged, and they are going to house-keepin', very soon.'

"The deacon's ears were all agape to bear further particulars, but Mr. Porter's entrance cut short the garrulous old lady's news, and as Mr. Porter made no allusion to the coming event, he received no more information.

" 'I have heard some news,' he said to the family, when he got home. 'Bertha Porter is going to be married.'

" 'When? Who to?' cried the deacon's daughters.

" 'Next Sunday morning in church. He has a house already engaged. I did not ask what one, but presume it's the Carter House, right next to the law office, that's empty now.'

" 'Who is Bertha going to marry, father?'

" 'Oh, I forgot to tell; it is that Stewart fellow.'

" 'Well, he has called on the girls, and waited on them, too,' said his daughter Hattie; but I did not suppose there was anything serious as yet.'

" 'Well it appears it's all settled. The old lady gave me full particulars; she seemed as pleased as a child, and told how sociable Mr. Stewart was with her. Old ladies like to be noticed, you know.'

" 'Yes; and young ladies, too,' said Hattie.

"When Hattie went over that evening to carry the dress-maker her pint of milk, she told her the news.

" 'There must be a mistake,' said Jennie, doubtfully.

" 'Oh, no, there is not,' persisted Hattie, 'for we had it right from the family, and that explains those nice dresses the girls had this spring. Bertha's was pearl gray, and Mabel's gold mixed. I thought it queer they didn't have them alike, but I guess they thought pearl gray was more suitable for a bride.'

" 'Sure enough,' said Jennie Baker, 'I fitted those dresses less than a month ago, but I never thought of such a thing.'

"Miss Baker told her next customer that Bertha was to be married in a pearl gray silk, with bonnet and gloves to match.

"That evening, while the Porter girls were at prayer-meeting, and only their parents at home with their grandma, she went into the bedroom, and soon returned, bringing a huge bandbox large enough to hold a score of bonnets, such as are worn nowadays. Opening it, she carfully took out a large old straw bonnet, dated half a century back, trimmed with faded green gauze ribbon. Mr. and Mrs. Porter looked on in quiet surprise, as she turned the ancient article round and looked it carefully over.

" 'There,' said she, 'I've had that bonnet forty years, and it's just as good as new to-day. The strings are a little soiled, but I can wash them out, and then it will be already to wear to meeting next Sunday."

"Grandma had not been to church for years, so this announcement created no little surprise.

" 'You shall have a new bonnet, if you wish to go to meeting,' her son shouted in her ear.

" 'A few will make fun, I daresay; but I don't care for that. This is a good, sensible bonnet, worth a dozen of the little nodding things. I should catch my death o' cold if I should wear one of them.'

" 'You could have a new bonnet made large,' shouted Mrs. Porter.

" 'Too far to go! La, sakes! I ain't so feeble but I can walk that little way. My red shawl will be warm enough if it is pleasant, and my black bombazett is all the fashion now.'

"Bertha and Mabel were wholly overcome the next morning when their mother told them of grandma's plan.

" 'What does make her do so?' cried Mabel.

" 'I am sure I don't know, but she is bound to do it, and I see no way to stop her.'

" 'She hasn't been to church for years,' said Bertha, 'and knows she cannot hear a thing. Strange, what she wants to go now for.'

" 'I know one thing,' said Mabel, decidedly. 'I won't go to church a step if she goes with that awful thing on her head.'

" 'Nor I,' put in Bertha. 'I guess not, indeed, not I.'

" 'Oh, now, girls,' said their mother, soothingly; 'the best way is to be independent and not mind it.'

"But girls of eighteen and twenty rarely possess the independence of mind that belongs to forty or forty-five. So the church bells on Sabbath rang to them secluded in their chamber, peeping through closed blinds at the church-goers. Not one of the family had chanced to hear the rumors which had been flying all over the town for the past few days, gaining volume with every repetition, until full particulars of the bridal costumes, the house they were to occupy, and the furniture really purchased formed part of the regular story. 'It comes from the family, so it must be so,' was the clincher that convinced all doubters.

"Grandma had settled her huge sky-scraper of a bonnet with many consultations of the mirror, and Mr. and Mrs. Porter proposed to walk to church with her, both trying not to feel the ridiculousness of the situation. An old-fashioned red shawl covered her broad shoulders, and, over and above all, the crowning glory of the whole outfit, was the bonnet, her little wrinkled face appearing in the middle of its huge circumference in about the proportion of a bumble bee in the centre of a pumpkin blossom.

" 'The gals have gone, I s'pose,' said their grandma, pausing at the foot of the stairs in the hall. 'Bertha,' she squealed up the stair*case*; but there was no an*swer, so on she went. The son gave her* his arm and his wife trotted meekly along behind, looking neither to the right nor left. The girls peeped from the windows and laughed till they cried.

" 'It's too ridiculous,' said Mabel, wiping her eyes. 'Do you see mother trotting on after them like a little dog?'

" 'Like a lamb led to the slaughter,' said Bertha.

" 'I would like to be there and see how people look when they go in,' said Mabel; 'that is, if I could without being seen. Everybody but us is out to-day, and they all seem to be going to our church, too. There is Mr. Stewart, and he has got on a new suit. How nice he looks!'

"For that gentleman, hearing the rumors, and knowing well enough how they started, took no pains to contradict them, but rather helped them along by his buying a new suit of clothes on Saturday, black dress coat, lilac vest and gloves, drab pants and hat. He passed the slow-paced Porter family on the church steps and entered the fast filling house, took a seat near the door, apparently unconscious of the scrutiny bent on him. Many curious glances went to Bertha's usual seat near the gallery, but the general opinion was that she would appear just in time for the ceremony.

"The entrance of the Porters put an end to all doubts in any minds, as well as to sobriety in most. Little children giggled outright, older ones tittered, and even the most sober-minded found it hard to repress a smile. The church filled up rapidly, pews all full, and still they came. The parson looked at the gathering multitude in silent surprise, not having heard the flying rumors and not knowing what power of his had so drawn out the people. Truth compels me to say that he hardly received his share of attention from the audience, Mr. Stewart and grandma Porter dividing it about equally. I grieve to add that, at the other church the minister almost literally preached to bare walls and empty pews. But the minister with the small audience was the favored one after all, for the large audience were uneasy all through the sermon, especially when prayer followed sermon, hymn followed prayer, benediction followed hymn, and still no hint came of a wedding ceremony. Slowly the audience filed out, looking extremely blank and puzzled.

" 'What does this mean, Stewart,' asked one young man of our hero as he stood on the church steps.

" 'Sold!' replied Stewart, briefly, as he leisurely took his way homeward.

"The word went from one to another, 'Sold,' and one after another looked, and probably felt, cheap; perhaps made the wise resolution never again to put faith in flying rumors. Grandma Porter looked around in a dazed sort of a way, as the people scattered. 'Where is the wedding,' she squealed to her son. He looked blank. 'Where is the wedding,' she asked, in a higher tone. 'Bertha and Mr. Stewart was goin' to be married, you know.' He shook his head in surprise, and all at once it seemed to burst on her that she had been deceived. 'He lied to me, the miserable lyin' critter,' she burst forth, in a flutter of excitement. In vain they tried to still her, for the vials of her wrath were uncorked, and she poured them out all the way home.

" 'The good people of this town have learned one lesson to-day, besides what they have heard in the sermon, if I am not mistaken,' remarked Mr. Stewart to Bertha, as he walked home with her that evening after service.

" 'Why, yes,' she replied: 'I think they must have learned one if they will profit by it. It is not safe to believe all we hear.'

" 'It has made a great deal of sport to see how easily people have been sold in this matter. I have been wicked enough to enjoy it,' said Mr. Stewart, but I suppose your grandmother will never forgive me.'

" 'I fear not. She persists in thinking you meant to deceive her.'

" 'That would have been cruel, indeed. As the matter stands, I know of no better way to atone for my crime than to make my supposed true, and marry Bertha after all if she will let me.'

"The answer Bertha gave we must guess at, but in the fall Mr. Stewart and Bertha were married at Mr. Porter's house, instead of at the church, and Bertha's dress was a real gray silk. Grandma, in proof of her forgiveness, gave Mr. Stewart a rousing kiss. So they were good friends ever after, as long as she lived."

HOW THEY SALT A CLAIM.

"I wish you would explain to me all about this salting of claims that I hear so much about," said a meek-eyed tenderfoot to a grizzly old miner, who was panning about six ounces of pulverized quartz. "I don't see what they want to salt a claim for, and I don't understand how they do it."

"Well, you see, a hot season like this they have to salt a claim lots of times to keep it. A fresh claim is good enough for a fresh tender-foot; but old-timers won't look at anything but a pickled claim. You know what quartz is probably?"

"No."

"Well, every claim has quartz. Some more and some less. You find out how many quarts there are, and then put in so many pounds of salt to the quart. Wild-cat claims require more salt, because the wild-cat spoils quicker than anything else. Sometimes you catch a sucker, too, and you have to put him in brine pretty plenty, or you will lose him. That's one reason why they salt a claim. Then again, you often grub-stake a man——"

"But what is a grub-stake?"

"Well, a grub-stake, is a stake that the boys hang their grub on so they can carry it. Lots of mining men have been knocked cold by a blow from a grub-stake. What I wanted to say, though, was this: You will probably at first strike free milling poverty, with indications of something else. Then you will no doubt, sink till you strike bed-rock, or a true fissure gropher-hole, with traces of disappointment. That's the time to put in your salt. You can shoot it into the shaft with a double-barrelled shotgun, or wet it or apply it with a white-wash brush. If people turn up their noses at your claim then say it is a saide, and that there is something rotten in Denmark, you can tell them that they are clear off, and that you know it is all right."

The last seen of the tenderfoot, he was buying a double-barreled shot-gun and ten pounds of rock salt.

There's no doubt but a minning camp is the place to send a young man who wants to acquire knowledge and fill his system full of information that will be useful to him as long as he lives.

THANKSGIVING.

The day annually set apart by authority for rendering thanks to the Almighty Ruler of nations and individuals has again arrived.

Estimated aright Thanksgiving Day has an important duty, not for mere festive enjoyment, but rather for the blending of serious thought.

To the Great God who star-studded the sky, caused the sun to dispense life-giving warmth by day and the moon to shed silvery lustre by night, who reared the majestic mountains, stretched out the fertile plains, and bid the surging oceans roll, thanksgiving is the tribute due from each human heart, because His mercies are everywhere.

Let the sincerity of thankfulness arise—
For His protecting care and goodness.
For the sunshine and the storm.
For the bitter and the sweet.
For the blessings of health and peace.
For the wealth of earth and sea.
For the privilege of happy lives.
For the hope of blissful deaths.

And therewith let earnest prayers go up for personal strength to resist the wrong and the right pursue.

Then will Thanksgiving Day be indeed a golden period in the calendar.

THE TICKET.

The defeat of Mr. Astor, a stalwart of the stalwarts, for election to Congress in the City of New York, was a severe blow to the Arthur administration.

Aside from the important addition of a vote to the Democratic side of a closely divided house, the success of Mr. Flower carries with it another cause for sincere congratulation.

It proves that wealth, even millionary, cannot do everything politically, and it further shows that the corrupt use of money for electioneering purposes may create such a feeling of indignation and disgust among respectable voters, as to arrest its intended wrong upon the ballot-box.

That was the result in the Astor-Flower contest and its influence must be salutary.

The effort to control elections through the power of money is the evil of evils in this country at the present time, and it is doing more to weaken representative government than all other agencies combined.

The masses of the people are honest, and we believe, if candidates for Executive and Legislative positions would publicly declare hostility to bribery and corruptions of every kind, and rely for support on individual merit alone, great popular approval would ensue and political trading be found a losing game.

Vote for character and ability.

That's the ticket.

The Assassin's Trial.

The trial of Guiteau began on Monday of last week and promises to be a long one. One of the Attorneys in the case says he has not the remotest idea that it can be finished in less than a month, and would not be surprised if it took three months. There will be at least one hundred witnesses, if not more. In many instances a witness will occupy a day in his examination. Every witness upon certain features in this case will be subjected to a careful and exhaustive examination, and then to a comprehensive cross-examination.

The trial began with rather less delay over the preliminaries than had been anticipated, less than two hours sufficing for the disposal of details about strengthening the defense, and five jurors being secured in a little over an hour, when the panel was exhausted, and the Court adjourned. Mr. Robinson, one of Guiteau's counsel, asked for delay, but Mr. Scoville opposed it and complained of Mr. Robinson's conduct in not consulting him. Guiteau made several attempts (making as many violent scenes,) to deliver a manuscript speech, and from time to time broke in upon the proceedings, denouncing Mr. Robinson and insisting that he would manage his own case.

On Thursday the twelfth juryman was secured, there being one colored man upon it. Guiteau after the first day quieted down and remained so, but his counsel, Scoville and Robinson, did not seem to pull together and the latter subsequently withdrew. On Saturday an attempt to shoot the prisoner was made while he was being returned to his cell from the Court room. A man on horseback shot through the window of the van at the assassin, but unfortunately missed him. The supposed "avenger" was subsequently captured.

AN APPEAL

To the Citizens of Plainfield.

We the undersigned, pastors in the city of Plainfield, N. J., beg leave to present the following brief statement of facts and appeal, without regard to religious creeds or political parties.

The use of intoxicating drinks, as fostered by the authorized sale of the same in our city, is directly opposed to Christianity, morality, good order and sound political economy. The evil is increasing constantly. It is the main source of pauperism and crime. It wastes the earnings of the people. It destroys their energies. It corrupts their morals. It brings bitterness into their homes. Its pathway is destruction. Its end is ruin. In view of these facts we deem it our duty to appeal to you as citizens and Christians, asking that you will labor more earnestly than ever before to check and uproot this evil. It has reached its present proportions because "public opinion" has been latent or indifferent, and hence feeble. If the "temperance sentiment" were active and united, the worst features of the case would soon be overcome and the whole curse would be finally cast out. We pledge ourselves to labor earnestly and untiringly to purify and elevate this sentiment, and invite every lover of righteousness to aid in the work. We appeal to the voters of Plainfield to unite for the purpose of securing such municipal legislation as will not authorize and protect the liquor traffic and thus make the city, as it now is, a "party to the crime." To this end we urge that at the coming city election, and always hereafter, the men who make and administer the laws should be selected from among those of our fellow citizens who are well-known temperance men.

This appeal is so manifestly just and proper that we do not deem it necessary to support it by arguments. The sad facts, as they here exist in our city, offer most cogent reasons why all men should unite to hem in and destroy this foe to manliness, purity and righteousness.

Guiteau has unparalleled impudence. He has written letters to President Arthur and the editor of the New York Herald asking them to contribute money to aid his defence. He tells the President that he ought to help the instrument which God used to put him in his elevated position, and asks James Gordon Bennet for the small sum of $10,000.

One Col. J. Howard Wells attempted to black Jay Gould in New York last week, by writing anonymous letters. The blackmailer was detected and is now in prison. It is to be hoped that such justice will be meted out to him that the rascal is deserving of.

LOCAL ANNEX.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. Chas. Greader at the corner of Somerset and Chatham streets, has lately taken down the very clumsy wooden awning that was such an eyesore at that point, and will otherwise improve his premises.

All the bills for State and County taxes, have been delivered by Collector Van Norstrand to the residents of North Plainfield's districts. The next business in order is their payment, which we trust will be both prompt and willing.

At Warren Engine House, on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, the sale of property advertised for tax delinquencies in this paper, will positively take place. This is the lastcall.

The Commissioners of Appeal in cases of taxation, met on the day appointed by law, last Tuesday, Nov. 22d, 1881, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the rooms of the Township Committee in North Plainfield. Present, S. O. Horton, Lewis Barkalow and J. P. Humble, Commissioners; Assessor Isaac Brokaw and Collector E. C. VanNorstrand. The following were all the deductions made by the Commissioners:

SEC. 2. In case the Common Council shall grant such application, such sum or sums of money so deposited as in the first section provided shall be returned to the depositor afterwards, and in case the said application shall be denied, then the costs and expenses incurred in such proceedings, certified by the City Clerk, shall be retained by the City Treasurer out of the moneys so deposited for the use of the city, and the surplus, if any, shall be returned to the depositors upon the return of the certificate issued by the Treasurer, provided for in section 1, with a receipt of the amount returned, duly endorsed thereon.

SEC. 3. In all streets which are graded, regulated or paved, or shall hereafter be graded, regulated or paved, the carriage or roadway between the kennels or gutters of said streets shall be all that space in said streets not required for sidewalks, the width of which sidewalks in all streets shall be determined by resolution of the Common Council, from time to time, as may be required.

SEC. 4. All sidewalks in the city shall be raised from the curbstone line to the side of the street adjoining in the proportion of four inches in ten feet and the laying of any sidewalk contrary to the provisions of this section shall be punishable by a fine of ten dollars to be recovered from the party or parties laying the same, or the owner or owners of the property fronting thereon.

SEC. 5. No sidewalk, or part of any sidewalk now or hereafter laid with brick or flagging in any part of the city, shall hereafter be taken up or the brick or flagging be removed therefrom for any purpose, without the written permission of the Street Commissioner first obtained, and every person who shall take up or remove any part of any such sidewalk, without such permission, shall on conviction thereof, be punished by fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offence.

No person shall erect, project or suspend any sign over any sidewalk or the established line of any street, to a greater distance than two feet from the street line, or permit the continuance of any sign so erected or projected, nor shall construct any window which shall extend from the wall of any building into or over any street, nor shall construct any cellar door, platform, stoop, steps or fence which shall extend or encroach into or upon any street or sidewalk, without the permission of the Common Council first obtained; every person who shall violate this section, shall on conviction thereof be punished by fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offence.

SEC. 7. No person shall throw or deposit, or cause to be deposited, into or upon any public street, avenue or sidewalk, or into or upon any public ground in the city, any dirt, stone, sand, clay, earth, ashes or dangerous or offensive substance, except snow and ice which may have fallen or been formed upon sidewalks, and ashes, sawdust or sand which may be strewn upon sidewalks, in pursuance of the provisions of the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to provide for keeping street sidewalks and gutters free from snow, hail, sleet and ice," passed December 3d, 1877, and no person shall take up or remove from any public street, avenue or sidewalk, or from any public ground in the city, any dirt, stone, sand, clay or earth, without the permission of the street commissioner first obtained; every person who shall violate this section, shall on conviction thereof be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offence.

SEC. 8. All trees standing along the public streets of the city, whose branches extend or stretch over the sidewalks or roadways, shall be trimmed from the main trunk to a height of not less than ten feet from the surface of the ground, so as to prevent injury to the public health, impediment to travel and obstruction to street lights, unless the street commissioner shall otherwise direct or permit.

SEC. 9. The street commissioner shall cause this ordinance to be carried into effect, and every person who shall obstruct or molest said officer or any person or persons employed by him in the performance of such duty, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars for each offence.

SEC. 10. The ordinance entitled "An ordinance in regard to improvements on streets, sidewalks and regulating the putting up of awnings, signs, &c.," approved July 18th, 1869, and the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled 'An ordinance in regard to improvements on streets, sidewalks and regulating the putting up of awnings, cellar-windows, signs, etc.,' approved July 18th, 1869," approved April 5th, 1870, and the ordinance entitled "An ordinance for the removal of trees," approved June 1, 1870, and the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to prohibit [illegible] over the sidewalks," approved [illegible], 1875, and the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to protect the streets and sidewalks and other public property," approved May 31st, 1870, are hereby repealed.

CLOTHIERS!

NEW CLASS FRONT STORE,

797 Broad St.,

NEWARK, N. J

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Bernard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments. ol4m3

THANKSGIVING!

TURKEYS, beware!

A GLORIOUS autumn.

How many snows this winter?

THE New Year will begin on Sunday.

COUNCIL meeting, next Monday evening.

CHARTER election a week from next Tuesday.

WHAT pleasant weather we always have on Sundays.

PLAINFIELD hunters report poor luck in the vicinity.

REPUBLICAN Ward primaries on Saturday evening.

THE first snow storm of the season occurred on Nov. 23d.

GIVE us an earlier mail in the morning and an earlier newspaper train.

SHOOTING matches and turkey raffles will soon present their allurements.

ANOTHER "pigeon shoot" at Campbell's is promised for Thanksgiving Day.

THE failure of the cabbage crop accounts for the high price of "havannas," that still continues.

THE farmers throughout these parts are pretty well along with their husking. It was a very light job this year.

THE Young people of Netherwood formed a Literary Association at the residence of Rev. N. B. Thompson last Tuesday evening.

A SHIPMENT of New Orleans Molasses (new crop) has just been received by Martin Bros., at the corner of Park Avenue and Second Street.

THROUGH the medium of the Elizabeth Journal, we learn that our new Sheriff, "Honest Tom" Forsyth, has taken unto himself a wife. Joy be with them both, forever.

NIMRODS are now thicker than the blackberries were last summer, and shooting-irons and dogs are decidedly in the majority, but the game they capture is mostly paid for.

WE would warn our brother editors to be careful, and refuse to accept forty thousand dollars in bills of the Detroit First National Bank. That amount has been stolen in unsigned bills.

THE long pond, lying between Asbury Park and Deal Beach, familiar to many in this city, covering hundreds of acres, has disappeared. A high tide cut a channel between it and the ocean.

THE Fall is with us in dead earnest, and the cool weather has come to stay. It is time to look for crisp cool mornings, and almost everyone is getting up a weather prophecy of his own.

THE Third Annual Ball of Plainfield Hose Co., No. 2, takes place this (Wednesday) evening, in consequence of which we are compelled to postpone a notice of its great success, until next week.

ALL the latest novelties in holiday presents of silver, gold and fancy jewelry, can be found at Colliers's, the Plainfield Jeweler's, No. 3 Cherry street. The assortment is unusually varied and the stock large.

THE latest and most popular of galops, is the "Marguerita," recently published by Pond and composed by Mr. George Wotherspoon, Jr., late of this city. It is justly deserving of the favor with which it has been received.

So great has the cigarette evil become at Hornellsville that a school law has become a necessity, prohibiting boys using tobacco on the school grounds. We notice that the same evil exists to quite an extent among the boys of Plainfield.

THE Annual Fair for the benefit of the Children's Home, will take place in the Sunday School rooms of the M. E. church, on the afternoons and evenings of Dec. 13th, 14th and 15th. The contributions and patronage of the public, are deservedly due.

REV. N. B. Thompson, Pastor of the Netherwood Union Chapel, will conduct the Monday evening exercises next week, the 28th inst., of the Young Men's Christian Association, at their rooms in this city. Mr. Thompson was elected an Honorary Member at their meeting last Friday.

THE Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, advertise for sale $21,000 five per cent bonds. They are of $1,000 each and coupons payable on January and July of every year. Proposals will be received on Dec. 15th, up to 2:30 o'clock p. m.

NEXT Sunday evening Rev. N. B. Thompson, pastor of the Netherwood Union Chapel, will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent Ave. Presbyterian church. This will be a good time to hear this popular young preacher who will speak for the first time Sunday evening next, in Plainfield.

AS we go to press this (Wednesday) evening, the members of the Plainfield Saengerbund are entertaining their lady and gentleman friends with an evening of vocal and instrumental music, as well as the attractive dance. Those who have been so fortunate as to secure an invitation are to be envied.

DON'T forget the sale by auction (without reserve) of those very desirable building lots for family residences, situated on the block bound by Grove street, Washington, Rockview and Linden avenues. They will positively be disposed of on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and special inducements will be offered to purchasers.

HERE is a chance for a grand victory by Messrs. Collier, Suydam, Dewey and other of Plainfield's chess-men: The Camden, N. J. Chess Club has elected J. B. Wood, President, Henry M. Snyder, Secretary and Treasurer, and William R. Biddle and Charles Henry Ram, Executive Committee. The club intends to challenge all chess clubs in the United States to a grand match this Winter.

IT is thought by many of the citizens of New Jersey that the trial by court martial of Gen. Madison Drake, of Elizabeth, which commenced on Tuesday, for making a silly remark concerning President Garfield's death, and for which he afterwards apologized, is a farce. It is further alleged that the authors of the court martial are persecuting General Drake, who was a gallant soldier in the war for the Union.

AN unusually large attendance gathered at the Seventh Day Baptist Church on Monday evening, to hear Thos. G. Shearman, Esq., in a most interesting exposition of the world-renowned Passion Play. The entertainment was for the benefit of the Ladies Society of the Congregational Church, and its proceeds, which were undoubtedly large, are to be devoted towards the Chapel that that Society contemplate erecting at Seventh street and Madison avenue.

THROUGH misinformation we were led into an erroneous statement regarding the appearance of a new vocalist at the Crescent avenue Church sociable of last week. Consequently we will now mention as a mere rumor, the reported intention of that church society to erect a large gas lamp at the junction of Broadway and Crescent avenue, and otherwise improve what has long been a poorly-fenced and weed-grown, three-sided lot.

THE invitation of the Board of Governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital, requesting the public to be present upon the occasion of the opening of that building, should be universally responded to by a large attendance. Such an opportunity of inspecting the arrangements of the scheme, the furnishing of the rooms and the comforts and conveniences of all departments, may never again be available. Attached to the beds donated and the furnishings contributed, will be the names of the generous givers.

THE Ellis Family will give one of their excellent entertainments in VanDeventer Hall, on the evening of Dec. 6th, under the auspices of the Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F. Our citizens will no doubt remember the entertainment they gave in the same place a short time ago, when all who were present expressed themselves so well pleased. This family have given nearly 1000 entertainments, and are now on their fourth year. They have been enthusiastically received in the most popular churches and colleges throughout the country.

MR. John W. Morris having leased elegant and extensive stables in Rector near Broad street, Newark, N. J., will keep on hand a large stock of horses and mules for sale or exchange. Ample and good accommodations will be furnished dealers or others bringing stock to that market, and the benefit of Mr. Morris' experience and influence also secured. Horses and mules can be sent to the proprietor, to be sold on commission if desired. Mr. Morris will have regular weekly sales on each Thursday, at his New Brunswick stables, after Feb. 1st, 1882.

QUITE a promiscuous wrecking of vehicles occurred in Park avenue on Saturday last, indirectly occasioned by a bunch of toy balloons and directly resulting from the running away of a horse attached to one of French Bros' wagons. The animal being frightened by the waving of a quantity of colored balloons in the hands of a peripatetic salesman of the article, started suddenly up Park avenue from Second street and after throwing out his driver proceeded to demolish the wagon behind him and sundry others that interfered with his vagarious course. The runaway's subsequent capture at Front street, was all that prevented a universal smash in the wagon market.

DEMOCRATS, read the Primary and City Convention notices in this issue.

THE school trustee to be elected on Dec. 6th, will fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of Mr. W. B. Stewart.

A NOTICE in our advertising columns of a positive sale of a house and lot at public auction, affords a chance for someone to secure a bargain.

COUNCILMAN Reuben J. Ryan, of Elizabeth, died suddenly from apoplexy, at his residence in that city on Sunday last. He was 39 years of age.

THE sympathies of our public are very generally extended to Mr. N. P. Drake, who has just sustained an irreparable loss in the death of his wife.

IN a suit for libel brought by Dr. Brakeley of Dunellen, against Mr. Affleck of the same place for accusing the plaintiff of improper intimacy with the defendant's wife, the jury has given a verdict against the plaintiff.

CONTRACTOR Isaac S. Melbourn has completed the brick building for the manufacture of oil-cloth, adjoining the property formerly known as Bird's Mills. The erection was finished eleven days sooner than the contract stipulated.

COUNCILMAN Darling made his appearance at the last meeting of the Council and, as a result, a most unsatisfactory report on the proposition of the Plainfield Water Supply Co., appears this week in our account of the Council proceedings.

A SCAFFOLD that had been erected alongside of one of Mr. Job Male's new houses, fell recently and Mr. Samuel Connett and a fellow mason, who were thrown to the ground a distance of about 18 feet, had a miraculous escape from serious injury.

MR. A. W. Kelsey, of Chester, N. J., has a curiosity in the shape of a colt, whose body resembles that of a camel. A large hump appears on the back, the hind legs are long and when running the animal skips like a rabbit. There is money in the curiosity for some showman.

A WAGON loaded with about a ton of dressed poultry belonging to Mr. Marvin Dunham of this city, broke down while crossing the track of the Bound Brook & Philadelphia R. R., at Middlebrook, on Monday evening. Every effort was made to get clear of the coming express without avail, and the train striking the wagon demolished it and scattered the poultry in all directions. Mr. Dunham *claims a loss of about $300. The locomo*tive's cow-catcher, head-light and smoke-stack were smashed.

One Year Ago.

The small boy was skating on about three inches of ice in Plainfield's vicinity. The Morris Guards received the Halsey Guards of Newark on Thanksgiving morning, and entertained them in a hospitable manner. The Park avenue Baptist Church was dedicated on Tuesday morning. Mr. David Thickstun died at his residence on Friday the 26th.

H. Cornwell; Recording Secretary, Walter M. McGee; Corresponding Secretary, Howard J. Kenyon; Treasurer, H. Otis Newman; Directors, Harold Serrell, Jos. M. Titsworth, H. A. McGee, E. L. Bonny, T. C. Last Days of the Great Fair.

The semi-centennial exhibition of the American Institute at 3d avenue and 63d street, New York city, will not be closed on the 26th of this month as was intended by the Board of Managers, but at the asking of the exhibitors will continue the fair until the third day of December. Machinery Hall is more interesting than ever before this year, and is visited by very many. The Art Gallery is complete and very beautiful. The building is lighted at night by seventy-four electric lights, which give a clear and bright light and renders the use of gas-lights useless. The famous 9th Regiment Band, larger than ever before, under the leadership of M. Arbuckle, the well known cornet virtuoso, gives a grand concert every afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, and every evening from 8 to 10 o'clock, at which hour the fair closes. At each concert M. Arbuckle plays one of his cornet solos, which is greatly enjoyed by all who hear it. Solos are at every concert played on the clarionette by Karl Sigel, on the euphonium by J. G. Frank, on the saxaphone by F. Sipp, on the cornet by Wm. Griffin and on the sarusphone by Mons. Reibe. But a few opportunities are left to visit the fair, and a visit should be made at once or it may be too late.

Mr. A. H. Smith moved that the rules be suspended in order to hear report of Special Com. on Water Supply. Carried.

Mr. Darling then presented the following report:

Your special Committee appointed to consider the proposition of the Plainfield Water Supply Company beg to report: That in their opinion the question of the city's obtaining an adequate supply of pure water is of the highest importance to the city and its inhabitants, and should be acted upon with all the promptness possible under the circumstances attendant upon the past and present unfortunate condition of the city financially.

Your Committee would report that the company do not feel that they should furnish the city with water for fire purposes including the hydrants, without receiving compensation, therefore, it is the opinion of your Committee that no arrangement looking to the payment of money for water can be entered into by the city so long as the matter relating to fire hydrants, &c., is under the control of the Fire Corporation, unless the said Fire Corporation join the city in making such arrangement. Your Committee therefore, while recommending that the proposition be further considered and such action as can be had by conference with the Fire Corporation and the Water Supply Company, be taken, cannot at this time report further upon the proposition.

On motion, report received and tabled.

On motion of Mr. Waring, Council adjourned for one week.

The Citizen's Meeting.

In response to the call of a meeting of tax-payers irrespective of party, as published in the last issue of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, there assembled in Van Deventer Hall on Tuesday evening about 150 of our better class of residents. Among those present were Mayor Randolph, Corporation Counsel Kimball, City Judge Runyon, City Physician Lewis, Street Commissioner Hand, Councilmen Whiton, Waring, Tyler, Tracy, Finch and A. Smith, Overseer of the Poor Vanderbeek, Rev. J. P. Ketcham, Rev. E. M. Rodman, ex-Councilmen Potts, Redfield, Dunlap, Marshall, Baker, Simpson, Mulford and Ryder, ex-Judge Good, Somerset County Collector Berry, Assessor Hubbard, Lawyers Suydam, Marsh, Hetfield, Jackson, Wadsworth, Stillman and Van Winkle, Dr. E. W. South, and Messrs. J. B. Dumont, W. W. Howland, J. E. Carey, W. J. Leonard, S. P. Huntington, H. C. Dabell, Horace Kimball, Chas. Place, G. H. Goddard, E. N. Erickson, J. K. Myers, F. Knowland, J. C. Runyon, J. W. Murray, L. W. Serrell, W. C. Butler, H. A. Thorne, S. T. Varian, W. H. Voorhees, W. B. Ostrom, J. B. Coward, Carman Parse, E. C. Morse, W. E. Lowe, John Ross, Levi Hetfield, Albro Lyons and E. Laupheer.

The meeting was called to order by the Mayor, who stated the object and that it had been arranged at the request of a number of citizens. The organization was then perfected by the unanimous choice of John B. Dumont, Esq., as Chairman and Mr. John H. Jackson as Secretary. The Mayor followed with a most comprehensive and complete review of the financial situation of the city, thoroughly explaining the cause of the present condition of affairs and showing conclusively how it was impossible by means of the present laws in force, to extricate the municipality from the predicament into which it had fallen. The money received for the uses of the city now and forever must go towards the payment of State and County taxes that it was impossible to collect in the absence of any means provided. The speaker fully established the fact that the course followed in the matter had been a well-advised one—seeking to discover the opinion of the highest authorities, as to what was the liability of the city in the matter. He stated truly, that the endeavor of the counsel defending the city had not been to secure for their arguments the endorsement of the Supreme Court, but to obtain the ruling of that bench as to what power was invested in the city by the laws of the State. Later in the evening, Mr. John M. Whiton, President of the Common Council, delivered a most able extemporaneous statement of the course of the Council in the matter, and what reason had, after careful consideration in every direction, led that body to take its' present stand. As a clear exposition of the case Mr. Whiton's effort was most able and admirable, and carried with it, to the mind and understanding of every unbiased listener, the obvious conviction that the course of the Council from beginning to end had been the only one to follow. Around those two addresses the evening's discussion concentrated. In support of the principles involved, Corporation Counsel Kimball, Mr. L. W. Serrell and others spoke very effectively, and greatly assisted in securing the endorsement by the meeting of the past acts of the City Government in the premises.

The other side of the question was not lacking in a certain kind of support which, early in the evening, assumed quite a belligerent attitude that subsequently subsided. The opposing element was under the leadership of ex-Judge J. P. Good and seemed, in consequence, more able than the other side to maintain the contest from a legal aspect. That gentleman stated that he had just finished a complete examination of the laws of the State in relation to the collection of taxes, "from 1769 to the present day, and knew what he was talking about." Mr. Good, after an extended speech, tragically shook his finger at space and emphatically stated, "Gentlemen, you can collect the taxes!"

As the speaker sat down, the element of opposition to the City's officers that was present, was in a enviable state of I-told-you-so exhilaration. The malcontents had known all along that the taxes could be collected if the Council would so choose to do. They had shouted "collect" until hoarse, and had sworn not to pay what they owed until the City's authorities collected what was due from others. This comfortable condition of mind, inspired by the words of a legal light possessed of the gist of the laws of almost two-hundred years, was, however, of short duration. Councilman Tracy arose at the close of Mr. Good's remarks, and after offering thanks for the discovery of a snag posted in the tax laws since 1769, stated that he had only one question to ask the last speaker: "Will he be so kind as to point out a mode whereby the State and County taxes can be collected by law in the City of Plainfield?"

In reply to this, Mr. Good rambled off in an entirely different direction and completely avoided the question. He was asked again, and again he failed to give an answer. Pressed at last upon all sides he said: "We might as well own up, first as last, there is no power given by the law in words for the purpose." The only foundation possessed by the opposition being this proven intangible, nothing could result but an endorsement by the assemblage of the course of the City government. A resolution, as follows, offered by Mr. George H. Goddard, was then put to a rising vote:

Resolved, That in view of the importance of having the law plainly provide for the enforcement of taxes due and to become due in Plainfield, and of having such taxes imposed and only such as shall adequately meet the requirements of the public good—a committee be appointed by the Chairman of this meeting to consist of nine citizens including the *Chairman, whose duty it shall be to con*sider carefully what legislation is necessary, and acting under proper legal advice and if possible cooperating with a Committee from the Common Council, to obtain such legislation as shall meet the requirements of this City.

A call being made for those opposed to the resolution, not a single man present arose. The meeting then adjourned.

Chester.

One of the most promising and business appearing villages in Morris County, N. J., to-day, is Chester, made so by its natural advantages in the production of that necessary commodity—iron ore. It was only a few years ago that the residents of that village were made aware of the great wealth the earth beneath them contained. *Farms that were then consid*ered of little account for stock raising or agricultural pursuits, have since been made to pay large dividends on money invested to extract the precious iron ore from the rocky and sloping hill sides. Even in the heart of the village the sight of huge piles of ore and debris indicate the presence of mines and miners. Where once was a pleasant garden, now may be seen a yawning gulf, out of which is constantly being hoisted car load after car load of iron ore. Railroads have been constructed to within a few feet of these mines, where after the cars are loaded a locomotive draws them to the main line of either the Central Railroad or the Morris & Essex, and from thence they are taken to their final destination—the smelting works. It was the pleasure of the writer last week to visit this beautiful village and make a tour of inspection of the valuable iron mines in its vicinity. While there we witnessed the opening of two additional new mines on the farms of Mr. H. H. DeCamp and that gentleman's mother, Mrs. D. S. DeCamp, both of which promise to turn out profitably to the owners. Business was combined with pleasure on this visit, and as we desire to speak more particularly of the pleasurable part of our trip, we propose to give a little history of one of the most enjoyable visits to Chester, N. J., it has ever been our fortune to experience. To begin with, we were a guest of that prince of entertainers, Hiram H. DeCamp, formerly connected with Laing's Hotel, this city, and now domiciled with his family on one of the finest and most productive farms in the County of Morris. Those of our readers who have had the fortune to be a guest of "High" DeCamp, know full well with what hospitality we were received and entertained during our stay at his house by himself and estimable wife and family. While enjoying the pleasure of the hunt, his son "Johnny" was our constant companion. As he is a good shot, the quantity of game brought in each evening was largely due to his unerring sight. After a bountiful supper each evening, "Mamie," the accomplished and amiable daughter entertained the family and friends with music on the piano, accompanied with song. Little "High" Jr., is quite a farmer for one so young in years. Through his manipulations with the gentle and sleek looking "cushies," were we indebted to the rich, creamy milk each meal. As game is abundant in that section of our State, and the writer an enthusiast on the subject of game, of course every courtesy was shown us by friends of "High" as to the best locality for that very necessary commodity, and we must say we had plenty of hunting during our visit there. The reader must not presume that we had no luck in the pursuit of the frisky "bunny," "ruffled" grouse or "bob white," on the contrary we did, as the total bag of game at the close of our visit counted up 15 rabbits, 34 quails, 15 ruffled grouse, 1 hawk and a cat. To capture that large amount of game we were indebted to the assistance of friends staunch and true, who were only too anxious to assist us in our laudable efforts to kill all the game surrounding Chester, for fear they would invade the mines and stop work by the efforts of the workmen to capture them alive. "Billy" Sleep, with his matchless pair of imported hound dogs, "Mick" and "Range" did much toward adding the number of "bunnies" to the bag of game, while "Johnny" DeCamp's "Roxy" and the writer's "Gussy" (kindly loaned by P. C. Ohl, Esq.,) did famous work among the quail and grouse. They (the dogs) did their duty if the gunners did not. Before closing this little sketch, the writer desires to extend thanks for favors and courtesies shown, to Messrs. Wm. Sleep, Alex. Parks, C. D. Stelle, A. W. and son Charley Kelsey, Robert King, Joel Younger, John Roach, Charley Emmons, Will. Swayze, Al DeCamp, Geo. Howell and others. Of course, in all large hunting parties, accidents are liable to happen. In this case, however, nothing serious occurred, but some ludicrous incidents happened. "Ally" DeCamp killed a cat in mistake for a rabbit; Will Swayze lost his way and found—a ride home; "Bob" King ditto (and treated the boys to cider) Constable Kelsey found a "case" the next day, and took his man to Morristown. His son Charley made love to all the girls in the farm house; "Billy" Sleep was not as "Sleepy" as he looked—some times—and having the best dogs in the county, made the best record of the party in crippling rabbits; Joel Younger made himself famous by capturing wounded quail in a steel trap and in the manner in which he dispensed "man cider" to his guests; Squire Howell is the best pilot for good "hunting" grounds that can be found in the State; the Hon. C. D. Stelle, better known as "Caser" beat the deck for the manner in which he frightened the festive rabbit within reach of the writer's deadly fire arm by his terrific war whoop of "Pollywattle;" "Poke" Parks made himself immortal in the eyes and mind of the writer by his faithful promises to arrive home early after the day's hunt and by his "funny" stories. Last, but not least, Charley Emmons, that whole-souled mine host of the "Cross Roads House" was remarkable for his efforts to make everything pleasant for the party who enjoyed the hospitality of his house when occasion offered. When any Plainfielders visiting Chester, desire a good, hospitable hostelry to cover their heads, we advise them to stop at the Cross Roads Hotel, where Mr. Emmons and his son-in-law, John Roach will attend to their wants in proper style at fair rates. The only accidents happening to the hunting party during the whole week, when it was our pleasure to be with the above mentioned party, was that received by our old friend "Stelle," who suffered from a compound fracture of nine ribs in consequence of too much laugh and a hat rack falling upon him. There are many others whom we met during our visit whose names we cannot recall at present, to whom we extend thanks in this manner for courtesies shown us. We trust some time to reciprocate. The only question we have to ask in print is this—"Who stole that rabbit that Charley Emmons gave us? Was it June or ——" "Oh, my! Oh, dear! What are you doing?"

The Y. M. C. A. Concert.

In view of the number of tickets that have been sold for the Grand Concert of the N. Y. Vocal Sextette to be given under the management of the Y. M. C. A., on Thanksgiving evening, it is unnecessary for us to announce what all seem aware of. The artists whose names appear elsewhere, are universally acknowl*edged as most talented and able, and the* selections that will be rendered are unusually choice and acceptable. Miss Dossert will sing Verdi's Aria, "To all dear friends;" Miss Wilkinson will sing Gatty's "Life's up hill;" Mr. Thompson's solo will be "Forever and Forever," by Tosti, and Mr. Ellard will sing Marsden's "Across the far blue hills, Marie." Mr. Rietzel will render compositions of Chopin, Rubenstein and Raff, while the remainder of the extended programme will consist of trios, quartettes, a quintette and a sextette, including some beautiful selections from "Martha" by a quartette composed of Miss Dossert, Miss Wilkinson, Messrs. Thompson and Bray.

FIRE MATTERS.

The reflection in the sky of a far off fire, inspired some party incapable of judging distances to ring the alarm bell on Saturday night. The Department and its apparatus was needlessly called out, but subsequently ordered back.

Johnson on the war-path. The party whom Squire Godfrey sentenced to the County Jail for ten days about a month ago, and who served his time out there, is again on the rampage. It is a question whether or no he ought to be sent to Morristown Asylum instead of Elizabeth Jail.

Our Collector, Wm. W. Connelly, has completed his sale of real estate for taxes for the year 1880 and made returns to the Township Committee of the tax warrant directed to him. We understand the young ladies of the Mission Band connected with the Presbyterian church, propose holding a Fair and Festival in the lecture room of the church at an early day. The ladies are making preparation in the line of fancy articles for the occasion. A good time may be expected. Proceeds for the benefit of Foreign Missions.

On last Wednesday quite a number of our young lads were engaged in a game of foot ball on the vacant lots corner of South and Westfield avenues, two or three young rowdies interfered and tried to stop the progress of the game. Quite a melee and tussel ensued, some of the boys coming out of the scrape with black eyes and swollen scalps. Complaint has been made but no arrest up to the present time.

On Thursday evening, Nov. 17th., the officers and members of the African M. E. Church of Westfield, gave an Oyster Supper and Festival in Lyceum Hall building. There was a large attendance, persons coming from Newark, Elizabeth and Plainfield. After patronizing the refreshment tables to the satisfaction of the inner man, the entertainment was closed with songs and dances. The affair was a perfect success, netting considerable to the treasury.

Careless driving. On Friday morning Nov. 18th inst., the family of Mr. Borsmith while driving to the depot on Elm street from Broad to the depot in a rockaway drawn by two horses, was run into by a team driven by a German working for James McMurray, and the rockaway was considerably damaged. The team attached to it being very gentle did not attempt to run away or there might have been a very serious accident, as it was occupied only by ladies and small children.

What might have been a serious disaster: The mechanics erecting the brick building of C. Whitaker, corner of Broad and Elm street, upon going to their work on Saturday morning, discovered the corner of the building at the angle of the streets had commenced to settle somewhat, the cause being the unsufficient foundation of stone work. They immediately shored the same up and put in a large solid stone and new iron columns, so it is now perfectly safe.

OUR COURTS.

The case of Moffett vs Gale. In trespass on the case to his damage, before Justice Godfrey, which was to have been tried on Friday last was adjourned to Saturday Nov. 26th inst. at 10 a. m. This is a case that comes out of a wagon ride. Last Summer Mr. Gale hired a team of horses and wagon from Moffett to take a pleasure ride, when coming down the hill back of Scotch Plains, near the Far Mill, the horses became unmanageable and overturned the wagon injuring the occupants seriously. The suit is for damages to horses and wagon. Mr. Moffett and Gale failing to agree between themselves, recourse by law the next step. Advice to both parties, better leave the law alone.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a violent BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years. ... I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced to take DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists.

WHY WEAR PLASTERS?

They may relieve, but they can't cure that lame back, for the kidneys are the trouble and you want a remedy to act directly on their secretions, to purify and restore their healthy condition. Kidney-Wort has that specific action—and at the same time it regulates the bowels perfectly. Don't wait to get sick, but get a package to-day, and cure yourself. Liquid and dry sold by all Druggists.—Germantown Telegraph.

"The mainspring of Italian music in the eighteenth century," says a recent writer, "was the exclusive and passionate worship of the human voice." But Italian music has experienced a change. Its mainspring is now in a box, and is worked with a handle.

AN ORDINANCE

To Establish and Regulate Public Pounds in Plainfield.

The Inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That two pound keepers shall be appointed annually, to hold office from the time of their appointment until the first Monday of the next succeeding February, or until their successors are appointed.

Sec. 2. The poundkeepers so appointed, (unless provision is otherwise made by the Common Council for a public pound or public pounds) shall each provide a public pound within the city limits, and shall keep a register of all animals impounded in their respective pounds, together with the names of the persons impounding them, and an account of all moneys received or paid out by them respectively in connection with such pound, and each of said poundkeepers shall at the expiration of his term of office make a report of his receipts and disbursements to the Common Council. They shall be entitled to receive the like fees which poundkeepers in townships in this State are entitled to receive by the State law for similar services.

Sec. 3. All horses, mules, cattle, swine and goats found running at large within the city limits may be taken by any person to one of the public pounds whereupon it shall be the duty of the poundkeeper in charge of such pound to receive and confine any such animal or animals until it or they shall be lawfully sold or redeemed.

Sec. 4. If the owner of any animal or animals impounded shall apply to the poundkeeper in charge for the redemption thereof and shall tender him one dollar for each animal impounded, in addition to the usual fees for keeping and caring for the same, then upon receipt of such sum or sums by the poundkeeper, such animal or animals shall be surrendered and delivered to the owner thereof.

Sec. 5. All impounded animals not redeemed by the owner or owners within 10 days after they are impounded, shall be sold by the poundkeeper in the same manner and subject to the provisions as to notices and disposition of the proceeds of sale, (except that the Clerk of the Common Council shall be substituted for the Clerk of the Township) contained in 12th Section of the chapter in relation to Pounds, of the Revision of the Statutes of the State of New Jersey.

Sec. 6. If any person shall rescue, or attempt to rescue, any animal that shall have been found running at large from the custody of any person who shall be driving or taking the same to the pound, such person or persons so offending shall on conviction thereof be punished by a fine of five dollars for each animal so rescued or attempted to be rescued.

By Freeholder Doty:

Resolved, That new bonds to the amount of $21,000 be issued by this Board to renew a portion of the bonds falling due January 1st, 1882, for the payment of which no provision has been made, in accordance with an act of the Legislature approved March 4th, 1881, page 118.

And the Board hereby determine that they shall be coupon bonds of the denomination of $1,000 each, dated January 1st, 1882, and that $10,000 shall fall due on the 1st of January, 1892, and $11,000 on the 1st of January, 1893, and they shall bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually.

Freeholder Randolph moved to amend by making the rate of interest 6 per cent. instead of 5 per cent.

Roll being called the amendment was declared lost by the following vote:

Affirmative—Freeholders Eller, Hubbard, Randolph, Runkle, Sullivan—5.

Negative—Director Martine and Freeholders Briant, Clark, Doty, Forsyth, Isenmann, Melick, Mapes, Newberry, Smith, Thompson—11.

On motion of Freeholder Hubbard, the resolution was then adopted, all the members voting in the affirmative.

By the Director:

Resolved, That the two bills of W. C. Ayres for line bridges, one in Plainfield, amounting to $34.63, the other in Fanwood, amounting to $241.60, be paid when properly sworn to and audited by the respective committees.

On motion adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Forsyth:

On motion adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Briant;

Resolved, That whenever any suit should be brought against any treasurer of any city or any collector of any township in this county, which, in the judgment of the Director, Collector and Attorney, threatens or claims to impair the priority of the claim of the county to payment from taxes collected, the Attorney shall, if requested by the Director, and Collector, take immediate measure to protect the interest of the county, and that the Director and Collector may employ additional counsel if they deem it necessary.

On motion, adopted by a unanimous vote.

On motion, adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Randolph:

Resolved, That the Committee on Stationery be instructed to purchase three county maps, when completed, one for the use of the Board, one for County Clerk's office, and one for the Sheriff's office, at a cost not exceeding $12 each, to be issued as Robinson's Atlas of Union County.

On motion adopted by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Isenmann:

Resolved, That the effects of Wm. Kolb, as reported by the County Physician this day, be placed in the hands of the County Collector for disposal.

On motion, adopted.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the hour of meeting hereafter be 11 o'clock A. M., until otherwise ordered by the Board.

On motion, adopted.

The County Attorney being present reported that opinions were rendered in the Supreme Court to-day in the following cases, in which the county of Union is interested:

Sheridan, Collector, vs Brewster, Treasurer of Rahway, mandamus awarded. Sheridan, Collector, vs Langstaff, Treasurer of Rahway, the same result. In Fairbank vs Sheridan, Collector, Fairbank's demurrer was overruled. This was a suit to recover about $800 for fees as Police Justice of Elizabeth. The Court held that he had no jurisdiction and was not entitled to them. In Sheridan, Collector, vs Van Winkle, Treasurer of Plainfield, application for an argument, made by Van Winkle, was denied. In Sheridan, Collector, vs Van Winkle, Treasurer of Plainfield, the Court refused mandamus because the city had not been made a party to the suit, but also held that the Plainfield authorities must pay the State and County taxes out of the first monies collected.

Freeholder Newbury moved that the Attorney be directed to notify the parties named in the forgoing suits at once.

Which was carried.

WISE WORDS.

A man often stubs his toe on the threshold of success.

No one is ever fatigued after the exercise of forbearance.

A handsome woman pleases the eye, but a good woman charms the heart.

Discretion is the golden cord on which wisdom strings her richest jewels.

The wise man looks for happiness beyond the narrow ken of personal interest.

Men often judge the person, but not the cause, which is not justice, but malice.

As we must render an account of every idle word, so must we likewise of our idle silence.

If you wish to appear agreeable in society, you must consent to be taught many things which you know already.

The very heart and root of sin is an independent and selfish spirit. We erect the idol self, and not only wish others to worship it, but we worship it ourselves.

At the next session of the Legislature application will be made for the division of Monmouth county. The new county is to be formed of the townships of Raritan, Ocean, Shrewsbury, Middleton, Wall, Neptune and Holmdel, all the shore townships. It will be known as Sandy Hook county, and will have a population of about 30,000.

The organization of the House of Representatives at Washington causes much talk. The election of Flower and defeat of Astor is a severe blow to the Administration. The Republicans have one vote less than a majority, and are counting upon the votes of the two Readjusters from Virginia, Paul and Fulkerson, of Hyatt Smith, of the Third New York District, and of two of the four Greenbackers elected in Missouri in opposition to the Democratic candidates. If their expectations in this regard are realized they will have four more than a majority of all the members and be able to organize the House. But the Democrats propose to take a hand in the fight. They recognize the truth of old John Randolph's statement, that the Speaker's office is the next in importance to that of the President, and there is some talk of a coalition with the Greenbackers. The Republicans will make a desperate effort to capture the Greenbackers, in which case they will organize, of course. Kasson, of Iowa, and Hiscock, of New York, are leading Republican candidates for the Speakership, while S. S. Cox, Randolph Tucker, and Randall, of Pennsylvania, are rivals on the Democratic side. Democrats, however, are tired of Randall, and he will be retired to a less conspicuous place than the Speakership.

Thanksgiving Day.

The President of the United States has fixed Nov. 24th as the annual Thanksgiving Day. In his proclamation he says:

"It has long been the pious custom of our people, with the closing of the year, to look back upon the blessings brought to them in the changing course of the seasons, and to return solemn thanks to the All-giving source from whom they flow. And although at this period, when the falling leaf admonishes us that the time of our sacred duty is at hand, our Nation still lies in the shadow of a great bereavement and the mourning, which has filled our hearts, still finds its sorrowful expression toward the God before whom we but lately bowed in grief and supplication, yet the countless benefits which have showered upon us during the past twelve months call for our fervent gratitude and make it fitting that we should rejoice with thankfulness that the Lord in his infinite mercy has most signally favored our country and our people. Peace without and prosperity within have been vouchsafed to us. No pestilence has visited our shores, the abundant privileges of freedom, which our fathers left us in their wisdom, are still our increasing heritage, and if in parts of our vast domain some affliction has visited our brethren in the forest homes, yet even this calamity has been tempered and in a manner sanctified by the generous compassion for the sufferers which have been called forth throughout our land. For all these things it is meet that the voice of the Nation should go up to God in devout homage."

M. M. B. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says, he was not expected to live, being bloated beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him.

Anna L. Jarrett, of South Salem, N. Y., says, that seven years suffering from kidney troubles and other complications was ended by the use of Kidney-Wort.

John B. Lawrence of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and after taking "barrels of other medicines," Kidney-Wort made him well.

POETRY.

THE LAST LOOK.

They say the years since last we met
  Have wrought sad change in thee;
That it were better to forget
  Our youth's fond history.
And yet I fain would clasp thy hand,
  Would meet those eyes once more,
One moment by thy side would stand,
  As I have stood of yore.

They say the very tones that thrill'd
  My heart, and dimmed my eyes,
Now, by the cold world's blighting chill'd
  I scarce might recognize.
And yet I long to hear thee speak,
  Repeat some bygone strain,
Although the charm I think would break
  Were listened for in vain.

I would not wish the years rolled back,
  Could such a choice be mine.
Nor falter in the outward track,
  Though severed far from thine,
But pilgrims they whom hard won heights
  [illegible] survey,
And give a sigh to past delights,
  Then, sighing—turn away.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

LIFE OF A COUNTRY EDITOR

A STORY WITH A POWERFUL MORAL—LET EVERYBODY READ.

Once upon a time, about the beginning of the year 1881, there lived a lean and hungry editor. All through the year 1880 he had worked hard, and lived for the most part on turnips, dried apples and herrings. Thanksgiving day and Christmas day had come and gone, and on those occasions the editor had worked off the best jokes he could get up as to turkeys and cranberry sauce. He got up these jokes mainly for the purpose of making the general public believe that he dined sumptuously on those occasions. But the fact of the matter is, the only change of diet the editor had on each of those days, was that he mixed his turnips and dried apples together, and called the mixture by a beautiful French name. It is true that the editor was not able to eat much of his new dish, even after he had given it a beautiful name. But this did not matter much. He calmly ate his herring and congratulated himself that this French delicacy of his was a dish that few of his acquaintances had ever sat down to.

But we must go on with our story. As we have remarked before, our narrative commences with the beginning of the year 1881. Of course, that is a long, long time ago, and of course the editor about whom we are now telling has long since died and gone to heaven. But perhaps some among our oldest readers may have heard their grandfathers speak of the winter of 1880 and 1881. How it snowed and blowed and froze, and then took a fresh start and froze and blowed and snowed. How boats were frozen up in the rivers, and railroad trains blocked in the middle of the forests by impenetrable banks of snow, and the cattle upon a thousand hills compelled to eat straw under the shed,—and yet it kept on snowing and blowing and freezing. There lived about that time a weather prophet by name Vennor. Many people including the editor, believed that Vennor had much to do with creating the miserable state of the weather. Whether Vennor was responsible for the weather or whether it might have more properly been ascribed to Herbert Spencer's "differentiations of definite, coherent heterogeneity," we are not able at this time to determine. What ever may have been the cause of the winter, we will simply state that it was almost as bad as any that had ever occurred within the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

On the morning on which our story commences, the editor was sitting moodily in his sanctum. The devil was endeavoring to make the fire burn, just as a well introduced devil should. But the editor was meditating. He was thinking of the past, of the present and the future. He had just finished making out a long list of bills, and he was thinking sweetly of all those blessed subscribers who had paid him in advance, and against whom he had no bills. And he was thinking mournfully, regretfully, almost bitterly, of those who hadn't yet squared up. And yet he was thinking hopefully in this latter class, for it was principally upon them that he depended for his future rations. He knew there were lots and lots of good fellows among them, who would not let him starve to death while they could raise one dollar and fifty cents. The editor had spent all of his advance subscriptions keeping up his rent, in buying his dried apples, his turnips and his herrings, in paying for the material and other costs of running his paper and in feeding and clothing his devil. On this morning as the editor sat in his sanctum, he was completely bankrupted—he had fifteen cents left. But all his turnips were gone, and he only had four pounds of dried apples and nine herring remaining in his larder. The editor took his pencil and made a calculation. These four pounds of apples he calculated, when boiled would amount to just four bushels. Allowing himself to eat a peck, these four bushels would last him just thirty-two days. But as it took him a herring a day, the nine herring would only last him nine days. This was a gloomy outlook. The editor glanced at his feet and saw that his toes were begining to show, and as he thought of the cold weather, remembered that he ought to have a new pair of shoes, a shirt, another pair of stockings, and an ulster overcoat. As the editor thought upon these things, his mind grew desperate. He jumped up from his seat, struck a theatrical attitude, shut one eye and shook his fist at the devil. This scared the devil almost to death, for he thought the editor had discovered another typographical error in the last issue. But when he found that the editor was only about to make a speech, he stood and listened, just as a well conducted devil should.

Said the editor—"Have I not worked faithfully during the past year to collect all the news of the county, and to condense into brief form the principal news of the country, for the benefit of our readers?"

The devil said, "To the best of my knowledge and belief, you have."

"Have I not," said the editor; "when locals were scarce, have I not sat here upon this venerable chair and invented accidents, and created locals out of misty nothing?"

The devil said he would bet his chewing gum that the editor told the truth.

"Have I not," continued the editor, "used my utmost exertion to keep patent medicine advertisements out of our paper, and have I not always refused to put in personal puffs unless they were paid for in advance?"

The devil said he was not sure upon this last point that the editor had made. He thought the statement sounded very beautiful and very eloquent, and he had no doubt but that it was poetically correct,—but only poetically so.

"Have I not," said the editor, "hunted up tit-bits of scandal? Have I not pried as much as possible into people's private affairs for the benefit of the general public?"

The devil grinned, and winked knowingly at the editor, and said that all this was too true to be denied.

"And finally," said the editor; "have I not during this cold and sleety weather, stood upon the street corner, with my pencil in one hand and note-book in the other; and have I not watched the beautiful, beautiful damsels, the airy, dainty damsels, the rollicking, jovial damsels, as they jauntily tripped over the icy pavements. And when the dainty heels of these jovial damsels had flown up into the air, and those beautiful damsels have come down hard upon the pavement have I not given a picturesque and minute account of the scene?"

The devil was so much impressed with this part of the speech that he called the journeymen, and got the editor to say it over again. The editor said it over again word for word, and the devil and the journeymen said it was the finest piece of eloquence they had ever listened to. They furthermore said that they would swear before a court and jury that it was every word true.

This served to calm down the editor very considerably, and he again took his seat and engaged in contemplation of his subscription bills. There were a great many for only one year, and these were $1 50. There were a large number for two years, and these were $3.00, and there were some that had even run for three years, and they amounted to $4.50—that is supposing that in all of these cases, only advance rates were charged. Then he cast his eye over his books, and noted those blessed subscribers who had paid in advance. These he found to be more than twice as many as all the others together, but, as we have before remarked, the editor had already spent these. Though he gave them the best affections of his heart, he fully appreciated that he could not look to them for his supply of dried apples and turnips through the coming year.

Now comes the tragic part of our story. The editor after working over his bills all day, went home to supper. It was nine o'clock when he sat down to his evening's meal. This was his usual time for supping. As we have said before, his turnips were all gone, and he had eaten his day's herring for dinner, so that he only had three quarts of dried apples left for his supper. These he peacefully and serenely ate.

[Some may be inclined to think the quantity of food the editor consumed is overstated—that three quarts of dried apples was too much for his supper. In reply to this we simply state, that editors have to eat a great deal more that other people in order to supply their brain power.]

Having finished his supper he pulled his chair up to the fire. He had borrowed two bushels of coal that day, and therefore had an uncommonly good fire. Having pulled his chair to the fire, he turned his lamp low down to save oil. The turned-down lamp cast a twilight shadow over the room, and the well-filled fire cast out a comforting glow of heat. These two conditions, together with the fact that the editor had eaten a hearty supper, made him feel a little drowsy. Soon he lapsed into that state which may be described as not asleep, and not awake—a kind of half-and-half condition.

The clock struck ten and eleven, and still the editor sat in the darkened room and enjoyed the comforting glow of the fire. The clock struck twelve—and as the last chime died away, there was a mysterious change that came over the editors surroundings. His lamp went out and he was left in total darkness. His stove expanded and spread until it became a mighty furnace of glowing fire. The flames roared and blazed and flashed until the editor trembled in dread. Suddenly there sprang from the fire a mysterious personage. It was the devil. Not the editor's own devil—not the individual who did all the dirty work in the office, and who had to bear all the blame for bad spelling and other mistakes that occurred in the paper—no, no, not this devil, but the real, simon pure, bona fide devil—the same that held intercourse with Dr. Faust, some three hundred years ago. [The printer's devil, it will be understood, is only an imitation of the real devil.] The editor glanced at his cloven foot, and immediately recognized him.

"What may it please you to want?" asked the editor.

"You are poor," said the devil.

"I am," said the editor.

"You have subscribers what won't pay up," said the devil.

"I have said the editor.

"Some owe you $1.50, some owe you $3.00 and some owe you $4.50," said the devil.

"You state the case correctly," said the editor.

"You would like to have all these subscriptions," said the devil.

"I would said the editor.

"You would like to be rich," said the devil.

"I would," said the editor.

"My friend," said the devil, "I will make you as rich as Jim Gordon Bennett, on one condition."

"And what is the condition?" asked the editor.

"Simply that you will serve me here, and hereafter," said the devil.

"Can't do it," said the editor.

The devil frowned at him for throwing away such a good chance, but came forward with another proposition.

"Give me the influence of your paper during your lifetime!" said the devil "and I will guarantee you ten thousand subscribers who shall pay you up promptly the first Saturday in every January.

The editor revolved the proposition in his mind. He wondered whether the devil might desire to go to Congress, or to the State Legislature or whether he might desire to run for Clerk of the County or Sheriff. For one of these positions he concluded that he would not be willing to support him. He therefore respectfully declined his offer.

"Well," said the devil, "I see you do not know when you are well off. But I will make you a third and final proposition."

"Go ahead with your proposition," said the editor.

"I will collect all these subscription bills on this condition," said the devil.

"You are to put them in a bag, shake them thoroughly, and draw out one at a time. Every tenth bill is to be mine and the other nine I will collect for you. You transfer one-tenth of your bills to me—I collect the other nine-tenths for you. Do you understand?" asked the devil.

"I do," said the editor.

"Do you accept the proposition?" asked the devil.

The editor reflected. "What do you propose to do with your tenth of the subscribers?" he asked.

"Ah, what?" replied the devil, "that's the question. But that's none of your business."

"I can't accept," said the editor.

"You're a fool," said the devil, with which he disappeared in the furnace.

The furnace faded away. The editor rubbed his eyes and there was his own stove, glowing with white heat. The clock struck one. He turned the heat off his stove, refilled his lamp, and went to bed.

MORAL.

Of course all this occurred a long, long time ago—in the beginning of the year 1881, but editors are pretty much the same set of dish-rags now that they were then, and the above story therefore teaches several things.

It teaches first—that the editor would not sell his soul to the devil for $20,000,000. It teaches secondly—that he would not sell his influence to the devil for ten thousand cash subscribers a year. It teaches thirdly—that he would not transfer one-tenth of his back subscription bills to the devil even though the devil should collect the other nine-tenths. Should such a man as this be allowed to live on dried apples and herrings, and to go all winter without a new pair of shoes, a new shirt, and a new ulster overcoat? Can any subscriber who owes a newspaper man one year's subscription or three years' subscription have the hardness of heart to withhold the amount?

THE WRONG GIRL.

His name was Augustus Smythe; he was a clerk in a dry goods store, and didn't earn enough to starve decently on, but with that sublime assurance which distinguishes the la-de-dah young man of the day, he was paying attention to the prettiest girl in Detroit. He managed by not paying his washerwoman and tailor to take her to operas and theatres, but as times were getting hard he concluded to marry her and save the expense of boarding. By some process of mental arithmetic known to the genus, he decided that what was not enough for one was enough for two, and forthwith he concluded to pop. He knew that his persistent visits had kept all the other young men away, so he had no fears of a trial. When the time came and he found himself in the company of his Laura in her papa's comfortable parlor, he leisurely seated himself by her on the sofa, took her little dimpled hand, used only to tinkle the piano with, and said in a bronze voice:

"Dear Miss Laura, I have concluded to marry."

Laura started, as he intended she should. Then he resumed, grandiloquently: "I want a dear little girl about your size, with a great big heart, just like yours, to share my lot."

"Is it on Jefferson avenue?" murmured Laura.

"No, dearest, it is on Croghan street, but what are localities to hearts that love? I want a girl who is good tempered, smart, economical, and who loves me! Darling, do you know of such a one?"

Laura, faintly: "Yes, oh yes, I am sure I do."

"One who would rather live with me in poverty than dwell with some other man in riches? Who would esteem it a pleasure to serve me, cook my meals, keep the house tidy, and listen for my footsteps? who would rise early and sit up late for my sake?"

"Oh, how beautiful," murmured Laura; "just like a dear, self-sacrificing man!"

"Do you know such a one, my angel?"

"Yes, I do," responded Laura, fervently; "but you must not call me your angel, for she might not like it; she's in the kitchen now washing dishes, and she told mother this morning she'd just as leave get married this winter as live out, if she only felt able to support a husband. She's just the girl you want, and she'll love you within an inch of your life."

But Augustus Smythe had fled into the outer darkness; the too muchness of the occasion overcame him like a summer cloud.—Detroit Post.

HOW HE GOT IN.

The other night a young man from Northern Arkansas and a young lady from the Southern part of the State met at a hotel in this city and were married. After the ceremony the young man went out and sat in front of the hotel, while his wife went up to the room assigned as the bridal chamber. 'This thing of gettin' married is a lifetime business,' he said, addressing a man who had just been divorced from his wife. 'I reckon you have found it so,' he added, turning to a single man. 'Wall, I reckon I'll go up. Dinged if I don't sorter hate to go up thar, too. But I never was afeered of a man, and I don't see why I should be afeered of a woman.' He went up and rapped at the door. 'Who's there?' demanded the girl. 'It's me.' 'Who's me?' 'Don't you recognize my talk, honey?' 'No, I don't.' 'It's your own wide awake and loving husband. Let me in.' 'Go away from that door; you shan't come in here. I ain't got acquainted with you yet.' 'Say, let me in. Them fellars down stairs air laughing at me. Open the door fur I'm sleepy,' and he yawned like a man waiting for a night train. 'Thought you said that you were wide awake.' 'I was a while ago, but I'm powerful sleepy now. Ain't you going to open this door?' 'No, I ain't.' 'Why did you marry me?' 'Because I wanted to.' 'All right, old gal. I'll shell out fur home and leave you to pay the hotel bill. I never seed the woman that could pull the wool over my eyes.'

The latch clicked and the door opened. The hotel bill had frightened her. It won't do fur a woman to buck agin me, lemme tell you, fur I was raised at the cross roads, and went to mill early."—Little Rock Gazette.

Everybody is happy when times are prosperous but the pawnbroker.

A game cock ought to be good eating. Does not the poet say, "the bravest are the tenderest."

When they were first married he called her 'Minerva dear.' A year afterward, with bated breath, thus to his friends, 'My nervy wife.'

A Rockland man saw advertised 'a sure cure for drunkenness.' He forwarded the necessary dollar and received by return mail, written on a valuable postal card in beautiful violet ink, the magic words, 'Don't drink.'

While an Idaho girl was sitting under a tree waiting for her lover, a grizzly bear came along and approaching from behind, began to hug her. But she thought it was Tom and so just leaned back and enjoyed it heartily, and murmured "tighter," and it broke the bear all up, and he went away and hid in the forest for three days to get over his shame.

"My son," said a fond New Haven mother to her oldest son, who had just attained to cigarette-smoking size, "I fear you are not making the most of your manhood, of your self-hood, my dear. I do so want you to become a man of great hearthood. Oh, James, for my sake, do exercise a little conscience-hood." "Just so, mother. You're quite right. How long before supper is ready? My stomachhood needs a brace," and the boy smiled because his mother was shocked at such flippancy.

Thrilling courtship: "Don't contradict me," said the stern parent. "You have been holding secret interviews with Charles Moutterrat de Montmorenci." He was a proud but fashionable tailor and not to be trifled with. "How did you find it out?" sobbed the daughter. "You never saw us." "No, I never saw you," he returned, indignantly; "but my faithful Bruno came running home this very evening with a mouthful of cloth. I recognized the pattern at once. I cut the piece to make a pair of pants for young Montmorenci two months ago, and he hasn't paid for them yet." All she answered was, "Father, dear, it's too awfully too-too," and she fell like a little faded flower at his feet.

ATTENTION! VOTERS!

You will be called upon next Tuesday to elect for the coming year a Common Council and other municipal officers. It is an important duty and should be properly discharged.

Plainfield does not want great things in the way of government, but needs practical intelligence and prudent economy in doing what is required for the comfort and welfare of all the people.

Men are wanted for public positions who are directly interested in the City's well being, and knowing exactly what that demands, possess the ability and determination to move steadily onward for its sure accomplishment, accepting circumstances as they arise, and wisely surmounting difficulties by making the most of available resources and carefully avoiding the expense and turmoil of aimless litigation.

On that sound and safe platform stand the Democratic candidates.

Vote for them and thereby promote the credit and prosperity of the City of Plainfield.

VOTE THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET!

Among appointments to be made by the President at the ensuing session of Congress are a United States Marshal for New Jersey, and Postmasters at Plainfield, Westfield and Bordentown.

The New Jersey Legislature convenes on Jan. 10, 1882. Persons desiring to secure the enactment of private laws are required to give public notice of their intention six weeks previous to date.

A recount was had of the votes cast in the Third Legislative District of Mercer County on Saturday before Chief-Justice Beasley. This gives Wm. J. Convery, Democrat, 9 majority. Wm. [illegible], Republican, had 20 majority before the Board of Canvassers. There was a mistake in the Fourth Ward, First Precinct, that made the change. The Legislature will be 30 Republicans to 30 Democrats—a tie.

OUR CANDIDATES.

The candidates selected by the Democracy of Plainfield for election on Tuesday next to the municipal offices, are all representative citizens of the community and especially able to conduct public affairs in a manner desirable and necessary. They are men of character and business-like qualifications, and so well known in private and public circles as to need no biography in these columns to prove their worth and capabilities. A few words, however, may not be amiss by way of an introduction.

JOHN SIMPSON for Councilman-at-large, embodies every trait of character and the experience that is most desirable in a member of a City Council. He spends his days and nights in Plainfield, and if elected will continue such course to office as was so much to his credit during his membership of our Council of the past.

WALTER E. STEWART for Councilman at large, is a lawyer of recognized talent and capability, residing on W. Seventh street upon a valuable piece of property which he owns. While a member of the Council of 1879 he showed himself to possess all the requisites necessary in a member of that body.

EPHRAIM H. DEPEW for Councilman-at-large is a resident of Crescent avenue, and will be remembered for his enviable record as the efficient Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Council of 1879. This candidate's fitness for the office to which he is nominated, guarantees him the support of the unbiased.

WILLIAM R. CLARKSON for Councilman from the First Ward, is a wealthy flour merchant of New York, owner of one of the handsomest residences on East Front street, and a citizen whose interests are identified with those of our public.

SAMUEL MANNING from the same Ward is the Treasurer of the N. J. State Agricultural Society, and occupies also a high position in the Central R. R. Co. His ability as a financier is universally conceded.

GILFORD MAYER for Councilman from the Second Ward, is engaged in the fire insurance business in New York City and resides at his beautiful place on Park avenue. Mr. Mayer was a most efficient and faithful member of the Council of 1879, Chairman of the Committee on Assessments and Sewers and a member of the Alms and Salaries Committee. His experience, therefore, is a great recommendation.

ROBERT L. LIVINGSTON from the same Ward is a New York Broker and resides on Hillside avenue. He is a member of the Alert Hose Company and his remarkable popularity among his associates proves him to be possessed of the most striking qualities of ability and intellect.

EPHRAIM MILLER for Councilman from the Third Ward, is a resident of West Seventh street and a property-holder of this city. No gentleman stands higher in social circles of Plainfield, and his business ability and consequent capability to fill a place in the Common Council, is unquestioned.

ERNEST L. WALZ from the same Ward is in the furnishing goods business in New York and resides on Central avenue above Eighth street. This gentleman is very prominently identified at all times with every movement tending towards the benefit of the city in both religious and secular matters.

WILLIAM E. GARDNER for Councilman from the Fourth Ward is engaged in the grocery business on Second street of this city. He spends all his time in Plainfield and is unusually well situated therefore to watch after its interests during the day. He is competent and capable and just the kind of a Councilman the city needs.

PATRICK CASEY from the same Ward is a senior member of a well-known firm of Plainfield undertakers, and a resident of W. Third street. We but echo the opinion of this candidate's acquaintances, when we testify to his fitness for the position for which he is nominated.

J. FRED DEMAREST for Treasurer, by his occupancy of a position on the reportorial staff of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, precludes our speaking the praise he deserves as one of the rising young men of the city. His past experience in financial matters while in the employ of some of the largest importing houses of New York city, admirably fit him for the office to which he [illegible] offered to infuse young blood and unfaded intellect into our municipal government.

LEVI HETFIELD for Assessor, is an extensive coal dealer of this city and resides upon his own property at No. 42 Madison avenue. He has long been known among our philantropic and representative citizens as one of the most respected and admired.

JOHN B. BROWN for Collector, is an old resident of Plainfield, living at present on Park avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets, and a holder of property to some extent in this city. He is an ex-member of the Common Council and thoroughly posted in municipal affairs. No better man for the office could have been nominated.

ROWLAND M. STOVER and WILLIAM H. VOORHEES for Chosen Freeholders, are both well-known members of the community and acknowledged as possessing that proper understanding of the city's relation to the county calculated to establish their fitness for the offices. Mr. Stover has in past elections shown the possession of a strong support among the voting population, which with the additional backing of Mr. Voorhees' friends, will undoubtedly elect both candidates.

JASPER G. CADMUS, JEREMIAH MANNING and WILLIAM SWALM form what is sure to be an invincible trio of candidates for election as Commissioners of Appeal. Old residents and property owners of the city, as well as men who are at home in Plainfield at all hours of the day and to be found when wanted.

REV. E. M. RODMAN for School Trustee is the Rector of Grace Episcopal Church, and well known as a man of the strictest integrity and capable of the wisest judgment in relation to educational or other matters. No more efficient or desirable member of our school Board could be selected and the present policy of our Public school system, which we are so justly proud of, will gain by his advice and suggestions.

The nominations for Ward offices, are well known in the sections of the city where they have been put up. Not a candidate has been placed before the people for their support but what should receive a large vote and deserves an election by a popular majority.

Common Council Proceedings.

MONDAY EV'G, Nov. 28, 1881.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. Pres. Walton in the chair. Members all present except Mr. Tracy.

On motion of Mr. Gilbert, the reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with.

Mr. A. Smith presented claim of Corporation Counsel Kimball, salary, $66., $69.55; Jno. A. Thickstun, $134.28; J. O. Hand, $8.14. Ref'd.

By Mr. Tyler, a com'n from Corporation Counsel Kimball, submitting also an opinion of Hon. Cortlandt Parker, Esq., as follows:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

Gentlemen—At a late hour this afternoon I have received from the Hon. Cortlandt Parker his opinion touching our embarrassments in relation to the assessment and collection of taxes, and the same is transmitted herewith. This opinion is of great value, not only as pointing out the errors and irregularities of tax assessments and collections in past years, but (what is of much greater importance to us at the present time) as indicating a general line of policy to be pursued in the future. The inference from Mr. Parker's opinion appears to be that if the City of Plainfield is content to take as a basis of proceeding in respect to state and county taxes the charter of 1872 and the interpretation given to it by Judge Dixon, then there may be a way provided, through [illegible], which will enable the city to raise and collect state and county quotas in the future; and Mr. Parker has been good enough to prepare and submit a form of general law which he believes would, if passed by the next legislature, answer this purpose.

To meet the present exigency as to monetary needs, Mr. Parker suggests that a money election be held, the money voted, and the tax assessed and collected, and that this vote should comprehend the amount necessary to satisfy the demands. He has not indicated any specific step that can now be taken by the common council or by any city officer to enforce the collection of any state and county taxes levied in the past. He was asked to advise on this point, but apparently has not as yet seen his way to do so.

Respectfully
CHAS. W. KIMBALL,
Corp. Counsel.
Nov. 28, 1881.

OPINION.

The City of Plainfield is experiencing peculiar embarrassment in relation to the assessment and collection of its taxes. If the opinion of the Supreme Court rendered in deciding the application for mandamus against the city treasurer is to be taken for the law (and until it shall be in some way reviewed and reversed this must be done) a great mistake has existed in assessing and collecting the state and county taxes, for which the inhabitants of the city are liable from the year 1872 down. Prior to that time the assessor and collector of the township of Plainfield, whose geographical limits comprised territory of which those of the city were only a part, and whose integral organization was carefully maintained, assessed and collected the quota of the state and county taxes for the full territory, and they were paid over to the county collector as if no city existed, and notwithstanding the charter of 1872, this practice still continued. But in 1878 the township was abolished. Thereupon the duties of its assessor and collector devolved on the assessor and collector of the city. Thus by the express language of the act. (P. L. 1878, p. 444.)

The opinion of the Supreme Court holds this practice since 1872 to have been all wrong. The amended charter of that year, (P. L. 1872, p. 1184) section 15, enacted that the assessor and collector elected for the city should perform all such duties as by the laws of the state then appertained to and [illegible]

NEW GLASS FRONT STORE,

NEWARK, N. J

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Heyland, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments. o14m3

Hospital Opening.

Pursuant to public invitation given by the Managing Committee of Muhlenberg Hospital, a large and interested concourse of citizens met there on Thanksgiving afternoon, for the purpose of inspecting the commodious and handsomely furnished building and joining in the ceremonial of opening it for practical use. After an opportunity had been afforded for thorough examination of the premises, from end to end and top to bottom, which resulted in universal approval, a meeting was organized in the West wing and a beautiful and appropriate prayer offered by Rev. Mr. Thompson of Netherwood.

Judge Harper then, as Vice President of the Board of Governors, delivered the following introductory address—

"LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—The company of Bishop Scarborough, President of the Hospital Board of Governors, was expected here this afternoon, but a letter from him, which I hold in my hand, expresses regret that previous engagements will prevent his attendance. The absence of our worthy President demands from me a few preliminary remarks."

You have been invited, my friends, to unite with us in formally opening for the reception of patients the long projected Muhlenberg Hospital, and I feel warranted in saying, that those immediately engaged in causing to be erected and fitted the building wherein we are now assembled crave no other recompense than the approval of their fellow citizens for what has been so far accomplished, and the assurance that willing hands will be extended to make the institution prosperous and permanent.

The task of moulding into shape this hospital enterprise has not been holiday sport, as my co-laborers will attest. Numerous and unexpected difficulties have crossed our pathway, and blocked advancement, but persevering effort and an abiding faith in the utility of the work have at last measurably won success, and we now take pride in throwing open for public inspection and inaugurating for public benefit an eligibly located and well appointed edifice entirely clear of debt. I would call especial attention to that grand feature of our record. This structure is a monument to the wise policy of paying as you go. The noble hearted generosity of our honored friend, ex-Mayor Male, gave us the land, the professional skill of Architect Smith furnished the admirable plans, liberal donations on the part of many citizens augmented building funds, which were finally made adequate for the purpose through the active co-operation and devoted exertions of the ladies of Plainfield and vicinity, to publicly honor and thank whom is equally my personal pleasure and official duty. To the ladies we are also mainly indebted for the furnishing of apartments.

The hospital idea originated with that highly respected religious denomination, so renowned the land over for its practical deeds of charity and benevolence, the Episcopalian, but from the very start the project was made unsectarian and that is its character to-day and will so remain. It is designed to assist those who may unfortunately need its services and to dispense aid regardless of creed or condition. Its management is under the control of a non-sectarian Board of Governors, swayed only by a desire to succor humanity and meet wants known to urgently exist.

In conclusion, it becomes me on the present occasion to state, that additional means will be required to place in right order the surrounding grounds and to properly provide interior efficiency. I doubt not an interested public sentiment will abundantly take care of the future, and render the Muhlenberg Hospital a credit to the City of Plainfield and a comfort and cure to suffering human beings. That is its true mission and on behalf of that I earnestly solicit your kind encouragement."

Rev. Mr. Rodman, Chairman of the Managing Committee, in a very interesting discourse reviewed the past history of the Hospital, pictured the discouragements attendant upon its progress towards establishment, and paying just tribute to those who had materially contributed to success, set forth in well chosen language the many future benefits that would be realized therefrom.

At the close of Mr. Rodman's remarks, ex-Mayor Job Male stepped forward and presented a full title deed for the ground.

To which noble act Vice President Harper thus responded—

"Mr. Male, on behalf of the Board of Governors I accept with thanks your presentation of a deed for the spacious plot of ground on which this building is erected, and assure you that the munificent gift will be duly appreciated and confer upon you the proud title of a public benefactor."

An invitation to speak having been extended to Mayor Randolph, that gentleman ably and eloquently replied, and concluded by offering the following resolution, which was enthusiastically adopted:

Resolved, That whilst we recognize the earnest and active co-operation of many workers of both sexes in what has been achieved for the Muhlenberg Hospital, two of our citizens are entitled to especial mention for the accomplishment of what has been done—ex-Mayor Job Male, who gives the lot on which the building stands, and Mr. Charles H. Smith, who designed the structure and prepared the plans and specifications, and has given his unremitting attention and supervision to the building during the whole period of its progress, the same being on his part a generous and self denying gift.

Further remarks eulogistic of the Hospital as it now presents itself to view, and the blessings such institutions are competent to dispense, were made by the venerable Peter Balen, a member of the Board of Governors, by the Rev. Mr. Yerkes, Wm. Patterson, Esq., a former resident of Plainfield and pioneer worker for the Muhlenberg Hospital, and by ex-City Judge Good, and listened to with marked attention.

Benediction, pronounced by Dr. Rodman, brought the exercises to a close.

Letters regretting inability to be present were received as follows:

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 17, 1881.

My Dear Mr. Harper:

I regret very much that I have an engagement for the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day which will keep me from the formal opening of the Hospital. I thank you for kindly thinking of me and assure you it would give me pleasure to be with you, if I could.

Congratulating you on the success thus far attained and wishing you and all your co-workers continued success,

I am, yours,
Faithfully and truly,
JOHN SCARBOROUGH.

Hon. Nathan Harper.

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 16, 1881.

Dear Sir:

Please accept my thanks for the kind invitation to be present and participate in the opening exercises of the Muhlenberg Hospital, on Thanksgiving Day next, and while it would afford me much pleasure to do both, yet on account of another engagement, which will take me out of the City, I regret to say, I cannot do either.

Glad that the work has so far prospered, and with the best wishes for future success, I remain,

Very respectfully and truly,
THOS. H. STOCKTON.

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 23, 1881.

My Dear Sir:

The Y. M. C. A. Concert.

The second entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. Course took place on Thanksgiving evening and was possibly more largely attended than past occasions of the same sort. To say that it was as successful as it deserved to be, is speaking the highest praise possible. The artists were all well-known members of the New York Vocal Sextette, with the additional talent lent by Mr. Hermann Rietzel pianist and Prof. E. J. Fitzhugh as conductor. Of the large programme of selections, the most perfect was a Gotteschalk Song by Koschat, "Forsaken", rendered exceedingly favorably in every particular by Miss Dossert, Miss Wilkinson, Mr. Ellard and Mr. Bray. Another enjoyable number was Reichardt's "Image of the Rose," sung by Miss Wilkinson and Messrs. Thompson, Ellard, Morawski and Bray, a most beautiful feature of which was the alto obligato sung by the tenor. Martini's "Tickling Trio" must be mentioned as receiving a very amusing rendition, and the operatic selections should be accorded in general, the highest commendation. Of the solos, Miss Wilkinson's song, "Life's up Hill," deserved the encore it received, and it was plainly evident that that contralto was more generally pleasing than upon the occasion of her former appearances in Plainfield. Mr. C. H. Thompson sang Tosti's "Forever and Forever" with his usual ability, following, upon a recall, with "Good bye, sweetheart, good bye." Mr. G. L. Ellard, a tenor new to our public, displayed a very fine voice in the singing of Marsden's "Across the far blue hills, Marie," but over-critical Plainfield reserved its encore until such future time as he may be heard again. Miss Christine Dossert sang a hackneyed composition of Verdi's, which ill-judged selection was received with positive coldness. That lady has yet to learn that our concert attenders are not over enthusiastic upon the style of music she favored them with, no matter how ably rendered. Probably the bright particular star of the evening was Mr. Hermann Rietzel, who, in spite of the absence of the pedals to the instrument he performed on, executed the most difficult of piano compositions with wonderful perfection and sweetness. This artist was not only encored upon each appearance, but both parts of his first performance were loudly applauded.

The next entertainment of the Course will be the first of the lectures, and delivered on Thursday evening of next week, by the Rev. P. S. Henson of Philadelphia. The subject will be "Money; or the Golden Calf"; and the admiration that has already been accorded Dr. Henson, resulting from a previous discourse delivered by him from one of the pulpits of this city's churches, guarantees that gentleman a large audience.

The Somerset House.

The well-known Somerset House of North Plainfield, now under the proprietorship of Mr. Merwin Hughson, is daily increasing in popularity. Since Mr. Hughson has assumed management, the building has been thoroughly renovated and re-modeled in the interior. A pleasant reading room is one of the attractions of the house. The bar is stocked with pure liquors, ales and wines, while the larder, under the supervision of Mrs. Hughes, is all that can be desired. Last Thursday evening there was a pleasant gathering of some twenty-five of Mr. Hughson's friends at the Somerset House who assembled to congratulate him upon his proprietorship to the hotel. A bountiful spread was set before them to which all did ample justice. The manner in which the delicate roasted pig, turkey and other viands disappeared evidenced the appreciation of all present of Mrs. Hughes' cookery. Fine music by Prof. Butterworth and daughter was a feature of the evening's enjoyment. If there is one thing more than another that a person craves for when thirsty, it may be a glass of good, pure, Burton ale, drawn from the wood. You can get that luxury at the Somerset House. "Merwin" asks his friends to give him a call.

Personalia.

An engagement of marriage between a much admired belle of Crescent avenue and a New York gentleman, is shortly to be announced.

Miss Katie Wotherspoon and Miss Redfield, formerly of this city, have been visiting Mrs. Wm. E. Smalley of First Place.

The reception days of Mrs. Gov. Geo. B. McClellan at her New York residence, are the Thursdays in January. Mrs. D. O. Wotherspoon receives on Fridays of the same month.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green lost by death recently their youngest child. Another is at present in some danger of also losing its life, as the result of a serious illness with which it is afflicted.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Brewster of New York city, well known in social circles of this place, have just met with a severe loss in the death of their youngest, a boy of about three years. The little one, who died of that dread disease, scarlet fever, was a grandson of Mr. Joseph Sandford of Seventh street.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

Noah Collins, an old and aged resident of our township, died on Nov. 21st, and was buried in the Presbyterian church yard, on Wednesday of last week.

Wm. Stitt has purchased the interest of Mrs. L. H. K. Smalley in the Westfield Hotel property. He intends making considerable improvement in and around the same.

The large new building recently built on the corner of Broad street and Central avenue by Mr. Eb. Hart, Jr., is now occupied by Mr. James E. Sanson of New York, who moved in the present week.

Mrs. E. Saybold, wife of Richard Saybold, residing on Central avenue, who has been seriously sick for some months back, is slowly recovering and will soon be convalescent, under the medical care of Dr. S. Cooper.

Jas. L. Miller, Esq., has purchased the lot on the west side of Elm street, adjoining N. B. Day's, from Joseph G. Hanson, the owner. We understand Mr. Miller intends improving the property at an early day.

Our Collector, W. W. Connoly, has made a second payment to the County Collector, on account of our State and County taxes for the year 1881. It is the only Township in the County that has done so this year.

The foot race, one hour go-as-you-please, did not come off as was expected on Thanksgiving Day, owing to the muddy condition of the track. It will occur at some future day, when considerable fun may be expected.

Aaron M. Parkhurst, of Branch Mills, was joined in marriage to Miss C. Winans, daughter of the Rev. Rodney Winans, of the same place, at the residence of the bride's parents, on last Thursday afternoon, Nov. 24th inst.

The concert advertised for the benefit of the Ladies' Guild of the Episcopal Church, by the Lexington Glee Club of New York, to take place on Tuesday evening, 29th inst, was postponed, owing to the illness of several of the singers who telegraphed their inability to come. It will come off at some future day.

At the annual session of Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. of N. J., held Nov. 16., Geo.

Master William Hart has gone on a vacation to Florida. He has arrived at Jacksonville in that State.

A lucky fellow. Harry Edwards won at a raffle on Wednesday evening seven turkeys, five ducks and eight chickens. The boys had better leave Harry alone when throwing dice, which I believe he only indulges in on holidays.

On Sunday evening last Mr. E. Embree had two fine lap robes stolen from his wagon under the M. E. church shed, while the family were attending services in church. It was done probably by some sneak thief in want of something to cover him this cold weather.

Charles E. Courtier, overseer of Road District No. 14, proceeded to carry out the instructions of the Township Committee to him, in regard to opening the drain across Mr. E. G. Brown's land. On last Tuesday he opened the end of the bridge and cleaned out a passage way for the water. What will be the next move? There has been several lawsuits about this drain which have been carried to the Supreme Court, and yet no satisfactory settlement of the same.

The Thanksgiving services at the Presbyterian Church were well attended and of more than usual interest. The Vocal Society of the village rendered very effectively several anthems. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Henry J. Neill, of the Congregational Church, the ministers of the other churches assisting in the services. Mr. Neill's address was in admirable taste and was highly appreciated by his hearers. The collection for the Ladies' Relief Society was quite liberal.

Several persons have had a number of their chickens shot at and killed and carried away. This has not been done by professional poachers, but by some of our respectable young men who ought not to be guilty of such acts. One party residing on Central avenue, losing seven large Brahmas in one day, followed the party up and recovered the chickens dead. It is an outrage. The only question is whether the persons committing such depredations should be punished to the full extent of the law or not. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Last week Vincent Linden, a young man working for his father on the Scudder farm, Rahway road, on going to the lot in the morning to husk corn, had turned over a shock preparatory to husk it, when he discovered on the ground where the shock stood a pile of black snakes in a dormant state. He dispatched the whole lot and on counting them up their number was 36, from 1 to 5 feet in length. This seems like a snake story, but a number of our citizens went down to the farm on Thanksgiving day, seen and counted them, and reported the number as correct.

On Friday evening last after the two Metropolitan furniture vans had unloaded the furniture of Mr. Sanson in the Hart house, the teams were left in front of the hotel eating their oats. Suddenly the two span of horses attached to the large van, became frightened and started on a run up Broad street. It being late in the evening, there were no horses and wagons on the street, or there might have been several smash-ups. After getting just beyond Prospect street, the head horses became entangled in the lines which threw them to the ground, with the rear team on top. They were finally rescued from their predicament, with slight damage to harness and horses.

The Anniversary of the M. E. church Sabbath school occurred on last Sunday afternoon, Nov. 27th inst., at 2:30 p. m. The audience room of the church was filled to its utmost capacity, and the programme was well carried out. It consisted of singing by the school, duetts and recitations, addresses by R. H. Cornwall, Esq., and by the Pastor. The duetts, by the Misses Lulu M. Fleming and Phebe A. Rose, and by Gracie Moffett and Mabel Sayers, were well rendered; as also were the recitations by Warrie Hoagland and Pearlie Whittaker. The Zion Mission of the colored Sunday school sang the hymn, "The Big Tolling Bell in Zion" and (by request) "I have been listening all the night long," in their happy way. The organ was presided over by Mrs. E. R. Pearsall, with Mr. Charles H. Day, cornet accompanist.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE LIME-KILN CLUB.

SOME VERY SAD ADVICE—GENERAL NOTES—THE WEATHER.

"Am Judge Cadaver in de hall to-night?" softly queried Brother Gardner, as he looked down the aisle toward the stool on which the fat and juicy judge was continuously reposing.

"If de judge am in de hall, he will please step dis way," continued the president, after a moment of deep silence.

The judge slowly arose and meandered forward, energetically chewing at a piece of slippery elm to hide his agitation.

"Brudder Cadaver, I have a few words to say to you to-night," said the president, as he looked down upon his shiny baldness. "De odder day, I happened to pass a policy shop, an' I saw you gwine in. Dat same evenin' as I was gwine past a saloon I saw you standin' at de bar wid a glass of whisky in your han.' I kin also recall de fack dat I hev not seen you at work fur de las' month."

"I hasn't bin feelin' strictly well," pleaded the judge.

"You war well 'nuff to play policy."

"I—I—didn't put up but ten cents."

"But what about de whisky-drinkin'?"

"I was feelin' powerful weak, sah."

"Too thin—too thin," replied the president, as he shook his head. "Now, den; I want to spoke to you. In some respects you am a good man. I doan' believe you would steal, I hev neber cotched you lyin', an' I reckon you am a good man at home. Now, if somebody told you dar was a gold ring in de bottom of de ribber somewhar, would you pay ten cents a chance to fish fur it?"

"No, sah."

"Sartin, you wouldn't. Policy am a long, wide, deep ribber. De gold ring at de bottom am a $5 prize which some po' critter fishes out arter payin' ten or fifteen dollars fur de chance. You wouldn't frow money into Lake Erie an' spect to git it back, but you'll frow money into de pond of policy an' spect to git out ten times as much as you tossed in. Drap it—drap it, Brudder Cadaver, befo' you lose de title of Judge an' get dat of Fool."

"Yes sah; I'll drap it to once."

"An' you drank whisky. De man who goes into a saloon am no better dan de man who keeps it. If I should ax you to put your foot agin a hot stove you would think me crazy. An' yit, when you burn your stomach, befuddle your brain an' make a brute of yourself, and have to pay fur de privilege besides, what shall I think of you? God made de idiot, but it was left to whisky to make de fool."

"I'll neber tech de stuff agin, sah; neber."

"An' you hev bin loafin' aroun.' Brudder Cadaver, all wickedness begins wid laziness. A loafer am as much despised as a drunkard. When laziness comes home pride goes away to visit de naybors. Whisky may break a woman's heart, but laziness will freeze her to death. When you go home to-night spit on your hands an' ax de boys to grease yer butes. When you turn outer bed in de mawnin,' freeze hold of de ax or spade or brush an' hunt for a job. Dissolve partnership wid laziness, cut de acquaintance of whisky, an' de next time you am tempted to play policy, come ober to my cabin an' ax me to kick you all aroun' de doah-yard. You kin now sot down."

PETITIONS.

Among the petitions for membership was the application of the Sixteenth Assistant Janitor of the Southwest corner of the Left wing of the Post Office Department, at Washington. Also, that of the Hon. Gessler Longfoot, representative of the D. G. B., and Secretary of the K. L. F. The following letter was likewise read:

ANN ARBOR, MICH., Oct. 20, 1881.

Brother Gardner:

I have heard a great deal of you and your club, and have read with much interest the accounts of its meetings. As I am a member of the Colored Society of Scientific research, and a great lover of physics, I should be greatly pleased to become a member of your club, and therefore apply for admission.

Hoping that my name may not receive too many black balls, I am,

Very respectfully,
ISOCHRONOUS VIBRATIONS WEAD.

ELECTION.

The following candidates were elected with heartfelt pleasure: Uncle Jake Thomas, Old Man Turner, Sassafras Smith, Mournful Green, Elder Dubsy St. Johns, Come Down White, Col. Graham, Judge King and Trustee Glitters.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Pickles Smith arose to ask for information. He had listened to the remarks of the president on policy-playing, and he would like to ask if his strictures also applied to "bucket shops."

"De only difference between the policy shop an' de bucket shop, as I git it," answered Brother Gardner, "am de fack dat de latter cleans you out all at once."

WHERE HE WILL BE FOUND.

The following letter was read by the Secretary:

CHICAGO, Oct. 20, 1881.

Brother Gardner:

DEAR SIR—As the time is now at hand when social clubs are being formed for the winter, I desire to know where you will be found for the next month on the subject of dancing. Is it sinful to listen to the sounds of the fiddle? Is it awful wicked to dance? Yours,

IN DOUBT.

"Just whar I stan' to-night I shall allus be foun' on dat subject," replied the president. "De man or woman who reckons dat de Lawd am goin' to shut anybody out o' Heaben fur takin' de head of de set in a Varginny Reel can't consistently believe de story of de thief on de cross. We ride out to enjoy ourselves. We dance fur de same reason. De man who fears to enjoy himself in a reasonable manner am too weak to be trusted wid odder people's money. A religun which forbids man social pleasures makes him a prisoner under sentence. De notes of de organ doan' make Christians any mo' dan de notes of de fiddle makes sinners. If dar am a man among you who can't dance to-night an' go to church to-morrer an' feels de power an' goodness of de Lawd an' de merits of religun an' a life of honesty an' integrity, I want his resignashun right away."

The Weather Bureau announced that it had planned the weather for the coming Winter as follows:

December—Probability of snow, and clipped horses, and Santa Claus, and skates, and boy drowned, and the discovery that five tons of coal are not going to last till March. In 1837 dandelions bloomed in December, but the individual who hunts for them this December will furnish proof to send himself up for six months.

January—This month won't be a bit like August, and a great many people will be disappointed in their hunt after pansies and peach-blossoms.

February—People who pasted autumn leaves over every room in the house in the Fall will now begin to pull them down and trade them for snow shovels. Lots of people will sincerely wish for somebody to point unloaded guns at them.

March—March will be a beautiful month for polar bears, icebergs and railroad blockades. Try and live until March if you want to be made happy all the rest of the year.

The report being accepted, the janitor was instructed to advertise for proposals for half a cord of wood, and the meeting was brought to an honorable close.—Detroit Free Press.

POETRY.

AN ODD YOUNG MAN.

He was the most [illegible] man
That ever struck this town;
To-day there are but few who can
Correctly write him down.

He seemed to be quite guileless and
A little fresh, mayhap;
And yet they could not bend his head
Or get him in a trap.

He made remarks that other folks
Would not daily [illegible];
And those who thought his statements jokes,
Discovered their mistake.

To catch him in some awful lie
Their deepest arts they used;
The more to catch him folks did try,
The more they got confused.

And so he had his little day—
At last from town did slide,
And left folks, when he went away,
Completely mystified.

They cannot fathom him, alas,
Which makes them feel quite cheap;
But every one agrees to call
The fellow "awful deep."

An actor showed, who chose to pass
For simple, fresh, and green;
And yet whose like, they swear, alas,
And never before been seen!

But 'twas no mystery about
This very puzzled youth;
The secret's, in a line, let out,
He simply told the truth.

—Boston Post.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

AN OLD WOMAN'S STORY.

"I shall never forget it, though it all happened a long time ago, when I was young and thoughtless. If you like, I will tell you all about it, Jack; it may prove a lesson to you. For it grieves me to see that you possess a jealous disposition—for all the world like Harold West when he and I were young; and that very same jealousy came very near wrecking our happiness, and ruining our lives.

"I was eighteen when I promised Harold to be his wife; and I thought there never was another such a man. To tell the truth he hadn't a fault in the world but that same provoking jealousy. Many's the quarrel we two had, all on account of it!

"If any of the young men so much as dared to look at me when Harold was present, it put him out wonderfully; and if they ventured to show me any little attention, such as pretty girls always expect (and I was a pretty girl in those days, Jack, though you might not think it now), it would set Harold in a rage, and sometimes cause serious trouble between us.

"As the day appointed for our wedding drew near, I began to have fears that I was not doing wisely to bind myself for life to so unreasonably a jealous man.

"But I loved him so! Ah, that is the excuse with which many and many a young girl salves the uneasy conscience which persists in pointing out to her the risk she is running and the unwisdom of a choice where grave cause for apprehension exists. So I quieted down my fears, and went on loving him with all my heart.

"I had a friend—a girl a little older than myself—to whom I was greatly attached. Janet Tounley was a beautiful creature, and so accustomed had she grown to admiration and adulation, that before she realized it she had become a regular coquette. Perfectly innocent of any wrong intentions, but vain and conscious of her beauty, Janet—since she had left school—had received the attention of a score of young men, who sought her hand in marriage and were coolly refused.

"Among the number was a young Frenchman. I never liked Henri De Lancey. There was something repelling about him and it was with undisguised sorrow that I discovered that he was paying assiduous court to Janet; and worse than all, she received his attentions with apparent encouragement. In vain I remonstrated with my friend.

"'Of course I don't care for him, Bessie,' she answered with a bewitching smile, 'but it's such fun to hear his protestations of undying affection. And he is so earnest I have not the courage to tell him the truth. Wait a little, my dear, and when the right time comes I will dismiss him!'

"But alas! that 'right time' did not seem to appear, and DeLancey still paid court to the young belle. I began to fear for the consequences; for I was convinced that he was an adventurer, and unprincipled man, and one who would seek revenge for any fancied wrong.

"At last Janet committed the crowning folly of her life. Henri DeLancey left the city for a time, on some business; and while he was absent he wrote her a tender letter to which she replied in a similar strain—'just for fun' she said. Ah! how many mistakes have been committed before, 'just for fun.'

"For that imprudence I have never excused Janet, but she suffered enough afterwards to atone for her error.

"Well, when DeLancey returned, she saw that it was time to bring the farce to an end; and having acknowledged her own fault in the matter, Janet quietly ended all between them. But in my heart I felt that she had not heard the last of Henri DeLancey; and subsequent events proved that I was right.

"It was not long before Janet fell in love—really and truly—at last. There was no trifling now, she had met her fate.

"He was a noble upright man, but his besetting sin was pride, and he loved Janet so truly, so fervently and so jealously, that the thought that she might have a lingering regard for anyone else maddened him.

"I was not long in finding out how dearly they loved each other; but though the world looked very fair to Janet, even then dark clouds were gathering.

"One day she came to me and sitting down on a low stool at my feet, she buried her face in my lap and burst into tears.

"'What's the matter my dear?' I said in alarm.

"'Oh, Bessie,' she sobbed, 'just think what trouble I have brought upon myself by my foolish love of admiration. Henri DeLancey has heard of my engagement to Mr. Norton, and he called on me last evening—and he says that, to be revenged on me for rejecting him, he is going to make public that silly letter which I wrote in reply to the one I received from him while he was away. Tell me, Bessie, what shall I do? Mr. Norton would be so angry—perhaps he would cease to care for me, and—I cannot live without his love!'

"I smoothed back her golden curls.

"'You have been very foolish, Janet,' I replied, 'but you are punished enough to atone for it all. I will help you if I can, for I believe you will never again fall into such an error.'

"And so it was arranged that I should see Henri DeLancey, and beg him to restore that foolish letter which had caused so much trouble.

"We met at a large ball, given at the public hall in our village, and which all the elite of the town attended.

"As soon as an opportunity offered, I approached him.

"'Mr. De Lancey,' I began with a quick glance around to assure myself that Harold West did not observe me, 'will you oblige me by stepping out on the veranda? I have something of importance to say to you.'

"He offered me his arm and as we moved slowly through the crowd I caught a glance of surprised wonder from Harold's handsome eyes. I could see a storm brewing and breakers ahead.

"'As soon as I was alone with Mr. De Lancey I made haste to lay my business before him. Heaven only knows what I said, or what argument I used. Suffice it that, touched at last by my earnest pleading, he consented to return the letter.

"'Tell Miss Tounley,' he said, 'that I will see her to-morrow at ten o'clock at Petersen's Picture Gallery, if she will kindly meet me there, and I will deliver the letter into her hands.'

"'But why not call at her home?' I cried.

"'Because I am to leave town on the noon train,' he answered, 'and it would be impossible to get to her residence, which you know, is in the suburbs of the city. Please explain all and beg her to come as I request. And many thanks, Miss Bessie, for the part you have taken in this matter. You have shown me myself in a true light, and made me ashamed of my own baseness.'

"We had been walking slowly up and down the long moonlighted veranda. I had been so engrossed in Janet's troubles that I had forgotten my own.

"We paused now and Mr. De Lancey took my hand in a farewell grasp.

"'Remember,' he said, aloud, 'to-morrow morning at ten, in Petersen's Picture Gallery.'

"'Very well,' I answered; and, turning away, I encountered Harold West.

"His face was very pale and his eyes blazed with anger. I had never seen him so before. But he said nothing; and as my father had come to take me home, we parted with a cold good-night, as soon as I had contrived to whisper to Janet the result of my efforts.

"The next morning I ran over to see Janet, and found her ill in bed, suffering from a severe cold.

"There was no help for it—I must go in her place to meet DeLancey, or the letter might never be returned, after all.

"Janet had decided to make a full confession of her folly to Mr. Norton and show him the letter, trusting that he would overlook the whole affair.

"Well, Jack, I went to Petersen's Gallery, and there I saw Henri De Lancey, and received from him that miserable letter.

"He bade me good-bye and left me, and just as I was turning to leave the gallery I saw Harold. He drew near me and spoke, but his voice did not sound like his own—it was so full of concentrated rage.

"'Bessie,' he said, 'I have seen enough. It is time that our engagement should end.'

"All the pride in my heart arose in arms.

"'Very well,' I said coldly, slipping the engagement-ring into his hand.

"And then I turned away and left the place. I restored the letter to Janet, and, not waiting to listen to her voluble thanks, I ran homeward. The next day I lay on my bed in all the horrors of brain fever. Weeks passed before I came to the world again.

"But one day a pale, sad-faced man came to my side and humbly besought my forgiveness. Poor Harold; he had suffered greatly. But Janet, who had suspected the truth, had not rested until she had told him all—not sparing herself in the recital. And we were married not long after—at the same time that Janet became Mrs. Norton.

"And from that day to this I have had no cause for complaint in regard to my husband. But take my advice, Jack, and banish the green-eyed monster from your heart, the sooner the better, for there is nothing on earth so troublesome and productive of so much sorry as the fiend Jealousy."

UNCLE SAM'S CLOCK.

A Washington correspondent of some Boston paper sends the following interesting communication:

At the Naval Observatory in Washington stands the Clock that regulates time for the whole country. It is not beautiful like many lovely French clocks that noiselessly tick upon the parlor mantel. In fact it is large and tall, with plain face, and body of dark wood, and without ornamentation. It is much like the old-fashioned clock that stood in our grandmother's kitchen. It nowhere touches either the floor or walls of the building, but is securely fastened to a stone pier, which rests upon a solid stone foundation, so that it may not be affected by any motion of the building or ground. Rains may descend, floods come, winds blow and beat upon the home, but the clock feels it not, for it is built upon a rock. It is a splendid timekeeper. At the present time it gains at the rate of forty-eight hundredths of a second per day.

In order that the people all over the country may have uniform time, so important for railroads, steamboats and other public conveyances, at three minutes before twelve each day this clock is connected, by means of a galvanic battery, with the wires of the Western Union Telegraph, which extends into the room containing the clock. All other messages, however important, must give way for these three minutes, and in every town and station, from Maine to California, where there is a telegraph operator, as the pendulum of the clock ticks, each second a click is recorded by the telegraph, and at the instant of twelve two ticks are given.

At the same instant a huge black ball, which is drawn up a few moments before, descends upon the dome of the observatory; and hundreds all over the city stand with watch in hand, to see it drop, to keep, as we say, "ball time." Thus when this ball drops, a click in every large town in the land tells the hour of twelve.

So while the clerks of Washington are watching the ball, the restless schoolboy of Minnesota is waiting to hear the big clock upon the townhouse sound its merry peal, the signal of dismissal, and the tired factory girl at Lowell listens eagerly for the same sound.

But you must remember that only places on the same meridian with Washington have, after all, exactly the same time. The sun is passing round the earth, which is divided in three hundred and sixty degrees of longitude, every 24 hours, must pass through one degree, which is about sixty-nine miles every four minutes. So if the sun rises in Boston at seven o'clock, it will not rise in New York—two hundred miles west—till twelve minutes past seven, or seven o'clock will not come to them or twelve minutes after it has reached Boston. Neither will it be twelve o'clock till 12 minutes later than in Boston.

Take the Pacific railroad, and travel west, with your watch correct in Boston; when you reach Omaha you will be an hour and a half ahead of their time; and when you arrive at San Francisco your watch will be three hours and a half fast, because old Sol is still on the way. When you in Boston are going to church at eleven o'clock the boys in San Francisco are just taking their breakfast at half-past seven.

So while we tell you that all the towns receive the click of twelve at the same time, you must remember that in places situated in longitude east or west from Washington, the number of minutes it takes the sun to pass those degrees must be added or subtracted from twelve, to give the correct time.

Another thing in the room where the clock is would interest the boys who are delighted with everything that pertains to a ship. This room may be termed a government depot, for here are two hundred ship chronometers. These are simply large-sized watches, and are furnished to every sea-going vessel. Here they are kept several months, to be regulated, and their accuracy tested by this clock. The officer in charge examines them daily at a certain hour, and carefully rates the time of each.

When a government vessel is ordered to sea, this official takes them with all possible care to the vessel, protecting them as far as possible from all sudden jars or violent jolting.

When on the cruise, the captain also rates daily the time kept by the chronometer. This he does by lunar observation. He marks the time between the moon and some star by his quadrant, which he verifies by his nautical almanac. One was seen at the observatory that had been absent three years with an eastern squadron, and varied during the whole time but a very few seconds.

THE SAD END OF AN AMBITIOUS DETROIT POLITICIAN.

When poor old Uncle Silas Patterson went to his grave the other day not a mourner followed, and never will a tear moisten the earth above him. In bygone days he aspired to be a political leader, and there are plenty of men who remember how he once ran a ward caucus. Knowing his ambition to become a power in the ward, three or four old jokers put up a plan to make him chairman of the caucus shortly to be held, and they visited him in a body and explained:

"Everything will depend on how you run this caucus. Be calm. Be dignified. Don't let any one ride over you. One will move this and one will move that, but you must refuse to entertain any motions until you have ascertained the pleasure of the meeting."

Uncle Silas was delighted and puffed up, and he could hardly wait for the hour which was to witness his triumph. He was called to the chair as planned, and after a few remarks to prove his gratitude, he called for order and said:

"Now, then, what is the pleasure of the meeting?"

A citizen rose to reply and began:

"I move you, Mr. Chairman, that we now pro——"

"Order! Order!" called Uncle Sile.

"I am in order."

"You are not! Take your seat or I'll have you put out."

The astonished elector dropped back to second fiddle, and Uncle Sile continued:

"Now, then, what is the pleasure of the meeting?"

"I move that we proceed to bal——"

It was another elector and he had only got thus far when the chairman cried out:

"I call for order. If we can't have order we might as well adjourn. I now ask, for the third time, what is the pleasure of the meeting?"

The electors were dumbfounded for a time, but one of them recovered a little sooner than the rest and asked:

"Is this a caucus?"

"You bet," answered Uncle Sile.

"Are we here to nominate ward officers?"

"We are."

"Then sir, I move that we pro——"

"Order! order!" yelled the chairman. "That's the third or fourth time that trick has been tried here, and the next man who makes a motion, before I have found out the pleasure of the meeting will be put out! Now, then, is there any pleasure in this meeting? If so, where is it and what is it?"

He soon discovered. About twenty men rushed for him at once, and he went out of the window like a bag of sand, and, before he had come to, the caucus had transacted its business and adjourned. The incident not only cured Uncle Sile's ambition to be a political leader, but it is doubtful if he ever cast another vote.

The full Greek overskirt of the plush is sewed to the edge of the corsage, and is lined with plain blue surah.

Large hats with obelisk crowns and halo brims are the first choice of the most fashionable young ladies.

TABLE ETIQUETTE.

There are a great many people who behave well otherwise, but at table they do things that if not absolutely outre and [illegible], are at least [illegible].

It is with a view to elevating the popular taste and etherealizing, so to speak, the manners and customs of our readers, that we give below a few hints upon etiquette.

If by writing an article of this kind we can induce one man who now wipes his hands on the table cloth to come up and take higher ground, and wipe them on his pants, we shall feel amply repaid.

If you cannot accept an invitation to dinner, do not write your regrets on the back of a pool check with a blue pencil. This is not regarded as ricochet.

A simple note to your host informing him that your washerwoman refuses to relent is sufficient.

On seating yourself at the table draw off your gloves and put them in your lap under your napkin. Do not put them in the gravy, as it would ruin the gloves and cast a gloom over the gravy. If you have just cleaned your gloves with benzine, you might leave them out in the front yard.

If you happen to drop gravy on your knife blade, back near the handle, do not run the blade down your throat to remove the gravy, as it might injure your epiglottis, and is considered embonpoint, anyway.

When you are at dinner do not take up a raw oyster on your fork and playfully ask your host if it is dead. Remarks about death at dinner are in very poor taste.

Pears should be held by the stem and peeled gently but firmly, not as though you were skinning a dead horse. It is not bon-ton.

Oranges are held on a fork while being pulled, and the facetious style of squirting the juice into the eye of your hostess is now au revoir.

Stones in cherries or other fruit should not be placed on the table cloth, but slid quietly and unostentatiously into the pocket of your neighbor or noiselessly tossed under the table.

If you strike a worm in your fruit do not call attention to it by mashing it with the nut cracker. This is not only uncouth, but it is regarded in the best society as base and exceedingly vice versa.

Macaroni should be cut into short pieces and eaten with an even, graceful motion, not absorbed by the yard.

In drinking wine, when you get to the bottom of your glass do not throw your head back and draw in your breath like the exhaust of a bath tub in order to get the last drop, as it engenders a feeling of the most depressing melancholy among the guests.

After eating a considerable amount, do not rise and unbuckle your vest strap in order to get more room, as it is exceedingly au fait and dishabille.

If by mistake you drink out of your finger bowl, laugh heartily and make some facetious remark which will change the course of conversation and renew the friendly feeling among the members of the party.

Ladies should take but one glass of wine at dinner. Otherwise there might be difficulty in steering the male portion of the procession home.

Do not make remarks about the amount your companion has eaten. If the lady who is your companion at table, whether she be your wife or the wife of some one else, should eat quite heartily, do not offer to pay your host for his loss or say to her, 'Great Scott! I hope you will not kill yourself because you have the opportunity,' but be polite and gentlemanly, even though the food supply be cut off for a week.

If one of the gentlemen should drop a raw oyster into his bosom and he should have trouble in fishing it out, do not make facetious remarks about it, but assist him to find it, laughing heartily all the time.—Exchange.

Do not fear sunshine baths.

We can't be too much on our guard against reactions, lest we rush from one fault into another contrary fault.

And here is a Boston Sunday School boy, who, when asked to stand up and "say his verse," did it thus: "Be not overcome of evil, but come it over evil with good."

A Californian who tied one end of a rope around his waist and lassoed a cow with the other, reports that "at first he thought that he had the cow, but at the end of the first half-mile he became convinced that the cow had him."

A boy came home from school much excited, and told his father that he believed all human beings were descended from apes, which made the old man so mad that he replied angrily, "That may be the case with you, but it ain't with me, I can tell you that now."

A story is told of a German shoemaker, who, having made a pair of boots for a gentleman of whose financial integrity he had considerable doubt made the following reply to him when he called for the articles: "Der boots ish not quite done, but der bill ish made out."

"You want to be free from whatever gives you annoyance," said the doctor to the sick man; "free from all causes of worry and nervous excitement, from everything that tends to produce mental distress or agitation." "Doctor," exclaimed the patient, sitting bolt upright in bed and clasping his professional adviser's hand with enthusiasm, "put that in writing, and I'll apply for a divorce at once!"

The Constitutionalist.

A DEMOCRATIC FREEHOLDER.

For the first time since the formation of the County of Union, the city of Plainfield on Tuesday last elected a Democratic Freeholder. Mr. Rowland M. Stover, the nominee of the Democratic party, was chosen for the position by reason of his personal popularity and reputation of fitness and ability, in spite of the fact that he was opposed by the present incumbent who had been elected year after year. That this is a victory due alone to the undivided support of Mr. Stover's party and his friends on the other side, is plainly evident. No combination or deal of any sort was made, and Mr. Stover will take his seat with the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, unpledged to fulfill the commands of any clique, not obliged to carry out the course marked down by any coterie of obstructionists and free to adopt such a line of policy as in his clear judgment is for the best interests of the city he represents. We can at least feel assured that he will fill the office as satisfactorily as has been done in the past year by the retiring incumbent, and probably more in accordance with the views of those of our citizens having the welfare of the city at heart.

IS IT A TEMPERANCE COUNCIL?

A careful consideration of the many signs that are generally supposed to point towards future action, leads many to believe that the new Council elected on Tuesday, will not include a majority in favor of liquor license. As near as can be judged, there seems to be some foundation for the claim made by many that at the most but five of the new members are "license men." Of the eleven candidates nominated on the Independent ticket, ten were elected; and as the list was believed to have been selected with a consideration of the fact that the councilmen named were pledged against license, it is fair to suppose that at least six will vote that way. The only nominee elected outside of the Independent candidates, is Mr. Wm. E. Gardner, of the Fourth Ward, who was waited on by a committee engaged in forming the Independent ticket and questioned regarding his views in relation to license. He replied that when a respectable person presented an application properly signed by responsible parties, he should vote in favor of granting the license asked. Mr. Livingston of the Second Ward and Mr. Simpson of the Fourth will probably take the same view of the matter, and Messrs. Depew and Rushmore voted for license while in the Council of 1879. It however is a fact, that the latter in that year voted for a resolution to the effect that if at the money election of February the extra apportionment should be granted, no licenses should be given.

The trial of Guiteau, President Garfield's assassin, drags slowly along. Instead of hanging the murderer, it looks as though he will be made out "insane"—by the jury. He ought to have Jersey justice meted out to him.

Hon. John T. Dunn, of Union County, is highly spoken of and recommended as a candidate for Speaker of the House of Assembly of this State. His selection to that position would be an honor to the County and Democracy. He is the oldest member in the present House and is well calculated for the position.

Congress assembled on Monday last. J. Warren Keifer, of Ohio, Republican, was elected Speaker by a vote of 148 to 129 for Samuel J. Randall, Democrat. Nicholas Ford, the Greenback candidate had 8 votes. The Republican nominees for other officers of the House were also elected. The President's message is generally conceded to be a very fair document.

THE City Treasurer has $24,384.48 in hand.

THE lecture of Dr. DeHaas at the Park avenue church on Friday evening last was the most eloquent and one of the most interesting discourses ever delivered in this city. He will lecture again at the same place on the 29th inst.

POSTMASTER Vail was the loser of a quantity of corn stalks in stack, that were set on fire during Tuesday night in the rear of the Stillman House-barn on Front street. The efforts of the firemen, however, prevented a spread of the flames to the adjacent barn, and thus saved quite an amount of property.

THE Fifth anniversary of the Children's Home Association was held at the Trinity Reformed church on Thursday evening of last week. The Revs. Raymond, Bliss, Stockton, Yerkes and Maucher took part in the exercises, and the favorable reports of the Treasurer, Mrs. L. W. Serrell, and the President, Mr. Horace Kimball, were read.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the correction of nuisances, and for the preservation of health in the City of Plainfield," approved September 2, 1878.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council do enact as follows:

CLOTHIERS!
NEW CLASS FRONT STORE,
797 Broad St.,
NEWARK, N. J

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to-day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Bernard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments. o1dm3

SOMETIME during Friday night of last week, a poultry-thief stole a lot of chickens from the premises of Mr. Wm. Tobin. Among the fowls stolen was a valuable game-cock.

EVERYBODY that sees them, says that White's Cough Syrup and Rheumatic Liniment are just what they profess to be as reliefs and cures. They are for sale by all the druggists.

As we went to press last (Thursday) evening, the third of the Y. M. C. A., entertainments—a lecture by the Rev. F. S. Henson on "Money"—attracted a large attendance at the M. E. Church.

FOR elegant holiday presents in silverware, clocks and all the various articles in the jewelry line, Collier's No. 2 Park avenue, is the headquarters. Handsome goods at low prices may be found in large assortment.

DON'T forget to go to Bachman's No. 27 W. Front street for anything you may want in the line of silk ties and silk handkerchiefs. There may be found at that establishment the largest stock of such goods in the city.

QUITE a raid was made last Monday night by a number of "town-boys," on two questionable houses of North Plainfield. Much liquor and considerable fighting was indulged in, but so far as heard from, no arrests were made.

MESSRS. Green & Co., at their furniture warerooms, No. 35 W. Front street, are displaying besides their fine stock of upholstered goods, a handsome assortment of bric-a-brac cabinet-ware particularly appropriate for holiday presents.

AT half-past one o'clock of to-day, (Friday) T. J. Gillies will sell at auction at the wareroom, No. 55 W. Front street, a quantity of household furniture, carpets, bed-room suites, kitchen utensils, &c. Also a sorrel horse, good for work or road.

A NUMBER of Alert Hose Co's members pleasantly surprised their fellow-member Mr. J. Marc Martin and his new wife, by a serenade and sociable visit on Friday evening of last week. Mr. and Mrs. Martin entertained their guest in a most generous manner.

AT Laing's Hotel, on Front street opposite Madison avenue, the finest of wines and liquors bottled expressly for the holidays and family use, may be obtained. Imported cigars of all the choice brands by the box always on hand. Goods warranted pure and unadulterated.

THE lovers of old fashioned country sausage meat, can find that article, put up in bags, at Randolph's butter market, No. 13 Park avenue. It is manufactured in Hunterdon county from corn-fed pork, and needs only a trial to prove its superiority over the ordinary sausage.

RALPH WELLS, of New York, will lecture in this city Friday evening, Dec. 16th, at the First Presbyterian church, on "The Sabbath School Teacher's responsibility in teaching and in Pastoral work." All teachers and friends of Sabbath Schools are cordially invited to attend.

AT this season of the year when so much confectionery is being bought and eaten, care should be taken to purchase only the purest. Appreciating such a fact, we would advise our readers to buy their candies of L. L. Compton, at 26 West Front street, who keeps only his own manufacture and uses only the purest of ingredients and flavors.

THAT able veterinary surgeon and dentist, A. F. Carpenter, has located an office at No. 37 North avenue, where he may be consulted or his services engaged regarding any of the ills that horses are subject to. An experience of 16 years in the largest stables of New York, enables Dr. Carpenter to guarantee satisfactory work on his part in any case that may be entrusted to his charge.

WE hardly think it would be policy on the part of the Board of managers of the Plainfield Fire Department to increase the roll of firemen by authorizing a number of young men to form themselves into a hose company. The department is large enough now to insure proper discipline, and a company of lads officered by themselves could hardly be kept under the control desirable for peace and the good order of the city.

THE Ellis family made its second appearance in this city on Tuesday evening, with an entertainment at Van Deventer Hall under the auspices of the Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F. Although in a few instances the "Family" displayed average talent, other parts of the programme were hardly praiseworthy or above mediocrity. These "artists" with some proper musical training, would be able to greatly improve the quality of their concerts.

THE seventy-third birthday of one of the "oldest inhabitants" of Plainfield, Mr. R. R. Coriell, was pleasantly commemorated on Thursday evening of last week by the presentation to that gentleman of a handsomely engraved gold-headed cane. The testimonial was from the members of Mr. Coriell's family and signified their intense admiration for their ancestor's life as upright as the cane and as pure as the gold which surmounted it.

MR. John W. Morris having leased elegant and extensive stables in Rector, near Broad street, Newark, N. J., will keep on hand a large stock of horses and mules for sale or exchange. Ample and good accommodations will be furnished dealers or others bringing stock to that market, and the benefit of Mr. Morris' experience and influence also secured. Horses and mules can be sent to the proprietor, to be sold on commission if desired. Mr. Morris will have regular weekly sales on each Thursday, at his New Brunswick stables, after Feb. 1st, 1882.

ON Wednesday evening Mr. Joel Manning, residing on Plainfield ave. near New Brooklyn, was driving home through Central avenue at about 8 o'clock, when just after passing under the railroad bridge, one of the reins broke. The team behind which was a heavy wagon immediately started, and Mr. Manning pulling on the other rein steered the horses upon the sidewalk and over the stone terrace of the residence of Mr. Lorenzo Scofield at the corner of Third street, onto the lawn. Mr. Manning was thrown out and severely injured, but succeeding in arresting the further progress of the team.

WE are reminded by the stir and activity at the store of Edsall & Price, that the Holiday season has fully begun. Although their Holiday goods are not yet all on exhibition, the indications are that this enterprising firm will even surpass their large trade last season. They are receiving now every day, new lines of elegant goods suitable to the season, and the peculiar advantages they have in purchasing, enable them to offer extraordinary inducements to their patrons. Hence the immense demand upon them for their goods. Their plan of freely showing goods without unpleasant urging to buy, is a very popular one, and the public may add to their own interest by taking advantage of it.

THE regular public monthly meeting of the Y. P. U., of the M. E. church, was held last Monday evening in the lecture room of the church. The exercises consisted of the usual devotional services, led by the new President of the Association, Mr. Henry McGee, after which the latter expressed great pleasure in introducing, or presenting to the audience, the pastor of the church, Rev. Thos. H. Stockton, who in turn introduced the new President of the Young People's Union to the audience and then proceeded to give a "description talk" of his second trip to Europe. The Rev. gentleman took his hearers on a grand, first-class excursion from New York across the "briny deep," landing at Queenstown, Ireland, taking a ride on the famous "jaunting car" en route to the railway station. The audience was taken—so to speak—to many points of interest in Ireland, then to Scotland, visiting many places of historical renown. England was next visited, passing down to Liverpool, Leeds and London, enjoying the privilege of hearing about Jesus Christ, crucified in the morning by Spurgeon and Bob Ingersoll crucified in the evening by Joseph Parker. After speaking of many places of great interest for which London is noted, the party sailed for home, arriving in Plainfield at 9:30 p. m., when a hymn was sung and the benediction pronounced and all went home.

The Charter Election !

"GREAT SCOTT!"

WE STOVED-IN THIS TIME !

A DEMOCRATIC FREEHOLDER !

"WE DID IT UP BROWN!"

A DEMOCRATIC CITY COLLECTOR.

Three Democratic Ward Councilmen !

GLORY ENOUGH FOR A WHOLE YEAR !

THE PEOPLE DID IT!

LET THE ORGAN GRIND !

The election for Plainfield city officers and two members of the Chosen Freeholders of the County, which occurred on Tuesday last, evidenced that the people of Plainfield desired a "change." For the first time in the history of Union County a Democrat was elected as Freeholder by a handsome majority. A Democratic successor was also elected by a very large majority to the present City Collector, while a Democratic Councilman-at-large and three associates from wards were also chosen, and the Democratic candidate as City Treasurer carried the First Ward and ran ahead of his ticket. This state of affairs was brought about mainly by the people, who irrespective of party, voted for men of their choice. There were three tickets in the field, a straight Democratic, a Republican and an Independent Ticket, yet strange to say, candidates on both the Republican and Independent Tickets, running for an office on both were "left" and the candidates running alone on the regular Democratic ticket elected. The election shows that in the four Wards of the city, no political party can feel sure that it is their own, with the exception of the Third, which is strong Republican when a full party vote is out. In the present instance an "Independent" Ticket drew away votes from each side. Nevertheless, the result is satisfactory to the people and candidates except where some particular person failed to be elected. Only for the fact that the Independent Ticket was in the field, we believe the Fourth Ward would have elected an entire Democratic Ticket. The names on it were unexceptionable and Democrats of the Ward did their best to elect their candidates, but the Independent Ticket drew enough votes away to elect the majority of the names on the Republican Ticket. However, where all did so well throughout for the election of representative men for city and County officers, no fault should be found. Mr. Stover should certainly feel gratified at the large vote and majority he received, considering that he was only placed in nomination on one ticket. We only regret that Mr. Voorhees, his companion on the Democratic ticket was not also elected. The election was remarkable for its quietness. The vote polled, 1,187, fell short of that anticipated by many. As this is the first time that a city election has occurred by wards, the Democrats feel somewhat proud (with reason) of their achievement in electing as many candidates as they have.

Funeral Services.

The ceremonies of burial of the remains of Mrs. George Dewey, who died at her late residence on the corner of Front street and Central avenue at 3:30 o'clock p. m. of last Saturday, took place in the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church on Wednesday afternoon at half-past two o'clock. The Rev. John C. Bliss preached an appropriate sermon and Mrs. Sheppard L. Stewart sang as a solo, "I would not live always." Mr. Harry Lindsley presided at the organ. The remains were subsequently interred in the Presbyterian cemetery in North Plainfield.

The Children's Home Fair.

On the evening of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, the Annual Fair for the benefit of the Children's Home will be held in the Sunday School rooms of the M. E. Church. Not only does the cause demand the support of a large attendance, but the many attractive features of the Fair and the beautiful goods that will be offered, should claim a generous patronage. Among the many donations for the success of the occasion will be a large supply of flowers from the conservatory of Mr. John Taylor Johnston. Any contributions for the Fair may be sent to the S. S. rooms of the church, after 9 o'clock of Tuesday morning. Music will be furnished by the Italian String Band of New York.

To Secure Legislation.

Messrs. J. Evarts Tracy, Joseph W. Yates, Mason W. Tyler, John H. Evans, Nathan Harper, Nelson Runyon, L. V. F. Randolph and Sam'l P. Huntington are appointed a committee with Mr. J. B. Dumont, to carry out the following resolution passed at the citizen's meeting of Tuesday evening, Nov. 22d:

Resolved, That in view of the importance of having the law plainly provide for the enforcement of taxes due and to become due in Plainfield, and of having such taxes imposed and only such as shall adequately meet the requirements of the public good—a committee be appointed by the Chairman of this meeting to consist of nine citizens including the Chairman, whose duty it shall be to consider carefully what legislation is necessary, and acting under proper legal advice and if possible, co-operating with a Committee from the Common Council, to obtain such legislation as shall meet the requirements of this City.

Almost a Conflagration.

At about half-past seven o'clock of Tuesday morning, one of the firm of Martin Bros. had his attention called to the dropping of sparks from the ceiling of his store at the corner of Second street and Park avenue. Looking up he discovered that a spot in the wooden ceiling was on fire, and by means of a ladder and a bucket of water succeeded in putting out the flames that had already burnt a small hole. The cause of the fire was not, however, apparent, and Mr. Martin feeling assured that it must have started in the office of Messrs. Suydam & Jackson above the store, effected an entrance therein by climbing upon the Second street cornice and through one of the office windows. Here it was found that a large place in the floor and the casings of the windows on the Park avenue side of the room, were all in a blaze and the flames rapidly spreading. Water was passed up and the fire speedily put out before much damage was done, although if the occurrence had happened two or three hours earlier, the loss of the entire building and possibly adjacent ones, would probably have resulted. The cause was the emptying of lighted pipe-ashes in a wooden box filled with sawdust that stood upon the spot where the fire was discovered. The saw dust had become ignited and after smoldering all night burst into flames in the morning. An office chair was consumed and about $20 damage done, which was immediately adjusted by Mr. William A. Woodruff the agent of the Westchester Co., in which the property was insured.

A Reunion of Sabbath School Workers.

The Union County Sunday School Association held its Second Annual Convention in the Crescent ave. Pres. church, on Tuesday last, with both afternoon and evening sessions, commencing at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. The Local Committee of entertainment was composed of Messrs. H. C. Squires, J. D. Titsworth, G. R. Cornwell, D. E. Runyon, J. R. Perine, A. Swain, Jr., T. C. Aldrich and E. E. Anthony. The music Committee was Messrs J. C. Pierson and C. W. McCutchen. The programme included many interesting addresses full of advice and suggestion for teachers and superintendents, the reports of Township Secretaries and much information of value to the workers in the cause. The president of the Association, the Rev. J. L. Hurlbut of this city, gave a most able normal lesson on "The Four Gospels," and the Rev. A. F. Schauffler of the New York Olivet Mission, besides his talk upon "How to study the lesson," most satisfactorily answered such questions as were asked him by those teachers desiring to know how to overcome the respective difficulties that frequently arose. A most enjoyable feature of the session was a solo by Mrs. Thos. S. Stillman who sang Holden's "Nearer my God to Thee." A bountiful collation was served in the church parlors during the evening, by the ladies of Plainfield, at which was present the large number of delegates attending. The County Secretary's report to the State S. S. Association gives the following figures: Number of Schools, 38; Officers and Teachers, 1,268; Scholars, 10,716; Church members, 2,140, of which 280 joined in 1880. Upon an election of new officers, Mr. James McGee was chosen as President.

SUNDAY last was the first "unpleasant" one we have had for many weeks. However, Monday redeemed itself.

Delano's Prize Granulated Soap is advertised on sale at R. MacDonald & Son's grocery, and Mrs. E. Flaig, No. 74 East Front street, on Thursday drew a ticket calling for a bag of flour, valued at $1.25. Read their (Delano's) advertisement in another column and you will see the names of grocers selling this soap.

FIRE MATTERS.

The Regular Quarterly meeting of the Plainfield Fireman's Relief Association will take place at the house of Zephyr H. & L. Co., on the evening of Monday next. A full attendance is particularly requested, as a proposed change in the By-laws will be discussed.

Just after midnight of Saturday, a barn belonging to Mr. Francis McIntyre, situated alone on a lot between Third and Fourth and New and Liberty streets, was discovered to be on fire. The alarm bell rang loud and long and succeeded in getting a sufficient number of firemen out of bed to drag the apparatus of the Department to the scene. The building, however, being of the most inflammable material was entirely consumed, although such contents as were valuable were saved and the loss therefore but small. Mr. McIntyre has offered a reward of $75 for the incendiary who is undoubtedly responsible for the conflagration, and expresses his thanks to the firemen for their efforts to save his property.

The Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department met in regular meeting on Wednesday evening. Present, President VanWinkle and Messrs. Depew, Gillies, Morris, Flaig and Jones. The minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. Mr. Jones from the Committee on Wells, reported that it had advertised for proposals for putting down two new wells as authorized at last meeting. The President read the proposals as follows: Wm. Hand's bid was $140 for each well but did not specify whether the price included the cost of cap; Daniel Martin's bid was $155 each without cap and $175 with cap—to be 10 feet in diameter and to contain 6½ feet of water. Another bid was made by G. W. Towsley but not in a proper form. It offered to build 22 feet deep with cover for $132 and without for $121; with the understanding that if necessary to go deeper for the desired amount of water, the expense will be extra. Mr. Morris understood that wells costing half as much were built elsewhere, and moved that the Committee on Wells invite proposals for the building of wells partly of masonry and partly of pile. Carried. The proposals received as above, were laid on the table until the next meeting. The Committee on Repairs and Supplies reported correct the bill of R. J. Shaw, referred to it for examination. Charles Ward and James Huntington were confirmed as members of Eng. Co. No. 1, Chas. VanWinkle, of Eng. Co. No. 2 and Michael Fields as a member of Eng. Co. No. 3. Action regarding the members reported at last meeting as expelled from the roll of No. 2 Eng. Co., was on motion postponed until next meeting. An application was received, signed by 23 young men of 19 years of age and over, asking the permission of the Board to form themselves into a Hose Company in order that their time of service be credited to them. On motion of Mr. Morris the matter was laid over for consideration. The following bills were ordered paid: Jacob Sutphen, $4; W. F. Newman, $2; Geo. Frazee $1; W. B. Grannatt $25; John N. Schenck, $25; Geo. R. Ruthford, $2.10; and E. Marsh, $2.20. The Secretary read the charges of Wm. Harding, Foreman of Eng. Co. No. 3 against J. Scott a member of Alert Hose Co., for "maliciously and wilfully" refusing the former Company the use of Alert's hose at a recent fire. As the communication was not signed and not addressed to anyone, Mr. Morris moved that the charges be not considered. Mr. Harding, who was present, stated that he had personally handed the communication to the President of the Board and would like an answer in relation to it. He said if Alert's hose was sent to a fire for ornament, he wanted to know it. Mr. Morris insisted that it was not competent for the Board to consider a communication that was not signed. Mr. Gillies thought that as the persons making the charges and the Foreman of the Company of which the person charged was a member were both present and desirous of an examination, it should be allowed. Mr. Harding then came forward and signed the charges, and a motion made by Mr. Gillies and seconded by Mr. Jones, that the parties concerned be heard, was carried. Foreman Saltzman of Alert's then spoke in defence. He did not think that the Board should enter into an examination of the affair that evening, as the charges had then been read before the Board for the first time. He, however, was prepared to go on with the matter, and proceeded to state the position taken by his company. The officers and members of Alert Hose Co., he said, did not intend to be amenable to the orders of anyone at a fire except the Chief of the Department or his assistants. They did not intend to refuse the use of their hose to any steamer but would only obey the orders of a "white hat" and not a "white front." Mr. Morris moved that in accordance with the By-laws, a time and place of meeting to consider the matter be appointed, at which time every witness examined be placed under oath and that the Secretary notify the parties concerned when and where the meeting would occur. Seconded by Mr. Jones and carried. On motion the examination was set down for Tuesday evening of next week, in the Common Council chamber, at 8 o'clock. A communication from Messrs. Carney Bros. was read offering to put a new furnace in the house of Eng Co. No. 1 for $120 necessitating an extra expense of $6 for the mason work. Also proposing to repair the heaters in the houses of No. 2 and No 3 at an expense not to exceed $30 for both, and using for the purpose parts of the old furnace taken from No. 1 house. A motion by Mr. Depew was carried authorizing the Com. on Repairs and Supplies to do as it saw fit in the matter. A communication from Chicago was read inquiring whether the Department had for sale a hand-engine and asking information as to its maker and at what price it was held. Referred to the Com. on Repairs and Supplies to report at the next meeting of the Board as to what sort of an exchange could be made for a new hose carriage for Eng. Co. No. 3. On motion of Mr. Morris the Com. on R. & S. was directed to purchase an 8 ft length of rubber suction for Steamer No. 2. A communication was read from C. R. Hope specifying the cost, dimensions etc., of platforms at the houses of No. 1 and No. 2 for the purpose of washing hose and carriages. Laid on the table. The President suggested that the Board consider itself a Committee of the whole for the purpose of discovering a lot on which would be erected a house for Alert Hose Co., the interest on which would be receivable as rent, with the privilege of buying if the Board should ever so desire. The meeting then adjourned.

The services of the Fire Department were called into requisition about six o'clock Thursday evening, in consequence *of the burning of a small barn on Somer*set street, North Plainfield, above Blatz's Hotel. The building belonged to Mr. McLaughlin. The loss is slight. "Warren" No. 3 had first water.

Personalia.

Dr. Charles S. McKnight has associated himself in his profession with Dr. Charles H. Stillman of this city, who is one of Plainfield's oldest physicians. Dr. McKnight comes from New York State, where he has had extensive practice.

Mrs. James Frazee, whose husband was once proprietor of the "Rock House," was in our city on Tuesday visiting relatives. Mr. Frazee and family are located at Columbus, Ohio, where he has a lucrative business.

The many friends of our Democratic friend, James Voorhees, a former resident of this city, were glad to grasp his hand while visiting here on Thursday. "Jim" now resides at Trenton, but says Plainfield is the garden spot of Eden after all.

We learn from the N. Y. Journal of Commerce that our fellow citizen, Joseph W. Yates, of the firm of Yates & Porterfield, of N. Y. city, has been appointed Consul General for the Republic of Liberia, west coast of Africa. This is an important position and is an honor to Mr. Yates and a credit to Plainfield.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

The new brick building of C. W. Wilkie, corner of Broad and Elm streets, is up to its height and ready for the roof. It is three story and makes a very improving appearance.

The report of vital statistics for month of November, by the Secretary of the Board of Health, shows: one birth, three deaths and three marriages in the Township of Westfield, for that month.

One of our enterprising young men has started a wheel-barrow express from the depot to Broad street. He evidently has his hands full of business, as on Thursday last he was wheeling in his barrow, one of our citizens to his home.

The foundation was staked out Saturday last for the new Congregationalist Church on Elm street. Aaron B. Clark, has contracted for the mason work, from the builder, Mr. Joel Moffett, who intends pushing it rapidly to completion.

J. M. French about leaving his farm on Central avenue, has advertised his outside stock for sale at auction on Tuesday next, Dec. 13, at 1 p. m.

Joseph Moffett, who some five weeks ago slipped in getting off a horse car in New York city and broke his leg, is getting along finely. He is so he can get about on crutches, and will soon be able to get out on our streets again.

The Rev. Wm. C. Roberts of Elizabeth, N. J., will deliver the third of a series of lectures for the benefit of the Congregational church, on Monday evening, Dec. 12th. Subject—"Beauties of Hebrew Literature." Mr. Roberts is an able speaker, and no doubt his lecture will be a rare treat well worthy the price of admission.

Dr. F. A. Kinch who recently purchased the store and lot on Mountain avenue adjoining his residence, has sold all the buildings on the lot to James T. Pierson who intends removing the same to his property on Broad street, formerly S. D. Pierson farm, and fitting them up into a first-class dwelling.

At the annual election for officers of the Westfield Athletic Club held on Saturday evening, Dec. 3d, at the club rooms corner of Broad and Prospect streets, the following persons were duly elected for the ensuing year: Ludlow V. Clark, Jr., President; J. A. Dennis, Vice President; E. H. Ladd, Jr., Secretary, and O. W. Dennis, Treasurer.

The Japanese tea party and bazar which took place at the M. E. church parlors on Wednesday evening, Nov. 30, was largely attended by members of the church and congregation, and everything passed off pleasantly. Everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. The supper was gotten up in good style and at reasonable prices. The candy and fancy stand was well patronized by the young people, and a considerable sum was netted to the parsonage fund.

The first sociable of the V. S. C. was held on Tuesday evening, Dec. 6th, at the residence of the President, Mr. W. J. Alpers, on Prospect street. The following named ladies and gentlemen were among the number present: Misses Bella Pierson, Louisa Evans, Anna Harbison, Annie Stabler, Zadie Van Buskirk, and brother, the Misses Burnmith's and brother, the Misses Ganaels, Minnie Moore, Tillie Alpers, Josie Leveridge and Lottie Denman. Messrs. McQuaid, Embree, Worth, Frank Harbison and brother, Day, Trask, Pierson, Leveridge and Denman. The evening was spent with music and dancing in a very happy and social manner.

On Friday evening of last week, Mr. Wm. Barton was disturbed after he had retired to bed, by a noise from the outside of the house. It seemed as if some persons were trying to force an entrance to his house, and upon his dressing and going out quietly he discovered somebody upon his roof who had evidently got there by ascending a ladder the painter had been using and left standing by the side of the house. Upon Mr. Barton ascending the ladder, the thief discovered he was seen, ran to the rear of the building and slid down the leader. He then pulled the ladder away cutting off Mr. Barton's means of descending to the ground, and made his escape in the darkness.

Trouble at West End. On Saturday evening Dec. 3d inst., the irrepressible John Peiffer, appeared before Justice J. D. Jaques and made complaint against Mrs. Johnson (who lives next neighbor to him) that she, (Johnson) had made threats to do bodily injury to him, (Peiffer). The Justice issued a warrant for Mrs. Johnson, placing it in the hands of officer Marsh to execute. Upon Mrs. Johnson appearing before the Justice she denied the charge and demanded an examination, which the Justice accorded her. After the examination of half a dozen witnesses on each side, the Justice decided to hold both the complainant and defendant to bail in the sum of one hundred dollars each, to "keep the peace," especially towards each other.

OUR COURTS.

The case of Moffett vs Gale, which was postponed from Nov. 23d until Thursday, Dec. 1st, at 10 o'clock, was tried on that day. Mr. Moffett and several witnesses were sworn on part of plaintiff, and Dr. Gale and other parties on behalf of defence. The trial lasted some four hours, the Hall being full of spectators. After the testimony was all in, P. H. Gilhooly, County Attorney, summed the case up on part of defendant, followed by ex-Judge Suydam for plaintiff. The Justice took the papers and reserved his decision until four o'clock of same day, at which hour he rendered his decision in favor of plaintiff and against the defendant, for the sum of $73 damages, and cost of suit. The defendant appealed from the decision of the Justice to the court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth, when at the January term of court, it will probably be re-heard before Judge McCormack and associates.

A one hour go-as-you-please foot race for a gold medal given by the Westfield Athletic Club, was to have taken place on Thanksgiving day, but owing to the muddy condition of the track was postponed until last Saturday at 3 p. m. At that time the contestants, Geo. Burrell, Henry Peterson, Lewis Peterson and John Peterson appeared and started prompt from the scratch around the track, which was the block bounded by Broad and Prospect street and North avenue, 1-6 of a mile. Geo. Burrell led from the start, but was closely pushed by Henry Peterson for the first half hour; but at the end of that time the latter was taken with cramps and had to withdraw, after which Lewis Peterson gained on Geo. Burrell and pushed him very close to the end. Burrell won by one lap, distance 6½ miles. The streets were crowded with spectators. It was under the charge of John W. Nelson, who, after the race, presented the badge in a neat speech to the winner.

On Friday morning last, Gretta, infant daughter, aged three years, of Benjamin Woodruff, residing on Broad street, met with a serious accident. She walked to the head of the stairs in the absence of her mother, and losing her balance fell to the bottom, breaking her right leg above the ankle. Dr. Cooper was immediately summoned and set the fractured limb. The little girl is getting along as favorably as can be expected under the circumstances.

The tenth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Barcalow, residing on North avenue, was held on Wednesday evening, Nov. 30. The friends gathered to the number of over 100, and at the hour of 9 o'clock when supper was announced, sat down to a table supplied with all the delicacies of the season. After supper the younger members of the assembly adjourned to the large carriage house in the rear of the dwelling, which had been beautifully decorated and arranged for the occasion, and under the inspiring music furnished by Messrs. Applegate and Wilcox, tripped the light fantastic toe until the wee small hours of morning. Among the guests were Rev. W. Hoagland and wife, Rev. Dr. Drumm, H. D. Statts and daughter, Mr. R. C. Barcalow, Mrs. E. V. Wevill of New York, Mrs. J. Agnew and daughter, Miss Howell of Newark, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bale of New Brunswick, Mrs. Preston Moffett of Jersey City, Mr. S. M. Clark of Morristown, the officers and members of Westfield Lodge, No. 162, I. O. O. F., and friends and relatives residing in Westfield. Mr. and Mrs. Barcalow were the recipients of a large number of useful and valuable presents.

A hotel beat and sneak thief. On Monday Nov. 28, a young man about 5ft 6 in. in height, with smooth face and dressed in gray clothes, stopped at the Westfield Hotel and registered under the name of J. O. Grey from Pittsfield, Mass. He represented himself to be the agent of a book concern in Philadelphia, and was delivering books which had been sold by subscription. He was a very smooth talker. On Monday Dec. 5th, he left the hotel to go to a washerwoman's to have some of his shirts washed, and failed to return. Upon Mr. Moffett, the landlord of the hotel, investigating the case, he found that Grey had not only beat him out of a week's board but had also stolen and carried away a very valuable book of Moffett's, besides a valise and a quantity of clothing belonging to a gentleman boarding at the hotel. The latter had gone away on Saturday and did not return until Monday evening when he discovered his room had been entered and his clothing stolen.

Lyceum Hall was filled with a large and select audience on Wednesday evening, Dec. 7th at 8 o'clock, the time at which the concert to be given for the benefit of the Ladies' Guild of the Episcopal church was postponed to, Sig. Eduardo Mora, Conductor. The piano was very ably presided over by Mr. George Magrath, who has just returned from Europe after an absence of six years, studying his art. The duetts by Miss Little and Mr. Baldwin, also the one by Miss Tuck and Miss Little were very finely rendered, as also were the songs of Mr. Baldwin. The song "My Dearest Heart," by Sullivan, was sung by Mr. Miller and heartily encored, as also was the performance on the piano by Magrath, in the Fantasia, "Mid-summer night dreams." The concert concluded with the singing by the quartette, Miss Tuck, Miss Little, Mr. Miller and Mr. Baldwin of the "Salve Maria," Marzo. There is no doubt the proceeds will net quite a large amount to the Treasury of the Guild.

Town Committee met at the Town rooms on Monday evening Dec. 5th. Present—H. F. Alpers, R. Sinclair and Jas. Moffett. L. M. Whittaker, Clerk. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. Com. from R. V. Lindabury, township counsel, dated Nov. 25th, 1881, received and on motion placed on file. County Collector's check received for $15 for use of town rooms, election day, passed to hands of Treasurer. On motion the following bills were ordered paid: Jas. S. Vosseller, County Clerk, for recording tax sales, $12; W. L. Force & Bro., printing and advertising tax sales, &c., $66; George A. Bayard, disinfectants, (small-pox case) $3.96, S. E. Young, overseer of poor, for board of Stephen Clark, 3 mos. to Dec. 1st, $39. On motion, the clerk was instructed to purchase a suitable book and enter therein a description of all property that has been purchased by the Township for overdue taxes. Moved and carried that J. M. C. Marsh, Assessor and L. M. Whittaker, Clerk, be authorized to search the records of mortgages to ascertain the names of the mortgagees of the property purchased by the Township at last tax sale. On motion adjourned, subject to call.

SUFFERING WOMEN.

There is but very small proportion of the women of this nation that do not suffer from some of the diseases for which Kidney-Wort is specific. When the bowels have become costive, headache, tormenta, kidneys out of fix, or piles distress, take a package and its wonderful tonic and renovating power will cure you and give new life.—Watchman.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a VIOLENT BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced to take DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists.

NOBODY ENJOYS the nicest surroundings if in bad health. There are miserable people about today to whom a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic would bring more solid comfort than all the doctors they have ever tried. See other column.

MY GOOD WOMAN,

Why are you so out of sorts, never able to tell folks that you are well? Ten to one it's all caused in the first place by habitual constipation, which no doubt finally caused deranged kidneys and liver. The sure cure for the constipation is the celebrated Kidney-Wort. It is also a specific remedy for all kidney and liver diseases. Thousands are cured by it every month. Try it once. —Toledo Blade.

HAVING GIVEN ELY'S CREAM BALM a trial, I advise those suffering from catarrh to try other remedies aside. I believe it to be the only remedy that will cure this terrible disease, from which I have been a sufferer for 20 years. The Balm is doing wonders for me. I have used everything advertised, but have never found its equal. CHARLES GARRABRANT, dealer in Boots and Shoes, 203 Broad street, Newark, N. J.

WE HAVE HEARD only words of praise for Ely's Cream Balm from many who are using it. One of our customers who has had Catarrh for over 40 years, says it has helped him more than anything he has ever used—after trying everything else. We can recommend it for Catarrh, Hay Fever, etc., knowing that the results produced will be satisfactory. CHRISTINE & BODINE, Druggists, Trenton, N. J. Feb. 28, 1881.

"HOW DO YOU MANAGE," said a lady to her friend, "to appear so happy all the time?" "I always have Parker's Ginger Tonic on hand," was the reply, "and thus keep myself and family in good health and spirits. See adv.

SEC. 3. In all streets which are graded, regulated or paved, or shall hereafter be graded, regulated or paved, the carriage or roadway between the [illegible] of gutters of said streets shall be all that space in said streets not required for sidewalks, the width of which sidewalks in all streets shall be determined by resolution of the Common Council, from time to time, as may be required.

SEC. 4. All sidewalks in the city shall be raised from the curb-stone line to the side of the street adjoining in the proportion of [illegible] inches in ten feet and the laying of any sidewalk contrary to the provisions of this section shall be punishable by a fine of [illegible] to be recovered from the party or parties laying the same, or the owner or owners of the property fronting thereon.

SEC. 5. No sidewalk, or part of any sidewalk now or hereafter laid with brick or flagging in any part of the city, shall hereafter be taken up or the brick or flagging be removed therefrom for any purpose, without the written permission of the Street Commissioner first obtained, and every person who shall take up or remove any part of any such sidewalk, without such permission, shall on conviction thereof be punished by fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offense.

SEC. 6. No person shall erect, project or suspend any sign over any sidewalk or the established line of any street, to a greater distance than two feet from the street line, or permit the continuance of any sign so erected or projecting, nor shall construct any window which shall extend from the wall of any building into or over any street, nor shall construct any cellar door, [illegible] which shall extend or encroach into or upon any street or sidewalk, without the permission of the Common Council first obtained; every person who shall violate this section, shall on conviction thereof be punished by fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

SEC. 7. No person shall throw or deposit, or cause to be deposited, into or upon any public street, avenue or sidewalk, or into or upon any public ground in the city, any turf, stone, sand, clay, earth, ashes or dangerous or offensive substance, except snow and ice which may have fallen or been formed upon sidewalks, and ashes, sawdust or sand which may be strewn upon sidewalks, in pursuance of the provisions of the ordinance entitled "An ordinance to provide for keeping street sidewalks and gutters free from snow, hail, sleet and ice," passed December 3d, 1877, and re-adopted December 17th, 1877; and no person shall take up or remove from any public street, avenue or sidewalk, or from any public ground in the city, any turf, stone, sand, clay or earth, without the permission of the street commissioner first obtained; every person who shall violate this section, shall on conviction thereof be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

AN ACCESSION TO THE FAMILY.

'Well, well, well,' said Mr. Spoopendyke, with a grin that involved his whole head, and an effort at a tip-toe tread that shook the whole house. 'And so it's a girl, my dear.'

Mrs. Spoopendyke smiled faintly and Mr. Spoopendyke picked his heiress.

'It's the image of you,' she said, regarding with some trepidation Mr. Spoopendyke's method of handling the infant.

'I don't see how you make that out,' said Mr. Spoopendyke, gravely. 'I don't know when my nose looked like the thumb part of a boiled lobster claw. Do I understand you that my eyes bear any resemblance to the head of a screw?'

'I mean the general features,' murmured Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'The general features seem to be, all mouth,' retorted Mr. Spoopendyke, examining his acquisition. 'If our general features are at all alike, my visage must remind you of an earthquake. Hi! kitchee! kitchee! What makes her fold up her legs like that?'

'She can't help it,' reasoned Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'They'll straighten out in time.'

'No time like the present,' quoted Mr. Spoopendyke, and he took his daughter's feet and commenced pulling her limbs. 'I don't want any bandy-legged first in this family while I'm at the head of it.'

Naturally the baby began to cry and Mr. Spoopendyke essayed to soothe it.

'Hi! kitchee! kitch-ee-ee!' he chirruped. 'Great Scott, what a cavern. Any idea how much this mouth weighs? Hi! kitchee! kitch-ee! You'll have to get that mouth roofed in before cold weather. What's the matter with her, anyway?'

'Perhaps you hurt her. Let me take her, please,' pleaded helpless Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'She's doing well enough. Hi! you! hold up! Haven't you anything to catch this mouth in? It's spilling all over the neighborhood. Hi! Topsy, Genevieve, Cleopatra, dry up. I'm going to have trouble breaking this young one's temper, I can see that. Here, bend the other way once,' and Mr. Spoopendyke tried to straighten up his offspring without avail.

'Let her come to me, do please,' moaned Mrs. Spoopendyke, and Mr. Spoopendyke was forced to hand her over.

'Well, that's quite a baby,' said he, nursing his knee and eyeing the infant. 'What're those bumbs over its eyes for? What preponderance of intelligence do they represent?'

'You mustn't talk so,' remonstrated Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'She's the handsomest child you ever saw.'

'Well, she's got to stop biting her nails before she goes any further with this procession. Here, take your hands out of your mouth, can't you? Why don't you put her hands down?'

'Why, all babies do that,' explained Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'You can't stop that.'

'I'm going to try,' said Mr. Spoopendyke,' and I don't want to be interfered with in bringing this child up. Here, you, Maud S. Bonesetter, put your hands in your pockets. Don't let me see any more nail chewing or you and I'll get mixed up in an argument. She gets that from your family, Mrs. Spoopendyke.'

'Say, dear, don't you want to go and order some things?' asked Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'No,' rejoined her husband, 'I want to see this youngster. Where's her chin? Do babies always have their upper jaw set right on their shoulders? Her scalp comes clear to the bridge of her nose I don't believe she's quite right. Where's her forehead? Great Moses! Her head is all on the back part! Say, that baby's got to be pressed. That's no shape.'

'Get away,' exclaimed Mrs. Spoopendyke, indignantly. 'She's a perfect angel. There's nothing the matter with her.'

'Of course you know,' growled Mr. Spoopendyke. 'You don't want anything more than a fog horn and a misspent appropriation to be an orphan asylum. If I had your faith and the colic I'd make a living as a foundling's home. She'll be old enough to spank in a week, won't she?'

'No, she won't!' said Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'She'll never be old enough for that.'

'I'll bet she will,' grunted Mr. Spoopendyke; if she isn't, she'll get it before she matures up to that period. That's all. Let me take her. Here, let's have her.'

But Mrs. Spoopendyke flatly refused.

'Keep your dod gasted baby, then,' roared Mr. Spoopendyke. 'If you know more about babies than I do, then keep her. The way you coddle her, one would think she was a new paste for the complexion. If you had one more brain and a handle, you'd make a fair rattle box. Fit you up with a broken sofa and a grease spot and you'd do for a second-hand nursery.'

And Mr. Spoopendyke started off to find his friend Specklewottle, who congratulated him, and started off with him to assist in the selection of an overcoat and a pair of ear muffs as precautionary against the approaching winter.—Brooklyn Eagle.

'I did,' said Bill.

'Then you can do it again this week,' said the old man; 'one good churn deserves another.'

It happened on a railroad train which was going—well, it wasn't exactly a lightning express. The engineer whistled 'down brakes.'

'What's the trouble, conductor?' excitedly asked a passenger.

'Cow on the track,' cooly responded the conductor. The man was satisfied.

Shortly afterward 'down brakes,' was again whistled.

'What's the trouble now?' cried the same passenger.

'Cow on the track,' was the reply.

'Great heavens!' cried the man, 'haven't we caught up with that cow yet?'

POETRY.

For The Constitutionalist."

ON THE DEATH OF ANOTHER SISTER—MRS. CARRIE DRAKE.

Another loved one's gone and left us,
We shall meet her here no more;
Yet, we know that she is waiting
For us on the other shore.

She is far from sin and sorrow;
She is free from care and pain;
She is free from all earth's trials,
Ne'er to suffer them again.

Now her days of suffering's ended,
And her nights of pain are o'er;
Having pass'd death's stormy river,
She is safe on Canaan's shore.

'Twas the will of God to take her,
Yet her loss we deeply feel;
If we put our trust in Jesus,
He will all our sorrows heal.

Father, comfort her lone husband,
Be to him more than a friend;
Give of grace a double portion
While he treads the path of life.

Take those little children, Saviour,
Round them place thine arm's of love;
Shield them from the snares that face them,
Bring them to thy fold above.

—Mrs. T. B. Drake.

THE DIAMOND EARRINGS.

If there was one person in the world more than another that Mrs. Templeton gazed at with eyes of curious regard, it was her husband's cousin, Mrs. Norris, and if she had one ambition eclipsing another, it was to eclipse Mrs. Norris in every direction. If Mrs. Norris set up a wall-basket, Mrs. Templeton composed a hanging cabinet. If Mrs. Norris had a new ivy pot, Mrs. Templeton would have nothing less than a window garden. A single vase on Mrs. Norris' piazza caused Mrs. Templeton's premises to break out with urns till they looked like a stone-cutter's yard. If Mrs. Norris gave a high tea, Mrs. Templeton had a dinner party out of hand; if Mrs. Norris had a luncheon, Mrs. Templeton had a ball, or what answered for one in the limited round of pleasures of their place of abode; and if Mrs. Norris indulged herself with a new silk, Mrs. Templeton always counted her flounces, and made her own phylacteries broader.

When one day, then, Mrs. Norris appeared at church—the usual place in the town of Carleon for ladies to exhibit their toilets—with a pretty little pair of diamonds sparkling in her ears, you can imagine the state of disgust and wrath in which Mrs. Templeton walked home, and the very disagreeable time that Mr. Templeton had of it as he walked beside her, endeavoring to look like the happiest domestic man in Carleon. The sermon was criticised, the minister made out a timeserver, the parish denounced collectively and personally, his own peculiar friends among the rest, and finally his cousin Hetty was reached, and her habits, her manner and her dress were made the text on which to hang anathema maranatha of worldliness, affectation, bad taste, low moral sense, irreligion, and last of all, extravagance—his dear little charmless Cousin Hetty, whose red curls lighted such a frank, child-like countenance, and whose two diamonds, he had been guilty of thinking, just matched the limpid sparkle of the clear dew-drops of her gray eyes. But Mr. Templeton had far too much experience to say anything of the sort.

"James Norris could not pay his debts if he were sold out to-day," said his wife. "And look at his wife's dress!—Maria, how many times must I tell you to keep those children inside the curbstone?—his wife's dress; just one glitter of satin and jet. And I declare it was impossible for me to fix my eyes on the lectern for the way in which she kept those diamonds twinkling before me, with her head on the perpetual dance. A pretty place for diamonds—church? I know a woman who wore them to her father's funeral; I suppose she would. I should think at any rate, she could have controlled her inclinations, and waited till next Sabbath—diamonds on Palm Sunday! But it's high time of day, I must say," warming up with her husband's silence, "when I am without a single diamond to my name, and there is James Norris' wife, James Norris who owes you $5,000 borrowed money—"

It was very weak in Mr. Templeton to interfere; but one cannot be always on one's guard.

"I understand, Juliet, my love," said he, "that Hetty's Uncle Roberts sent her these earrings."

"Uncle Roberts, indeed! I should like to see Uncle Roberts for once, if he is not a mythical personage altogether," cried his wife, with the air of expecting Mr. Templeton to produce the alleged Uncle Roberts immediately. "Uncle Roberts. And you 'understand' forsooth! Why didn't I understand? Why were the earrings concealed from me? For all I know, you gave them to her yourself.—Perhaps your are this Uncle Roberts who is always brought to the front at every pet piece of extravagance. For my part, I wish I had even a husband, not to speak of an Uncle Roberts, who would not see me trodden under foot by any little minx who chooses to toss her proud head above me—"

"My dear! my dear! just remember where you are; just remember the children," murmured Mr. Templeton, floundering in a little farther.

"Where I am! I suppose you don't want all Carleon to hear how I'm outraged. You'd like to keep it a secret—You'd like to have me endure it in silence Of course you don't want the children to hear their mother tell the same story of your neglect, your outrage—"

Here Mr. Templeton took off his hat and made a low bow with a glittering smile to a gentleman and lady passing in an opposite direction.

"What in the world is the matter with Mrs. Templeton?" asked the gentleman—"She looks like a thundercloud full of lightning."

"Hetty Norris' earrings, I guess," was the answer. "She has probably seen them at church to-day. Poor Mr. Templeton! What a life that vixen leads him!"

"I don't know about that. He is tremendously in love with her."

"How can he be?"

"Force of habit, mabe. And she is a beauty, you know. And when she is good natured there is nobody like her."

"Well, by Easter you'll see here with a pair of solitaires, I'll wager another pair. Take me up!"

"Not I. I shouldn't have any use for them if I won, excepting to give them back to you; and I couldn't afford to lose. Besides I don't bet on a certainty," said the careful Mr. Bowman. And just then, Hetty Norris coming up, they stopped to admire her precious acquisitions; and Hetty heard the wager, and shamed Bowman into taking it, before they parted and went their opposite ways, more merrily than was their Sunday wont.

Not so Mr. Templeton. As soon as his wife had banged the door behind her she tore off her bonnet and threw herself on a sofa, and called for Jane to bring the ammonia, and her husband to drop the shades and Maria to take the children where she could not hear them, for her head was splitting with pain, as any one's would be, treated as she was. And she would not go up stairs to bed, and Mr. Templeton's Sunday romp with the children was abrogated, and his dinner was made an act of silent and solitary penance; and if he told his wife he was going to afternoon service, and did go over to his cousin Hetty's she at least, had no right to blame him for it.

But woe for Mr. Templeton when he came home that evening! Mrs. Templeton had been removed to her own room, which reeked with streams of camphor and alcohol; she lay there in her white nightgown, with her black hair streaming over the pillow, with her great black eyes rolled up and fixed on a remote point of the ceiling, and the foam standing on her lips—ghastly stiff and immovable. It made no odds to Simpleton—I mean Templeton—that he had seen her so fifty times before; in fact, always when she wanted something she could not have. Cold terror struck to his soul lest he should lose his torment; all her virtues swelled into the hosts of heaven, all her faults were wiped out as with a sponge. He was down on his knees beside her in a moment.

"Oh, my darling! my Juliet! my love! speak to me! Tell me you know me!" he cried. "Ride for the doctor, Jane. Where is Dr. Harvey? Why haven't you had him here already? Get him at once. Give me the brandy. Heat those soapstones. Where is the hot water? And he was bathing her lips and rubbing her hands and kissing her forehead, and adjuring her to give any sign of life. But it was not till the doctor's was heard that Mrs. Templeton vouchsafed the least indication, and then her breast began to heave, her hands to tremble, her long supple body, that had been stiffly resting on its head and heels only, began to sway and subside, her feet to twitch, and presently those feet were beating a tattoo on the footboard, and the lips, parted in shrieks, and the shrieks turned to sobs, and the doctor was pouring chloral between the teeth, and the sobs sank away into sleep, and the hysterics were over.

"What could have excited you so, my dearest, and thrown you into such a terrible convulsion?" Templeton was saying next morning. ('Hysterics' was a forbidden word. Mrs. Templeton would have had another attack at the sound of it.) "It must have been the heat of the church; it was overpowering. Thurlow has never learned to regulate that furnace."

"The heat," sighed Mrs. Templeton, faintly, "and the glitter of those diamonds. They kept dancing so before my eyes with their bright spots that they dazzled the brain. I am afraid I was very cross yesterday, Jarius. I didn't know what I was saying. Oh, I never want to see any diamonds again."

"You shall have a pair of your own before I am a week older," exclaimed the feeble husband.

"Oh, no, no, no, no! I shall be so ashamed. I don't deserve them. I—I couldn't think of it. Indeed, indeed, I wouldn't have you, Jarius darling; I should feel just as if I had begged for them."

But when Mr. Templeton returned from the city that night, as pretty a pair of solitaire earrings as he could buy with the bond he sold glittered in a velvet case marked with her name.

As he opened the case and held it before her, Mrs. Templeton shuddered, and turned her glance away from the beautiful white sparkle, and said they looked at her with two great eyes of reproach, and she ought not to have them, and they were as heavenly as twin stars.

And presently they were glittering in her ears, and all the faintness and languor were gone, and she was running to the glass and holding her head on this side and on that, and admiring herself, and turning to her husband for admiration. Looking, with her large liquid dark eyes, her pale face, her perfect features, her dazzling smile, all illumined by the shining drops, as beautiful as the most beautiful Juliet that was ever loved. And her husband felt twice and a hundred times repaid for the little sacrifice of his little saving in the only bond he had yet been able to buy and lay by for the future by the vision of her and by the delighted kisses she showered upon his lips, and the warm embraces of the long white arms.

It was not once, but twenty times that Mrs. Templeton looked at the flash of her new splendors in the mirror, took them out of her ears and put them back again, bunched her hair in them so that her husband might loosen them and be struck afresh, as he did so, with the pale pink sea-shell of the ear, the curve of the throat, the exquisite oval of the cheeks; and she went at last to the window and shielded the pale with her hands while looking out and up at the stars. "I declare," she said, "the glistening of Orion's belt is no more splendid than my diamonds. I never thought I should have diamonds, Jarius."

Nor did she have diamonds after that one evening of ecstacy. The little borough of Carleon was no better than other places and while she stood at the window comparing her gems with Orion's a pair of enterprising burglars, who at that moment were not "burglaring," chanced to obtain a view of their opportunities, and they went through the house that night, and the diamonds went through their fingers the next day.

Alas for Mrs. Templeton! It would have been idle for her to have another convulsion. Her husband had not another bond for another pair of stones. And so the mother of the Gracchi could not have played a more magnanimous part than she did.

"Oh, what do I care for jewels!" she cried, when Hetty ran over to survey with her big, pitying eyes—eyes much more beautiful than the sparkle in the ears—the scene of ruin, where the burglars had left their matches and eaten their cold cakes and coffee—"what do I care for jewels? They might have taken the children. Oh, Hetty, how thankful I am they didn't take the children!"

"As if," said Hetty to her own husband afterward, "any burglar under heaven would want those horrid Templeton children, the worst imps every born of hysterics and temper! Now if it had been our children, Louis—"

"I think you had better tell her, though, that your diamonds are only Alaska, crystals," said Louis. "Pretty bits of glass, but only genuine glass, that Uncle Roberts sent for mischief."

"Well, I don't know but I will. But I thing I'll lend them to her to wear to church on Easter first, for I do want Clara Bowman to win her earrings—they'll be the only genuine diamonds among us all. And she brought him money enough for Mr. Bowman to afford her whatever she wants; and I heard her lay the wager with him myself that Mrs. Templeton would wear a pair of solitaires to church on Easter."

THE CURATE'S COAT.

When the Rev. Arthur Leslie entered on the curacy of Bransley, that prettiest of villages was much exercised in its mind as to which extreme his "views" might lead.

And it found that Mr. Leslie had no views at all beyond those of doing his appointed work in a most simple, earnest and quiet fashion, as of a man who could never work hard enough.

Socially, the curate was not, at first, generally popular. He had a manner almost shy and repellant, and seemed to have very little to say.

The great man of Bransley was the 'squire—Mr. Meldon, of the Grange His estate was a moderate one of size, but rich in soil and splendid timber.

Miss Meldon was a handsome girl, with violet eyes, luxuriant golden hair, a sunny temper and a passionate fondness of out-door exercise.

She certainly had a dislike for those of her sex who cluster around curates, and she was too candid to pretend in many schemes propounded under their auspices.

Once or twice she had met Arthur Leslie at her father's table, and the superb young beauty had dismissed him from her mind, after noting that he seemed a shy, awkward man, plain of features, but with strongly expressive dark eyes.

He, on his part, had taken little notice of the girl, except once to glance somewhat critically at her as he heard her pronounce some of her eccentric theories to Gerald Warald Warley, her cousin and fiancé, a handsome, insouciant and slightly supercilious man, who held a sinecure government post, which gave him a good income and unlimited time for London society and rural recreation, chief of which was hunting, a point of similarity between them, which had much to do in making Flory promise to link her future with his.

Flora was very fond of her cousin; he had many graceful and manly accomplishments, and a good deal of fascination in his manner; and he, on his part, loved his pretty cousin—next to himself. Their engagement met with universal family approval.

The curate, glancing at the pair on the occasion mentioned, was struck by the thought that, dowered as both were with nature's gifts, the woman was infinitely the nobler of the two.

"Though," he murmured to himself, walking homeward, "she is by no means what a helpmate should be, as far as I can judge, but what have I to do with such speculation?" he continued, half sadly.

Yet, nevertheless, it was no less sad than true the Rev. Arthur Leslie began to find the vision of that beautiful, mobile face continually coming before his mind at odd seasons. He sternly reprobated himself and immersed himself more than ever with all his devotion and gentle zeal in his daily work, and by the strength of his trained will succeeded, in great measure, in banishing the fancies in which Flora Meldon played so important a part; but the truth was, the poor curate was under the restless spell which dominates humanity's strength.

He was in love.

He was shocked when this fact was forced upon his mind.

"In love," he groaned at night, when sitting up to the small hours in his humble lodgings at Mrs. Tibb's, the widow, who adored him for his manifold kindness, he wrestled with his aching heart. "In love, and with another man's betrothed! And, as if that were not bad enough, with a brilliant beauty, who is a gilded princess in her own sphere, and has no notion, I suppose, that the ugly, shabby curate could venture to think twice about her. Oh, shame, shame! Well, it must be bidden and fought down forever. My work! that ought to fill my soul and heart;" and his stern face was set into marble calm.

So, never one of those around him guessing his secret, Leslie went about his duty tenderly and assiduously as of yore, unconscious as ever of his self-abnegation and true humility. No difference was seen in his manner, save that on one pretext or another, he refused all invitations to the squire's much to the latter's discontent, for the curate's love and botany and other enthralling things were great as his own.

Flora hardly noticed his absence. If there was any man whom she really admired, it was her handsome, travelled, accomplished cousin. Content in his society, she bestowed no thought on any one else.

It chanced one day that the pair, cantering up a green lane—Flora flushed and radiant, Gerald bronzed and bearded, matching his bay hunter in thoroughbred aspect—met the curate walking in the midst of a throng of happy boys, with whom he had been playing cricket. His eyes darkened with irrepressible pain, and a shadow swept over his face as he raised his hat.

Flora Meldon saw the look, momentary as it was, and pitied the curate as having some secret sorrow, but not being so conscious of her own charms as some of her own compeers, who hated her "fast ways," as they called her love for horses and dogs, she did not attribute the look to the right cause But it haunted her memory.

Mrs. Tibb entered with the curate's frugal supper. She cast a sympathetic glance at the weary face, as he stood at the window looking into the summer twilight.

"Mr. Dalton, sir, called and told me to remind you of the meeting to-morrow night," she said.

Leslie remembered. Yes, it was a parish meeting, yearly held, at which he had to preside, and which was well attended

"I s'pose, sir," Mrs. Tibb continued, hesitating at looking at the rusty old coat, which was the curate's every day wear, "I'd better send your best coat down to Tracket in the morning for him to repair; the sleeve's ripped where you caught it getting honeysuckles for May—wilful little thing."

"My coat sleeve," said Leslie, coming with a start out of his sad reveries. "Yes, certainly, Mrs Tibb. You can take away the tray; I'm not hungry, and I'm rather tired."

"Dear heart, sir, but you don't eat near enough, and no wonder if you are tired, seeing all you do," murmured the sympathizing Mrs. Tibb, as she reluctantly removed the tray.

"I don't do half enough," said the curate, when alone. "If I did more, perhaps I should eradicate this wicked folly. I wonder," he added, abruptly, "if he really knows the splendid qualities hidden in her being. But, mea maxima culpa;" and he resolutely turned to his examination papers, writing on until long after the church clock chimed midnight.

The morning came with a cool breeze rustling through the myriad old-fashioned village flowers. The curate, after a broken night, and an apology for a breakfast—he was always careless about food—and went off. Mrs. Tibb cleared the table, sighing over her lodger's small appetite, and Jimmy, her eldest hope, was sent with the best coat to Thacket, the tailor, who, as usual, had gone off with some boon companions for the day and would not be fit to return to pull his own coat off, much less to mend anyone else's.

Mrs. Tibb sat down and lamented; there was the meeting in the evening, with numerous critical and foreign (to Bransley) attendants, and it was an absolute necessity for the credit of the cloth and parish that the clergyman should have a good coat on. She couldn't mend it. She "was allers a botch."

Mrs. Tibb felt distracted, and was contemplating the coat despairingly, when a silvery voice called her, and starting up she saw the squire's beautiful daughter, holding a little basket.

"Here, Mrs Tibb," said she, "are the eggs I promised you from my Hapsburgs. Put them under your dorking hen, and you'll have a brood that will lay all the year round, and then poor Mr. Leslie—I know he's out, for I saw him cross the meadows—can have new laid eggs every morning."

Mrs. Tibb was profuse in thanks, bemoaned the curate's poor appetite, told Miss Meldon two or three instances of his simple heroism and unpretending charity, which made the young lady look at her with serious eyes, as one hearing unsuspected truths, and then explained her present perplexity about the coat.

"I will help you, Mrs. Tibb," smiled Flora; "though people don't know it, I can draw fine and repair wonderfully. Give me the coat," and the young lady, seating herself in Mrs. Tibb's old-fashioned arm-chair, made a charming picture as she deftly repaired the damaged sleeve, Mrs. Tibb standing by in open-mouthed wonder.

"There," said Flora, as she gave it back. "I'm proud of my work. Mind you don't tell who did it," she added, with a faint blush; and Mrs. Tibb vowed she wouldn't, as she courtesied that young lady out of the cottage.

Of course she did, within half an hour and to the very last man she should have done so. Gerald Warley, coming in with botanical specimens which the squire asked him to leave, found Mrs. Tibb in ecstasies over the curate's coat, and she, thinking Flora's praises could not be too loudly sounded, told her visitor.

His face was immobile while in her presence, but as he went down the garden to the road he frowned savagely. To his shallow and conventional nature this act of Flora's was a dire offense—"setting all the fools' tongues wagging," he said, viciously, cutting at the hedges with his stick, and then, turning a corner, he came on his fiancee, and, notwithstanding her charming completeness, told her his mind in a tone and manner quite new to the high-spirited girl, who at first opened her eyes in quiet astonishment, and then, resenting the authoritative manner, and seeing with a clearness of perception inherent in her, how artificial was the nature she had deemed so genuine, retorted proudly on him, and at last, taking off her ring, gave it to him, at the same time cancelling their engagement.

Mr. Warley lost his usual composure and ravel. Ultimately this struck him as ridiculous in a public road, and he sulkily followed Flora to the house, where she had told everything to her father, who, of course, yielded to his petted daughter, sympathized with his nephew, but agreed that the best thing he could do was to return to London, which he did. Flora, unseen, saw him go, and thought of—the coat.

Meanwhile the curate had returned, and heard the story from Mrs. Tibb. His color changed and he stood looking at the rent which Flora's deft hand repaired as if he could read a story there. Suddenly he threw down the coat with a murmur of self-reproach, and tried to forget it. But it was a hard task, and the meeting that night had a very inefficient chair—much to the village astonishment, and their rival neighbor's secret exultation.

But the summer days went on, and Arthur Leslie went about his parish the same kind and tender pastor, gentle, strong and clear of judgment. But the strain told on him. Now and then, with a joy he could not hide, guilty as he felt it, he saw the beautiful girl whom he was doomed to madly love.

The ecstasy of seeing her and hearing her voice only aggravated to so stern a judge as himself, his wrong. Departure was the only remedy. With wrenching pain this he resolved on, and told the squire, not giving his reasons.

The next day he saw Flora in the village, and each flushed crimson on seeing the other. Then the girl, like all her sex, growing composed first, asked him why, as all were sorry to hear, he was going to resign his curacy

"I will tell you," he said, very pale "Such wrong deserves plain speaking I have been mad enough to love you; you, engaged to another man."

There was silence. At last, looking up, Leslie saw her face suffused by a charming blush, and a shy, happy light in her eye.

"But I'm not engaged," she murmured, very low.

The sagacious reader can guess the explanations and arrangements which followed, and that the curate—soon a rector—ever had an affection for that happy coat.

CAN'T STOP A MINUTE.

Recently Mr. Sarsaper told his wife one morning that he had got about tired of buttering his bread with a spoon, and that day he sent home a refrigerator. It was a beauty, and he felt proud of it. So much so that he had a good deal to say about it at the store.

"I suppose you have to put ice in it, don't you?" said one of the clerks.

"Certainly," said Mr. Sarsaper; "but then it takes very little. It's an improvement on all others ever made. Full of little boxes and all sorts of things. Keeps everything separate—meat, vegetables, milk and so on—without any mixing up It makes hot weather so much more comfortable, Bob, to pull up to the table, and find everything nice, cool and crisp, instead of limp, sour and slushy. We wouldn't be without it again for any money. I wish you'd run in and look at it, Bob, the first time you're going by. It's a curiosity, and I know you'll get one as soon as you see it. Don't you bother about ceremony—run in at any time."

About two o'clock one morning Mr. Sarsaper was awakened out of his slumber, that always keeps company with an easy conscience, by his wife poking him in the ribs, and calling on him to hustle out, and see what the matter was. The door-bell was jingling like all possessed.

Mr. Sarsaper crawled out of bed, and, after banging his nose on the door-post until the blood started, giving himself a black eye against the corner of the mantle, and falling down over pretty much every thing in the room, he finally made his way to the front part of the house, threw up a window, and peered out into the wet and murky gloom.

"Who's there?" he demanded, looking down at the top of an umbrella.

"Me?" came in a thick voice from the under side of it.

"Who's me?"

"Bob."

"Oh! it's you, is it? What's the matter, Bob? anybody sick?"

"Oh, no. You see I've been out to Solanusville with some of the boys to help institute a lodge, and I'm just getting back. I happened to think about that refrigerator of yours as I was going by, and so I thought I'd stop in and see it, without ceremony, as you said. Come down and let me in. I'm in a hurry to get home, and can't stop but a minute."

Mr. Sarsaper said something that would bend the types double if we should undertake to print it, and slammed down the window. He remarked to Bob the next day that for downright coolness his refrigerator was a bake-oven compared to the prank practiced on him.

NEWSPAPER BORROWERS.

An exchange recently published a letter from a lady subscriber, in which she complained bitterly of the annoyance she experienced from the habit her female neighbors had of constantly borrowing her papers. The exchange offers the suffering lady, and all others similarly situated, an adequate means of succor. Here is the plan: Let the lady, immediately upon receiving the paper, carefully cut from it some item—most any item will do, only let it be neatly and carefully removed from the paper. Then the following procedure will be sure to ensue: In a few moments the neighbor's boy will come after the paper—he will take it home—within three minutes he will emerge from the house and scoot down the street and very often return with a folded newspaper of the same date as the one just borrowed. By the time the clipped paper has circled around among the female borrower, the streets will be lively with hurrying boys, and the revenue of the newspaper will be materially increased. Not one woman among them all would be able to sleep a wink without knowing just exactly what that cut-out item was. The next day the lady must pursue the same course, and similar results will surely follow. In an extremely obstinate neighborhood these proceedings have to be repeated three or four days, but no longer. By that time the lady will be able to read her paper in peace, and the newspaper's finances will be the gainer through several new subscribers. This rule is infallible where the borrowers are females, but it can't be vouched for in the case of men. There isn't that inherent curiosity to work upon, you know, and—and—but perhaps we are getting a little too deep.

HE FINALLY BELIEVED.

Vieuxtemps, the celebrated violinist, used to tell a strange story of his experience in London. One day, he said, he was crossing London Bridge, when a poor wretch jumped into the water. There was at once a cry.

"I'll bet he drowns."

"Two to one he doesn't."

"Done."

In the meantime Vieuxtemps hastened to get a boatman, and sped to the assistance of the drowning man. Just as they were about to reach him, there was a rose from the bridge:

"Leave him alone. There is a wager on it."

The boatman immediately lay on his oar, and refused to lend a hand. Vieuxtemps was forced to see the man drown before his eyes. He told the story so often that he finally believed it.

This is all very fine in theory, but after a young man has bought furniture, dishes, etc., and does his own housework for a while, he will get over "clubbing together." He will feel more like wandering off to some secluded spot and clubbing himself all alone.

The services of Doctors Hamilton, Agnew and Bliss are valued, as medical attendants upon the late President, at $25,000, and it is thought that Congress will pay the bill.

President Arthur on Monday last sent to the U. S. Senate the nomination of ex-Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, to be Secretary of State. The Senate confirmed the nomination unanimously.

Assemblyman William Schomp, of Somerset, is spoken of in connection with the Democratic Speakership of the House. Mr. Schomp showed good executive ability during his first term of office last winter.

Secretary Lincoln wants the army increased. Honest and honorable treatment of the Indians would safely lessen the present enormous military expenditures. There is no proper reason why they should be enlarged.

Charles Broemmer, Republican Assemblyman-elect from the Eighth District of this State, died at Newark on Monday evening last. This makes the House of Assembly stand politically, Democrats, 30; Republicans, 28; Independent, 1.

It has been suggested, says the Newark Advertiser, that the election law be amended so as to provide for the appointment of the inspectors and clerks by the councils or town committees, instead of the present plan of election. It is believed that a better class of men could thus be selected.

The trial of that miserable assassin Guiteau is voted by the people generally to be an intolerable nuisance. The fellow shot and killed President Garfield and ought to pay the murder penalty without any unnecessary delay. As the District Attorney well remarked—"what the defense calls insanity is nothing more than devilish depravity."

The Half-Breeds feel very sore over their defeat in Congress. They urged the election of Mr. Hiscock, of New York, for Speaker of the House, but the Stalwarts, pushed on by Arthur, Conkling and Grant, floored them and placed Mr. Keifer, of Ohio, in the chair. The bitterness of Stalwartism is destined to crop out in more ways than one. Revenge they say is sweet.

The crop of criminals who "did it because something crossed their minds," is wonderfully on the increase in this country. "Guiteauism" is the name of the malady. This affliction will probably continue to develop itself until Guiteau's coat-tail flutters a final adieu to this wide and wicked world, in his final earthly act of gracefully sliding into the unknown subsequently.

The Republican party has been in ruling power at Washington for over twenty years, and annually its Presidents have fulminated edicts against Mormonism, but never ventured to do more than write and talk. As far back as 1856 Slavery and Polygamy were declared to be "twin relics of barbarism." One is dead and buried, why is the other twin allowed to live and grow fat?

At Morristown, Dec. 8, a fire was discovered in a boarding house on South street, opposite St. Peter's church. Five persons were rescued from the windows, one jumping on Dr. Stephen Pierson and breaking his leg in two places. Two persons, Mrs. Anna Walsh, one of the boarders, and Lizzie Keech, a servant, were burned to death. Many of the boarders escaped with only their night clothing, and lost everything beside.

Ladies' big fur hats will undoubtedly "take a tumble" when it becomes generally known that recently a young gentleman-millionaire entered a theatre and dropped into a seat, and observed a young lady in front of him wearing a very small sized hat. Such an exhibition of good, sound, common sense in a public assembly, was too much for the young man, for he sought and obtained an introduction to her (she was poor, of course,) and made her his wife.

There is a door-keeper in the Senate of the United States, named Isaac Bassett, who has been in its service fifty years, having entered as page through the influence of Daniel Webster. How many great men the old gentleman has seen passing to and from Senatorial seats; and, truth bids us add, also what a legion of small ones? Clay, Calhoun and Webster are gone, Cameron, Mahone and Miller fill their places. Shades of the mighty! Let the curtain drop!

The funeral of the late John W. Forney, editor of the Progress and one of the most admired public men of the country, took place from his former residence in Philadelphia at one o'clock p. m., of Monday. For several hours a line of men, women and children, representing many classes of society, entered the house and viewed the remains. Many prominent citizens were present, including Generals Hancock, Sickles and Ruff, ex-Speaker Randall, Mayor King and other city officials, George W. Childs, John Russell Young, A. K. McClure and many other well-known journalists. All the pall-bearers selected were present. The interment took place in West Laurel Hill Cemetery.

An appalling disaster is reported from Vienna. A fire broke out in the Ring Theatre, in that city, on Thursday evening of last week, just as the curtain ascended on the opera. There were upward of 2,000 persons in the audience, and when the flames burst out around the stage, on which there were 200 performers, a tremendous rush was made from all parts of the house in order to escape. Many of the panic-stricken people leaped from the windows, while the shouts and shrieks of those who were unable to make their escape were heart-rending. During the greatest excitement the gas-meter, connected with the theatre, exploded, thereby causing total darkness. At midnight 300 dead bodies had been recovered and several hundred more were yet left in the building, which was still wrapt in flames. It is estimated that the loss of life is upward of 1,000.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

[illegible]

Very respectfully,
L. V. F. RANDOLPH,
Mayor.

Plainfield, Dec. 12, 1881.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH, Esq.

[illegible]

I beg pardon for this long letter, which, I fear, is quite unnecessary, and remain

Very truly yours,
CORTLANDT PARKER.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 8, 1881.

On motion, com'n filed, and claim ref'd to Law & Ord. Com.

By Mr. Gilbert, from Alms Com., as correct, claims of Ann Flynn, $6; A. M. Runyon, $7; Peter Langenbein, $6; W. C. Ayres, [illegible], 2 claims, $[illegible]. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

By Mr. Smith, as correct from Aud. Com., claim of Runyon & Leonard, $[illegible]; W. L. Force & Bro., $[illegible]. On motion, warrants ordered drawn. All aye.

By Mr. Waring, as correct from Fire, Water & Lamp Com., claim of Plainfield Gaslight Co., two claims, $[illegible]; N. Y. & N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., $[illegible]; D. W. Littell, [illegible]. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

By Mr. Hamilton, correct from Police Com., the special police claims presented this evening. Ref. to Aud. Com.

On motion, the rules were suspended in order that Mr. A. H. Smith present claims as correct from Com. on Salaries, Offices & Elections, he being only one of the Com. present. The claims of J. B. Cutter, $77.11, and T. H. Drake, $45, were then presented, and on motion, ref'd to Aud. Com.

By Mr. Tracy, from St. Com., as correct, claim of Jer'h A. Thickstun, $[illegible]. Ref'd to Aud. Com.

By Mr. Tracy, a res. that the newly-elected Collector and Treasurer, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, shall give bonds to the amount of $[illegible] each, with two freehold securities for the faithful performance of their respective offices. Seconded.

Mr. Smith thought that that was a matter for the next Council's consideration.

Mr. Gilbert was of the same opinion.

Mr. Tracy thought that it was the duty of this Council to fix the bonds, according to the charter as he understood it.

Pres. Whiton called to the chair Mr. H. Smith, and took the floor, and stated, as his opinion, that the resolution was a proper one to pass. He said that heretofore the attention of Councils relative to this matter, had not been promptly acted upon as the charter directs. He thought the resolution was timely, and should be adopted.

After further consideration in the premises, the resolution was adopted. Messrs. Gilbert and A. H. Smith voting in the negative.

At this juncture, on motion, a recess of ten minutes was granted to allow the Law & Ord. Com. to consult as to the Ord. relative to the duties of City Treasurer ref'd to Com. at last meeting of Council.

At the expiration of the ten minutes, Council was called to order, and on motion, the rules were suspended, and the Law & Ord. Com. presented another Ord. in place of the one referred to them at last meeting. Ord. read 1st time. On motion, read 2d time by sections, and after further amendments, was again read as a whole for the 2d reading and on motion, ordered engrossed and to a 3d reading. All aye, except Mr. A. H. Smith, who voted in the negative.

By Mr. Gilbert, a res. that the City Judge please inform the Council why he has not issued his warrant for the collection of City, Poor and School taxes for the year 1881, as directed per resolution of Council adopted Sept. 28, 1881, and report at next meeting of Council; and that the City Clerk notify the City Judge of the Council's action this evening. Adopted.

At this juncture, Mr. Gilbert arose and made a few feeling remarks relative to the death of Dr. C. H. Stillman, and moved that a Special Com. of three be appointed to draft suitable resolutions of respect. Adopted.

The Pres., after remarks upon the death of Dr. C. H. Stillman, announced as committee, Messrs. H. Smith, Waring and A. D. Smith.

Mr. Gilbert moved that when Council adjourns it adjourn to meet one week from to-night. Carried.

On motion, Council then adjourned.

Warden Crocker, of Washington, has received recently a number of anonymous letters advising him to remove the prisoners from the wing of the jail in which Guiteau is confined, so that in the event of a dynamite explosion no lives except that of Guiteau will be endangered.

CLOTHIERS!
NEW GLASS FRONT STORE,
797 Broad St.,
NEWARK, N. J
We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.
We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.
We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to-day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.
Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Bernard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments.

THE Council meets again on Monday evening next.

CHRISTMAS nine days off and no frost in the ground.

ONE year ago, ice in this vicinity was nine inches thick.

TUESDAY'S weather brought out many symptoms and some attacks of "Spring fever."

THERE are at present three patients under treatment at the Muhlenberg Hospital.

WE are to have an earlier morning paper train, but still suffer from a late arrival of mail matter.

PARK avenue on Tuesday received the efficient cleaning that had been so long and so fervently desired.

A SERIES of Revival meetings are being held at the Methodist Church at Dunellen, which are well attended each evening.

THE citizens of North Plainfield justly object to prize fights occurring and houses of ill-fame existing within its limits.

LOVERS of game in its season will always find the same fresh and at fair prices at Garretson's Meat Market on Park avenue.

"THERE is some talk of increasing the Fire Department of Plainfield"—New Brunswick Fredonian.

All a mistake, my dear. We've got all we can attend to now in that line.

THE "Jolly 2" will give one of their unequalled balls, on Wednesday evening the 28th inst., at Laing's Hall. The celebrated Goodwill Band of New Brunswick, will furnish the dance music.

MR. C. K. Halsey, Republican, was elected Councilman in the Democratic Eighth Ward of Elizabeth on Tuesday last at a special election held to fill vacancy caused by death of Councilman R. J. Ryan.

SCORES of people visit THE CONSTITUTIONALIST establishment weekly to witness the printing presses at work by steam power. Visitors are always welcome to an examination to our establishment.

WORKMEN have improved the exterior looks of the building corner of Park and North avenues, occupied by Rockfellow, the grocer, by an application of two coats of paint. Mr. W. F. Adams is the contractor.

THE political agitation at present is, whether the vacancy caused by the declination of Councilman-elect Clarkson, will be filled by a Democrat, (as is just) or a Republican, of license or anti-license tendencies.

ON Saturday evening at the Clerk's office, most of the newly elected city officers were sworn in as well as the incoming Council with the exception of Mr. Wm. B. Clarkson, who has sent in his declination.

THE small boy is anxious to know whether there will be skating on Christmas. The merry ice-man cares not. He hath enough of last year's crop left over to furnish his customers next summer—at advanced prices.

PARTIES desiring designs and wood engravings made of public buildings or anything else, for advertising or other purposes, are recommended to address C. E. Harris, corner of Fifth and division streets, Plainfield, or call at this office.

MANY are the comments among our State exchanges on the recent city election result in Republican Plainfield, the majority representing that it came about by too much Stalwart (?) journalism (!) Guess that did help it along some. May it continue.

IT is rumored that Gazelle Engine Co., is the next organization that contemplates afflicting the Board of Managers of the Fire Department with charges against the same member of a Hose Co., now accused with refusing the use of hose at a fire, and for the same reason.

ON Thursday evening, Jan. 12th, Gazelle Hose Co., will give its Second Annual ball at VanDeventer Hall. A first-class time is promised, as the affair will be in the hands of competent managers. Seats in the gallery will be reserved for spectators, without extra charge.

A SENSIBLE and proper move is the effort of one our great railroad corporations to change the word "depot" to station. It is annoying to hear people say "da-po," "depo", "deep oh," "deppo," "depowe," "d'pow," when they mean a railroad station, and the latter word should be generally used.

THE Elizabeth Journal reads the Republicans of Plainfield a lecture, advising them to stop quarreling and be good children hereafter, or else that dreaded opponent—Democracy, may gain a still further foothold here. All very nice, but oil and water won't mix, neither will Stalwarts and Half Breeds agree together.

NOT having the necessary space in our paper to give our customary individual notice to each advertiser of Holiday goods as has heretofore been our custom, we would suggest to each reader that they carefully scan our advertising columns for proper places to purchase their holiday gifts. The merchant who advertises liberally is sure to deal liberally with his or her customers.

MESSRS. Shepherd, Johnson & Godown are erecting a commodious building on the site of their carpentering shop that was recently consumed by fire in North Plainfield. They have also received a boiler and engine that is to be placed in their new quarters, and hereafter will have the assistance of steam power to secure an increased rapidity of execution of their extensive contracts.

THE Seventh Annual Meeting of the New Jersey Sanitary Association, will be held at Rutger's College Chapel in New Brunswick on Monday and Tuesday next. Reports will be made by the Committees on the propriety of using streams and rivers for sewage, the Committee on Sanitary Organizations in townships and villages the Committee on small-pox and vaccination, and others.

THE members-elect of the Plainfield Common Council, met at the residence of the Mayor Tuesday evening for consultation as to a future line of policy to be adopted in consideration of the city's interests financially and otherwise. All were present excepting Messrs. Clarkson and Simpson, but no decided action was forecast. A mutual discussion of views was indulged in and social acquaintance formed.

IN spite of the fact that so many of our citizens are aspirants for the office of Postmaster in Plainfield—with more or less influence and reason—the "powers that be" at Washington, have not as yet appointed the fortunate individual. It is the only expired office in the State unfilled, and it now seems as if Postmaster Vail would "hold over" until next year. Why not hold an election, to determine who shall be the lucky man?

THE lecture by the Rev. S. P. Henson, delivered in the M. E. Church on Tuesday evening of last week, was the third of the Y. M. C. A. Course of entertainments. The dissertation was upon Money, and the speaker succeeded in getting out of the subject considerable that was amusing if little that was substantial. The inimitable Gough will lecture on Temperance, on the evening of the 26th inst., at the same place and under the same management.

A THIN coating of ice covered Tier's Lake on Monday morning. Mr. Tier finds the same trouble prevailing this year as of old, that of mischievous and malicious persons throwing sticks and stones on the ice, which seriously interferes with the machines used in gathering the ice crop when it comes to maturity. He therefore announces that he shall certainly prosecute to the fullest extent of the law any person caught in this violation of a city ordinance.

THE custom of making presents is one of the most delightful in connection with the Christmas season. No matter how trifling the gift may be, it brings pleasure to the friend who knows that it represents a wealth of affection. The custom should be encouraged on that account, and even the little folks might be taught to exchange among themselves reminders of one another's regard. Reference to our advertising columns will inform you where to purchase your gifts.

SANTA CLAUS will soon be around and of course will select his place to purchase his stock of pure candies for presents to his friends. FOOTE, the Park avenue Confectioner, advertises in this issue that he has the purest candies in the market. Of course, Santa Claus, having the welfare of his little friends at hand will see that all purchases are made there. Mr. Foote certainly has a large and varied assortment of all kinds of candies of his own manufacture at fair prices.

THE vacancy in the office of ticket agent at the Plainfield station of the C. R. R., was filled after the death of Mr. John Gibson, by Mr. Wm. A. Freeman in a manner most acceptable to the public and the railroad company. The latter gentleman, however, having since accepted a more lucrative situation elsewhere, Mr. Barton J. Kline, who for the past three years has occupied the position of clerk at our post-office so efficiently and courteously, now acts in his place.

THE Christmas celebration of the Grace Church Sunday School, will take place on Wednesday, the 28th inst, (Holy Innocent's Day) at half-past seven o'clock p. m.

THE second of the Y. M. C. A., addresses by local speakers, will be given on Tuesday evening of next week. The Rev. Dr. Yerkes will discuss "Oriental Life."

BY special request Rev. E. P. Ketcham will preach in the First Baptist church on Sunday evening next, on Temperance and our present duty as citizens in the cause.

A COLORED minstrel troupe that appeared at VanDeventer Hall on Wednesday evening, attracted an audience of less than fifty. All on account of a lack of advertising.

MESSRS Hezekiah Hand and Lewis Coles left this city yesterday afternoon for San Domingo, where they will fill positions secured for them by ex-Councilman Lithgow.

THE very critical condition of the health of our worthy citizen and ex-Mayor, Job Male, is reported. Inflammation of the bowels is threatened and a dangerous illness feared.

GEORGE BROKAW, the colored man who cut Wm. Mayhew, of this city, across the hand with a razor at a ball held in Bound Brook, two weeks since, was subsequently arrested by detective Manning Crow and lodged in Somerville jail. Mayhew's wound has healed up.

A MAN by the name of Sulter, who was picking lump coal along the railroad track near Evona, on Tuesday afternoon, was run over by a loaded train of coal cars of which he failed to notice the approach. The unfortunate man was terribly mangled and died at once.

THE Rev. Mr. Hood, who spoke for the cause of his race at the Crescent avenue Presbyterian and Trinity Reformed churches on Sunday, proved by himself how much that was intellectual and eloquent in the colored people could be brought out by the benefits of education.

GOV. Ludlow has appointed Tuesday, Jan. 3, 1882, as a day for the special election to fill vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman Chas. G. Breummer, of the Sixth District of Essex County. Mr. Breummer's successor will therefore be able to take part in the organization of the House on the 10th.

THE most desirable, useful and ornamental of holiday presents are those offered at exceeding low prices by Dunham & Miller, the druggists of No. 10 East Front street. Elegant cut-glass toilet and perfumery bottles in handsome satin-lined cases, and many other beautiful articles may be found at that establishment.

WITH this issue of our paper we deliver gratuitously among our subscribers THE CONSTITUTIONALIST Almanac for 1882, a pamphlet which is not only a work of art full of statistical information and chronological events, but contains the advertisements of such of our city's merchants as undoubtedly deserve the patronage of the public.

CANDIDATES for the office of City Clerk are sprouting up all over, but the efficiency of the present occupant of that office in the past, demands for him a re-appointment. Mr. O. B. Leonard has become so thoroughly acquainted with the duties of the office and has proven himself so capable, that a change would undoubtedly be for the worse.

A "COURSE of Health Talks" for young men exclusively, have been arranged by the Y. M. C. A., and will be given in Association Hall on the evenings of Feb. 16th, March 16th and 23d and April 11th. The first was last (Thursday) evening by T. H. Tomlinson, M. D., on "Physical Degeneracy," and the most talented of the medical profession in this city have been secured to deliver the future discourses.

IT is authentically stated that Fairchild, the furniture dealer of Front street just above Park avenue, will remove about April 1st to one of the new and commodious store rooms in the new brick building now being erected by P. M. French on Somerset street, opposite French Bros. mills, and that Mr. W. L. Gavett, the crockery merchant of Park avenue, will occupy the adjoining store in the same building. The location is a desirable one.

EVERYBODY just now is on the qui vive as to what to purchase for a suitable Christmas present and where to get it. From the elegant displays made in these goods in our own city, it seems needless to go to New York for it, that is certain. A hint to those who have not yet found the happy place, perhaps would not be out of order. Have you seen the beautiful exhibition at Edsall & Prices'? Popular opinion seems to prevail that this is the desired happy spot, and we heartily join in the chorus.

THE Elizabeth papers speak in high praise of the elegant display of Holiday goods displayed at L. A. Dunn & Bro's mammoth stationery and fancy goods store, No. 112 Broad street, that city, which is crowded day and night with purchasers. An attraction to the passer by is a life-size representation of Cleopatra, displayed in one of the show windows, which breathes and moves apparently as naturally as a living person. Those of our citizens who go out of town for their purchases for the Holidays, can do no better than to call on Dunn Bros. Their advertisement appears in another column.

There are two or three vacancies in the Board of Managers yet to be filled.

Charles H. Stillman—Deceased.

Hardly had our public schools recovered the loss they sustained by the demise of Principal John P. Gross, when as severe an affliction is laid upon them by the death of the author of their existence, Dr. Chas. H. Stillman, President of the Board of Education. After almost forty years of active connection with the rise and progress of free schools in Plainfield, Dr. Stillman on Sunday evening, between six and seven o'clock, breathed his last. Although experiencing more or less suffering for some months past, the death of the deceased was not expected by the public, and the news of the sad event was received with a greater shock by reason of its being unprepared for. Symptoms of a probable passing away, however, were recognized by those in attendance, and at the death bed were present the entire family of the deceased with the exception of the widow's brother. Rev. Dr. Burlingham, who arrived from New York but a short time after the sad occurrence. The mother and three sons, with the wives of the oldest two and the daughter, Mrs. J. K. Myers, comforted the last moments of the dying man, as well as his brother who had been summoned to the scene.

The deceased had almost concluded sixty-five years of a life devoted to the interests of the community and the generous assistance of fellow-beings. Unbounded love and admiration was accorded him by all acquainted with his uprightness of character, magnanimity of disposition, kindness of heart and nobleness of mind. One of the original founders of Plainfield, he was always prominently identified with such schemes as were for its great benefit and such projects as were for its best interests; not only in the direction of suggestion and advice, but often as the leader to a desired result. Competency was gained as the just reward of a devotion to the good of all, and honors declined were time and time again thrust forward as a gift to the deceased and a token of the community's appreciation of his worth. One term as Mayor is the only public official position Dr. Stillman has ever occupied with the exception of the Presidency of the Board of Education which he has filled for many years past—the length of its existence. The schools which the city—with so much reason—prides itself on, are among the evidences of the deceased's untiring efforts and gratuitous labors for the welfare of others. The inception and continuance of the system of education followed by our schools, are the result of his clear judgment and able supervision. And the Plainfield public schools to-day stand higher than any others of the State, an enviable monument to the memory of Dr. Charles H. Stillman.

The deceased was a member of the Seventh Day Baptist Church and conspicuous in all its good works. No one, consequently, was better able to express a personal knowledge of the heart and soul of the dead one than he who had been his spiritual adviser, the Rev. A. H. Lewis. That divine delivered a most affecting discourse at the funeral services at the deceased's late residence on Front street, Wednesday afternoon. A large attendance was there gathered, but no public building would have comfortably accommodated the many desirous of being present. The schools were closed for the day, the bell being tolled in memoriam during the morning, and the scholars allowed to view the remains at the house before the funeral, in order that too great a crowd should not be present at the services.

The Rev. Mr. Lewis was assisted by other of the city's ministers in the funeral ceremonies, at the close of which the remains were interred in the Seventh Day Baptist Cemetery. The pall-bearers were Messrs. James M. Taylor, Randolph M. Titsworth, Jacob Kirkner, John W. Murray, William White and Lewis V. F. Randolph.

The deceased's expressed wish was that there be no ostentatious display at his funeral, but that the same be conducted as privately and plainly as possible. In accordance with such expressed wish, the Common Council at its meeting last Monday evening resolved not to attend the funeral in a body as officials, and appointed a Committee of three, Messrs. H. N. Smith, A. H. Smith and T. Waring, to draft suitable resolutions of respect to be presented at next meeting of Council.

At a meeting of the Board of Education held Monday evening, the same course was resolved on, and Messrs. J. W. Murray and Judge Nathan Harper appointed a Committee to draft similar resolutions.

A special meeting of the Medical Board of Muhlenberg Hospital was held Dec. 12th, and the following preamble and resolutions passed:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove by death our brother practitioner and associate counsellor of Muhlenberg Hospital Dr. Charles H. Stillman, in the fullness of years and honors; therefore be it

Resolved, That we deeply deplore his loss and respectfully offer our earnest sympathy to the family in their sorrow and affliction, and be it further

Resolved, That in the death of Dr. Charles H. Stillman, the city of Plainfield has lost one of her most zealous workers in the public interests, and the medical profession one of its oldest and most respected members; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the family and published in the public prints.

DR. CHAS. A. HART,
Prest. Medical Board Muhlenberg Hospital.
DR. T. H. TOMLINSON,
DR. GEO. W. ENDICOTT,
Committee.

Postal Cards.

The postmaster General has issued an order to take effect January 1st, revoking sections 171 of the postal regulations, which provides for the redemption of postal cards that may be spoiled while in the hands of private parties by printing or otherwise. After the date named, postmasters must not redeem postal cards under any circumstances whatever.

New Jersey and the Bible Society.

The following figures from the Bible Society Record exhibit what New Jersey did for the American Bible Society in the month of October: From legacies—Alice S. White of Camden, $100; from church collections—Livingston Methodist Episcopal, $4.50; from Cape May County Auxiliary Society, $40; from auxiliary societies, from receipts from sales—Somerset County $50; Union County, $275. Total, $469.50.

Children's Home Fair.

The Annual Fair for the benefit of the Children's Home Association, which has been held in the Sunday school rooms of the M. E. church for the past three days, far surpassed in every particular feature like occasions of the past. The generosity of friends resulted in a display of beautiful goods calculated to attract extensive receipts, and in spite of bad weather great financial success was undoubtedly achieved. Music by DeBena's String Band of New York added to the entertainment of the patrons.

Interesting Services.

Next Sabbath will be observed as Missionary Day in the M. E. Church. Arrangements are in progress to make it a day long to be remembered. A sermon will be preached in the morning by the well known and greatly esteemed Recording Secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. J. A. Fitzgerald. In the afternoon, the Sabbath School will have special service consisting of singing, recitations and offerings, while at night, the exercises will consist of readings, addresses and singing. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Stalwart Waterloo in Plainfield.

Plainfield's charter election occurred on Tuesday and the regular Republican ticket was almost entirely defeated—the successful candidates being Democrats and Independents. For the first time in the history of the county, Plainfield elects a Democratic Freeholder, in the person of Rowland M. Stover, Esq. Freeholder Randolph, who has fed and fatted at the county crib for many years, will have to seek new pastures, as he was elected by a large majority to stay at home. Plainfield has an apology for a newspaper, of the Monitor pattern, and which is Stalwart in politics. The Republican "smash up" is attributable mainly to the course of this sheet. The Democrats elected one of the Freeholders, City Collector and three Councilmen. The Independents elected the other Freeholder and two Councilmen. The regular Republicans elected the City Treasurer, Assessor, but one Councilman.—Elizabeth Herald.

Our contemporary, quoted above, is generally more accurate in its statistical records. For its information we would state, the Democrats elected four Councilmen, the Independents elected seven and the "regular Republicans" elected none. Of the other officers, the Democrats elected a Freeholder, City Collector, Commissioner of Appeal and Constable, and the other Freeholder, Treasurer and Assessor were re-elected.

The Week of Prayer.

The World's Evangelical Alliance has appointed the first week in January as the week of prayer, and following is the programme which is sent forth to the churches of the world:

Sunday January 1.—Subject for discourse, "Renewed Consecration."

Monday, January 2—Thanksgiving for the blessings, temporal and spiritual, of the past year, and prayer for their continuance.

Tuesday, January 3.—Humiliation and confession on account of individual, social and national sins.

Wednesday, January 4.—Prayer for the blessings of God on His Church and His Word.

Thursday, January 5.—Prayer for the young and all agencies for Christian training.

Friday, January 6.—Prayer for the universal prevalence of peace and righteousness.

Saturday, January 7.—Prayer for the Christian missions, the outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the conversion of the world.

Personalia.

Our thanks are extended Hon. Theo. F. Randolph for valuable public documents.

Mr. Percy C. Ohl, Fish Warden for Union County, we are glad to note, is so far improving in health as to be able once more to ride out.

Elisha Shepherd, Esq., of Bound Brook, started on Monday last via the Old Dominion line of steamers, for a week's shooting among the quail and other game of Virginia.

Trouble in the Morristown Fire Department.

Some time ago Chief Engineer Bossall of the Morristown fire department, preferred charges against Sidney W. Stalter, Foreman of Niagara Steamer, No. 2. At the meeting of the Common Council on Friday night of last week the consideration of these charges resulted in the dismissal of Foreman Stalter from the department. On the following night the members of his company resigned in a body and removed their furniture from the parlors of the house. For the present the steamer is in charge of a detail made by Chief Bossall from the members of Washington Steamer, No. 1.

Firemen against Firemen.

An audience of about two hundred firemen gathered in the Council Chamber on Tuesday night, to listen to a conflict of authority arising from the refusal of a member of a hose company to obey the request of the foreman of an engine company upon the occasion of a late fire. The plaintiff and defendant were both present, as were also ex-Judge Suydam who appeared as counsel for the former and Foreman Saltaman who was to look after the rights of his alleged offending subordinate. Justice Nodyne was also on hand to administer the oath to such witnesses as should be called upon to testify. At eight o'clock, however, only President Van Winkle and Secretary Gillies of the Board of Managers of the Fire Department had arrived, and after waiting some time longer for a quorum, an adjournment of one week was taken. The following is a copy of the charges under consideration:

PLAINFIELD, N. J. Oct. 21, 1881.

I, Wm. H. Harding, on this day charge Julius Scott with having maliciously and without cause refused to give me the use of the hose on carriage of Alert Hose Co., No. 1, on the night of Oct. 22d, 1881, thereby causing a delay of fifteen (15) minutes in getting water on fire at Shepherd, Johnson & Godown's carpenter shop, North Plainfield.

WM. H. HARDING.

Who is to Blame?

Although we do not aim to find fault with our neighbors over the brook or their guardians of the peace, yet it really seems as if the North Plainfield authorities are somewhat to blame for the existence of the objectionable resorts that have been established in that township and for the periodical affrays of various disorderly character that occur within its boundaries. On Thursday evening of last week a most disgraceful fight was allowed uninterrupted progress under the very nose (so to speak) of the North Plainfield authorities, and yet not an arrest has been made. The event and the time set, as well as the names of the principals and their backers, were known to many of our citizens for days before, but, so far as is apparent, no effort was made to prevent the disgraceful proceeding. What officers, if any, of the Township are to blame for so flagrant a negligence of duty? And who is responsible for the existence for years past of the disorderly house (lately duplicated by another of like characteristics) that boldly and publicly announces its offensive features almost under the very shadow of Washington Rock? We recognize how almost impossible it is for the Town Committee to secure the voluntary testimony of participants or eye-witnesses, the evidence of whom is necessary to legally convict; but let an effort be made before the proper courts to punish those knowingly offending, and then, even should the prosecution be unable to sustain its case, a certain amount of duty in the matter would be performed. We are thoroughly satisfied that the authorities of North Plainfield are as desirous as are the inhabitants to put a stop to the growing recognition of that Township as a "dumping ground" for such of this city's offenders as fear our more watchful care of the city's good order.

COMMUNICATED.

Greeting from an Old Friend.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Have just received news of the result of your late local Democratic victory. "Hoboken sends greeting." Let your rooster flap his wings and crow loud enough to be heard throughout the County, that the Democracy may catch the glowing theme and return a heavier and more solid vote at next election, than ever before honored the party in Union County. Yours in faith,

JOHN T. LEE.

New York, Dec. 8, 1881.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Ex Senator Joshua Doughty, of Somerville, died at his residence in that town on Saturday night last.

Mr. Theodore Adams has already started the foundation of a fine dwelling that he intends erecting for himself on the corner of Duer street and Linden avenue.

Collector VanNorstrand on Monday last, paid into the hands of County Collector Berry the entire amount of County taxes ($4,632.51) to be raised by the Township. This payment was made some days before due, and reflects great credit upon the efficiency of Mr. VanNorstrand as a collector. The final sale for taxes under an order of the township Committee was made on Friday, and so successful has this action been that over $1,700 of delinquencies are recovered—all being settled to avoid a sale with the exception of two or three mountain side-lots that the township came into possession of.

FIRE MATTERS.

Regular quarterly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Firemen's Relief Association was held at the house of Zephyr H. & L. Co., No. 1, on Monday evening, Dec. 12th. All the members of the Board and also Chief Vail were present. Secretary Cock asked privilege of retiring, which was granted, and A. L. Force was elected Secretary, pro tem. The amendment to section three, article 3d, presented at last meeting, was unanimously agreed to and ordered spread upon the minutes. The Chairman of the Relief Committee reported relief given to two applicants, in the sum of ten dollars each, one being a member of Steamer No. 1, and the other of Steamer No. 2. The action of the committee was approved and a further appropriation of $2.50 per week was voted the member from Steamer No. 2, until said member is able to help himself. An amendment to article 5, section 1st, was presented by Mr. Voorhees, and under the rule laid over until next regular meeting, providing for the monthly meeting of the Association, instead of quarterly as now in force. Adjourned to meet at the House of Steamer No. 1, in March, 1882, unless sooner called together by the Chairman.

Justice Jacques on Tuesday last issued a warrant upon the complaint of Sarah Farral against Jane Gillipsie for using threatening language toward her and calling her vile names.

One of our druggists, Dr. Wm. Cole, has the past week made considerable improvement in the internal arrangements of his store and has already commenced to lay in a large stock of Holiday goods, to suit both the young and old.

Our Collector reports the taxes being paid in as fast this year as they have been for several years past, and that he, no doubt, will be able before the time fixed by law to settle with the County Collector in full for State and County taxes.

William Stitt, who recently purchased the interest of Mr. L. H. Smalley in the Westfield Hotel property, has commenced to make improvements upon the same. He is laying new floors in the billiard rooms and also making an ante room out of a portion of one of them for an office and business room.

Postmaster Fred. Decker has been re-appointed to that position.

The Lecture by Rev. William Roberts of Elizabeth, advertised to take place on last Monday evening, was postponed to some future day, owing to the severe rain storm occurring on that evening. Due notice will be given of the date it is postponed to.

Hugh Todd, a former resident of our town, opened a new butcher shop on Saturday, Dec. 10th inst., on Broad street, in building adjoining Benjamin H. Woodruff. He has been in the butcher business for the past ten years in Pluckamin and North Branch, Somerset County.

Complaint has been made by several of our residents upon the outskirts of the village, about a person exposing himself indecently to the people in passing along the streets and to occupants of houses. This miscreant ought to be caught and treated to a coat of tar and feathers; the county jail is too good a place for him.

The subject the past week that has agitated the minds of the members of the male persuasion who are about the age of thirty-eight years, handsome, refined and generous, is who the person was that advertised in a prominent New York Daily, a week ago, over the signature of "Verita," for correspondence with a person of the above description with a view to matrimony.

A Mr. Genung, relative of John A. Smith of our village, is about starting a weekly newspaper to be called The Monitor. The first issue is to be published on Saturday next, Dec. 17th inst. He has already secured the rooms under Lyceum Hall, corner of Broad and Prospect streets, and put in type and presses. Mr. Genung hails from Madison, Morris County.

The Commissioners, Henry W. Richards, Jacob D. French and Aaron M. Parkhurst, who were appointed by the Chancellor, some three months ago to divide the real estate of Brooks Bell, dec'd., among the heirs at law of said deceased, have concluded their labors and on last Friday signed the final report to the Chancellor, which now only needs to be confirmed by him to be a final settlement. We believe the report gave full satisfaction to all parties interested.

The last week's issue of your paper was full of news over the City election held during the week, which has made the people of our town commence to agitate the question about our election for Township Officers, which, however, does not occur until March. There, has been but very little talk about candidates except for the office of Freeholder. The Republicans, we understand, intend to nominate one of the old-fashioned farmers, members of their party, any one of whom would make a good candidate and no doubt stand a fair chance of an election, as Westfield is a Republican town. The Democrats will no doubt re-nominate the present member from Westfield, Stephen S. Mapps, who has made a good and efficient member of the board the past year. May the best man win.

On Monday evening, Andrew J. Collins, living on top of Mountain, appeared before Justice Jacques and made complaint against Frederick Dolman who keeps house alone in a small dwelling about one-half mile from Mr. Collins. The charge was theft of chickens, of which quite a number of the farmers in that vicinity have lost quite a lot during the past month. The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable Marsh who arrested Dolman while on his way home, and upon searching the house a portion of the chickens lost by Mr. Collins was discovered in the cellar. Dolman says he bought them of a man on the street. The Squire thought his story a little thin and committed him to the county jail to be tried before the court of quarter sessions.

On last Sunday night at about 12 o'clock, Charles Little, a colored man who works for Charles Marsh, was returning home, when upon nearing the barn of Mr. Marsh, situated close to the road, he observed that the stable door was open. On stopping and listening a moment he heard the barn-yard gate open and saw a man leading one of Mr. Marsh's horses out into the road. Little immediately gave an alarm and fired two shots at the party, who was joined by another person in rear of barn and both ran into the woods. The horse ran away up the road and was subsequently recovered in the rear of Mr. Stitt's farm on Broad street. It was the same horse that was stolen from Mr. Marsh about a year ago, and which was recovered for him by ex-Chief Keenan and officer Marsh at Sheepshead Bay, L. I.

On last Friday morning about 9 a. m., a tramp knocked at the door of Mrs. Ellen Costigan's residence, near Morgan Hill, about one mile from the village. Upon Mrs. Costigan's little girl Ellen opening the door the tramp stepped into the room and asked where her mother was. Ellen told him she was up stairs. The tramp at that moment snatched a pocket-book from the table and ran out of the door across lots towards the woods. Mrs. Costigan immediately gave the alarm, running to the next neighbor, Mr. Jonas S. Miller, at some distance off. Mr. Miller and his hired man immediately started in pursuit; but after scouring the neighborhood and searching the woods they failed to get track of the miscreant and gave up the chase. The pocket-book contained $3 in money.

OUR COURTS.

On Friday night last, Frederick Clark, a young man, residing in Westfield, having, as he says, drank a little too much hard cider, on returning to his home met lamp-lighter Townley on Elm street. Clark struck at Townley, but failed to hit him, and he in return threw a stone, striking Clark in the mouth and knocking out two of his front teeth. Townley, on Saturday morning, made a complaint before Justice Jacques, who issued a warrant and placed it in the hands of Constable Koester, who upon arresting Clark took him before the Squire. After an examination of several witnesses, Clark was found guilty of disorderly conduct and fined three dollars and costs, which he paid, and was released from custody. It is a question whether Townley should not have been fined for throwing stones and striking Clark, which is in itself an assault and battery. These rows are of common occurrence on our streets, and a stop ought to be put to them. If necessary send the offenders to the county jail.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered to a third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 12, 1881.

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to the Treasurer of the City.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. The treasurer of the city shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, execute a bond in the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, to the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, conditioned for the true and faithful performance of all the duties of his office, with such freehold security as the common council shall approve and direct, which bond shall be submitted to the common council for its approval, and when so approved shall be deposited with the city clerk for safe keeping.

Sec. 2. The treasurer shall receive all moneys belonging or in any way appertaining to the city, and deposit the same in some bank as the common council shall from time to time designate as the depository of city moneys; and he shall open and keep two distinct accounts with such bank, one in the name of "The Treasurer of the City of Plainfield as Trustee for the State and County," to the credit of which he shall immediately deposit all moneys received by him for state and county taxes, and the other in the name of "The Treasurer of the City of Plainfield," to the credit of which he shall deposit all other moneys which he shall receive, belonging or in any way appertaining to the city.

Sec. 3. The treasurer shall, at or immediately after the time in each year when state and county taxes in said city shall become due and payable to the county collector, pay over to said county collector all moneys theretofore received by him derived from the collection of state and county taxes, and thereafter, whenever there shall be in said bank to the credit of said account in the name of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield as trustee for the State and County, moneys derived from state and county taxes in the aggregate equal to or exceeding five hundred dollars, he shall immediately, by his own draft on such bank therefor, pay the same over to the county collector, and so far as practicable he shall in every instance apply the moneys [illegible] of the state and county tax levy of each year to the payment of the deficiency of that year, and in each case of payment so made, he shall take a proper receipt therefor; and every other payment by the treasurer for the city shall be made by a draft on such bank, signed by him and countersigned by the city clerk, payable out of the fund to such [illegible] to the credit of the said account in the name of the treasurer of the city of Plainfield; provided, however, that if at any time moneys derived from city taxes or other city funds, shall have been used to pay the city's quota of state and county taxes, then and in that event the treasurer shall transfer from such aforesaid account as trustee for the state and county to his aforesaid account as treasurer of the city, such sum as shall be required to make good to the city the amount so used whenever there shall be a surplus to the credit of his said account as trustee for the state and county sufficient for that purpose over and above the amount required for the payment of the city's quota of state and county taxes.

Section 4. The Treasurer shall keep in a suitable book or books separate accounts of the several funds for which moneys shall be received or paid out by him, each under its proper head and title, so that the amount of each of such funds shall show at all times the exact amount to the credit or debit of such fund. Moneys received for State and County taxes shall comprise one of such funds; moneys received for general city taxes shall comprise another of such funds; moneys received for taxes for the support of the city poor shall comprise another of such funds; moneys received for licenses and for fines and penalties paid to the city shall comprise another of such funds; moneys received for the City Library shall comprise another of such funds; and moneys received from other sources shall comprise others or another of such funds. The Treasurer shall also keep a detailed record of all assessments made or authorized to be made by the Common Council, setting forth the date and purposes of each assessment, the names of persons assessed, the amounts assessed against each and the date of the payment of the same.

Section 5. Whenever the Common Council shall borrow money on the credit and in the name of the city in anticipation of the collection of taxes, in pursuance of the provisions of the city charter in that behalf, the Treasurer shall prepare and sign a note for the amount borrowed, payable at such time as shall be fixed by the Common Council in conformity with the charter, which note shall likewise be signed by the Mayor, and, unless otherwise directed by the Common Council, the Treasurer shall cause such note to be negotiated at the Bank, which at the time being shall be the designated depository of city moneys, and the net proceeds thereof to be deposited and credited to the account in the name of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield in such Bank. At the maturity of any note so discounted the Treasurer shall (unless otherwise directed by the Common Council) pay the same by his own draft on such Bank payable out of the moneys therein to the credit of such last mentioned account, provided there shall be in such Bank to the credit of such account a sufficient sum for that purpose; and if he shall neglect so to do, and such payment shall not have been otherwise provided for by the Common Council, it shall be lawful for such Bank to apply so much of the moneys on deposit in such Bank to the credit of such account in the name of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield as shall be required for that purpose, to the payment of such note, with all lawful interest and charges thereon, and the Treasurer to debit the amount of such note and interest and charges so paid to such account. In all other cases, payments by the Treasurer for the city shall be made only upon the presentation of a warrant or warrants drawn in pursuance of the provisions of the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance providing for the issue of warrants on the City Treasurer for all current claims against the City," approved June 4, 1878.

Section 6. The Treasurer shall render to the Common Council at each of its regular meetings, a statement of all moneys received and disbursed by him for the city, and for State and County taxes, or credited or debited to the city in either of the aforesaid accounts with said Bank, from the date of his last preceding statement; and at the last meeting of the Common Council in each year he shall render to the Common Council a statement of all moneys received and disbursed for the city and for State and County taxes, or credited or debited to the city in either of the aforesaid accounts with said Bank during the current year, and also a statement of all assessments remaining unpaid.

Section 7. The Treasurer shall submit his books to the Mayor or to the Common Council or its appropriate committee for inspection whenever he shall be requested by the Mayor or Common Council or such committee so to do.

Section 8. The ordinance entitled "An Ordinance describing the duties of the City Treasurer," approved June 1, 1869, is hereby repealed.

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

NOT MUCH OF A LOSS.

A young lady went to a drug store located not a hundred miles from the market house, and had a prescription filled.

'How much?' inquired the lady.

'Fifty cents,' said the clerk.

'But I have only forty-five cents with me,' replied the customer; 'can't you let me have it for that?'

'No, ma'am,' said the clerk, 'but you can pay me five cents when you come in again.'

'But suppose I were to die?' said the lady jocularly.

'Well, it wouldn't be a very great loss,' was the smiling response.

And immediately the smiling clerk gathered, from the indignant flush on the lady's face that he had been misunderstood, and before he could assure her that it was the little balance and not her that would be no great loss, she had bounced out at a go-as-you-please gait, and was beyond the sound of his voice.

PEARLS OF THOUGHT.

Foolish fear doubles danger.

Confession of fault makes half of the amends.

Not to hear conscience is the way to silence it.

Be graceful if you can; but if you can't be graceful, be true.

There is a past which is gone forever. But there is a future which is still our own.

There are few occasions when ceremony may not be dispensed with; kindness never.

WHY?

Because it acts on the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS at the same time.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develope in Kidney Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Nervous Disorders.

SEE WHAT PEOPLE SAY:

Eugene B. Stork, of Junction City, Kansas, says, Kidney-Wort cured him after regular Physicians had been trying for four years.

Mrs. John Arnall, of Washington, Ohio, says, her boy was given up to die by four prominent physicians and that he was afterwards cured by Kidney-Wort.

M. M. B. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says he was not expected to live, being bloated beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him.

Anna L. Jarrett, of South Salem, N. Y., says that seven years suffering from kidney troubles and other complications was ended by the use of Kidney-Wort.

John B. Lawrence of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and after taking "barrels of other medicines," Kidney-Wort made him well.

Michael Coté of Montgomery Center, Vt., suffered eight years with kidney difficulty and was unable to work. Kidney-Wort made him "well as ever."

KIDNEY-WORT
PERMANENTLY CURES
KIDNEY DISEASES,
LIVER COMPLAINTS,
CONSTIPATION AND PILES.

☞ It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form in tin cans, one package of which makes six quarts of medicine. Also in Liquid Form, very Concentrated, for those that cannot readily prepare it.

☞ It acts with equal efficiency in either form.

The Sun.

NEW YORK, 1882.

THE SUN for 1882 will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, shining, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democratic, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. THE SUN's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked.

THE SUN of 1868 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of THE SUN. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after THE SUN. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of THE SUN's example.

THE SUN of 1882 will be the same outspoken, truth-telling, and interesting newspaper.

By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House square is not the first consideration with THE SUN. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn or in Bokhara.

In politics we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of THE SUN's political course.

THE WEEKLY SUN gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, full market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific and domestic intelligence complete THE WEEKLY SUN, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like THE SUNDAY SUN, each number of which is a Golconda of interesting literature, with the best poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good-sized book, and infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little?

If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for THE SUN.

Our terms are as follows:

For the daily SUN, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

POETRY.

NIGHTFALL.

BY MARY BOWLES.

The hush of twilight far and wide,
Falls on the green and sloping meadows;
All tremulous the aspens stand,
By wayward zephyrs lightly fanned,
Where the clear brooklet's [illegible] tide
Sweeps onward to the shadows.

All day the sun-flushed ripples flow
Through pastures strewn with hay and clover;
Through lovely glens, where alders lean
To kiss the dimpled waves, unseen,
And sweet wild-roses bloom below
The brambles drooping over.

But the low ridge and moss-grown fence,
In blind mood its [illegible] tarries;
While dusted [illegible] leaves wide dispread,
And circling swallows overhead
Move lightly, till each wavelet hence
Some fair reflection carries.

Up the broad shoulders of the hill
Soft twilight shadows climb and darken;
But on their brows, westward set,
A smile of sunset trembles yet,
And there a thrush sings and thrills
The world below to hearken.

Far off the cuckoo's plaintive call,
Scarce separate from the silence, lingers;
In shadowland the blossoms sleep,
Where white-robed mists arise to keep
Their nightly watch, caressing all
With moist, dewy fingers.

The stars peep forth, the after-glow
Fades slowly out behind the larches;
The birds are hushed—save one that seems
To chirp a little of his dream—
When outcast breezes faintly blow
Adown the woodland arches.

The ripples vanish, seaward drawn;
The flowers in sleep their perfume render;
So nightly round each darkening slope,
The light is sown to patient hope,
That the rich harvest of the dawn
May rise in golden splendor!

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE RING AND THE ROLL.

Of all the people that make trouble for themselves the jealous can take the palm; and of all the jealous, Mr. Donald McDonald was able to get the most torture from the least material.

When Lucia fell in love with him, she did not dream of his afflictions, for he seemed about as indifferently cool and haughty a man as one could picture. Perhaps she flirted a little recklessly with one and another lest he should divine her secret; perhaps on that account he thought the only way to get her was to take her by storm. She did not flatter herself that he remembered her when out of his sight, till one day on the piazza a party of them having been talking gayly of their possible futures, and all having left but herself, he came back, and leaning against a pillar, and pulling down the rose vine, "What is that you are doing, Lucia?" he said.—"Does it require all your attention? Look at me Lucia;" and she thoughtlessly obeyed. "When we were all speaking of our paths in the future, was there any seriousness in what you said? Did you suppose I would ever listen to any plan of a future for you in which I was not a part?"

"You?" looking up at him where he towered above her, dark and superb as Lucifer.

"I. And I tell you now, Lucia, you are going to marry me or nobody. You are to be my wife, or no man's wife."

And many of Lucia's distresses came from the acquiescence in which her glad heart stood still a moment before it beat upon [illegible], in which her hand lay trembling in his, while he slipped upon its finger a curious gemmel-ring of rubies and brilliants. If she had rebelled, if she had coquetted or dallied, she might not have remained in the half-humble light which made her more like a slave than a wife; if she had obliged him to sue instead of allowing him to claim, he might hardly have ventured on such a lordly and dictatorial demeanor. He hurried the wedding so that she had no time to perceive anything but his passion for herself. And now that regret was too late, all that was for her was a straight path, looking neither to the right nor to the left, as a wealthy woman in society could walk. But to a friendly beautiful creature like Lucia, who liked everybody, and whom everybody liked, this was no easy matter. Nor especially was it easy when some of her former lovers came along, to whom she felt it right to be particularly gentle in view of their regret and her felicity.

For Lucia was really happy. She desired no indiscriminate admiration; her husband's was enough for her. She had his adoration, and she knew it, and he was her all in all; nothing more grand and noble and beautiful than he was possible to her conception of a human being. She loved him so that if he had trampled her heart out of her body, she would have thought it but a fit service she rendered him in suffering it. And it cost her nothing to relinquish all companionship but his, for she wanted no other.

The one hinderance to her happiness was that her husband failed to recognize all this and seemed to have constant fear of loss of her affection if she became aware of the existence of anybody else. She knew that his bursts of anger through suspicion did not mean that he loved her any the less, but they frightened her and they caused her unwisely to conceal any attention, flattery, or kindness that she received. She tried to frost her manner, but it only acquired an icy sweetness, that made her all the more attractive, and her house was thronged, and her invitations were a multitude.

Nevertheless, Lucia almost forgot herself one day when the servant announced Mr. Dustable. "Tom Dustable," she exclaimed before she thought. "I am delighted." And she held out both hands to this old school-mate and sort of cousin, and was eager, her face aglow, to hear what account he had to give of himself, asking if he remembered this, and replying as to whether she remembered that, laughing over circumstances occurring before her husband's reign, and all at at once starting and looking about for her husband, beckoning him, and when he would not stir, taking Mr. Dustable over herself, and introducing him, with another grand mistake, as a dear old friend who was one of the family, but not a scrap of relation.

A dear old friend, one of the family, and not a scrap of relation? Nothing more was needed to kindle Mr. McDonald's altar fires. He was flint and steel already—"Wasting her sweetness on a curmudgeon," said Mr. Dustable to himself. And if for a minute he had a mind to give Mr. McDonald something to fret about, in another minute he would cut off his hand before making Lucia any trouble.—"So," he said to her, when her husband had walked off and left them as a great dog leaves a couple of children that have disturbed him, "you have a jailer—"

"I have the best of husbands!" she exclaimed. "And I adore him. Besides—"

"Besides I mustn't talk to you in that way. Well, I won't. I shouldn't like him to speak so to my bonny Kate. I am going to be married to Kate Despard—the sweetest girl! I must come and tell you about her to-morrow, Lucia. What hour shall you be alone?"

To-morrow. Lucia had begun to recollect herself sufficiently to know that her husband's wrath would be a bright and shining light to-morrow if such an interview took place. "To-morrow?" she said. "But I have an engagement. How long are you to be in town? Only two days? Let me see—I shall be at Aunt Marbury's to-morrow at three."

Ah, Lucia, Lucia McDonald, her inner consciousness cried, a clandestine meeting at another person's house! No wonder if her husband were angry! And yet it seemed hard if she might not hear about the marriage of one for whom she had such an innocent attachment. And she hated equally that any one she honored should think her heartless or see her husband's one weakness. The fact that she felt a little guilty made her humility and sweetness incarnate in her manner toward her husband; and the fact that she was so sweet and submissive made him a trifle lordlier than before. She knew the drift of his thoughts too well, and need not have taken the trouble to formulate a pronunciamento, as he did at dinner.

"A married flirt," said her husband, apropos of little or nothing, "ranks with the monstrous. Once convinced of such a deformity in a woman's character, I would not live with her an hour."

"By the way," said Lucia, the least bit tremulously, "Tom Dustable is going to be married."

"You are very familiar, Lucia. But why 'by the way'? Is Mr. Dustable a flirt?"

"He? Oh, no; but Kate Despard is and he is going to marry her."

"He is to be pitied then," said Mr. McDonald, with asperity.

"Yes; Tom is the most faithful fellow in existence. He will never forget the time I saved him from master Brownlow's rage by taking the feruling myself."

"You, Lucia? And the hound let you! Well, I would thank him to forget. I want no man with reminiscences of my wife."

Lucia did not remind him that it would be difficult to blot out her past existence. She only laughed, and said: "Oh it makes no odds, for it is not the same person. I am a totally different being from that one. It hardly seems as though I had been alive before I married you Don." Anybody not luxuriating in jealousy would have melted at the smile she gave him.

But the next day she was at her Aunt Marbury's to find Tom there before her, and to listen to his enamored account of Kate Despard, his marriage, his hopes his plans. "I gave Kate a plain ring to wear as a wedding ring by-and-bye," said Tom. "I want an engagement ring for her that has never been on anybody's finger, and made like one you wore just before you married—the quaintest thing! You have it on now Lucia, perhaps?"

"Yes, indeed. Don gave it to me. It was my engagement ring, Tom."

"Then you would not care to lend it for the goldsmith to see?" asked Tom.

Lucia hesitated. She did not want the ring her betrothed had gave desecrated by passing from hand to hand. To tell the truth, she had a little rather neither Kate Despard nor another had a ring just like it. And then Don would be certain to misconstrue. But Don need not know. She hated to disoblige Tom. It would be away only a night. She slipped off her glove and gave it. "Kate will thank you so much," said Tom. He took her hand a moment. "It is a kind little hand," he said. "It will always wear the pearl of great price. "Once," he added, half laughing, "before my darling Kate's was promised me, I had hoped to call this hand my own." And they looked up to see Mr. Donald McDonald towering like an avenging deity in the doorway. He had heard only the last phrase.

"Do not let me interrupt you," he said, in his loftiest accent of withering scorn.

But Lucia was too quick for him.

"Good-bye Tom," she cried, regardless of appearances.

"Good-bye. I suppose we meet at Mrs. Maynard's dinner to-night?"

But she was at the carriage beside her husband before the words had passed Tom's lips.

"Aren't you going to help me in, Don?" she asked.

"Do you wish to enter?" asked the Grand Lima.

"Why, certainly I do. I told John to drive round, and wondered why he was so slow."

"Slow! Too quick, I should say," he answered, while John shook his white reins to the prancing beasts.

"Oh, now, Don," she exclaimed; "you are angry at poor Tom's palaver."

"I don't know any right your poor Tom has to be talking palaver to my wife."

"He was telling of his happiness with Kate Despard."

"I don't know any right my wife has to receive confidences from another man."

"Don, aren't you ashamed?" cried Lucia, desperately. "An old friend, all but brought up in the same house with me—"

"Is that any reason he should be saying to you that once he expected to call your hand his own? You, a married woman, listening to him! And for all I know he has kissed your hand. It is shameful! it is monstrous! it is abominable!"

"He never kissed my hand."

"Why is your glove off?"

"Oh, Don, my darling, how ridiculous you make yourself!"

"Answer my question. Have you been exchanging rings with that rascal?" he cried, his eyes blazing in his white face. "By the Lord, if that is so, I will have his life! Where are you rings, Lucia?"

"Gracious, Don, what flame you can blow up from a spark! Do you expect me to wear my rings about like so many fetters? Rings hurt one's hands under gloves and I don't always wear them."

"You will let me see"—his eyes growing blacker and blacker, as if his wrath condensed its darkness through them—"every ring I have given you, the moment we enter the house, whether you find them fetters or not!"

And the brilliant and ruby gemmel in Tom Dunstable's pocket! What on earth was she to do? Now, under threats, it was too late. He would not believe her. He would be all the more infuriated.

"Do you mean to say, Donald," she exclaimed turning on him her beautiful eyes, "that you are accusing me, your faithful wife, of anything your words imply?" Then the worm turned. "How long do you think you can keep my affections—"

"I don't imagine I can keep them. I don't imagine I have kept them—" And when, as just at that instant they reached their own door, a band of music set the horses to dancing, the carriage wheels ran up the stepping-stone, and a crash ensued, out of which she was lifted in a dead faint, Lucia counted it one of the good fortunes of her life.

Of course, with the servants running this way and that, and with confusion and cries in the house, rings and reproaches were forgotten and Mr. Donald McDonald, calling himself a brute, hung over his wife in despair, and Lucia had a delightful hour of recovery and devotion; and then, against her husband's remonstrances proceeded to dress for Mrs. Maynard's grand dinner.

"Ah, what a hypocrite and actress I am becoming!" she sighed to herself. "And what a coward! And all because I love him so."

But nobody would have thought the lovely creature sweeping into Mrs. Maynard's drawing-room, in her white gold-embroidered satin, was any of the horrid things she called herself. They were the last arrivals, and when Lucia went out on Mr. Maynard's arm, she found herself, in a little spasm of fright, with Tom Dunstable at the other hand, and her husband nearly opposite. It was a moment of absolute terror to Lucia. She knew that the sight of Tom Dunstable would bring back all her husband's mood. She saw the black cloud shut down over his face instantly, and she felt that her least motion would be watched with lynx-like narrowness.

But she must get that ring, and before she put on her gloves again. "Tom," she whispered, not looking at him, scarcely moving her lips, and her face placid as sunshine, "give me that ring at once, as you value my life."

"Great heavens!" murmured Tom; "it is at the goldsmith's."

The consternation and pleading in her eyes would have ruined her had not her husband trodden on Miss Ormond's train in the general seating, and been a moment preoccupied. In that moment, Tom, nodding excuse to his neighbor and to Mr. Maynard, slipped into the hall, and was back again before the rustle had quite subsided. It seemed to Lucia as if every oyster was a turtle; sipping her soup was like the effort of the old woman to sweep the sea from her door. Through roast, entree, course by course, what interminable torture was this she endured! She would have declared they had been at the table half the night. All the time she felt her husband's glance pursuing her, while she manipulated her hand to evade it; and all the time she had to talk with Mr. Maynard, and give her repartee on this side and the other, as if the gayest of the gay, with no more idea of what she was saying than in a trance. What an eternity it was becoming! what a reckoning was to follow! She was receiving the punishment of her deceit a thousand times. Dazed and dizzy, a scarlet spot on either cheek, she felt hardly able to keep her chair. She wanted to scream out to her husband the whole story; she was afraid she should.

The prairie-chicken was being served, when she saw, as if in a dream, a waiter, who had just come in, stooping to pick up Tom's napkin, and a side-long glance showed her Tom fumbling with a tiny parcel. In another breath it was all right. The color left her cheek; she understood what was said around her; the prairie-chicken had some flavor. She stretched her hand for a bit of bread. "I beg your pardon," said Tom, "this is your roll, I think." And she crumbled the roll between them, and the ring touched the tip of her finger, and with the hold of the crust and the table-cloth she worried it into its usual place while answering Mr. Maynard's question as to her preferences regarding game. And as she raised her hand to brush back a love-lock falling too low over her beautiful eyes, Mr. Donald McDonald saw the blood-red flash of the ruby gemmel ring.

But it was not till a year and a day that he heard the story from his wife's lips, and forgiving her for her part, promised better fashions for his own.

SPOOPENDYKE AS A SPORTSMAN.

'Say, my dear,' ejaculated Mr. Spoopendyke, as he drew a gun from the case and eyed it critically. 'I want you to wake me up early in the morning; I'm going shooting.'

'Isn't that too sweet?' ejaculated Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'I'll wear my new dress and my Saratoga waves. Where do we go?'

'I'm going down on the island, and you'll probably go as far as the front door,' grunted Mr. Spoopendyke. 'Women don't go shooting. It's only men. All you've got to do is to wake me up and get breakfast. When I come home we'll have some birds.'

'Won't that be nice!' chimed Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'Can you catch birds with that thing?' and Mrs. Spoopendyke fluttered around the improved breech-loading shot gun, firmly impressed with the idea that it was some kind of a trap.

'I can kill 'em with this,' exclaimed Mr. Spoopendyke. 'That is a gun, my dear; it isn't a nest with three speckled eggs in it, nor is it a barn with a hole in the roof. You stick the cartridge in there and pull the finger piece, and down comes your bird every time.'

'Well, isn't that the greatest thing? I suppose if you don't want a partridge you can stick a duck or a turkey on that end, too, or a fish or a lobster, and bring it down just as quick!'

'Yes, or you can stick a house, or a corn field, or a dod-gasted female idiot in there, too, if you want to!' snorted Mr. Spoopendyke. 'Who said anything about a partridge? It's a cartridge that goes in there!'

'Oh!' ejaculated Mrs. Spoopendyke, rather crestfallen. 'I see now. Where does the bird go?'

'He goes to a night school, if he hasn't any more sense than you have,' snorted Mr. Spoopendyke. 'Look here, now, and I'll show you how it works,' and Spoopendyke, whose ideas of a gun were about as vague as those of his wife, inserted the cartridge half way in the muzzle end, and cautiously cocked the weapon.

'And when the bird sees that he comes and pecks at it? Isn't that the funniest!' and Mrs. Spoopendyke clasped her hands in the enjoyment of her discovery. 'Then you put out your hand and catch him!'

'You've struck it!' howled Mr. Spoopendyke, who had the hammer on half-cock, and was vainly pulling on the trigger to get it down. 'That's the idea! All you need is four feathers and a gas bill to be a martingale! With your notions, you only want a new stock and a steam trip-hammer to be a needle gun! Don't you know that dod-gasted thing has got to go off before you get a bird. You shoot the birds, you don't wait for them to shoot you!'

'At home we used always to chop their heads off with an axe,' faltered Mrs. Spoopendyke.

'So would I, if I was going after measly old hens,' retorted Mr. Spoopendyke, who managed to uncock the contrivance; 'but when I go for yellow birds and sparrows I go like a sportsman. While I'm waiting for a bird,' continued Mr. Spoopendyke adjusting the cartridge at the breech, 'I put the load in here for safety. And when I seek a flock I aim and fire.'

Bang! went the gun, knocking the tail feathers out of an eight day clock and plowing a foot furrow in the wall, perforating the closet door and culminating in Mr. Spoopendyke's hat.

'Goodness, gracious!' squeaked Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'Oh my!'

Mr. Spoopendyke gathered himself up and contemplated the danger.

'Why couldn't you keep still?' he shrieked. 'What'd you want to disturb my aim for and make me let off? Think I can hold back a charge of powder and a pound of shot while a measly woman is scaring it through a gun barrel?'

"If that had been a bird, how nicely you would have shot at it!" suggested Mrs. Spoopendyke, soothingly. 'If you should ever aim at a bird you'd catch him sure!'

'Oh! you know what I could do! With your information about gunnery you only need a wad in your mouth and a kick like a mule to be a mountain howitzer! If I had your intelligence on sporting subjects, I'd hire out for a shot tower. Don't you know you've spoiled the dod-gasted gun?' And Mr. Spoopendyke, anxious for some excuse to take it back to his friend Specklewottle who loaned it to him, held it out and eyed his wife sternly. 'You've ruined that gun,' he continued, solemnly. 'It won't ever go off again.'

'Never mind, dear,' consoled Mrs. Spoopendyke. 'It's been off enough, and I'd just as lief have some clams as birds. You go to bed and we'll try to do without any birds.'

'It won't never go off again,' repeated Mr. Spoopendyke, as he climbed into his couch.

'That is a ruined gun,' and he turned his face to the wall.

Mrs. Spoopendyke slowly disrobed, having first turned a stream of water into the gun from faucet, and betook herself to rest. 'It may not go off again,' she thought, 'but if it does the neighbors will think the water main has burst,' with which reflection she began to pat the ear of Mr. Spoopendyke, who turned over like an earthquake and wanted to know if she thought she hadn't done enough mischief without laming him like a dod gasted blacksmith.

THE BRAVE THREE HUNDRED.

Few Americans ever dreamed that among the dark and gloomy pines of Chancellorsville was enacted a tragedy, worthier to live in epic verse than the famous charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava. Only once in all the histories of the war have I seen it mentioned, and to-night my thoughts brood over the nameless graves of those unsung heroes till my soul cries out in protest against favoritism of historic fame, and for these humble heroes I must claim the meagre justice of a passing mention in the ears of their countrymen.

I was present when Stonewall Jackson received his first wound. He had completely surprised Howard's 11th corps, and was driving them in the wildest confusion along toward the centre of our line. In the fight they passed through a woods, just beyond which, in a clearing, lay four of Sickles' batteries and a flying artillery battery, and the 8th Pennsylvania cavalry of Gen. Pleasanton. The batteries were not in position, but were "packed," awaiting orders. Through their lines rushed the panic-stricken fugitives, hotly pursued by Jackson's immense corps of over twenty thousand men. Infantry, artillery, ambulances, pack mules, negroes and stragglers, the worst scared men I ever looked upon, came tearing past like mad. Batteries had no commanders, but each captain excitedly acted for himself. "Battery—left wheel. Fire to the rear. In battery. Caissons pass your pieces, trot, march!" and a frightened bugler caught only the word "trot," and sounded it repeatedly. It rang out clear and above the worse than Babel; many took it for a general stampede signal; across the field, and down the hill, and over a stone wall near its foot, in that famous ravine, dashed several caissons and a few guns. "Fix, prolong to fire retiring. With canister—load!"

On came the fugitives; nearer and nearer through the sounding woods came Confederate yell and the rush of Stonewall Jackson's victorious legions. Sickles was almost a mile away, pushing through the woods with his splendid corps. Not a Federal musket was in sight except what the 11th Corps bore to the rear as fast as legs would carry them. We must make our fight against those tremendous odds alone—five batteries of us and three hundred cavalry—not over six hundred men all told.

On swept twenty thousand Confederates, and we were not yet ready to fight. Our line was confusion worse confounded; guns stood pointing withersoever; and excited cannoneers listened, and at the first fire one-half of us would blow the other into eternity, and Stonewall would have Hooker's headquarters and double up the whole army—a cheering prospect that! The sun had set behind the woods, and through them, yet faster in the thickening gloom, rushed Jackson's troops.

Suddenly out in front of our guns rode the familiar form of Gen. Pleasanton.

Above the din arose the shrill voice, "Align those pieces!" It was the work of many minutes, and Stonewall was now just upon us. Time! oh, for ten minutes time! How to get it! There sat Major Keenan, with his three hundred horsemen. Here was a sacrifice, which in every man was a patriot like Arnold Winkleried, would give up those precious minutes. Gen. Pleasanton said quickly to Keenan, "Major, you must charge into those woods with your men and hold the enemy in check until I get these guns into position. You must do it at all cost." Keenan says: "It is just the same as saying 'you must be killed,'" but with a smile he said, "General, I will do it."

Oh, what a sight was that! Would to God some American Tennyson might see that sight and lift those humble names to immortality! Three hundred troopers with deep set spurs and flashing sabres rushed at the throats of twenty thousand armed men! Nobody had blundered, but somebody must die for the army—that was all!

So mad a blow did they strike in Jackson's very teeth that he stopped his onward ruin to reform his lines. Surely there must be more coming—no single regiment could be charging his army single-handed—and when no other bold riders appeared, then it was the brave Keenan died at the head of his regiment, and the whole platoon died with their feet in the stirrups.

But they did not die in vain. Ten minutes purchased at that fearful price to us was costlier still to Jackson. When he came on again, flesh and blood could not stand up before our terrific canister fire. His veterans quailed before the sirocco of death. He rode up to rectify his lines, was mistaken in the gathering darkness for one of our country and was shot by his own men.

Our "three times three" had hardly ceased to ring, when Sickles, who rushed ahead to our support, rode up among our guns and called out: "Stand firm, and in ten minutes I'll have ten thousand men here who don't know anything but fight." He was as good as his word, and quickly the old Third corps filed in behind the guns, and Jackson's famous corps had received its defeat.

Three hundred men made Thermopylæ live through centuries; six hundred men at Balaklava rode to fame in sight of the whole world, but the people of America have left to slumber in unknown graves, beneath the pine groves of Chancellorsville, a band of men whose dead were as great and worthy of a name as those which poets have sung through ages.—Exchange.

CHRISTMAS.

We wish you a Merrie Christmas!

The time for that pleasant salutation is again at hand, and with sincerity do we extend the greeting to every one—high or low, rich or poor, the aged and the young.

May the coming Christmas—its blessed associations, its happy family reunions, its social gatherings and kindly cheer, be to all a season of great and enduring joy.

As each individual life is looked over, what blissful memories cluster around Christmas time? How its return was longed for and year after year thankfully enjoyed.

And scanning the page of history, what an animated record is that of Christmas? From the early days, when huge blazing logs illuminated and crude fare loaded the festive halls of Old England, down to our day of modern comfort and convenience, it has ever been Merrie Christmas.

May it forever so remain, and as the years come and go, be increasingly instrumental in awakening saving thought of the glorious event it commemorates, and scatter wider and wider the heart cheering tokens of human generosity.

A Merrie Christmas to all!

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

Strange events are coming to pass in this the last quarter of the nineteenth century and some of them give promise of lasting good.

The time was when worthy people were burned to death at the stake, thrust into foul dungeons, publicly whipped, and in various other ways cruelly tortured because of their God given right to believe as individual conscience dictated, and even down to the present century that Satanic spirit of persecution has existed, assuming a modified form, but under the same hypocritical profession of religion.

A glorious change has taken place in that dark particular, thanks be to the growing might of true Christianity, and the spreading influence of free institutions as embodied in the American Constitution, the grand feature of which is universal toleration.

Not many years ago, even in this country, citizens were traduced and injured because of political opinions.

There is a decided improvement noticeable in that respect, although the fell disposition to proscribe and punish for partisan ends still lurks around, and would, if it could, gain ascendency, but happily the determined blows of patriotism and enlightened liberality are fast crushing out its noxious life.

Notwithstanding the commercial and ancestral links between the people of England and those of the United States, the fact cannot be ignored, that deep seated feelings of national prejudice and hostility have for a hundred years prevailed on both sides of the Atlantic. Englishmen disliked everything American and Americans paid back similar antipathy without the least abatement of interest.

Shades of the past, what a change!

Can it be reality, or are we idly dreaming!

The roar of artillery is heard on the plains of Yorktown, honoring the centennial of a surrender that forever wrested from British rule the colonies of America and firmly laid the foundation of the great Republic of the West. As the last gun echoed victory, by virtue of a gracefully worded order of the President, the ensign of Old England was run up and nationally saluted.

That effectually converted Cousin John Bull.

In the graphic language of a backwoods orator—"It bottled his bile."

The other day in the streets of London, during the Lord Mayor's regal procession, a sight was witnessed that capped the climax. Borne high aloft and proudly unfurled passed along the crowded thoroughfares of the ancient British metropolis the AMERICAN FLAG, with martial bands playing the "Star Spangled Banner," and as the assembled hosts of loyal Englishmen wildly applauded the beautiful emblem of our national renown, strains of inspiring music rent the air with "Yankee Doodle."

Well! Well!!

"What next," as the chap soliloquized when a four footed animal tossed him over a ten-foot board fence into a friendly ditch.

LOCAL ANNEX.

That Prize Fight.

The complaint against certain parties, resident in this city, charged with prize fighting, &c., of which mention was made in last week's CONSTITUTIONALIST, was presented to the Grand Jury of Somerset County on Tuesday last. Witnesses were examined and the complaint ignored. We deemed it our duty as journalists to call attention to the alleged violation of a statute, which if persisted in would be productive of continued violations of order and decency, and that it was the duty of the proper authorities to take such action as would prevent a recurrence of such acts. We abstained from all mention of names, partly from a dislike to do this until the charges had been sustained and partly that we thought they had acted hastily and inconsiderately without a criminal intent. For our course, we and the officers who executed the warrants, have been persistently vilified by the parties accused and some of their friends. The officers only performed the duties required by law, and as for ourselves, we answer that what we deem to be our duty in the conduct of our paper we shall always perform, unbiased by threats or favor.

Personalia.

Hon. Alvah Clark and wife are both lying sick at their residence in Somerville.

Mr. A. B. Reynell, of this city, has been appointed General State Agent for New Jersey by the New York Life Insurance Company.

Dr. Chas. S. McKnight, who formed a co-partnership with the late Dr. Stillman just before the latter's death, has opened an office in his own name at No. 40 East Front street, where those in need of professional services will find in him a capable physician.

Tuesday afternoon last, Miss Sadie, daughter of Prof. Samuel D. Frazee, of this city, was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. F. Stilwell, at the residence of her grandparent, 105 Mechanic street, Newark, N. J. After the ceremony, in the evening, there was a grand reception given at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Thomas Edison, Menlo Park. A large number of invited guests were present, and the occasion one of unalloyed enjoyment. The wedding gifts to the bride were many and costly. The happy couple started on Wednesday for Montreal, Canada, where Mr. Stilwell has the superintendence of a large factory in the interest of Mr. Edison, the electrician.

M. E. Y. P. U.

A "Sociable" of the Young People's Union of the M. E. Church of this city, was held last Monday evening at the residence of Mr. James W. Jackson on Crescent avenue. The handsome residence was kindly placed at the disposal of the Union by Mr. Jackson and his estimable wife, and was taken possession of by the members as fast as they arrived. The occasion was a kind of combination of business and pleasure. The "Sociable" commenced practically as soon as the first one arrived, and lasted until the last one left for home. By half-past eight, seventy-five persons were present, all of whom had evidently made up their minds that they were going to have a "good time." After many greetings of one another, receiving old acquaintances and forming new ones, the assembly was called to order by the President of the Union, Mr. Henry Mc Gee, who announced that the musical part of the Christmas programme for the Sunday School would be then and there rehearsed. Mrs. L. M. French presided at the piano, which, together with seventy-five voices (a large part of which were well trained) made the spacious house fairly ring with song. At the conclusion of this part of the exercises, the business part of the occasion came in, consisting of the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by the Secretary, Miss Laura V. Laing. Election and propositions of new members followed, after which the President asked if there was anything more to come before the house, whereupon a young man present stepped forward in a very mechanical manner, but by request, kindly subsided. This and other jokes were highly relished by all present. Mrs. French and Miss Jackson then favored the company with a double-handed piece of music on the piano, after which, general conversation was resumed. Soon, however, in order to prevent the proceedings from becoming monotonous, a half dozen persons were seen coming from somewhere bearing napkins, ice cream and cakes, which were supplemented by coffee. The very idea of "refreshing" seventy-five people with all they could eat and drink, was undoubtedly regarded by every guest as a most stupendous undertaking; but notwithstanding the fearful onslaughts made upon the "good things" provided, the hospitality and liberality of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were fully equal to the occasion, and fully appreciated by all present. A little after 10 o'clock the company quietly donned their overcoats and "fixins" and went home feeling that the sociable was in every way a most successful kind of a success.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

The season for killing rabbits, quail and ruffed grouse in this State closes with December 31st.

At the last meeting of the Legislature an act was passed defining the time for catching black bass in the waters of the State, which provides that "it shall not be lawful for any person to take from any of the waters under the jurisdiction of this State, any black or Oswego bass, before the 1st of July nor after the 1st of November in each year."

By Mr. H. Smith, from Special Com., the following resolutions:

Your Committee to whom was referred the duty of preparing resolutions expressive of the condolence and sympathy of this body, at the death of Dr. Charles H. Stillman, beg leave to report the following:

WHEREAS, the hand of Divine Providence has removed from the scene of his many labors our highly esteemed fellow citizen, Doctor Charles H. Stillman, it seems eminently fitting and proper that the Common Council of the City of Plainfield should, in behalf of itself, and of the people it represents, testify its respect and esteem for his memory, and express its earnest and affectionate sympathy with the household deprived by this dispensation, of its earthly head; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our midst we mourn for one who was not only worthy of our regard, but in the various high and honorable positions he has occupied in the past, has won universal esteem and respect;

Resolved, That while we deeply sympathize with those who were bound to the departed, by the nearest and dearest ties, we share with them in the bright and pleasant memories that must ever cluster around a long life so well spent;

Resolved, That these resolutions be transmitted to the family of the deceased, as a token of our respect and veneration for the Christian character of a good man gone to his rest, and of the interest felt in those he loved and cherished.

By Mr. Tyler, from Law & Ord. Com., report on claim of Alpheus D. Gibbons, damages in widening of Park avenue, that owing to the city's financial embarrassment, they could not pay the claim, unless a compromise be had by throwing off the interest, etc. Report received, and recommendation of Com. adopted.

By Mr. Gulon, from St. Com., a lengthy report in the matter of Terrill road com's from Street Com'r Wm. Hand, submitting the following resolutions in the premises:

RESOLVED, That the city assume the duty of repairing and keeping in order all that part of the Terrill road which lies between the easterly line of South Avenue and the centre of the road intersecting Terrill road at the Jackson School House, and also the said last mentioned road from the Jackson School House to the road known as the extension of Leland Avenue; provided, that the Township Committee of the Township of Fanwood shall agree on behalf of said Township to keep in repair and good order all that portion of said Terrill road which lies between Green Brook and the said easterly line of South avenue; and that from and after the time when the City Clerk shall receive a certified copy of a [illegible] of said Township Committee whereby such Committee shall agree on behalf of said Township of Fanwood to keep in repair and good order all that portion of said Terrill road, lying between Green Brook and the easterly line of South avenue, the city to keep in repair and good order all that portion of said Terrill road lying between the easterly line of South avenue and the road intersecting the said Terrill road at the Jackson School House, and also the said last mentioned road from the Jackson School House to the road known as the extension of Leland Avenue accordingly. That such agreement on the part of the city continue in force so long as said Township of Fanwood shall keep in repair and good order all that portion of said Terrill road which lies between Green Brook and the easterly line of South Avenue, or until the Common Council shall otherwise order.

RESOLVED, That the Clerk be and he hereby is directed to transmit to the Township Committee of the Township of Fanwood a certified copy of these resolutions.

Report received and placed on file, and the resolutions adopted. All aye.

By Mr. Gilbert, the following:

RESOLVED, That the City Treasurer be and is hereby instructed to pay to the County Collector on account of State and County taxes of 1880, Fifteen Hundred Dollars, from monies received from the tax assessed and collected to pay deficiency of State and County tax of said year. Adopted.

Mr. Gilbert presented bond of Collector John B. Brown, in the sum of $15,000, with John S. Brown, Waldron S. Brown, Werner H. Hatfield and John Simpson as sureties. Ref'd to Law & Ord. Com.

The Pres. announced the following matters as not reported on: Claim of Jas. E. Martine, ref'd to Finance Com. Mr. Darling said he had no report. Water Supply. No further report relative to this question from Mr. Darling, the Com. was discharged. Hack Licenses, referred to Corporation Counsel. No report. In the matter of refunding license fees paid by hackmen and truckmen, Mr. Tyler stated that an ord. relative to hacks, etc., had been introduced, but other ords. had been acted upon which had taken so much of the Council's time that he was afraid that the matter would have to be left for next Council.

By Mr. Tyler, the following:

RESOLVED, That the petition (and order to show cause) ex rel. Patrick Sheridan, County Collector, served this day, be referred to the Corporation Counsel with instructions to take all necessary steps to protect the interests of the city in connection with said application.

This resolution, upon being seconded, was the occasion of considerable discussion between Messrs. Tyler and Darling. The former took the position as heretofore, viz., that he did not believe in the city taking their monies to pay State and County taxes. The latter gentleman thought that we might as well accept the situation first as last, quoting often from the late opinion of Judge Scudder bearing upon the question. The resolution being put to vote was adopted, Messrs. Darling and A. H. Smith voting in the negative.

By Mr. Gilbert, the following:

RESOLVED, That the Finance Committee be and is instructed to ascertain the amount that has been collected on account of State and County taxes of 1881, and to request the Treasurer to pay to the County Collector from moneys received from said tax, such sum as he may have in his hands. Adopted. All aye.

Mr. Gilbert moved that when Council adjourns it adjourn to meet on Thursday evening, Dec. 29. Carried.

The Pres. announced that in order to finish up pending ordinances, a special meeting would be held on the above evening commencing at 7:30 and to last one hour.

On motion, Council then adjourned.

CLOTHIERS!
NEW GLASS FRONT STORE,
797 Broad St.,
NEWARK, N. J.

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS, such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to-day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Bernard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments.

CHRISTMAS next Sunday.

A MERRY Christmas to all.

NEW Year's day but nine days away.

WHERE are you going with that little girl, beaver hat?

ONE year ago there was lots of snow and plenty of ice.

NEW moon Wednesday night, which will be full on Jan. 4th.

THE Fourteenth Volume of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST closes with its next issue.

No one will forget that Gough lectures in the M. E. church on Monday evening next.

READ every advertisement in this issue, and then you will know the best place to buy your holiday gifts.

THE last issue of the Iron Era is a double sheet that evidences the enterprise of its publishers and the ability of its editorial staff.

WE have in our job department, a full line of samples of the latest styles of New Year's cards, and take pleasure in showing them.

MR. J. O. Cadmus the livery man at Park avenue and Second street, has added some new coaches to his large and handsome line of carriages.

ONE of the most attractive of the "Christmas' windows" displayed by our merchants, is that of Pope Bros., at the corner of Front and Somerset streets.

MR. Thomas Winsor, a distinguished lawyer of New York city, and wife will spend the winter in Plainfield, having taken up their residence on Broadway.

A SMALL crop of this Winter's ice seems probable, but there is enough left over from the last harvest to obviate any famine in that commodity next Summer.

ALL will remember to attend the fourth entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. course at the M. E. church on Monday evening next, when Gough will lecture on Temperance.

THE members of the Seventh Day Baptist Church with their families and friends, held one of their pleasurable sociables in the church parlors on Thursday evening of last week.

THE wife of Mr. Wm. Howatt of this city died during the evening of Friday last, in the sixty-third year of her age. The funeral took place from her late residence No. 26 West Second-street.

THE Common Council meet on Thursday evening next at 7:30 o'clock to act upon certain ordinances as can only be done at a regular or special meeting. An adjourned meeting will be held a half-hour later.

MANY of our citizens have visited L. A. Dunn & Bros'. establishment at Elizabeth, to view and purchase the elegant holiday goods displayed there. The windows of the store present a handsome appearance.

THE richest and handsomest of holiday presents, as well as those most appropriate and appreciated, are to be found at Collier's, No. 3 Park avenue. Solid and heavily plated silverware and jewelry in large assortment.

THE recent Parlor Sale for the benefit of the Church of the Holy Cross, resulted (as is usual) in very favorable financial success. The efforts of the lady members of the congregation are to be credited with such satisfactory achievement.

COUNCILMEN-elect Depew, Livingston, Gardner, Ginna, Newhall, Kaufman, Rushmore and Thompson were present at the Council Chamber during the meeting of that body on Monday evening. They were probably interested and possibly instructed.

THE young child of Mr. John Bodine of North Plainfield, a boy between seven and eight years of age, died suddenly on Saturday last, after a short illness, of membraneous croup. Mr. Bodine has the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends, in his loss.

ANOTHER meeting of the Council-elect was held at the residence of the Mayor, on Tuesday evening. It is, however, impossible to surmise the policy of the incomers regarding the State and County tax and the liquor license questions. A reappointment of the present city officers for the coming year, seems assured.

GAZELLE Hose Co. No. 1, of this city, will give its Second Annual Ball on Thursday evening Jan. 12th, at Van Deventer Hall. The music will be furnished by Prof. Sam'l Frazee and an enjoyable night of dance may be expected. Seats in the galleries will be reserved for spectators without extra charge.

THE report of the President of the Children's Home Association—Mrs. N. E. Kimball—records a year past of most generous and satisfactory labor in helping and saving the children of the poor. Assistance almost unlimited in the way of food and clothing was furnished, and healthy and happy homes obtained for many.

COUNTY Attorney P. H. Gilhooly served the members of the Common Council and officers of the city, on Monday evening, with writs demanding them to show cause before the Supreme Court in February next, why a mandamus should not be issued against the city for the deficiency in the State and County tax of 1880, amounting to $7,456.21 and interest.

THE Trinity Reformed Church held a most entertaining and pleasurable sociable in its lecture room on Thursday evening of last week. The programme consisted of singing by Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Doty, and the very talented piano performance of Miss Ada Marsh. Social intercourse and enjoyable refreshments added to the success of the occasion.

THE veteran carrier of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST—Mr. Charles Cook—who has so long and faithfully served our subscribers with their paper through all seasons and every kind of weather, will shortly call on such with his New Year's address, pleased in the natural belief and just hope that his services will be substantially appreciated in a generous manner.

THE Crescent avenue Presbyterian church Young People's Association held its monthly sociable in the parlors of the church during last Friday evening. The customary entertainment consisted of some very admirable elocution by Mrs. Raynor, vocal music by Miss Smith and exceedingly praiseworthy piano solos by Miss Etta Gavett. The usual efforts of the refreshment committee were visibly appreciated.

DR. T. H. Tomlinson delivered the first of a series of Health Talks for young men exclusively, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Thursday evening of last week. The subject was "Physical Degeneracy." The next will be given on the evening of Feb. 16th, by Dr. H. H. Lowrie, on a topic to be announced. Tickets for the course may be obtained without charge, by applying to the Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association.

THE Rev. John Lord, D. D., the well-known and able lecturer on biblical and historical characters, occupied the pulpit of the Crescent avenue church on Sunday last. Dr. Lord has been one of the most intimate associates of Dr. Bliss since the boy-hood days of both, and it is a result of such personal friendship that the pulpit of the latter is so often honored by the former. In the evening Dr. Lord lectured on Moses to a large and interested audience.

THE Children's Home Association's Annual Fair, which closed on Thursday night of last week after three days and evenings at the M. E. church S. S. rooms, was a remarkable success in every particular. The customary "auction" that winds-up such affairs was omitted for the reason that nothing remained unsold except a few articles that had been sent in to be disposed of on commission. The financial result is believed to have been unusually satisfactory.

ONE of the principals, the two seconds and the two referees in the recent fight over-the-brook, were on Saturday last served by Constable Weaver as ordered by the Court with warrants for such participation, and upon being taken before Justice Clark furnished bail to the amount of $1,500 each to appear before the Somerset County Court. Fifteen of the spectators of the event were also subpoenaed as witnesses. The Grand Jury adjourned on Wednesday, without presenting any indictment against the parties.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE.—This work is before us, and those who send 10 cents to James Vick, Rochester, N. Y., for it, will be disappointed. Instead of getting a cheap thing, as the price would seem to indicate, they will receive a very handsome work of 130 pages, and perhaps 1000 illustrations,—not cheap, but elegant illustrations, on the very best of calendared paper, and as a set off to the whole, two beautiful Colored Plates that are worth twice the price of the book.

THE Simpson M. E. Church at Perth Amboy was dedicated on Tuesday. Bishop Simpson preached in the morning and in the evening a sermon was delivered by Dr. Bettis, President of the Drew Theological Seminary. Subscriptions sufficient to raise a debt of $2,000 were obtained and the society starts with its good work, most auspiciously. The congregation has for the past fourteen years been worshipping in the lecture-room of the church, and by dint of hard work and Christian fortitude are enabled to worship in the building as now completed.

THE days have begun to lengthen.

IT may be a "green Christmas" but let us hope not a "full graveyard."

A LARGE lot of new poster type just received at THE CONSTITUTIONALIST office.

PRESENT your absent friend or relative with a subscription to THE CONSTITUTIONALIST for 1882.

THE ball promised in Laing's Hall on Wednesday of next week, has been postponed. The "Jolly 12" will see their lady friends, later.

IN our advertising columns will be noticed an opportunity for some one to buy out a grocery store with a well-established trade.

THE ice man setteth his house in order, yet he knoweth not whether the winter will be of sufficient coldness to bring forth a single cake.

CONSTABLE Wm. M. Pangborn of Scotch Plains, on Tuesday, sold such mere-desmed property as had been advertised for tax delinquency in that Township.

A HANDSOMELY dressed doll in a costume of pale blue trimmed with white lace, standing in Bachman's window at No 27 W. Front street, is the admiration of passers-by.

THE Ladies' Land League of Plainfield on Wednesday, forwarded $115 to Mr. Patrick Ford the editor of the Irish World, as a contribution of that society to the cause it supports.

THE attention of the Committee on Lamps is called to the fact that the residents in the vicinity still complain that the lamp under the New street bridge is seldom (if ever) lighted.

THE ladies of the Crescent avenue church have been arduously laboring for the past few days in beautifying the interior of that edifice with branches of the never-fading "always-green."

THE Christmas exercises of the Scotch Plains Baptist Sunday school, will take place on Tuesday evening of next week at the church. The Rev. N. B. Thompson of Netherwood will address the gathering.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST'S press has just issued a handsome menu in lithographic and typographic work. It is for the bountiful Christmas dinner to be given by Mr. J. B. Miller of Laing's Hotel, to his patrons.

THE President on Wednesday sent in to the Senate the name of Mr. Elias R. Pope as his nomination for Postmaster of this city. The Senate, however, adjourned until Thursday of next week without confirming the nomination.

THE address of Mr. Ralph Wells, of New York, the renowned Sunday School worker, in the First Presbyterian Church on Friday of last week, was full of advice and instruction to the large attendance that presented itself.

THE Collector of Fanwood Township, Mr. Wm. Hetfield, on Wednesday (one day before due) paid the County Collector the entire amount of County and State school taxes required from his township, amounting to $4,633.24.

IT is reported as probable that Van Deventer Hall will be re-floored, and the present settled and uneven boarding taken up. Should this be done, it will be finished in time for the dance of Gazelle Hose Co., on January 12th.

RESOLUTIONS of respect of the late Dr. Chas. H. Stillman, regret at his death and condolence to his family, were adopted by the Common Council on Monday night and will be found in the proceedings of that body, elsewhere.

JULIAN SCOTT, the artist, is engaged in painting an interior portrait picture, representing Dr. Chas. H. Stillman and family, of this city, which is to be completed in time for the annual exhibition at the National Academy of Design, N. Y. City.

THE Saengerbunders will enjoy the evening of Monday next with their friends and families in a genuine old Christmas style. Dancing, singing and a "tree" loaded with presents for all, will be a few of the attractions for the enjoyment of which invitations have been issued.

A COUPLE of intoxicated individuals, that had become disorderly on Saturday evening off of their week's wages, were locked up in the City Jail over Sunday. The following day they were brought before Judge Runyon and dealt with according to the law.

THE "trial" intended (?) to come before the Board of Managers of the Fire Department on Tuesday evening, was again put off, as only Secretary Gillies was present. It now remains for the Board at its January meeting to appoint another special meeting to consider the matter.

THE efficient janitor of the Common Council Chamber—Mr. Alex. Hamilton—has had thrust upon him the honor of being the first colored juror that ever served in that capacity in Plainfield. On two recent cases before Justice Wadsworth, Mr. Hamilton has acted as a juryman with credit to himself.

ZEPHYR Hook & Ladder Co. is expecting its new truck very shortly, and are already negotiating with the Goodwill Band for its services at the head of the parade to be had in honor of the apparatus upon its arrival. The grand supper to be served on the same occasion (we might casually remark) is also being arranged.

THE second of the free lectures by local speakers under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Yerkes on Tuesday evening. Subject, "Oriental Life." A large audience was held interested throughout the address. On Thursday evening, January 26th, Mayor Randolph will lecture on "Life in the Mountains," at a place to be designated.

MR. THOMAS E. WEST, agent for the firm of Everts & Peck, of Philadelphia, is canvassing this city for the illustrated history of Middlesex and Union Counties, a book that is of interest to every resident in either County. His address is E. P. Thorn's Mansion House. We can assure our readers that this book is a valuable one for information and statistics regarding the Counties named.

THE Rev. Dr. F. S. De Hass, at the Park Avenue Baptist Church on Tuesday evening, delivered the first of a series of three proposed lectures, upon classic, oriental and bible lands. The speaker, a former U. S. Consul at Jerusalem, was enabled from experience and knowledge of the scenes portrayed to deliver a most instructive lecture as well as an interesting one. The following lectures will be given at the same place on the evenings of Jan. 17th and 31st.

ALTHOUGH Messrs. Edsall & Price have already supplied a large demand upon them for holiday goods, the end is not yet, and by replenishing their stock from day to day they have been enabled to meet the wants of their immense patronage. Those who have not made their selections are reminded that it is not too late to secure some of the most attractive bargains there that they have yet offered. The inducements offered in closing out these goods at the end of the season, are worth looking after.

'TWAS Christmas eve, and an old maid crept, sadly and lonely off to bed. But ere she closed her eyes and slept. A curious fancy entered her head.
And she smiled, then blushed, and said
'pooh, pooh!' Then took her stocking with proper care. And as half ashamed, yet hoping too, hung it up by the chimney there.
'This is Christmas eve,' she said; 'Others get presents, mayhap I can; who knows but Santa Claus may be led, to put in my stocking,'—she blushed, 'a man.'—
Oil City Derrick.

LAST Sunday was "Missionary Day" in the M. E. church. Rev. Mr. Stockton delivered an illustrated lecture in the morning on the "Progress of Missions." In the afternoon the Sunday School held their quarterly and annual missionary exercises, their offerings for the day being $126, making a total for the year of $200. In the evening Rev. J. L. Hurlbut preached a sermon full of interest and information in reference to the missionary cause, dwelling particularly upon the fact that all the great barriers of opposition to the spread of evangelical truth throughout the world have been broken down, and the triumph of missionary effort thereby assured.

THE Seabright Sentinel is the name of a new paper started at Seabright, N. J., edited by P. Hall Packer. The Sentinel is a clean, newsy and well edited sheet, and will, no doubt meet with the success it deserves. Among its local items we observe a deserved complimentary notice to our former townsman, Wm. P. Van Aken, the pioneer steam dock and bridge builder of the United States, who is now constructing a steamboat dock at the foot of River street, that town. Mr. A. has also superintended the building of several thousand feet of diking to make a straight and navigable channel of the river at Seabright, which work was ordered done by the General Government.

THE pupils of the late Prof. Richardson, of the Freehold Young Ladies' Seminary, propose to erect a monument to his memory. At a meeting held at Mrs. Gov. Parker's, on the 14th inst., an organization was effected to be called "The Richardson Memorial Association." It is desired that every pupil shall contribute to this object. Parents of deceased pupils are requested to make contributions in their behalf. The officers of the Association are Mrs. Joel Parker, President; Mrs. Jos. T. Laird, Treasurer; Mrs. Chas. A. Bennett, Secretary; to either of whom contribution may be addressed. Former pupils are requested to send their address to the Secretary, Freehold, N. J.

THE Common Council's Committee on Water Supply was discharged on Monday evening after an inanimate existence of some months.

THERE is to be organized by Miss Burroughs, at her North Plainfield seminary early in the coming year, an afternoon class in literature.

MANAGER G. B. Bunnell of the Broadway and Ninth street Museum of New York city, has engaged Van Deventer Hall for January 2d and 3d, and proposes to give therein a first-class entertainment.

A MOST welcome and substantial Christmas gift is that of $1,200 which it is rumored will be given by the First Baptist church to its Mount Olive brethren, towards paying off the debt of the latter.

FRIENDS of the Warren Mission desiring to contribute toward the Christmas festivities of the school may hand or send their funds to Messrs. C. E. Tyler or Frank H. Gardner. The festivities will occur on next Wednesday afternoon and evening.

ABBEY'S Uncle Tom's Cabin Co., with a full staff of talented actors and actresses including a genuine four-legged donkey and a pack of the most improved bloodhounds, will give an entertainment at Van Deventer Hall on Thursday evening of next week.

SUPPOSING the incoming Council should omit passing the necessary resolution to raise by tax $10,000 for city purposes, in view of the fact that it would be seized to pay the quota of State and County taxes they have no legal means of collecting? Just "supposing"!

COMPTON, the Front street candy manufacturer has a fine holiday display in his windows. The little ones are sure to go to Compton's for their candy when they have spare change. He gives them a pure article that does not injure the health. Go to Compton's.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST Almanac for 1882 having met with such unqualified and flattering success, we propose issuing a "Carrier's Address" for the New Year, that we feel safe in claiming will be the handsomest specimen of the kind ever presented. Be at home on the morning of Jan. 2d, when "Cookie" arrives, and show your appreciation of his past service.

Holiday Wines and Liquors.

Those desirous of procuring genuine and pure liquors, also, wines or segars for the holidays, are reminded that at E. P. Thorn's Mansion House, on Park avenue, they will find the same. Mr. Thorn has had long experience in the business and deals only in the best brands for family use, while his prices are very reasonable. We refer our readers to his advertisement in another part of this paper.

Masonic Election.

At a regular communication of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, A. F. & A. M. of this city, held in their rooms on Tuesday evening, Dec. 20th, the following named were elected officers for the ensuing year:

W. M.—Wm. R. Cock.
S. W.—B. F. Coriell.
J. W.—J. P. Johnson.
Treas.—J. L. Hall.
Sec.—Ed. Nelson.
Trustees—Wm. R. Maxson, James C. Pope and Jacob Adams.

Installation ceremonies Tuesday evening, Jan. 3, 1882.

A Wager that was Paid.

Recently, a young lady of this city wagered with a young gentleman the price of five pounds of candy on a certain matter. The young lady lost the wager, and to make her word good, had Foote, the Park avenue candy manufacturer, make up an immense candy cane, four feet in length and weighing 5½ pounds, which was properly packed and shipped to the destination of the winner, at New Orleans. We trust the article arrived safely at its destination, a tribute to Mr. Foote's artistic skill in his line of business, as well as a reminder to those directly interested that a "bet is a bet."

Buy at Home.

We believe we can say truthfully without any flattery whatever, that never before in Plainfield was there such a stock of goods suitable for holiday gifts displayed by our merchants. The person who cannot be suited amid all these stocks must be indeed fastidious. Therefore, we say to our townspeople make it a point to patronize your home merchants when you select your holiday presents, thus stimulating home enterprise and causing your disbursement to remain at home instead of being sent to benefit the merchants of other places. The columns of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST will show you who the merchants are who have made preparations for the holiday season.

Fine Watches.

We learn that it is the intention of A. Saltzman & Co., the celebrated watch manufacturers of 15 Maiden Lane, N. Y. city, to remove their establishment to more commodious quarters in the Spring, their increasing business necessitating such a change. In the meanwhile they invite their friends to call and inspect their large stock of fine goods, either at the above mentioned number, or their agents in Plainfield, Messrs. B. G. Magie, North avenue, or J. A. Clare, on Park avenue. For a handsome and useful holiday gift, there can be nothing better or more appropriate than one of Saltzman's watches. The writer can vouch for the fact of having had in his possession one of these celebrated watches for over a year which has not varied two minutes in time during that period.

K. of P.

Last Thursday evening will long be remembered with a good deal of pleasure by the members of the above fraternity of Somerville, Bound Brook and Plainfield. The brethren of the latter Lodge ("74") had been notified to be at the Plainfield depot to meet the visiting brethren who were to arrive on the 8:42 P. M. train, which arrived, however, at 9 o'clock, when two carloads of visitors disembarked, and after they had endured a general hand shaking all around, the line of march was taken up—walking two by three—for the residence of Mr. Eugene V. Lorton on Fifth street, who had been selected as a kind of victim of the occasion. In a few minutes the head of the procession "fetched up" to the residence of Bro. Lorton, who stood at his front door and shook hands with his brethren and their wives or sisters, (and those who had no sisters of their own did the next best thing they could under the circumstances), until he got so tired that he had to stop to take a rest. By this time the parlor, sitting room, kitchen and bed rooms were packed "like mackerel in a barrel," (No. 2's, 8 cts per pound). Some of the visitors began to look for the garret, while those who remained outside were on the eve of breaking in the cellar door so as to get in out of the cold, when word was passed through the crowd to adjourn to St. Mary's Hall, which had been engaged for the "after ceremonies" of the occasion. In a few minutes the hall contained as happy a company as ever assembled within its walls. After the brethren had hung up their hats and overcoats in one room and the ladies had hung up their "fixins" in another, all seemed to be in readiness for what was to follow. Mr. Daniel Rockafellar of Somerville Lodge, then called the assembly to order and then addressed himself to Bro. Lorton, who holds the position of G. K. of R. and S. (Grand Keeper of Records and Seals) of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, and spoke of the very high esteem in which he is held by the Grand officers and the fraternity throughout the State. Bro. Rockafellar then, on behalf of Lodges present and of the Grand officers, presented him with a beautiful solid silver tea set as a token of esteem and love, which he begged the brother to accept as such. Bro. Lorton knocked "clean off his pins" by this, to him, unexpected procedure, after clearing his throat, said that he could not find words strong enough to express his feelings and about all he could say was "I thank you." After speaking of his relations to the Order and of the "mystic tie" that bind the hearts of the brethren together in the great principles of the Order, he directed a few well-timed remarks to the ladies present. Said he—"I am glad to see so many of you here; glad that you brought something to eat with you; glad for your sakes and glad for—my sake," and well he might be, for there were enough in the hall to eat out the best regulated family in Plainfield. At the conclusion of the speech-making, the next thing in order was to inspect the present. The seven pieces were examined inside and outside, turned upside down, the brethren expressing themselves in terms of approval, while the ladies said—!! several times. As soon as everybody recovered their senses—so to speak—a "Grand March" was formed, Bro. Lorton and wife "leading off" followed by some fifty couple, keeping step to music furnished by Sam'l Frazee and a gentleman from Italy. After they had marched all they wanted to, they formed into "sets" for dancing which was kept up until after midnight, when the entire company was "let loose" at tables loaded down with appetizing viands which were devoured in an astonishingly short time, after which dancing was resumed until the "wee sma' hours," when the company gradually dispersed, the out-of-town visitors taking the early morning train for home. Everything passed off in a manner most satisfactory to all who attended.

Christmas Services.

The different churches on Sunday will have special services in the morning appropriate to Christmas Day, and the Crescent Avenue and Trinity Reformed will hold afternoon exercises participated in by their scholars. The celebrations for the children will occur as follows: The Friends' Society on Monday afternoon; the Crescent avenue and First Presbyterian on Tuesday evening; the Park avenue Baptist and Grace Episcopal on Wednesday evening; the First Baptist, Trinity Reformed, Methodist Episcopal, Seventh Day Baptist and Holy Cross Episcopal on Thursday evening. The Warren Mission children will have their "good time" during Wednesday afternoon and evening, and the Children of the Home will have a Christmas Tree—with all that the term implies—at 4 o'clock of the same afternoon. The Congregationalists will "celebrate the occasion" some day later in January.

Resolutions of Regret.

At a meeting of the Board of Education, held on Thursday evening, Dec. 15, 1881, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

BOARD OF EDUCATION,
Plainfield, Dec. 15, 1881.

WHEREAS, It having pleased the Almighty Ruler in his wise providence to remove from earth and usefulness our associate member and honored President, DR. CHARLES H. STILLMAN, whose lengthened and active life was devoted to the welfare of humanity; and

WHEREAS, From the first inception of the thought in his own mind until practical success culminated in the Public schools of Plainfield, our departed friend labored with enlightened energy to establish, maintain and perfect the noble cause of education; and

WHEREAS, No eulogy we might pen could tell the story of his beneficent work half so well as the many intelligent men and women of this city and throughout the land, who freely derived instruction within institutions his personal efforts caused to exist and flourish; therefore be it

Resolved, That bowing in humble resignation to our Heavenly Father's will, and deeply regretting the loss of such a faithful friend and co-worker as Doctor Stillman, we extend to his mourning family our sincere sympathy, and would console them and ourselves with the sweet reflection that his manly spirit has entered into eternal rest, and that the good deeds he wrought survive to bless his memory.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, suitably engrossed, be presented to the family of our deceased associate.

Golden Wedding.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Garretson was celebrated at their home at Millstone on the afternoon and evening of December 14th. Quite unexpected by the aged pair their children and grandchildren, and more than a hundred people from their large circle of relatives and friends, came together bringing their cordial good wishes and congratulations. A sumptuous repast was provided, and the severe storm of the evening did not repress the good spirits that pervaded all present. A brief address, in full sympathy with the occasion, was made by Rev. E. T. Corwin and Rev. W. B. Voorhees led in prayer. Many of the readers of the CONSTITUTIONALIST will remember Mr. and Mrs. Garretson, as formerly living on their farm three miles south of Plainfield. For thirty-two years they were the constant attendants at one or other of the Presbyterian churches in this city. When the work and care of the farm became too severe for their declining strength, they removed to Millstone, where they have since lived, enjoying a well-earned repose. The credit of the very pleasurable and memorable occasion is largely due to the efforts of Messrs. Samuel and J. Smith Garretson, the two sons of the aged couple. The former still resides on the old homestead property at Middlebush, and the latter is one of our well-known citizens. They were present with their families and their efforts for the enjoyment of all resulted most successfully.

Expert Burglary.

Early on Tuesday morning a party of thieves entered the store of Mr. Elmore Moffett at the corner of Madison avenue and Second street, by inserting a jimmy between the double doors and prying them open. Some smoking tobacco, cigars and an old coat of little value, were all, however, that was taken. The cigars were subsequently found strewn over the sidewalk in front of the post office, and the coat was left in the clothing establishment of Mr. S. C. Lillenstern, whose place was next entered by the same means of forcing open the front door. When daylight dawned and the double deed was discovered, the scene around the burglarized quarters was quite exciting. Mr. Lillenstern was unable to judge the exact amount of his loss, as the quantity of clothing, gent's furnishing goods, jewelry, &c., missing, was not apparent. He, however, estimated his loss at about $2,000 and immediately offered a reward of $150 for the conviction of the guilty parties and recovery of the goods. On Wednesday morning an item appeared in the N. Y. Sun, recording the arrest of a suspicious character by officer Humphrey Lynch of Bergen Point, who had noticed the man with four others on a passing oil train at that place, about 4 o'clock of Tuesday morning. The officer after a gallant struggle succeeded in capturing and locking up one of the party. Capt. Dodd and Mr. Lillenstern went to Bergen Point as soon as they learned of the arrest on Wednesday, and found that the prisoner had in his possession three suits of clothes and a quantity of other articles that were a portion of Mr. Lillenstern's missing property, as well as a full assortment of the most improved burglary tools. The necessary papers were issued by Justice Wadsworth on Wednesday afternoon, and the prisoner was to be brought before him for examination the next day. The accused arrived in charge of Captain Dodd by the 2:04 P. M. train Thursday, and his examination set down for this afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the evidence necessary for his committal will be forthcoming.

WESTFIELD WISPS.

MERRY Xmas to all!

In the case of Wm. Long against Andrew McMurray for assault and battery, the defendant waived an examination and gave bail for his appearance at next term of court.

James M. French, whose auction of farm goods occurred last week, is moving into the house owned by him in the village corner of Prospect street and Dudley avenue.

On last Saturday evening, Dec. 17th inst., a raffle for a mule took place at Roulston's Turf Exchange, Fredrick Baker the owner of the mule being the lucky winner.

The officers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School, propose holding their Christmas festivities for the children of the school, on Monday evening Dec. 26th inst.

Mary Emma Burke, wife of John T. Burke, died on Friday last of apoplexy. The burial occurred on Monday, Dec. 19th inst. at Plainfield. Mr. Burke has the sympathy of our community in his affliction.

The Rev. Joseph Greaves, residing in Westfield and former Pastor of the Baptist church, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church last Sunday, in the absence of its pastor the Rev. William H. Gill.

William W. Connoly, Collector, has made his return to Justice Jacques of the delinquent taxes for the year 1881. The list shows less taxes unpaid at this time than for several years before. The total number of names returned is 456, amount of taxes $4,836.62.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 15th inst., John Kane was arrested for making threats towards his wife. She made the complaint before Justice Jacques. Kane entered into bonds in the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars to keep the peace especially towards his wife Winifred Kane.

Frederick Dolman, who was arrested last week and committed in default of bail to the County Jail for larceny of chickens from Mr. A. J. Collins, pleaded guilty to the same before the court of quarter-sessions on last Wednesday, and was sentenced by Judge McCormack to the County Jail for 30 days and pay costs.

The Collector of Westfield Township paid and settled in full with County Collector, for the County and State school taxes for the year of 1881, on Saturday last, Dec. 17th inst., it being a week before they are actually due. It was the first Township in the County that had done so. Let others go and do likewise.

The death of Lavina Moffett, wife of William Moffett, one of the old residents of our Township, occurred on Friday evening, Dec. 16th inst., after a long fit of sickness. The funeral took place on Monday from the Presbyterian church, of which she was a member, and burial in the old church yard adjoining the church. She was the mother of the Rev. William Moffett, Pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Camden, N. J.

On Saturday Justice Godfrey issued a warrant for assault and battery against Winfield Townley. Upon complaint of Frederick Clark, Townley was arrested and brought before the Justice and demanded an examination which was given. After hearing the testimony on both sides, the Justice decided to hold Townley to bail to await the action of the Grand Jury, in January next. Townley immediately gave the necessary security and was released from custody.

Winfield Townley made another complaint before Justice Jacques on Monday last, against Frederick Clark, for using threatening language against him, viz: "that he would shoot him." Clark was arrested and a hearing had before the Justice. After examining several witnesses and hearing the argument of Mr. English, Attorney for complainant, it was decided to dismiss the complaint.

On Wednesday morning Dec. 21st, the store window of Mr. P. Pearsall situated on Broad street adjoining E. A. Clark's Butter Market, was broken and three suits of clothing stolen and carried away. It is evidently not the work of a professional thief by the bungling manner the job was done, making noise enough to arouse the next door neighbor. Mr. Benj. Woodruff, who came to his window and called very loud, thinking it was some person knocking at his door. The thief or thieves made a hasty flight as they dropped one of the vests a short distance from the store on Broad street.

One of the young men of our village, old enough to know better, and who has been repeatedly warned about his using loud and profane language upon the public streets, went to Plainfield on Thursday evening, Dec. 15th inst. and after imbibing too much intoxicating drinks became very abusive. Complaints were made against him and he was arrested and sentenced to a term of ten days in the County Jail. This ought to to be a lesson to him and also to a number of others in our place, or sooner or later they will find themselves in the same position.

On Tuesday morning James McMurray made a complaint and affidavit before Justice Jacques for a search warrant on the house and buildings of Andrew J. Collins on the mountains. The warrant was placed in the hands of officer Marsh who went with Mr. McMurray to the premises of Collins and found a portion of the property which Mr. McMurray claimed he had lost and which belonged to him. The officer brought the property and Mr. Collins before the Justice on Tuesday evening and after a very stormy examination the Justice decided to hold Mr. Collins to bail to await the action of the Grand Jury at next term of Court.

On Friday night, the 16th inst., some person attempted to enter the house of Robert R. Sinclair, on Elm street. Mr. Sinclair was awakened by the barking of his watch dog, and going to the window saw two men in the rear of his house. He raised the sash and fired several shots at them from a revolver, when they immediately fled. No clew to whom the parties were, was obtained. On Sunday night an attempt was made to enter the dwelling of an adjoining neighbor, Mr. Westbrook, on corner of Elm and Orchard streets. The thief or thieves succeeded in breaking a portion of the lock of a side door, but the noise awakened Mr. Westbrook, who frightened the parties away.

Why don't you try Carter's Liver Pills? They are a positive cure for sick headache and all the ills produced by disordered liver. Only one pill a dose.

The ashes of the late fire at Morristown have been sifted and resulted in the finding of a $700 diamond ring, a gold watch studded with diamonds, a valuable watch guard seal, about $10,000 worth of jewelry, $75 in gold and other articles.

"How Do You Manage," said a lady to her friend, "to appear so happy all the time?" "I always have Parker's Ginger Tonic on hand," was the reply, "and thus keep myself and family in good health and spirits. See adv.

NO ARGUMENT.

You have allowed your bowels to become habitually costive, your liver has become torpid, the same thing ails your kidneys, and you are just used up. Now be sensible, get a package of Kidney-Wort, take it faithfully, and soon you will forget you've got any such organs, for you will be a well man.—Albany Argus.

A Law which is to eminate from a Patterson representative will be introduced into the Legislature this Winter, authorizing the granting of licenses for the privelege of carrying concealed weapons in this State, and inflicting a penalty for carrying such without a license. The same law will make it an offence to sell fire arms to minors without a written order from their parents and guardians.

A SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Do you know what it is to suffer with Piles? If you do, you know what is one of the worst torments of the human race. The most perfect cure ever known is Kidney-Wort. It cures constipation, and then the free action it induces restores health to the diseased parts without further [illegible]. Try it without delay. The dry and the liquid are both sold by Druggists.—Globe.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

The following statement of William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., is so remarkable that we beg to ask for it the attention of our readers. He says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a VIOLENT BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS followed by a severe cough. I soon began to lose my appetite and flesh. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I expended over a hundred dollars in doctors and medicines. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I laughed at my friends, thinking that my case was incurable, but I got a bottle to satisfy them, when to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better. My hope, once dead, began to revive, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have the past three years.

"I write this hoping you will publish it, so that every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced to take DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I have taken two bottles and can positively say that it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. My cough has almost entirely disappeared and I shall soon be able to go to work." Sold by druggists. 1 3

Nobody Enjoys the nicest surroundings if in bad health. There are miserable people about to-day to whom a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic would bring more solid comfort than all the doctors they have ever tried. See other column.

JOHN L. CROWELL,
December 1st, 1881. Clerk.

THE REVISED CENSUS.

The revised and corrected returns of population show the following to be accurate: Alabama, 1,262,505; Arizona, 40,440; Arkansas, 802,525; California, 864,694; Colorado, 194,327; Connecticut, 622,700; Dakota, 135,177; Delaware, 146,608; District of Columbia, 177,624; Florida, 269,493; Georgia, 1,542,180; Idaho, 32,610; Illinois, 3,077,871; Indiana, 1,978,301; Iowa, 1,624,615; Kansas, 996,096; Kentucky, 1,648,690; Louisiana, 939,946; Maine, 648,936; Maryland, 934,943; Massachusetts, 1,783,085; Michigan, 1,636,937; Minnesota, 780,773; Mississippi, 1,131,597; Missouri, 2,168,380; Montana, 39,159; Nebraska, 452,402; Nevada, 62,266; New Hampshire, 346,991; New Jersey, 1,131,116; New Mexico, 119,565; New York, 5,082,871; North Carolina, 1,399,750; Ohio, 3,198,062; Oregon, 174,768; Pennsylvania, 4,282,891; Rhode Island, 276,531; South Carolina, 995,577; Tennessee, 1,542,359; Texas, 1,591,749; Utah, 143,963; Vermont, 332,286; Virginia, 1,512,565; Washington, 75,116; West Virginia, 618,457; Wisconsin, 1,315,497; Wyoming, 20,789. Grand total, 50,155,783.

The Paterson Guardian gives the following illustrations: Democratic thieves—Tweed dying in jail, Sweeney in exile, Connolly forced to fly, Genet in prison, Garvey made to wear stripes, and Ingersoll, Keyser and the rest prosecuted to conviction, and all of them forced to disgorge. Republican thieves—Belknap strutting around Washington, Sheppard willing and ready to get back to the capital, Brady triumphant, Dorsey reveling in wealth, Colfax lecturing to the young men of the country, and Robeson in Congress, Sherman and Blaine reaching for the Presidency and Babcock in clover expectant."

The New Brunswick Times suggests a re-districting of the State for the next Congress which leaves the First District as it is; adds Monmouth to the Second District instead of Mercer; makes the Third District consist of Mercer, Hunterdon, Middlesex and Somerset; the Fourth, of Union, Morris, Warren and Sussex; the Fifth, of Passaic, Bergen and the towns of Belleville, Bloomfield, Caldwell, Franklin, Livingston, Montclair and West Orange of Essex, and part of Hudson county; the Sixth, of the balance of Essex, and the Seventh of the balance of Hudson. This would make three Democratic, three Republican and one close.

The Topeka (Kansas) Capital publishes an interview with Dr. Boynton in which he says that President Garfield's wound was not necessarily fatal, and that if he had had proper surgical treatment from the first he might have got well.

The Sun.

NEW YORK, 1882.

THE SUN for 1882 will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, shining, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democratic, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. THE SUN's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked.

THE SUN of 1869 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of THE SUN. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after THE SUN. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of THE SUN's example.

THE SUN of 1882 will be the same outspoken, truth-telling, and interesting newspaper.

By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with THE SUN. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn or in Bokhara.

In politics we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of THE SUN's political course.

THE WEEKLY SUN gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequaled merit, full market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific and domestic intelligence complete THE WEEKLY SUN, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like THE SUNDAY SUN, each number of which is a Golconda of interesting literature, with the best poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good-sized book, and infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little?

If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for THE SUN.

Our terms are as follows:

For the daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council and ordered to a third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

O. B. LEONARD, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 17, 1881.

AN ORDINANCE

Relating to the Treasurer of the City.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. The treasurer of the city shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, execute a bond in the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, to the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, conditioned for the true and faithful performance of all the duties of his office, with such freehold security as the common council shall approve and direct, which bond shall be submitted to the common council for its approval, and when so approved shall be deposited with the city clerk for safe keeping.

Sec. 2. The treasurer shall receive all moneys belonging or in any way appertaining to the city, and deposit the same in such bank as the common council shall from time to time designate as the depository of city moneys; and he shall open and keep two distinct accounts with such bank, one in the name of "The Treasurer of the City of Plainfield as Trustee for the State and County," to the credit of which he shall immediately deposit all moneys received by him for state and county taxes, and the other in the name of "The Treasurer of the City of Plainfield," to the credit of which he shall deposit all other moneys which he shall receive, belonging or in any way appertaining to the city.

Sec. 3. The treasurer shall, at or immediately after the time in each year when state and county taxes in said city shall become due and payable to the county collector, pay over to said county collector all moneys theretofore received by him derived from the collection of state and county taxes, and thereafter, whenever there shall be in said bank to the credit of said account in the name of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield as Trustee for the State and County, moneys derived from state and county taxes in the aggregate equal to or exceeding five hundred dollars, he shall immediately, by his own draft on such bank therefor, pay the same over to the county collector, and so far as practicable he shall, in every instance apply the moneys received from or on account of the state and county tax levy of each year to the payment of the deficiency of that year, and in each case of payment so made, he shall take a proper receipt therefor; and every other payment by the treasurer for the city shall be made by a draft on such bank, signed by him and countersigned by the city clerk, payable out of the funds in such bank to the credit of the said account in the name of the treasurer of the city of Plainfield; provided, however, that if at any time moneys derived from city taxes or other city funds, shall have been used to pay the city's quota of State and county taxes, then and in that event the treasurer shall transfer from the aforesaid account as trustee for the state and county to his aforesaid account as treasurer of the city, such sum as shall be required to make good to the city the amount so paid whenever there shall be a surplus to the credit of his said account as trustee for the State and County sufficient for that purpose over and above the amount required for the payment of the city's quota of state and county taxes.

Section 4. The Treasurer shall keep in a suitable book or books separate accounts of the several funds for which moneys shall be received or paid out by him, each under its proper head and title, so that the account of each of such funds shall show at all times the exact amount to the credit or debit of such fund. Moneys received for State and County taxes shall comprise one of such funds; moneys received for general city taxes shall comprise another of such funds; moneys received for taxes for the support of the city poor shall comprise another of such funds; moneys received for licenses and for fines and penalties paid to the city shall comprise another of such funds; moneys received for the City Library shall comprise another of such funds; and moneys received from other sources shall comprise others or another of such funds. The Treasurer shall also keep a detailed record of all assessments made or authorized to be made by the Common Council, setting forth the date and purposes of each assessment, the names of persons assessed, the amounts assessed against each and the date of the payment of the same.

Section 5. Whenever the Common Council shall borrow money on the credit and in the name of the city in anticipation of the collection of taxes, in pursuance of the provisions of the city charter in that behalf, the Treasurer shall prepare and sign a note for the amount borrowed, payable at such time as shall be fixed by the Common Council in conformity with the charter, which note shall likewise be signed by the Mayor, and, unless otherwise directed by the Common Council, the Treasurer shall cause such note to be discounted at the Bank, which at the time being shall be the designated depository of city moneys, and the net proceeds thereof to be deposited and credited to the account in the name of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield in such Bank. At the maturity of any note so discounted the Treasurer shall (unless otherwise directed by the Common Council) pay the same by his own draft on such Bank payable out of the moneys thereto to the credit of such last mentioned account, provided there shall be in such Bank to the credit of such account a sufficient sum for that purpose; and if he shall neglect so to do, and such payment shall not have been otherwise provided for by the Common Council, it shall be lawful for such Bank to apply so much of the moneys on deposit in such Bank to the credit of such account in the name of the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield as shall be required for that purpose, to the payment of such note, with all lawful interest and charges thereon, and thereupon to debit the amount of such note and interest and charges so paid to such account. In all other cases, payments by the Treasurer for the city shall be made only upon the presentation of a warrant or warrants drawn in pursuance of the provisions of the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance providing for the issue of warrants on the City Treasurer for all current claims against the City," approved June 4, 1873.

Section 6. The Treasurer shall render to the Common Council at each of its regular meetings, a statement of all moneys received and disbursed by him for the city, and for State and County taxes, or credited or debited to the city in either of the aforesaid accounts with said Bank, from the date of his last preceding statement; and at the last meeting of the Common Council in each year he shall render to the Common Council a statement of all moneys received and disbursed for the city and for State and County taxes, or credited or debited to the city in either of the aforesaid accounts with said Bank during the current year, and also a statement of all assessments remaining unpaid.

Section 7. The Treasurer shall submit his Books to the Mayor or to the Common Council or its appropriate committee for inspection whenever he shall be requested by the Mayor or Common Council or such committee so to do.

Section 8. The ordinance entitled "An Ordinance describing the duties of the City Treasurer," approved June 2, 1869, is hereby repealed.

BABY'S STOCKINGS.

Hang up the baby's stocking,
Be sure you don't forget!
The dear little dimpled darling!
She never saw Christmas yet;
But I've told her all about it,
And she opened her big blue eyes,
And I am sure she understood me,
She looked so funny and wise.

Dear, dear, what a tiny stocking!
It doesn't take much to hold
Such little pink toes as baby's
Away from the frost and cold.
But then for the baby's Christmas
It never will do at all;
Why, Santa Claus wouldn't be looking
For anything half so small.

I know what we'll do for the baby;
I've thought of the very best plan;
I'll borrow a stocking of grandma—
The longest that ever I can,
And you'll hang it by mine, dear mother,
Right here in the corner, so,
And write a letter to Santa,
And fasten it on to the toe.

Write, "This is the baby's stocking
That hangs in the corner here;
You never have seen her, Santa,
For she only came this year;
But she's just the blessedest baby;
And now, before you go,
Just cram her stocking with goodies,
From the top clear down to the toe."

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

PAUL GARWIN'S CHRISTMAS EVE.

BY J. T. TROWBRIDGE.

Christmas came on Sunday that year, as it did this year. Saturday evening was accordingly Christmas eve; and there was one good man, at least, to whom that circumstance gave a double satisfaction.

Mr. George Garwin had come home from his noisy place of business, to his tranquil fireside, enjoyed his well-served six o'clock dinner, and settled down comfortably to his newspaper, thankful that it was the end of the week; and that another Christmas eve found him alive and prosperous, with all his family about him.

He heard the door-bell ring faintly, but did not mind it until a servant came to say there was a man at the door who wished to speak with him.

"What name?" said Mr. George Garwin.

"He didn't give his name. He said he wished to see you just a minute on business."

"On business!" said Mr. George Garwin, and the face so bland and satisfied before became darkened by a frown.

For in Mr. George Garwin there were two really quite distinct men; the man of business, and the man of home and society. The first, exact and exacting, upright, prompt and often stern; the second, about as genial a friend and indulgent a father as any you will meet between one Christmas and another.

Mr. George Garwin liked to keep these two individuals entirely separate, and was always annoyed when he found his twin selves getting a little mixed.

"On business!" he repeated, laying down his paper, dropping the glasses from his nose, and going to the entry with a harsh, forbidding countenance, not at all calculated to cheer the humble person he found there.

That person was a grimy mechanic, who stood hat in hand, his head of short bristling black hair bowed in a rather abashed manner under the brilliant gas-light, his wet boots planted on the elegant soft carpet, and clusters of newly-fallen snowflakes melting on his soiled and sombre clothing.

"Warson!" Mr. George Garwin exclaimed, staring at the intruder. "What are you here for?"

"If you please sir," began the man—"I beg your pardon, sir—I'm sorry to be obliged to ask it."

The look and voice of Mr. George Garwin embarrassed him so that his voice here became lost in an incoherent stammer.

"To ask what?" demanded Mr. George Garwin.

"Money, sir!" said the poor man.

"Money!" echoed Mr. George Garwin. "How happens it that you come here for money?"

"It's only my dues I am after," said the man Warson, plucking up courage, speaking more firmly. "My week's wages, if you please, sir."

"I don't understand this," said Mr. George Garwin, with his hands behind him and his chin out, in a very arrogant attitude. "My cashier has orders to pay every man every Saturday night every cent due him. I draw checks for him. That's all I have to do with any man's wages."

"That's true, sir," said Warson. "And sorry I am to trouble you; but I was off this afternoon for two hours, on account of my child's sickness, and when I got back to the shop, the cashier said I was too late; he had locked up his safe. He said it was you orders to lock that always at half-past six."

"He was right!" said Mr. George Garwin. "It's the rule; we must have rules, and we mustn't allow them to be broken. I have another rule; never to transact business out of business hours. I can do nothing for you until Monday. Then you shall have your wages."

"It's a sorry word you speak for me and my poor family. And to-morrow Christmas of all days!" said Warson, with a tremor in his voice. "But if you say it, I don't expect it will be unsaid. I know you for a hard man, Mr. Garwin!"

"If you know me for a hard man, don't come to me on such errands," said Mr. George Garwin, with a singular change in his look and voice. "But I never expected a workman of mine would say that!"

Warson went away, reluctant and dissatisfied; and Mr. George Garwin—his business-self sadly mixed up with his domestic-self, to the manifest detriment of both—walked back to his sitting-room and evening paper.

Then Mrs. George Garwin, who had overheard the talk in the entry, and had a glimpse of the snow-flaked, grimy mechanic, said, in a tone of quiet pathos:

"The poor man really looked as if he needed the money. I am sorry you couldn't give it to him."

Mr. George Garwin was feeling a good deal disturbed by Warson's last words, and he was glad of an opportunity to defend himself.

"So am I sorry. But it won't do to break over my rule. If I begin to let my men come after me here on business matter, they'd be no end to it. Shop is one thing, home is another. And I mean to keep the two distinct."

"Of course, you are right," said Mrs. George Garwin; "but it did seem as if this was an exceptional case."

"I can't make exceptions. I must treat all alike. This will teach him to tod the mark in the future. I'll teach him, too, not to be impudent!"

Mrs. Garwin wanted to say something about the man's sick child, but forbore, seeing how much her husband was annoyed. And having, by his last remark, quieted his conscience—if it was that which had been disturbed—Mr. George Garwin resumed the reading of his evening paper.

In about half an hour, Mr. George Garwin, his domestic-self now well disentangled from the other, looked up cheerfully, and asked about the children's presents. Being told what purchases had been made for them, and that the girls were even then in another room plotting surprises for their parents and their brother Paul, he smiled approvingly, and asked—

"Where's Paul?"

"Paul hadn't spent the five dollars you gave him for Christmas; and he went out a little while ago, I think, to buy something."

"Let's see what he will do with his money," said Mr. George Garwin, with a pleasant laugh. "Paul is shrewd! Paul is nobody's fool! We'll see!"

At the end of another half hour, having examined some of the presents, particularly those which had been bought in his name, and talked in a genial, glowing manner about the great comforts of life with which they were blessed (they had no sick child), he again inquired—

"Where's Paul? Hasn't he come in yet?"

"That must be his step now!" said Mrs. Garwin, quietly putting out of sight a skating-cap she was embroidering.

The hall door opened; somebody was heard shaking snow from an overcoat in the entry; then a ruddy-faced boy of fifteen came and looked into the sitting-room.

"Come in, Paul!" called Mr. George Garwin. "Let's look at you! I want to know if you found a use for your money?"

Paul entered hesitatingly, with an embarrassed smile.

"What did you buy?" said his mother.

For answer he gave an apologetic shrug, and threw up his empty hands.

"What! nothing?" cried his father.

"I suppose you'll think I've been very foolish," said Paul, looking rather ashamed as he took a seat with his damp boots at the register. "But I believe you said I could do just what I pleased with that five dollars."

"Certainly; taking it for granted that a boy of mine," said Mr. Garwin, "would do nothing silly or extravagant."

"Oh, I haven't been extravagant; and I hope you wont think I was very silly. And I'm going to tell you just what I have done with that money, if I can think how to begin."

Mr. Garwin looked at his son anxiously, but with an indulgent expression which encouraged him to go on.

"The truth is, as I was going along the street, two men who were walking just before me, and I heard one them ask the other to lend him a little money. To-morrow being Sunday—and Christmas, too, he must borrow a little, he said, or he couldn't have the heart to go home to his wife and children."

"I hope you haven't been giving money to a tramp on the street!" said Paul, stammering a little. "But I didn't believe this was a tramp. He couldn't have made up such a story—it was so straightforward"—the boy's eyes glistened—"and so touching! He was a laboring man, of some sort. He had been disappointed in not receiving some money due him; and if he couldn't borrow, or get some credit somewhere, his family must actually go hungry on Christmas, of all days in the year."

Mr. George Garwin knitted his brows—not with disapproval of what his son was telling him—but with a stinging recollection of his own conduct toward the man Warson an hour before.

"He, too, spoke of the sick child," thought he. "I might have given him something, if it hadn't been for my business rules, and if he hadn't been insolent. Go on, my son."

"I hope I didn't act too impulsively," said Paul, crossing his feet on the register. "But when he said that, I could not help thinking how much we have of everything that is good, and how little my five dollars would be missed here at home."

"Well, well, my boy!"

Mr. George Garwin coughed, to clear his throat, while the mother regarded Paul with eyes full of pride and affection.

"I didn't know just what to do," said Paul, going on with more confidence. "His friend couldn't lend him anything; and he turned down the street, saying he would try and get credit at a store where he had traded sometimes; though he didn't seem to have much hope that he would succeed. Then I stepped forward, and said to his friend—

"'Do you know that man?'

"'Yes,' he said; 'I know him very well, and an honest fellow he is; and it's a shame that he should be in such a condition of a Saturday night, and Christmas eve!'

"'How happens it,' I said, 'that an industrious, sober man can't get a living, so as to be a little more independent?'

"'My boy,' he said, 'you don't know anything about the lives of laboring men. He gets twelve dollars a week; but what is twelve dollars a week for supporting a family of six children with one or two of them sick half of the time, and the wife worn out with work and watching? How can he get anything ahead?'

"Of course, I couldn't answer that. So I just asked the man's name, and where he lived; I thought I would see for myself how he lived, if I could.

"Well," said Paul, after a moment's pause. "I found the place without much trouble, and, O father, such a place for an honest family to live in!

"All crowed together in one or two rooms; the mother, sick herself, with a sick child in her arms; one or two of the others crying;—I couldn't help thinking, what if we were obliged to live in that way."

"I'm glad—I'm glad"—Mr. Garwin cleared his throat again—"that you took the precaution to see for yourself. But what—what excuse did you make on calling there?"

"Oh, I had a very good excuse. I knew Mr. Thomas wasn't at home, so I asked for Mr. Thomas. I said I couldn't wait to see him, and hurried away."

"Didn't you give the poor woman any money?" Mr. Garwin anxiously inquired.

"I couldn't somehow have a face to do that; though I thought afterward I might have left the money for her husband; wouldn't he have been puzzled, but a good deal more glad than puzzled, when he got home?

"I thought of another plan. I went to the nearest grocery and bought some tea and coffee and sugar and crackers and a couple of loaves of bread; then to the next provision store, where I bought a fat turkey, and all the white potatoes and sweet potatoes and apples I could get for the rest of my money. I ordered all these things sent to the house; and I guess Mr. Thomas, if he has got home, is astonished by this time!" Paul added, with a radiant smile.

"O my son!" exclaimed Mrs. Garwin, with a gush of love and gratitude.

Mr. Garwin gave a slow, emphatic nod of approval. "You did right to satisfy yourself with regard to the family's circumstances before giving them help," he said. "And, really my boy, I don't see but that you managed very well—indeed admirably! Did you send any name with the provisions?"

"Yes; I thought Mr. Thomas ought to know who sent them."

"You gave your name. That was right."

"No," said Paul. "I sent them in your name, father."

"In my name, Paul!" said Garwin, surprised. "But that wasn't right! That wasn't true."

"Let me tell you, father!" said Paul, with something like an imploring look on his fine young face. "You gave me the money. I know you said I was to do what I pleased with it; but I could not have done that without it. And, really, father, I had to say, 'A Merry Christmas, from Mr. George Garwin.' I'll tell you why. This man is one of your own workmen."

"What!" said Mr. Garwin, with a start.

"Yes; and he was making a bitter complaint against you when I overheard him."

"What did he say?"

"I don't like to repeat it," said Paul. "Don't lay it up against him, will you? He was disappointed and desperate."

"Tell me what he said!"

"He said—he said—you passed for a decent sort of man, but you had no mercy on a poor laborer with your iron rules. Rather than break one of them, you would let his children starve."

Mr. George Garwin compressed his lips and betrayed a little agitation as he replied—

"I have no such man as Mr. Thomas at work for me. This must have been Warson."

"It was Warson. Mr. Thomas Warson," Paul admitted. "I was afraid to mention his full name at first. But now I will tell you everything. I was in the house when he called here this evening; and, forgive me, father when I saw him and heard him speak, I feel sure that you were unjust—unjust to yourself, I mean; for we know that you are not hard or unfeeling.

"So I followed him out, and heard him talk with his friend on the street; and, father, I couldn't bear to have anybody speak as he did of you; so I thought the thing ought to go in your name; and I hope you will think so too."

"You are right; you are right, my boy, every time!" Mr. George Garwin exclaimed, with emotion, "I was too short with the man; we ought always to give a poor man's claims generous consideration. I thank you my dear boy!"

"Oh yes, Paul, and I thank you!" said his mother. "You have made me so happy!"

As for Paul, he could say nothing, for the tears of joy and affection which choked his voice. He had never known so happy a Christmas eve.—Youth's Companion.

OLD JACK MARTIN.

On the pacific coast you can often hear stories of "Old Jack Martin," an eccentric character who crossed the plains with the flood of emigration in '50. He had been an exhorter in the States, but the gold fever tore him from his theological studies and turned his feet toward the west. With pick, shovel and pan he went to work in a gulch on the American River, but fortune was not lavish of her smiles in his particular case, and he soon found himself flat on "bedrock," with not a pound of flour or bacon in the cabin. In disgust he abandoned his claim and drifted down to Sacramento, where for a few weeks he earned a precarious livelihood. The mining fever again attacked him and drove him to the mountains where in a week he was found wandering about the camps preaching to all who would listen to his harangues, which were usually delivered from the top of a stump or the head of a whiskey barrel loaded by some accommodating saloonist. At the close of each sermon he would pass a tinbox prepared for the purpose around in the crowd.

At a later day he settled down as the regular pastor of a change in Dutch Flat, where a rude church had been erected by such of the miners as had not lost all of their religious inclinations in their search for gold. A rather good story is related of the manner in which the old man woke up his congregation on the matter of a little back salary due him.

On a certain Sabbath morning an unusually large congregation assembled to hear him discourse. Before the beginning of the service Jack descended from the pulpit and was seen to approach several brawny members of the congregation and whisper into their ears. When he returned to his stand the muscled worshipers quietly arose and stationed themselves at the door, after which the preacher calmly said:

"My dear brethren, it is now about a year since I first showed up in this pulpit and headed you toward the living pastures on the straight and narrow gospel trail. I've tried to ladle out the square truth as I caught onto it in my skirmishes through the Holy Writ. In my prayers I have shown no partiality, but have wrestled just as hard when asking Heaven to open the eyes of 'Bummer Jim' and turn him from his wickedness as I have when imploring that the truth be made manifest to Col. Ward, the owner of the Monarch mine.

"Now I'm going to talk business to you, after which I will drive ahead with the regular service. I want money! I am going to have money, too, before I sling a word this morning. You are not doing the square thing with me, and you know it. When I agreed to look after your spiritual welfare you promised me a clean two thousand a year, but during the year past I have received less than one thousand. Now I have stationed a mob of business at the door, and the first impenitent sinner that tries to make a sneak on the open air will be the leading character in a lively little incident that he will remember as long as he lives. A collection will now be taken up, and as I call each man's name I want him to draw his bag and empty some dust into the box. Tony Arnold, just you circulate the box. Pass it there to Doc, spill yer dust and set the boys a good example. Tip 'er up—don't be afraid of dropping a grain or two too much. Contribute your mite, that your days may be long in the land that flows with milk and honey. Now, Aleck Jones, it's your turn. Thanks, that was a decent spill. Johnson I saw the bulk of the wealth on your side of the table in the game at Kentuck's last night, and the church wants its percentage. Good enough—that's a fair share. Judge Mason, skin you weasel and pay toll, or don't travel. That's the ticket; nothing mean about you, Judge. Now, Shorty, chip in and give the glorious cause a boost; may our Lord be as liberal in shaking blessings down on you. Your pull next, Arkansaw; ante and pass the buck. Hold on; that don't go. You didn't drop the grains into the box. Tip 'er up again, and may your blessings be choked off as you choke off the stream of dust."

Thus he went over the whole congregation, not one of them had the "check" to refuse a contribution. When the dust was brought forward the preacher said:

"May the cause of the Lord and Jack Martin not suffer now for several months and I shall continue, as heretofore, to so head your souls on the best theological grass to be found in the gospel ranges. The text chosen reads as follows: 'Inasmuch as you did it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me.'" From this text he preached such a powerful financial sermon that several came forward after the service and wanted to double their contribution.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

Have patience with all things, but chiefly have patience with yourself.

If you know how to spend less than you get, you have the philosopher's stone.

If peace of mind is our possession, we may smile at every misfortune or loss.

Men often judge the person, but not the cause, which is not justice, but malice.

The two powers which constitute a wise man are those of bearing and forbearing.

There is nothing that so refines the face and mind as the presence of great thoughts.

Language is not an instrument into which if a fool breathe, it will make melody.

We may laugh or weep at the madness of mankind; we have no right whatever to vilify them.

The natural affections are as debased by vice as they are ennobled and refined by virtue.

What men want is not talent, it is purpose; not the power to achieve, but the will to labor.

It seems that the men who aren't wanted here are the men who aren't wanted in the other world.

Anger ventilated often hurries toward forgiveness; anger concealed often hardens into revenge.

He that does good for good's sake seeks neither praise or reward, though sure of both at last.

Training the hand and eye to do work well leads individuals to form correct habits in other respects.

Do not lose courage by considering your own imperfections, but instantly set about remedying them.

Wicked men stumble over straws in the way to heaven, but climb over hills in the way to destruction.

It ever is the marked propensity of reckless and aspiring minds to look into the struth of dark futurity.

One of the most fatal temptations to the weak is a slight deviation from the truth, for the sake of apparent good.

Contemporaries appreciate the man rather than the merit; but prosperity will regard the merit rather than the man.

The science of life may be thus epitomized—to know well the price of time, the value of things, and the worth of people.

Our good deeds rarely cause much gossip among our fellow-citizens, but our evil ones leap immediately into notoriety.

He who is always inquiring what people will say will never give them an opportunity of saying anything great about him.

The only way by which capital can increase is by saving. If you spend as much as you get, you will never be richer than you are.

The happiness of the human race in this world does not consist in our being devoid of passions, but in our learning to command them.

There is no time in a man's life when he is so great as when he cheerfully bows to the necessity of his position, and makes the best of it.

He who has been spoiled by success may readily be sweetened, but he who has been spoiled by non-success has lost wholesomeness forever.

THE WIFE'S COMMANDMENTS.

1. Thou shalt have no other wife but me.

2. Thou shalt not take into thy house any beautiful braven image of a servant girl, to bow down to her and serve her, for I am a jealous wife, visiting, etc.

3. Thou shalt not take the name of thy wife in vain.

4. Remember thy wife, to keep her respectable.

5. Honor thy wife's father and mother.

6. Thou shalt not fret.

7. Thou shalt not find fault with your dinner.

8. Thou shalt not chew tobacco.

9. Thou shalt not be behind thy neighbor.

10. Thou shalt not stay out after 9 o'clock at night.

1882.

A Happy New Year!

Such an exclamation has a joyous meaning and with sincerity do we give it utterance.

May eighteen hundred and eighty-two bring in its train the blessings of peace and prosperity, both national and individual, thereby

Filling the land with the sunshine of health and amply rewarding every species of industry and enterprise.

Sowing broad-cast the seeds of virtuous living and making mountain, valley and plain radiant with religion, freedom and intelligence.

Quenching the fires of personal and sectional enmity, and over the entire length and breadth of our beloved country unfurling the banner of national fraternity and loyal devotion to the Constitution and Union.

Cementing together as a band of brothers the countrymen of Washington, nerving them to press onward for the accomplishment of true glory, destroying the venom of political corruption, and raising into dominion honor and honesty.

May that be the mission of the dawning year?

Then indeed will happiness abound.

In hoping for the future it is wisdom to ponder the past. The expiring year leaves sad memories of bereavements and disappointments, but, nevertheless, it affords abundant cause for thankfulness. Its successor must, in the natural course of events, repeat the same old story. Such is life, alternate clear sky and leaden cloud, hopes and fears, smiles and tears, yet for all it becomes us to praise the Almighty Ruler, and through hard-schooling learn to discharge worldly duties aright and be prepared for the great hereafter, to which all are rapidly hastening. The wing of time is tireless.

Patrons and Friends!

We wish you a Happy New Year!

THE CONSTITUTIONAL COMMISSION.

The Constitutional Commission, after frequent meetings, has decided to draft amendments for future action, covering the following points: To limit the rate of taxation for all purposes to a certain rate to be fixed, for meeting certain existing Constitutional obligations, and limiting the power of the Legislature to grant rights to create municipal debts to a certain per cent. of actual valuation; providing a mode for the classification of cities; giving to municipalities the power to sue corporations for unpaid taxes; prohibiting granting by the Legislature of irrepealable contracts; providing that no railroad except surface horse railroads be permitted in any street or avenue of any city, without compensation to property owners on such street or avenue for damages; prohibiting any Constitutional Judge of a Court, or the Attorney General, from being a director or other officer of any railroad corporation; and providing for biennial sessions of the Legislature.

The approaching session of the Legislature promises to be of a busy and important character. Among the matters that will come up will be the election of a State Treasurer, State Prison Inspectors, Police Justices, Commissioners of Deeds and other officers, in joint meeting; confirmation or rejection of State Prison Keeper Laverty and Secretary Kelsey, by the Senate; the Governor's appointment of Supreme Court Clerk to succeed Hon. B. F. Lee, Supreme Judges, Common Pleas Judges and Prosecutors, and the disposition of the report of the Constitutional Commission.

The widow of John M. Armstrong—who was murdered by Benjamin Hunter some time since at Camden to secure the insurance on his life,—has gained a verdict against the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York for the amount of that Company's policy on her husband's life—$10,000. There are policies for $10,000 more in the Manhattan and the Provident. These policies were taken out by Armstrong at the instance of Hunter and assigned to the latter to secure payment of Armstrong's indebtedness to him. Hunter then killed Armstrong to realize the money, but was detected and hung. The brother of the murderer, as his Administrator we believe, assigned the policies to Mrs. Armstrong, who sues to recover the insurance. The New York Courts decide the claim valid. The case will doubtless be carried up.

An important railroad movement affecting New Jersey took place at Jersey City, on Wednesday, 21st. In response to a call issued a few days since about thirty of the stockholders of the New York and Long Branch, the New Egypt and Farmingdale, the Long Branch and Sea Girt, the New York and Long Branch extension and the Long Branch and Barnegat Bay Railroad Companies met and adopted articles of agreement for the consolidation of the above roads and the formation of a company to be known as the New York and Long Branch Railroad Company, with a capital of $2,000,000, in shares of $100 each. The Board of Directors consists of Francis S. Lathrop, Henry S. Little, Anthony Reckless, John Klein, Benj. Williamson, Frederic A. Potts, George G. Haven, John S. Barnes, Geo. F. Baker, Lewis Browne, Richard J. Dobbins of Philadelphia, Edward M. Hopkins and George Griswold. The officers named are: President, Henry S. Little; Vice President, George G. COST OF GARFIELD'S LAST ILLNESS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26th.

United States Marshall Henry will go before the House Committee to audit expenses of the last illness of President Garfield, after the holidays, and, in Mrs. Garfield's name, ask that Dr. Boynton and Mrs. Edson be placed on a plane with the other doctors in the distribution of rewards, and that all others who nursed her husband receive considerations. Mrs. Garfield thinks that those who ministered to her husband's comfort should be as well treated as the doctors who did not save his life. The bills for many incidentals, in addition to the more important items, will, it is thought, swell the amount to $300,000.

JANUARY COURTS.

The terms of the following Courts will be commenced on the dates given, next month:

United States District Court, at Trenton, 17th.

Second District—Justice Parker, Camden county, at Camden, 10th.

Third District—Chief Justice Beasley, Warren county, at Belvidere, 3rd; Mercer county, at Trenton, 17th.

Fourth District—Justice Scudder, Monmouth county, at Freehold, 3d.

Fifth District—Justice Magie, Morris county, at Morristown, 17th.

Sixth District—Justice Dixon, Passaic county, at Paterson, 3rd.

Ninth District—Justice Van Syckel, Union county, at Elizabeth, 3rd.

CONTRASTED TRIALS.

Governor Ludlow of New Jersey has denied the application for a reprieve and the convening of the Court of Pardons in the case of Kankowski, the convicted murderer of Mina Muller, and, unless the criminal commits suicide in the interim, he will be hanged January 6. A few days since, Sindram, who killed his landlady, was sentenced to death, and there appears to be little doubt that the sentence will be carried into execution.

In the meantime, the Guiteau trial at Washington has dragged its weary length along for seven weeks and seems almost as far from a conclusion as it did at its commencement, notwithstanding the fact that Prosecuting Attorney Corkhill has announced his determination of bringing it to an end at the earliest possible date.

On what food does this our Guiteau feed that his trial should be of so much more consequence than that of an ordinary murderer? It is a pity his trial could not have taken place in New Jersey, as was originally intended. Jersey justice has a healthful manner of being prompt.

SELF-PROTECTION—WHEN JUSTIFIABLE.

If a man knows that another has threatend his life, how far is he justified in assuming the aggressive for self-protection? Instead of waiting for his adversary's attack can he take the initiative himself? If the threat has been followed by an overt act a man is not bound to wait until his life was in imminent danger, but has the right to forestall his enemy in the use of the weapon. The law is that when a man makes a threat to take another's life, and does nothing to carry it into execution, then it is an idle threat; but when with the threat he gives positive proof that he intends to execute it, then it is not an idle threat, and the man need not wait, but for his own protection can find and slay the man who threatens his life. Otherwise the unoffending person would be forced to concede to his deadly foe the right and opportunity to select his own time to accomplish his deadly purpose. Binding over an adversary to keep the peace is seldom a safe protection and in most cases proves inadequate. Experience has shown that bonds are inadequate to stay the hands of the assassin. Some may say that this interpretation of law is of doubtful correctness, and that every one must rely for protection against acts of violence upon the moral sense of the community, and upon every man's right to defend himself in extreme cases of actual attack. This is an interesting case for the casuist, and we have given a clear brief on which he may build his argument.—Exchange.

Alarming reports are published regarding the prevalence and spread of small-pox in eighteen States and three Territories of the Union. He went into journalism and mining speculation, and, with his usual luck, soon had a fine paper running, and was enjoying an income of $10,000 a day from his mining speculation. Now both the newspaper and the mines have played out, and "Brick" will have to prospect somewhere else.

Says the Jersey City Argus: Full houses greeted the return of Bunnell's Museum, and the Opera House was packed at both performances to its utmost capacity. The curiosities presented are very remarkable, including the Giants and Midgets, and the performances of Mr. Whiston and others are excellent, but unquestionably the great attraction is Miss Millie Christine, the two-headed girl, the greatest curiosity the world has ever witnessed. She has attracted the attention of the scientific as well as of the curious and learned and ignorant alike can only wonder at the marvel. Concerning her the Albany Journal speaks as follows:

> The public should understand that there is no humbug about this phenomenon. She is exactly as represented—one body, four legs, four arms, and two heads. The case is carefully noted and described in Appleton's Cyclopedia, and is the only one in existence. Last evening a large number of Albany physicians were present and examined her, and all pronounced her one of the greatest curiosities they had ever seen. No one should be deterred from going on account of the low price of admission. The accompanying entertainment is better than many that are given for three times the price of this. If you have never seen the two-headed girl, don't miss the opportunity.

We can only echo this advice—if you have not seen the two-headed girl, go and see her at once. The price of admission, which is only 15 cents, is no tax at all, even if you have as many children as the old woman who lived in a shoe.

There will be two performances daily, at VanDeventer Hall on Jan. 2d and 3d.

Christmas Services at St. Mary's.

Religion wore its most cheerful and attractive forms at St. Mary's (R. C.) Church on Christmas Day, a marked change from the violet of penance and self denial of Advent. The first high mass began at six o'clock, when the church was filled; a low mass followed, and at nine o'clock another high mass. A priest celebrates three masses on Christmas day, to honor the three births of the Son of God; his birth or his eternal generation in the bosom of his Father; his temporal birth in the stable of Bethlehem, and his spiritual birth by faith and charity in the hearts of the just. There was a sermon by the Rev. Pastor on the Nativity.

The decorations of the high altar were simply beautiful. Embroidered white satin with gold lace draped the tabernacle and altar, while flowers, the most exquisite, surrounded and shed their perfume; the soft gleam of numberless tapers fell upon the sanctuary. A representation of a crib to the right of the high altar and at the foot of the altar of the Virgin, where the babe of Bethlehem reposed on straw. Wreaths of evergreen and laurel entwined and hung from arches over the crib. A cross of green surrounded with holly, hung over this altar. The expression of the infant Jesus so natural in the crib, seemed sufficiently real to deeply impress the imagination. Fancy embraces the real scene of 1,800 years ago, and takes one back in spirit to the stable at Bethlehem. Few persons are aware that the church is indebted to St. Francis of Assisi for this most beautiful devotion. Such, however, is the case, and he also obtained from the Holy See a special sanction for its establishment. Having explained his idea to Honorius, that Pope warmly encouraged him and promised an indulgence to all who should assist at his crib. The second crib of St. Francis was on the mountain near Grecio, therefore this representation of a crib is of great antiquity. What more beautiful lesson could we have of humility in form and fact, and as we kneel to adore the new-born saviour, we desire to bury what is unpleasant in the departing year, and like Moses, to infuse into the bitter waters of Marah, the sweetening wood of charity.

Firemen's Tax Exemption.

[From the Monmouth Democrat.]

A law passed at the last session of the Legislature exempts the members of volunteer organizations from the payment of tax to an amount not exceeding five dollars. In Freehold the fire apparatus belongs to the corporation, while the members of the fire department reside both in and out of the incorporated district. Members residing out of the district claimed a deduction of five dollars from their township taxes, while some members within the district claimed the exemption for both township and corporation taxes. The claim has been allowed by the corporation authorities, but the township authorities have denied it in every case, on the ground that the township is in no way responsible for the Department, and therefore that the law does not apply. This view of the application of the law was sustained by Attorney General Stockton, in an opinion rendered on a similar case in another part of the State. We have procured a copy of his letter on this subject, which we print herewith, as follows:

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL,
TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 15, 1881.

My Dear Sir: In reply to your letter, it seems to me that the effective words of the act of March 22, 1881, so far as the question you ask is concerned are the words "tax paid" in the second line of page [illegible] of the laws of 1881.

The members of the fire department are not exempted from the payment of taxes, but they are exempted from the payment of taxes to the town, city or borough or township of this State where they may be respectively organized and which department is under the control respectively of any town committee, common council or municipal corporation. In other words if a department is under the control of a town committee its members are exempt from township tax; if under the control of a common council or municipal corporation, they are exempt from municipal taxes.

Yours very truly,
JOHN P. STOCKTON.

NEWARK, N. J

We would announce to our patrons and the public that we have doubled our manufacturing facilities during the past three months, and are prepared to lay before our customers this Fall a line of the CHOICEST STYLES OF GARMENTS such as have never before been displayed in Newark. They have been cut from selected styles of Harris Rock, Belle Air, Lippitt and American Mills Cassimeres and Overcoatings, and finished in a superior manner.

We would particularly announce to the young men of our city and vicinity that we have secured from some of the leading manufacturers their hand loom samples, from which they have sold the production of their mills for this season at prices from 75c. to $1 per yard below the regular prices. Some of these samples we shall cut into suits, and our special style of Ulsteret. These garments must meet your approval, as we can sell at a profit where others must sell at cost to compete with us. We shall use some of these goods in Children's Suits from 4 to 9 years, and our Children's Essex Ulsterets, from 4 to 9 years, are a bargain. There are no two patterns alike, and you will not feel that you have to uniform your boys. We cut small lots in all our choice goods, and give our customers the benefit of a large assortment.

We have standard styles of Dress Suits and Semi-Dress Suits and Overcoats, cut in all the best makes of goods. Some of our low-priced Suits and Overcoats cannot be made for the price to-day. Remember, all our Fall and Winter Suits and Overcoats have been manufactured since July 1. We have no old stock. Our Boys', Youths' and Children's Department has been carefully attended to. You will find bargains in each Department. Our Custom Department has a carefully selected stock of Seasonable Goods, both Foreign and Domestic. All our garments will be trimmed in a first-class manner, and cut by Artistic Cutters.

Estimates furnished for Railroad, Band, G. A. R. and Military Uniforms—one of our specialties. We refer to Q. M. Gen. Perrine, Brig. Gen. Plume, Col. Bernard, Col. Campbell, and other commandants whose commands we have uniformed. Also, to Lincoln Post and Kearny Post, G. A. R., as to the quality and cut of our garments.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

Official Paper of the State, the County and the City, and has the Largest Circulation of any Weekly in Union County.

It was a green Christmas indeed.

ONLY one more day to prove Mother Shipton a false prophet.

THE Council of 1882 meets for organization next Monday night.

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST carrier will call at your house on Monday.

THE holiday trade in this city this year was larger than that of last year.

SOME of the "Christmas Cards" sent out last Monday were truly elegant and costly.

ACCORDING to the goose bone prophets, January will be a mild month and February a cold one.

HANDSOME styles of visiting cards suitable for New Year callers, may be procured at this office.

ALTHOUGH Christmas came on Sunday, a number of our citizens were still "celebrating" two days later.

ONE year ago to-day, Dr. George Smillie was found dead and frozen on Willow avenue, North Plainfield.

HEAVY fogs along the line of the C. R. R., lately, have somewhat delayed the trains and ferry boats.

THE Board of Managers of the Plainfield Fire Department, holds its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening next.

MORE "Christmas Cards" passed through the Plainfield Post Office this year than love missives on any previous St. Valentine's day.

ON Tuesday last, the thermometers of this city registered 62 degrees above zero. A year ago yesterday they registered 10 degrees below.

THE "Zephyrs" are beginning to get a little "exercised in mind" over the new truck that was promised them. They can't find out where it is being built.

THE streets of Plainfield presented a more animated appearance Saturday night last, than has been observed in a long while. The stores generally were filled with buyers.

THE Somerset Co. Court on Tuesday convicted the party accused of misplacing a switch on the Camden and Amboy branch and throwing a train from the track at Neshanic, some time ago.

MESSRS. Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co. have been having the private and general business offices in their clothing warerooms re-arranged. The fine carpentering work evidences the skill of Mr. T. O. Doane.

THE United States Senate meets on Thursday of next week, when it is believed that among its first business will be the confirmation of the nomination of Mr. Elias R. Pope as Postmaster of this city.

THREE masses were celebrated in St. Mary's Church on Christmas Day, one at 5:45, one at 7:30 and one at 9 o'clock A. M., Rev. Father Morris officiating. The singing by the choir on these occasions was especially fine.

THE employees of the Raritan Woolen Mills refused to work on Monday, it being a legal holiday. The proprietors thereupon announced their intention of filling the places of the striking workmen with new hands.

A CHANGE of advertisement for E. P. Thorn, of the Mansion House, came too late for this issue. It announces that he has the finest stock of pure liquors and wines for the holidays to be found in the city at reasonable prices.

TICKETS are already in great demand for the coming Ball of Gazelle Hose Co., at Van Deventer Hall, on the evening of January 12th. Prof. France will lead the orchestra and the youth and beauty of Plainfield will be in attendance.

ALL the churches held special services on Sunday last in celebration of the birth of Christ, and during the week since the Sunday Schools have respectively made "a joyful noise unto the Lord" and been individually favored with good times and good things without limit.

As an evidence of the large traffic in sale of the abominable tin horn to the small boy on Christmas day, we mention that one firm alone, on Park avenue, G. Park & Son, sold on Saturday and Monday four gross of these little infernal machines. And New Year's is to come yet.

A "GRAND Sociable" will be given in St. Mary's Hall on the evening of Wednesday next, the proceeds of which are to be used towards furnishing the pastor's new rectory. A good time is assured as usual; Kerrigan the piper and Cahill's celebrated band of Elizabeth, furnishing the music.

THE usual Christmas Celebration for the children, was held by the First Presbyterian church in its Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening. Besides the customary physical feast and entertainment was provided in the way of a beautiful panorama of an interesting and instructive character.

AMONG the unfortunate losers by the Red Bank fire last week, was Mrs. Maria Mc Dermott, a former resident of this city, who also suffered by loss from fire at the time of the burning of Mr Nabb's lumber yard and Spicer & Hubbard's Planing Mills. Mrs. Mc Dermott is the mother-in-law of our fellow townsman, H. P. Brook, Esq.

THE Monitor is the name of a new aspirant for journalistic favors from the people of Westfield and vicinity. It is published by Sydney Gennung, is a "patent outsider," and announces that it will give all the local news of the place each week. Its obituary notice shall be written up in good style, but as long as she lives, here's our ☞, Bro. Gennung, and success to you.

THE managers of the C. R. R. of N. J., have appointed J. F. Fritts, M. D., of this city "local physician" to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. C. H. Stillman. The choice is judicious in every respect, and is not only a deserved compliment to Dr. Fritts' skill and popularity but evidences the admirable discrimination of the Company's officers.

A CORRESPONDENT enquires of us why the Board of Education and Fire Department do not make detailed statements of their receipts and disbursements at the close of each year, so that the public can see where the money comes from and goes to. We cannot answer the question; which we think a very pertinent one. We believe there should be a detailed statement from every corporate institution, once a year, who have the handling of the people's money.

IF your horse needs medical or surgical treatment you should lose no time in securing the services of Dr. A. F. Carpenter, whose office is at No. 37 North ave. That practitioner has had the most thorough experience as a veterinary surgeon and dentist, and possesses the ability and skill to perform the most difficult operations with approved modern instruments. He will treat under "guarantee" almost all the ills that horse's flesh is heir to, at the most moderate prices.

OF course the largest audience of the season, gathered at the M. E. Church on Monday evening, to hear Gough once more on Temperance—the occasion being the fourth of the Y. M. C. A. Course of Entertainments. The lecturer proved that with age he has lost neither his fiery eloquence nor his powers of amusement and instruction. The next entertainment will consist of the readings of Miss Nella F. Brown, who last year established herself as a favorite of our public. It will occur on the evening of Thursday, Jan. 12.

NEVER in the history of the Plainfield Post Office, has there been such an accumulation of mail matter as that of the past week. With extra clerks, the postmistress was unable to assort and deliver the contents of the mail bags, and cancel the stamps on the outgoing mail, although working faithfully each night and even on Sunday. On Monday there was a large wagon load of filled mail pouches sent to the depot from the post office, and the tired officials are having a brief respite until the New Year gifts begin to pour through the mails.

THE man Henry Wilson, captured at Bergen Point last week having in his possession a portion of the property stolen from the establishment of Mr. S. C. Lillenstern, was brought before Justice Wadsworth on Saturday last at the City Jail. The accused gave his age as 36, his residence as New York City and his condition, "a widower." He waived any examination and was committed to the County Jail after the testimony of Mr. Lillenstern and the Bergen Point officers has fully established the fact of his having had the stolen goods about his person.

ON Thursday evening of last week a meeting was held in the Seventh Day Baptist church, called by the temperance workers among our clergy and citizens, for the purpose of discussing the best plan to pursue towards establishing total prohibition in Plainfield. Addresses appropriate to the cause in view, and much sound suggestion and valuable advice were given. After an earnest meeting of considerable interest, the following committee was appointed in accordance with a resolution offered by the Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, to decide upon the formation of an Alliance with the object of advancing temperance reform in the city: The Revs. Ketcham, Manchee and Stockton and Messrs. H. B. Opdyke, H. C. Squires, J. W. Jackson, J. B. Lawson, J. H. Ackerman, G. H. Babcock, E. W. Runyon and G. A. Chapman.

Now write it 1882.

WHAT has become of Vesper?

THE Public Schools re-open next Tuesday.

THE Banks and Post Office close on Monday.

No frost in the ground and the roads in a horrible condition.

RING out the old, ring in the new! Eighteen hundred and eighty-two.

THE question of a paid fire department for Plainfield is among the questions being agitated.

OUR storekeepers excelled themselves this year in decorating their show windows with goods and devices.

PLAINFIELD wants an Opera House of sufficient capacity to accommodate the large traveling troupes and combinations of first-class merit.

THE Common Council of 1881, one of the best for many reasons our public has ever been represented by, goes out of office on Monday next.

A MID-NIGHT service, upon the death of the old year and the birth of the new, will be held as usual in Grace Church during Saturday night.

THE Oil-Cloth Factory is rapidly approaching completion, and its Superintendent expects to begin manufacturing some time during February.

YOUNG men not "engaged" should remember that a good husband is an excellent present for a young lady in the holiday season—or any other season.

THERE are still two days remaining of the year 1881, during which Mother Shipton must fulfil her prediction or confess herself a shameless prevaricator.

THE First Baptist, Methodist Episcopal and Trinity Reformed Sunday Schools held their Christmas festivities last evening, of which we hope to speak more particularly in our next issue.

Now is ye time when ye young man lieth abed an extra hour and taketh ye later train and goeth unto ye head of ye firm and saith "verily I was detaineth by ye fog"—and ye other clerks winketh, aye every one to another, but ye boss tumbleth not.

THERE is one consolation in the fact that New Year's Day will come on Sunday this year, so that there will not be such a severe strain upon the conscience in breaking the customary good resolutions. Agreements entered into on Sunday are not binding. See?

THE old and young Seventh Day Baptists enjoyed their Christmas celebration on Tuesday evening with the usual exercises of the occasion, added to which were such interesting and amusing features as could be extracted from the talented performances of a natural and an electrical elocutionist.

THE Knights of Pythias were recently presented by Mr. Hugo Weigmann with a handsome Vice-Chancellor chair for which they were overwhelmingly thankful. The Lodge is to have a new carpet for its room, the walls are to be repainted and such other improvements made as its flourishing condition demands.

THE rendition of Prof. W. H. Doane's Cantata "Emanuel" at the Trinity Reformed Church on Sunday last, was accompanied by piano and cornet, and was as perfect and beautiful an execution as we have listened to in some time. A fair but appreciative attendance was present, which hopes for a repetition of the musical composition.

As stated by us last week, Van Deventer Hall is to be re-floored, so as to offer better facilities for dancing when used as a ball-room. The work will be done in the most perfect manner and so joined and leveled that the Hall may serve for roller-skating—the introduction of which healthy exercise and exciting sport is now under consideration.

AT the election of officers of Plainfield Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F., held on Monday evening last, the following were chosen: N. G., William Boe; V. G., James Ryno; R. S., James K. Arnold; P. S., Peter V. Weaver; Treas., Thomas J. Young. A public installation of these officers will be held on the evening of Jan. 9th, for which invitations have been issued.

THE Crescent Avenue Sunday School had its own little celebration on Tuesday evening, and to the credit of Chairman S. R. Struthers and the Entertainment Committee a glorious good time was experienced by every scholar from infant to bible class. A first-class sleight-of-hand performer in the person of Mr. G. Waring delighted the eyes, and quantities of good-things delighted the tastes of the gathering.

THE Mother Goose and Kate Greenaway entertainment—now being prepared by the ladies of Congregational church for the benefit of the building fund for the new church now in course of erection—will consist of tableaux, recitations, nursery rhymes, songs, &c., in which a large number of children take part. It will be given on the 12th and 13th of January, and the place where it is held and fuller particulars, later on.

AT the closing exercises of the first term of Prof. Lyon's Academy, held recently, the following scholars received medals for general excellence in the studies of the course: Daniel C. Adams, William Marsh, Charles Sandford, Rowland Cox, Louis Walz, Edwin Field, Harry Johnson, Louis Echeverria, Walter Carpenter, Arthur Lithgow, Joseph Sandford, Hugo Mayer, A. Ferdinand Streuli, William Tyler.

SOMERVILLE had a "hog guessing match" on Christmas Day. There were 250 chances sold for 50 cents a chance. When slaughtered the animal measured six and a quarter feet in length and five feet ten inches around. The weight was 737 pounds. Three persons guessed the exact weight. The Messenger says that the Gorton Steam Feeder used in scalding the hog was manufactured by Carney Bros., tinners, plumbers and gas fitters, of Plainfield.

THE Christmas celebration of the Park Avenue Baptist scholars on Wednesday evening in the lecture room of the church, was in accordance with an arrangement of exercises composed by the Rev. Robert Lowry. It included responsive readings appropriate to the anniversary of the Advent Night, and a number of the remarkably melodious songs of which that gentleman is the author. Miss Mary Runyon's solo singing was a welcome addition to the evening's programme, flatteringly received.

THE Christmas Festival of the Friends' First Day School came off on Monday afternoon and was an event pleasing and satisfactory to all concerned. Never did eyes rest upon a happier concourse of children than those there assembled. The plain old building was crowded with an interested audience. The selected recitations were well delivered and enunciated sentiments of practical worth. After listening to addresses pertinent to the occasion, and partaking of abundant refreshment, the scholars, with gifts in hand, were dismissed. The Friends may be congratulated on the flourishing condition of their First Day School, which, in a quiet way, is doing a good work.

THE Warren Mission on Wednesday afternoon and evening, gave its scholars a Christmas Festival that was probably never excelled. At its rooms in North Plainfield there were fed during the time about 400 with a bountiful "poultry dinner," and the younger ones were presented besides with generous pails of candy. The managers of the Mission are to be greatly praised for their beneficence, and they in turn are full of thanks to the many kind friends who contributed towards the feast. During the evening, Mr. C. E. Tyler, the President of the Society, was presented with a handsome portrait of his wife—a companion picture to one of himself presented in the same manner, last year.

Our Carrier's Address.

The faithful carrier of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, Mr. Charles Cook, intends with the New Year to present each patron of the paper on his route with an address that is not only a thing of beauty but will be kept forever. Besides the usual poetical greeting, it will be ornamented with elegant chromo work in black and white illustrative of the occasion, and contain also a miniature copy of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, a perfect fac-simile of our last issue, yet but little larger than the space occupied by this article. If you cannot be home when "Cookie" calls on Monday morning, leave word that his faithful service through the sunshine and storm of the past year shall be substantially appreciated.

Railroad Collision at Elizabeth.

There was a narrow escape from serious loss of life at the Union street depot, Elizabeth, Friday evening last. At this point the tracks of the Central and Pennsylvania Railroad cross each other. The night in question, a Central Railroad train due at Elizabeth 6:45, was crossing the track of the Pennsylvania road, when the last car was run into by the Western express train of that road, and the car was lifted bodily from the track and pitched directly across it. There was fortunately but one passenger in the car at the time and he escaped with bruises and a general shaking up. The Pennsylvania locomotive was not injured any, and assisted in dragging the wrecked car to its right position on the tracks. Travel was delayed about three hours in consequence of the accident, which it is claimed was caused by the failure of the air brakes on the Pennsylvania train to work. Over one hundred passenger trains pass this point daily, and it is miraculous that a serious accident of this kind has not happened there before.

Board of Education.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held on Thursday evening to clean up some unfinished business laid over at the last regular meeting, Mr. J. W. Murray, President pro tem, presiding.

After the presentation of some bills, which were approved and ordered paid, the following resolution offered was adopted:

Resolved, That in all cases where pupils are affected by, or exposed to contagious diseases, they shall not be hereafter re-admitted to either school, unless a certificate of perfect health from the family physician, endorsed by the City Physician, is first presented to the principal.

The Board then adjourned.

The Saengerbund's Christmas.

In spite of the very worst of weather, the Saengerbund's Christmas entertainment on Monday evening was the biggest kind of a success in the way of attendance, enjoyment and financial result, that that Society (or any other) ever was favored with. The members and their families, with invited friends, gathered in large numbers early in the evening to view the handsome decorations of the brilliantly lighted rooms and the heavily laden Christmas Tree bearing a present for every one. Music under the leadership of Prof. Fraze, kept the dancers going between the intermissions of singing and social converse, and it was not until the hour of dawn that any cessation of the diversions was apparent. The Committee whose efficient labors brought about this great success, was Messrs. Charles Smith, Rudolph Laurent, Michael Koller, George Bremer and Otto Ebel.

More Incendiarism.

About twelve o'clock Monday night, as private watchman Wright was patroling his beat in the vicinity of Laing's Hotel, he observed the reflection from a fire upon the side of the Methodist Church building. Quickly passing into Madison Ave., he saw that flames were issuing from the window of a small wooden building near the corner, formerly used as a cabinet maker's shop by Chas. E. Austin. He gave the alarm and was speedily joined by officer Randolph, and a citizen, Michael Sweeny, who assisted Wright in extinguishing the flames. An examination of the premises showed that some person had broken out a pane of glass in the window, and after lighting some papers had dropped it inside among a lot of combustibles and light articles of furniture that were piled up near the window. By this time two or three members of No. 2 Engine, hearing the alarm, had rolled the apparatus to the fire well corner of Front and Somerset streets, and were returning for their hose carriage when it was announced to them that the fire was out. The alarm bell was struck, however, but none of the rest of the apparatus were rolled, there being no necessity of their so doing. Policeman Randolph says that he passed the very spot where the fire started not five minutes before it was discovered by Wright, the two officers accosting each other as they met on Front street, going in opposite directions. Wright states that he saw a person pass out of Madison avenue into Front as he started to put out the flames. Had this fire gained headway, a disastrous conflagration would have ensued, as there is a stretch of old wooden buildings on either side of it. When, oh when, will some of these incendiaries be caught?

Christmas in Plainfield.

Christmas Day (Sunday) proved to be a glorious day indeed. The weather was mild and the sun shone bright and clear. All the churches were largely attended during the day, and the sermons delivered by the various pastors instructive and entertaining. Monday following, which was generally observed throughout the country as a legal holiday, was also a fine day, which attracted crowds of people to the open air. All day long the streets presented an animated appearance as the gay throng passed along, offering their well wishes and "Merry Christmas" to friends and acquaintances. The small boy, too, was out, and by nine o'clock in the morning it seemed as though pandemonium was let loose, from the incessant blowing of toy horns. Long strings of urchins paraded along the sidewalks tooting these little nuisances with all the strength their lungs were capable of affording. Woe betide the pedestrian who uttered a remonstrance against the infernal racket. He was immediately surrounded by a group of gamins, who blew their horns in his ears, his mouth, his eyes, in fact at every part of his body. Only the bestowal of a "present" would afford relief from his tormentors. Good order reigned throughout the day, and but few persons were to be observed under the influence of liquor. As a consequence there were no arrests made by the police during the day. An alarm of fire about noon caused a slight excitement, which soon, however, subsided. Among the many enjoyments of the day, were trials of skill at glass ball and pigeons. Especially noticeable and enjoyable were the shoots indulged in privately on the grounds of Mr. S. G. Smith, Plainfield avenue and Benj. R. Holmes, Front street. Campbell's Hotel was also visited by a large number of sportsmen to participate in a shooting match there. No accident has come to our notice as happening on that day in the city.

A Christmas Dinner.

Mr. Joseph B. Miller, proprietor of Laing's Hotel, gave a dinner on Christmas Day that will long be remembered by all those who were so fortunate as to be in attendance, among whom were guests from New York and other places, including members of the Acorn Club, this city. The covers were spread for thirty persons, at the side of each plate being a handsomely gotten-up menu. Each one did ample justice to the contents of the many dishes set before them and praised the cuisine department of the hotel, departing with the wish that such a dinner might come oftener. A Prosperous Year.

With this issue closes the Fourteenth volume of THE CONSTITUTIONALIST, and adds another tally in the calendar of time. What a number of events have been crowded into the short cycle of days now closing! What a host of great men have passed from the stage of earthly life! What new inventions have been brought forth, showing human skill! What wonderful discoveries in arts and sciences, and what schemes of development and enterprise. We have passed through affliction and sorrow, and yet we stand to-day as no other nation in the world's history, blessed above all. We have been prosperous—we have been at peace with all the world. Oh! that we may be able, at the close of another year, to write a similar tale—a happy, prosperous, peaceful year. And, thus trusting, we pass to the record of another calendar, and wish all our patrons and readers, friends and enemies (if we have any) a very "prosperous, bountiful New Year."

An Old Relic.

We have been shown by its owner, Mr. Sylvester Compton, of this city, a copy of the Ulster County Gazette of January 4, 1800, Vol II, No. 88. It is in a good state of preservation and contains among other interesting articles an account of the funeral obsequies of George Washington. Among the curious advertisements contained in its columns is one for the "sale of one half a saw mill, with a convenient place for building, lying in the township of Rochester. By the mill is an inexhaustable quantity of pinewood. And also a stout, healthy, active negro wench. Any person inclined to purchase may know the particulars by applying to John Schoonmaker, Jun., at Rochester."

A Card.

Many of my late Father's patients having questioned me concerning his successor, Dr. Chas. S. McKnight, who became associated with him and received his endorsement so short a time before his death that he was unable to introduce him to the families composing his practice, I take this method of informing them that his medical education has been of a very high order. He was a student of Prof. Thos. M. Markoe of New York, a graduate of the college of Physicians and Surgeons, and since that time a practitioner in that city, and both as a gentleman and a physician his attributes are of the highest grade.

CHAS. F. STILLMAN, M. D.

In Memoriam.

Since our last issue the following resolutions on the death of Chas. H. Stillman have been handed us for publication. The first was passed by the Board of Managers of the Plainfield Relief Association, on the 14th inst.

Resolved, That the members of this Association desire to express their most tender and heartfelt sympathy for Mrs. Dr. Stillman, and for her bereaved family, who in passing under the shadow of this sore affliction are followed by the love of the Society, to whom she has during the past two years rendered such efficient service as its President, and of whose Board she is still an active member, and is commended by them to Him who is "our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

MRS. J. S. LAMSON,
Secretary.

The Board of Directors of the City National Bank at a meeting on the 21st inst, adopted the following:

WHEREAS it has pleased the great disposer of events to remove from earth one of our members, Dr. Chas. H. Stillman, who from the organization of this institution has been one of its most efficient officers, therefore be it

Resolved, That we hereby place on record our high appreciation of his eminent qualities as shown by him in the performance of all his official acts, and private duties, and our sorrow for the loss which we as a board of directors, in common with so many of our fellow citizens, has sustained in being deprived of his wise counsel, and judicious advice, which we have so long enjoyed and prized.

Resolved, That we hereby tender to the bereaved family of our departed friend and associate, our sincere and heartfelt sympathy, in their irreparable loss.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions signed by the officers of the Bank be presented to the family of the deceased and entered on the minutes of the Bank.

CHAS HYDE,
President.

The Union County District Medical Society, of which the deceased was a most active member, adopted the following at a special meeting held in this city on the 14th inst.

On the 11th of December our beloved and honored Fellow, Chas. H. Stillman, M. D., in the fullness of his usefulness and of his labors passed from among us.

In the demise of Dr. Stillman the Fellows of this Society feel a personal grief far beyond their scientific associations, for they realize that a man, brother and an example in the broadest acceptation of the term, has been called from among them.

His ripe experience, professional attainments, his Christian charity, endeared alike physician and patient. No appeal to his kind heart was ever unheeded, and he never shrank from duty or responsibility.

As a leader in his profession in this State, while conscious of his power, with a modesty which to a stranger appeared like timidity, he strove rather to coincide with than to impress his medical brethren. While he was conciliatory, he was firm when questions of principle were involved. Ever a student and willing to learn he was familiar with all the important advances of the day; and while occupied even beyond his strength in the active duties of his profession, he found time to establish the school system of Plainfield upon an enduring foundation. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the District Medical Society of the County of Union mourns with his family in their great distress, and expresses its sincerest sympathy in their bereavement, and that it will attend his funeral in a body.

NORTH PLAINFIELD PARAGRAPHS.

Mr. Alfred Vail, who was quite severely injured last week by a fall from a scaffold on which he was at work, is recovering slowly.

A handsome portico along the front of Mr. Chas. Greader's beer bottling establishment on Somerset street, materially adds to its appearance.

Some thief stole a new door mat from the front porch of Mr. William Schutt's residence on Duer street, Tuesday evening last. This is the second mat that Mr. S. has lost within a month. Citizens should be on the look-out for these petty thieves and give them a warm reception.

A new street or avenue was laid out and opened on Christmas day, through lands of Mr. Peter Wooden, between Emily street and Park Place. This new thoroughfare opens up some valuable building plots.

Through the kindness of Mr. David C. Smalley, meat merchant, corner of Somerset and Race streets, we were enabled on Christmas day to dine off a sumptuous roast cut from the carcass of the large beef slaughtered for Christmas times. Mr. Smalley always has in his market the primest of roasts, steaks, etc.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER.

Two parties were arrested and fined at Somerville recently, for violating the game laws by shooting woodcock after Dec. 16th.

Members of Game Protective Societies and all law-abiding citizens should see that the law is not violated by shooting of ruffed grouse, quail and rabbit after the 31st of December next, when the open season ends.

Here is something to make a note of. Last Tuesday, Dec. 27th, parties from this city went to the Raritan River bobbing for eels. Worms to make bobs of were easily procured, as there is no frost in the ground, and several large eels were caught with them. Another party also caught several catfish with hook and line.

It is stated that residents of the lower part of the State will ask the Legislature to pass a bill this winter offering a reward of twenty-five cents for every hawk killed. This, we believe, would be a good law for the protection of game birds, as hawks are very destructive to them. Cats are also another enemy to fur and feather, and should be killed when found roaming through the woods far away from any dwelling.

The death of George Hanaman, aged 67 years, occurred in Brooklyn on Saturday last, the 24th inst.; he was until within a few years a resident of our Township and a large property holder and also one of the first commuters over the Central Railroad from our place to New York city, where he was engaged in business. About 3 years ago he had a severe stroke of Paralysis, from which he never recovered. His funeral took place on Monday last from his late residence.

Addison S. Clark,

The sneak thief, J. G. Grey, mentioned in the "Wisps" about two weeks ago, as having stolen a lot of clothing and books from our hotel proprietor, Mr. A. W. Moffett, seems to have been conscience-stricken. A few days ago Mr. Moffett received an envelope through the Post Office here and post marked from New York city, directed to the "Hon. Burt Moffett." Mr. Moffett upon opening it found a pawn ticket of a Chatham street pawn shop, for one of his valuable books, which Grey carried away with him. Mr. Moffett immediately sent to New York and recovered the book upon the payment of amount loaned on it, $2.

WHY WEAR PLASTERS?

They may relieve, but they can't cure that lame back for the kidneys are the trouble, and you want a remedy to act directly on their secretions, to purify and restore their healthy condition. REGULATE THE SECRETIONS.

In our endeavors to preserve health it is of the almost importance that we keep the secretory system in perfect condition. The well-known remedy Kidney-Wort, has specific action on the kidneys, liver and bowels. Use it instead of dosing with vile bitters or drastic pills. It is purely vegetable, and is prompt but mild in action. It is prepared in both dry and liquid form and sold by druggists everywhere.—Sunday Eagle.

It seems strange that anyone will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria, all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects Indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA cures pain in Man and Beast. For use externally and internally.

DR. ROGER'S VEGETABLE WORM SYRUP instantly destroys worms and removes the Secretions which cause them.

Nobody Enjoys the nicest surroundings if in bad health. There are miserable people about to-day to whom a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic would bring more solid comfort than all the doctors they have ever tried. See other column.

$1500 per year can be easily made at home working for E. G. Rideout & Co., 10 Barclay St., New York. Send for their catalogue and full particulars. a11y1

MISCELLANEOUS READING.

THE STORY OF A SONG.

Will S. Hays, of Louisville, has made a small fortune by writing songs. Among his popular compositions are "Mollie Darling," "Norah O'Niel," and "Evangeline." But he got no money from the latter, though it gave him a start in his business. "Just before the war," he says, "I was with some visitors up in Oldham county, Ky. Among them was a beautiful girl who resembled the ideal picture of Longfellow's 'Evangeline' so closely that I called her by this name. We danced at an out-door frolic one evening, and soon discovered that four of us could sing together. We tried popular quartets, and got along so well that we became enthusiastic. About two o'clock in the morning we started to walk home. The night was bright as day, with the full moon hanging in the sky, and as we walked we sang. We sat down in a nook to rest, and 'Evangeline' began to suggest other songs. 'I'll write you a song,' said I, 'if you'll promise to sing it before we go home.' This was agreed to. On the opposite side of the road was a white plank fence. Where we were sitting, a party of negroes had been roasting ears of corn, and the charred sticks lay all around. With them I wrote the first verse of the song on the top plank of the fence, and the notes for four voices on the four planks beneath. Then we stood off and sang it. The girls were delighted and insisted on having a chorus, so I wrote the chorus on the planks. Well, we sang it over and over, and went home singing it. Next morning 'Evangeline' came down stairs humming the air and asked me to write it out and finish it. I told her I couldn't do it, but she might go down and copy it off the fence. She took an umbrella and sheet of paper and soon came back with words and music. Then she insisted on having another verse, so I wrote another verse, on condition that I was to have a kiss for it, and she to have the music." Hays sent the composition to various music publishers, but couldn't sell it, and it was at length made public by the voice of Campbell, the negro minstrel. Three hundred thousand copies have been sold, but the kiss was the only pay the author has ever received.

NOT WORTH IT.

A backwoodsman promised to send the minister fifty pounds of maple sugar for marrying him. Time passed on, and no maple sugar arrived to sweeten the minister's household. Some months later he saw the newly-married husband in the town, and ventured to remind him: 'My friend, you did not send the maple sugar you promised.' With a saddened countenance he looked up and replied: 'To tell you the truth governor, she aint worth it.'

MAIL MATTERS.

The Postmaster General has decided that upon all papers sent as mere merchandise there may be printed any matter not having the character of an actual or personal correspondence, and that with such merchandise, and merchandise of other material, such printed matter may be enclosed or appended. It has also been decided that publishers, in addition to the name and address of the person to whom newspapers and magazines shall be sent and the other privileges now enjoyed in that respect, may also print upon the wrapper a request that if the matter be not called for in a limited time it may be delivered to any of a class of persons named.

Jones was sitting on the front steps the other night waiting for his sweetheart to come out. She knew what time to come, and Jones did not wish to ring the bell for fear of alarming the old folks. Presently he heard the door open and the old man muttered something about somebody being "too fresh." "Do you address yourself to me?" said Jones, springing up with flashing eyes. "No," said the old gentleman, mildly; "I was speaking of the paint on the steps. It was put there this afternoon." Jones took in the situation at once, and reached his room in five minutes.

One day Billy and Sammy were playing in a mud hole and Billy said:

'Now, Sammy, les play we was a barnyard. You be the pig and lie down and waller, and I'll be a bull and beller like everything.'

So they got down on their hands and knees, and Sammy he went into the dirt and wallowed, while Billy bellowed like distant thunder. By-and-by Sammy came up muddy—you never saw such a muddy little fellow,—and he said:

'Now you'll be the pig and let me beller.'

But Billy said: 'I ain't a very good pig except for dinner, and it'll be time 'nuff for you to beller when yer mother sees yer clothes.'

Squire McGill had occasion to go to Courtland, and while there he went into a grocery store and purchased a dozen lemons, making the remark to the lady clerk that he guessed he'd have some lemonade when he got home.

'Don't you want a squeezer?' she asked.

'Marm?'

'Won't you have a squeezer, sir?'

'Well, marm, ef I was a young man I would. But I've been married nigh onto thirty years, and the old lady is dreffle sot agin huggin' out of the family.'

An explanation was made and the Squire bought a squeezer to settle it.

Once the public mind was agitated with the question—"Will saltpetre explode?" Now the query seems to be shifted to—"Does prohibition prohibit?" Governor St. John, of Kansas, says it does, but ex-Governor Robinson, of that State, comes forward with testimony to prove the contrary, and asserts that drinking is more general there than ever in spite of the prohibitory law. They are both good Republicans and ought to know all about crooked things.

Little Johnny was visiting at a neighbor's house. He was offered a piece of bread and butter, which he accepted, but not with any great degree of enthusiasm.

'What do you say, Johnny?' said the lady, expecting him to say, 'Thank you.'

'I say it ain't cake,' was the boy's response.

A young lady admitted to her mother that her beau had kissed her on the cheek. 'And what did you do?' asked the old lady in a tone of indignation. 'Mother,' said the young lady, 'I can't tell a lie: I turned the other cheek.'

There are 189,000 doctors in the world, and it is said that America has one-third of them.

Found in a fit—the man with a new suit of clothes.

The labor question—ain't it about time to knock off?

Eugene B. Stork, of Junction City, Kansas, says, Kidney-Wort cured him after regular Physicians had been trying for four years.

Mrs. John Arnall, of Washington, Ohio, says, her boy was given up to die by four prominent physicians and that he was afterwards cured by Kidney-Wort.

M. M. B. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says he was not expected to live, being bloated beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him.

Anna L. Jarrett, of South Salem, N. Y., says that seven years suffering from kidney troubles and other complications was ended by the use of Kidney-Wort.

John B. Lawrence of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and after taking "barrels of other medicines," Kidney-Wort made him well.

Michael Coto of Montgomery Center, Vt., suffered eight years with kidney difficulty and was unable to work. Kidney-Wort made him "well as ever."

The Sun.

NEW YORK, 1882.

THE SUN for 1882 will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, shining, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democratic, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. THE SUN's light is for mankind and womankind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked.

THE SUN of 1868 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of THE SUN. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after THE SUN. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of THE SUN's example.

THE SUN of 1882 will be the same outspoken, truth telling, and interesting newspaper.

By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with THE SUN. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn or in Bokhara.

In politics we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of THE SUN's political course.

THE WEEKLY SUN gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, full market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific and domestic intelligence complete THE WEEKLY SUN, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like THE SUNDAY SUN, each number of which is a Golconda of interesting literature, with the best poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good-sized book, and infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little?

If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you send for THE SUN.

Our terms are as follows:

For the daily SUN, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty six columns, the price is 65 cents per month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.
